RUMANIA STRENGTHENS NORTH, SOUTH BORDERS

Movement to Unseat King Carol Reported Among Extremist Iron Guard

Hungary Rumored To Have Proposed Demilitarized Zone

Hint is Said to Have Come From Germany to Prevent Further Border 'Incidents'

RUMANIA'S PLIGHT

German-Made Bombing Planes Make Their Appearance in Rumania Landing at Brasov Airport but Reported Machines Were Recently Ordered by Rumania

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Unhappy Rumania, with a refugee problem on her hands, from the loss of Bessarabia and Bucovina to Russia, reinforced her troops along the Hungarian and Bulgarian frontier today fearful lest she lose to them Transylvania and Southern Dobruja, both of which she acquired in first Great War settlements.

Hungary, however, was reported to have acceded to a German hint and proposed a demilitarized zone on each side of the frontier to prevent further border "incidents" which previously she had warned might have "unpleasant" consequences.

Reported Plea for German Help

Rumania was reported to have made an earnest appeal for German help. Whether Germany's reply was favorable was not definite but the Rumanian Government announced that "henceforth Rumania will follow the new orientation of Europe".

Whatever the consequences of new Balkan moves might be for the Balkan States themselves there seemed little doubt that they would be adverse for Germany whose interest lay mainly in keeping Rumanian agriculture and industry moving smoothly and actively. The

Air Under-Secretary Points To Production Of Up-to-Date Designs

London, July 2 (CP). — Captain Harold Balfour, Under-Secretary of State for Air, told the House of Commons today that negotiations for the manufacture of airplane engines in the United States Ford plant had broken down as a result of Henry Ford's stipulation that he would make motors solely for defence of the United States.

Capt. Balfour said there had been no difficulty or delay in making the most up-to-date British designs available for production in the United States and the Dominions.

WILLIAM LICK DROWNS IN BAY

Campbellford Man Loses His Life While Attempting to Rescue His Dog Which Jumped Overboard from Boat

The season's first drowning fatality was recorded in the Bay of Quinte over the holiday when 33-year-old William Lick of Campbellford lost his life, while attempting to rescue his dog, that had jumped overboard from a sailing craft into the waters of the Bay of Quinte Sunday afternoon. The body had not been found at a late hour today despite efforts of Provincial Police.

Lick was in company with a friend Arthur Holsey, also of Campbellford and enroute to the Dominion Day regatta at Picton. Lick and Holsey were sailing from Campbellford to Picton, when Lick's dog jumped overboard into the bay at the widest point of that body of water opposite the mouth of the Salmon River east of Belleville. Lick removed some of his clothing before diving into the bay to rescue his dog.

Lick reached the animal, which had been carried away by the wind and current, but could not reach the boat and sank before Holsey could right the craft. Holsey was not an experienced sailor and it was some time before he could get the craft under control. When he returned to the scene Lick's body was nowhere [illegible] seen.

Chief Cor[illegible] J. J. Robertson stated today [illegible] matter of an inquest would [illegible] up as soon as the body was recovered.

GERMAN CLAIM DENIED

London, July 2—(CP)—An authoritative British source denied today a German claim that a British cruiser had been sunk off Brest. (The German high command claimed yesterday that a cruiser of the Orion class had been torpedoed off the French port)

Protection from lightning! In providing protection by rods, it is best to consult an expert who will be governed by an authorized code, but a few hints may be useful to satisfy one of a good job. For instance: on any building there must be air terminals (pointed rods) for all projections likely to receive a stroke as chimneys and ventilators; there must be at least two down conductors; all metal roofs or other large metal attachments must be bonded to the conductors; and each down conductor must be well grounded. Grounding is best done on metal water pipes or other large buried piece of metal, preferably in moist ground.

'Somewhere in Country' Princesses Find Royal Routine Upset

London, July 2—(CP)— The war has upset the Royal routine for initiating Princess Elizabeth to public life as heiress presumptive to the throne.

Neither 14-year-old Elizabeth nor her eight-year-old sister, Margaret Rose, has been in public these war-clouded days. Palace sources say that like thousands of other British boys and girls, they are "somewhere in the country."

The Princesses' visits to London are rare, usually short shopping tours and lunches with their parents, King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Because of air raid hazards they never stay at Buckingham Palace.

In seclusion they are carrying on their usual studies. There are no court functions and fewer "extras", such as dancing.

Elizabeth is said to be studying geography intently and showing keen interest in news of the war. She gave up study of German recently and started Spanish in its place.

Both children knit, save tinfoil and are held to regular food rations. In turn, they have rationed their dogs.

Queen Mary, too, is living in the country, but she makes occasional public appearances such as visits to hospitals.

Princess Elizabeth's last public appearance was at her birthday party in Windsor Castle April 20.

Queen Elizabeth is one of the busiest women in England. She makes almost daily trips to hospitals, benefits and meetings of service auxiliary units.

The last public appearance of the King and Queen together was a visit last week to the King George and Queen Elizabeth Victoria Club for Dominion troops. The following day they had luncheon for President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of Poland and his wife, who came to England from France.

The rest of the Royal family is almost as busy.

The Duke of Kent returned only today from a good will mission to Portugal. The Duke of Gloucester is assigned to "war duties." The Duchesses of Kent and Gloucester are making almost daily rounds of hospitals, canteens, aid service and auxiliary stations.

LEFTIST LEADER ONCE TERRORIST, HELD AT CALCUTTA

Is Leftist Leader of Indian Nationalist Congress and Ex-President of Party

HELD TWICE BEFORE

Subhas Chandra Bose Has Visited Both Mussolini and Hitler

Calcutta, July 2 (CP)—Subhas Chandra Bose, Leftist leader of the Indian Nationalist Congress, was arrested today at his home here under the Defence of Indian Regulations.

Bose is a one-time terrorist and former President of the Indian National Congress party who has visited both Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler.

He had open differences with Mohandas K. Gandhi more than a year ago over Congress policy and formed his own group, called the Forward Bloc, which demands immediate independence under a threat of nation-wide civil disobedience.

Nationalists public opinion under Gandhi's more moderate influence has made it impossible for him to carry out the threat.

TWENTY PERSONS KILLED IN ONTARIO DURING WEEKEND

Holiday Observed Quietly With Few Patriotic Rallies on Dominion Day

6 DROWN IN ALBERTA

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada counted a toll of at least forty violent deaths after the long Dominion Day weekend. It was the country's first wartime Dominion Day in 20 years and the holiday was observed quietly with a few patriotic rallies signalling passage of the 73rd milestone since Confederation.

Ontario reported the heaviest loss of life. Twenty persons died in that province during the three days. Alberta had 10 deaths and there were four in Quebec, three in Nova Scotia, two in Saskatchewan and one each in Manitoba and New Brunswick.

The fatal accidents occurred in the wake of a general exodus from the cities to mountain retreats and other resorts. Attendance at numerous sports events in Ontario, Quebec and the Martime provinces was reduced by generally unfavorable weather. It was sunny and warm in most parts of western Canada and the Pacific coast.

Mixed Lot of Enemy Prisoners of War Brought to Canada

First Batch of Nazis from British Internment Camps Arrive and Are Well Guarded — 'Those Flying Fellows Are Arrogant Lot,' Says British Officer—'Some Prisoners Boastful, Some Skulking, Swaggering Louts,' Men of Prison Ship Declare

Quebec, July 2 (CP)—The first German prisoners from the United Kingdom were encamped "somewhere in Canada" today after being disembarked at Quebec and Montreal during the weekend.

Shortly after they left the prison ship, the men were rushed to specially-prepared internment camps awaiting them at unspecified destinations. The number of men involved could not be revealed.

Although the location of the camps was not revealed, the office of the director of internment operations at Ottawa issued a statement saying that "most of the camps are so far from civilization and all of them so well-guarded that there is no occasion whatever for public nervousness."

Tense Watchfulness

Days and nights of tense watchfulness on the part of the ship's crew ended when the prisoners were embarked, some at Quebec and the remainder at Montreal. The 250 British officers and men who guarded them told of sleeping about two nights out of seven on the voyage across the Atlantic.

It was a mixed lot who trouped down the gangplanks at Montreal and Quebec. Some came smiling, hailing each other jocularly, apparently not sorry to be removed from the war zones. Other were glowering and sullen, described as "skulking, swaggering louts" by the men who guarded them on their ocean trip.

German 'Scuttles Self'

One who set out from England failed to complete the trip. He leaped overboard in a fanatical race during the voyage across—"scuttled himself" as a cockney steward put it.

Besides aliens who had been interned in Britain, there were army officers and men in green uniforms, blue-clad aviators, U-boat and tank crews and parachute troops in black leather trousers and jackets.

The prisoners were brought to Canada at the request of the British government, because of the

Canada to Finish Production End of Empire Air Scheme Without Overseas Aid—Howe

Two-Year Original Program Largely Compressed Into One Year

PRODUCTION OF PLANES

Ottawa, July 2—(CP)—Canada, whipping air might into fighting trim to aid the United Kingdom, will be able to complete the whole production program of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan without overseas assistance, Munitions Minister Howe announced today.

Such great strides have been made by the Canadian aircraft industry that the larger part of the original program which covered two years has been compressed into a one-year plan, the minister said.

Elementary training planes are already being manufactured in the Dominion on a mass production basis and, Mr. Howe added, construction of advanced training planes is proceeding in accord with the needs of an accelerated training schedule.

As pilots graduate from their preliminary training in elementary planes, advanced training planes

War Secretary Refers To Distribution of Troops in N. Ireland

London, July 2 (AP).—War Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that the military garrison of Northern Ireland had been distributed to the best advantage, but said he could not discuss the dispositions publicly.

Asked whether the British army's plans included Eire, Mr. Eden replied, "There is nothing I would like better."

Berlin, July 2 — (AP) — Reto Caratsch, chief Berlin correspondent for the Swiss newspaper Neue Zuricher Zeitung, has been asked to leave Germany as quickly as possible, it was announced today, on the charge that his recent dispatches have transgressed the limits of self-censorship imposed on foreign newsmen.

London, July 2 —(CP)— Britain today counted 12 persons dead and 22 injured in the wake of a new series of German bombing raids over the British Isles which began early last night during twilight and lasted until dawn. Most of the casualties were women and children.

At about the time the first raid came the Air Ministry was announcing British raids over a widespread area in Germany Sunday night when oil storage facilities, arms works, airports, aircraft and other military targets were hit and heavily damaged.

British hopes of rescuing at least part of the French navy were Admiralty Source Says German Submarines Have Increased but Not to 'Alarming Extent'

ESCORT PLANS UPSET

Few British Losses in Mediterranean—British Better Off in Actual Tonnage Than 10 Months Ago

London, July 2—(CP)—An authoritative source today attributed recent "admittedly heavy" merchant shipping losses to increased submarine activity and the fact that British escort arrangements had been "upset" by recent events.

This comment was made upon an official announcement of the British Admiralty that British mercantile shipping totalling 88,259 tons had been lost by German-Italian action in the week ended June 28.

For the week ended June 16, acknowledged British merchant shipping losses totalled 52,642 tons. For the week ended June 9, the figure was 45,936 tons.

(Loss of the Espero, listed in Jane's fighting ships as a destroyer, was acknowledged by the Italians yesterday.)

Raids on Italian airdromes and oil tanks, carried out without losses despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, also were reported by the air command.

Its communique said:

"A successful raid was carried out on Gondar, Abyssinia and Azozo yesterday. Aircraft which were dispersed on the airdrome were bombed.

MACDONNELL MAY BE GIVEN POST OF WAR SERVICES

Conservative and Veteran of First Great War Mentioned for New Portfolio

PROROGATION JULY 20?

Ottawa, July 2—(CP)—The time at which the expected changes in the cabinet will be announced became as much a matter for speculation in the capital today as the changes themselves.

Col. J. L. Ralston's shift from the Finance Department to the National Defence Department is the only sure-fire thing, having been announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King some time ago.

But others are due soon, including the appointment of a Minister for the new national war services department to co-ordinate voluntary war endeavor. For this post J. M. Macdonnell of Toronto has been mentioned as a likely candidate.

Mr. Macdonnell, head of the National Trust Company, is a Conservative and a veteran of the First Great War, having enlisted as a subaltern in 1914 and wound up

Fascist-Inclined Group Blames King In Present Crisis

Dispatches State That Iron Guard Leaders, Recently Returned from Exile, Hold Monarch Personally Accountable for Rumania's Situation

TWO TRENDS SEEN

Extremists Reported to Have Accused Carol of Having Failed to Seek More Favorable Settlement With Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria

Belgrade July 2—(AP)—A movement among Extremist members of Rumania's Fascist-Inclined iron guard to compel the abdication of King Carol, holding him responsible for the loss of Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina to Russia, was reported today in diplomatic dispatches from Bucharest.

These dispatches said iron guard leaders who returned recently to Bucharest from exile in Rome and Berlin held the monarch personally accountable for Rumania's present plight.

Attitude of Leaders

Leaders were said to be preparing to attempt to unseat the King by force if necessary, with some of them demanding complete abdication of the dynasty and others desiring the return to the throne of Crown Prince Michael.

Their chief reproach was that Carol fought them because of their tie-up with Germany and Italy when, they declared only those powers could have prevented Rumania's present situation.

They were said also to accuse King Carol of having failed to seek a more favorable settlement with Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria when Rumania was in a better bargaining position.

DIRECT HITS MADE ON MILITARY TARGETS BY BRITISH FLIERS

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, July 2 (C.P. Reuters)—An official communique today stated:

"A third attack was launched against Moyale (on the British side of the Kenya-Ethiopian border) about three o'clock yesterday afternoon, but made no progress and the situation was quiet at six in the evening.

"During the attack, our aircraft again bombed military targets in the neighborhood of Italian Moyale with good results and direct hits were obtained.

"During the night the front was quiet."

Wang Ching-Wei Arrests 84 Chinese Charging Agitation

Shanghai, July 2 (AP). — Wang Ching-Wei, head of the Japanese-sponsored Nanking regime, ordered today the arrest of 84 Chinese residents of the Shanghai foreign concessions on charges of agitating against his government.

How the arrests were to be effected in the foreign areas where Wang has no authority was not explained.

The published list of those against whom the charges were made included many prominent Chinese bankers, newspapermen and members of the Kuomintang party.

Wang repeatedly has declared the foreign concessions in Shanghai are becoming a refuge for "terrorists" friendly to the Chinese Central Government of Chiang Kai-Shek at Chungking.

ALIEN RESIDENTS OF U.S. STRANDED

Hundreds Believed to Have Been Affected by New U.S. Border Rulings

Buffalo, N. Y., July 2—(AP)—Immigration officials at the International Peace Bridge disclosed yesterday the possibility that hundreds of alien residents of the United States may be stranded in Canada because of failure to comply with new United States immigration regulations, effective last midnight.

The new American regulations not only require Canadians crossing the border to show passports, but also enjoin alien residents of the United States to obtain border or resident alien identification cards to insure their re-admittance to the United States.

Celebration in Canada of a three-day weekend, occasioned by the observance of Dominion Day, lured thousands into the Dominion since Friday.

M. P. Tetter, Peace Bridge immigration inspector, said his staff of 26 assistants worked double shifts during the week-end to fulfill more than 500 requests for resident alien identification cards.

He said the Canadians were "well educated" to the new regulation, but that many who live in the United States probably had neglected to obtain the identification, erroneously believing their United States residence would entitle them to re-entry.

British Workers to Work After Air Raid Signals Unless Attack Imminent

London, July 2 (CP).—Britain's blockade has been applied to French ports to prevent goods reaching Germany but has been deferred against French colonies pending clarification of their status, Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, informed the House of Commons today.

Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, said that Dalton would make a further statement on the blockade in a secret session if the members desired it.

Sir John Anderson, Minister of Home Security, said the government believed that "in order to defeat the efforts of the enemy to dislocate production in war industries, workers engaged in war production should continue at work after public air raid warnings until it is clear that enemy attack is actually imminent in that locality."

The Air Command, he said, would be cautious about sounding air raid alarms to "avoid unnecessary and undue interference with civil life."

Orderly dispersal of the population is part of ordinary defence policy, Mr. Attlee declared in answering a question on the same matter, but he said "panic evacuation was opposed".

After War Secretary Anthony Eden had told the House that Czech and Polish soldiers were being reorganized to continue the fight against Germany, Mr. Attlee announced the government was giving urgent attention to encouragement of French forces able and willing to continue fighting.

The King Decorates With V. C. Widow of Flotilla Commander

London, July 2 (CP)—King George today decorated with the Victoria Cross the widow of Capt. B. A. W. Warburton-Lee, who commanded the British destroyer flotilla in the first battle of Narvik last April 10 when Germany invaded Norway.

The Victoria Cross is Britain's highest military decoration and the posthumous award to Capt. Warburton-Lee marked its first presentation in the current war.

Warburton-Lee ordered the attack on German-held Narvik when the Admiralty put him on his own. A shell hit the bridge of his ship, the destroyer Hardy, and wounded him mortally. The Hardy was run aground, the Hunter was sunk and two other destroyers were damaged, but the Germans lost six supply ships, one destroyer was torpedoed and three others were set afire.

YOUNG LADIES MEET AT COBOURG ARMORIES

About twenty-five young ladies are meeting regularly at the Cobourg Armouries to receive helpful instruction along various military lines. They are being coached by Capt. Russell Manning and other officers of the 22nd. Med. Battery.

They have already taken gas mask drill and lessons in target practice. In the class are some of the members of the ladies' motor mechanics class who received instruction along that line during the past few weeks. It is expected that a women's rifle club will be organized a little later.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS QUIET WEEKEND

The Belleville Fire Department had a quiet week-end with only two calls being received at the local fire hall over the long holiday week end, with one of these later turning out to be a false alarm.

On Dominion Day they were called to St. Charles Street, where a can of tar was blazing merrily. Apparently it was intended to use the tar in the process of roof repair and in the heating it in some manner caught fire. This morning the reels were called to 90 Dundas St., but the call turned out to be a false alarm.

KID - KAR ENTRANTS ASSEMBLE STEEDS

Riggs Motor Sales resounded to the shouts of exuberant youth this morning as approximately seventy-five entrants of the Kid Kar Derby, which is scheduled to take place Tuesday, July 9th., assembled their "steeds" for display and acquire the lettering which they will carry in the race.

All manner and type of Kar was represented in the showroom which ordinarily sports the latest in motor cars. Modern streamline effects, painted a glaring aluminum color with contrasting stripes and others of a strange departure from the usual design in their buntyness proclaimed the designing abilities of their various youthful owners. All were imbued with the one spirit of getting their conveyances into shape for the annual race on Derby Hill.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS SHOW A DECREASE

Customs receipts at the Belleville Customs office for the quarter ending June 30th, 1940, amounted to $477,633.28 as compared with receipts totalling $299,391.16 for the same period during 1939, thus showing an increase for the quarter of $178,242.22.

Receipts for the month of June, 1940, amounted to $78,246.13 as compared with $97,773.30 for the same period during 1939, showing a decrease of $19,527.17. Thus showing that although there was a decrease for the month the receipts for the quarter were considerably over those of one year ago.

The little Redway lass was playing in the street near her home when the accident occurred.

City Engineer Completes 21 Years Of Service With City

City Engineer Charles A. Mott became of age as a city employee today. It was just 21 years ago today that Mr. Mott was engaged as an assistant in the City Engineer's Department of the Corporation of the City of Belleville.

"It has been a long and happy period of association as an employee of the city and I might say I've made many friends within the walls of the City Hall during my period of employment as a city servant," Engineer Mott told the Ontario Intelligencer in his office today as he related as to the employees, who were engaged in the work of the city 21 years ago. Eight building permits totalling $16,000 were issued by City Engineer Charles Mott during the month of June, while construction permits issued during the year and up until June 30th totalled 42 with a value of $71,360 as compared to 43 permits issued during the same period last year with a value of $49,130.

Man Believed To Have Fallen Beneath Wheels Of C. N. R. Train

Believed to have fallen beneath the wheels of an incoming fast express train, D. Zeidman, 281 Manning Ave., Toronto, railway news vendor, sustained fatal injuries at the Canadian National depot in Belleville last night. Zeidman died as he was being placed in Martin's ambulance and an inquest was ordered to be held today before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Zeidman, employed by the Canadian Railways News Company, was hauling a small station truck between the east and west bound tracks carrying his wares of goods to be sold en route from Belleville to Toronto, when the second section of No. 15, the evening express, steamed into the Belleville depot. It is believed that the train struck the truck, which Zeidman was hauling, resulting in his being pushed beneath the west bound train.

Unfortunately no person witnessed the accident and Zeidman's body was not discovered until the west bound express left Belleville. Dr. F. R. Ro[illegible] attended the fatally injured man at the scene.

Inquest Opened

The inquest looking into the death of D. Zeidman, employee of the Canada News Agency, who died as the result of injuries received at the Belleville C.N.R. depot last night, opened at the Belleville Burial Company parlours at noon today before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Identification was established by Gordon Kennedy, a fellow employee of the deceased man, who also resides in Toronto. Sergeant Arthur Booth empanelled the jury and following identification the inquest adjourned until 7 p.m., Thursday.

FOUR ACCIDENTS IN LOCAL AREA

Mrs. Vera Pitcher, East Bridge Street, Sustains Fractured Ankle

Four highway accidents occurred in the Belleville area over the week end, implicating one Belleville person, who was treated at the Belleville General Hospital for a fractured ankle. The lone Belleville motorist was Mrs. Vera Pitcher, East Bridge Street, who sustained a fractured ankle and other minor lacerations when an automobile driven by her husband, H. R. Pitcher, Belleville, was in collision with another motor car near Thomasburg on Sunday.

Miss Nora O'Brien, Ottawa, was seriously hurt early Sunday morning when the automobile in which she was a passenger went out of control and turned over four times after clipping off a telephone post and several fence posts near Brighton. Miss O'Brien was thrown about thirty feet from the car. She suffered serious cuts and internal injuries. The car was driven by Flying Officer Tex Witherspoon of the R.C.A.F., Trenton.

Private K. T. Shaw of the Midland Regiment, at Trenton; Miss Betty Thompson, Smithfield, and Nancy Green, Smithfield, were admitted to the General Hospital following an accident north of Trenton early Sunday. Miss Green was most seriously injured, suffering a fractured pelvis and internal injuries. Miss Thompson suffered lacerations of the face, arms and legs, and Private Shaw suffered four fractured ribs, and a fractured knee cap. All three were passengers in an automobile driven by Charles Puffer of the Midland Regiment, who escaped injury. The car was proceeding south on the Wooler Road, and went out of control when a tire blew out.

Drs. Robertson, Cronk and Stobie were in attendance of the injured persons.

Motor accidents were kept at the minimum in Belleville, however, when no major crashes were recorded over the Dominion Day holiday week end. A few minor collisions were investigated by police, but none resulted in serious injury nor the necessity of hospitalization. All property damage saw amicable settlement between the parties concerned.

'WE ARE FACING UNPRECEDENTED PERIL'—STIMSON

Roosevelt Nominee Says He Does Not Believe 'We Shall be Safe from Invasion if We Sit Down and Wait for Enemy to Attack Our Shores'

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Henry L. Stimson, President Roosevelt's nominee for Secretary of War, told the United States Senate Military Committee today he did not believe "that we shall be safe from invasion if we sit down and wait for the enemy to come to our shores."

Stimson, a Republican, testified regarding his qualifications for the war secretaryship while the Senate Naval Committee started a hearing on the selection of Frank Knox, 1936 Republican vice-presidential nominee, to be Secretary of the Navy.

Stimson, who was Secretary of State in the Hoover administration and Secretary of War under President Taft, told the military group that "we are faced with an unprecedented peril."

Military Training

He recommended compulsory military training as one means of bolstering the Nation's defences. He continued:—

"Today, the time which we will have for our rearmament is very largely dependent upon the continuance of Great Britain's control of the North Atlantic.

"Under these conditions any assistance which we can safely give towards the continuance of that sea power in the North Atlantic is a step most important to our own interest in preparation".

Situation More Critical Since Autumn

The 72-year-old witness said that "the situation today is much more critical than it was last autumn (when Congress repealed the arms embargo) and the time which can be saved by the existence of British sea power much more precious".

The United States, Stimson said has no desire for aggression and "no one wishes to send American troops beyond our borders unless the protection of this United States itself make such action necessary".

"On the other hand", he declared, "I do not believe that the United States can be safely protected by a purely passive or defensive system. I do not believe that we shall be safe from invasion if we sit down and wait for the enemy to attack our shores."

German-Born Wife Of R. A. F. Sergeant Given Ten Years

London, July 2 (CP)—Marie Louisa Augusta Ingram, German born wife of a Royal Air Force Sergeant, was convicted today of conspiring to break defence regulations. She was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

William Swift, accused with her of trying to obtain arms to protect enemy invaders was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment. Archibald Watts was acquitted.

Mrs. Ingram, who was quoted by police as having said that Hitler would make Sir Oswald Mosley, prisoned leader of British Fascists, the boss of Britain, was acquitted of an additional charge of having plotted to obtain blueprints of a British tank.

BODY IS RECOVERED

Toronto, July 2—(CP)—Body of Loren Wegenest, 44, Toronto, was found in Toronto Bay yesterday. He had been in ill health several years. Search began after the finding of a coat, hat and set of false teeth on a pier.

The bodies later were put aboard an airplane to be transported to Italy for burial, the radio said.

St. Michael's Band Honored At Waterloo Music Festival

Several of the Members of the Organization Win Distinction in Contests

PLEASANT TRIP

By kind gesture of Belleville Council, Knights of Columbus, St. Michael's Band was enabled to take part in the Waterloo Band Festival last Saturday.

On arrival at Kitchener they were met by Mr. R. P. Uffelman, general manager, with a supply of cars and were escorted to the beautiful 68 acre expanse of Waterloo Park. The classes were already in session when they arrived.

Seven children of the Band took part in solo classes: Bobby Young, eleven years old, again took the gold medal in his class for saxophone. The class he had to compete in being the 16 year old class.

Dolores Clapp, eleven years old, took the silver medal, being second in her clarinet class.

Betty Flynn, 10 years old, lacked one-half a mark from the 3rd medal in the same class.

John Briand, 10 years old, took "honors" in cornet work.

Edward Barrett, 10 years old, got "distinction' in same class.

Terry Meagher, 11 years old, was outstanding in her class as she stood with men 25 years of age for bass solo and merited the "distinction" mark.

Loyola Chapell also was the only girl in her class for Euphonium players 16 years of age. Although only 11 years old she also merited "distinction" mark.

Mrs. William Grant played the piano accompaniment for the above children in their various contests in a very capable manner.

In the Band tests for Collegiates (18 years of age), St. Michael's received an overwhelming applause. They were the baby band of the day, and the crowd listened with astonishment to their rendition of the same test piece played by all the bigger bands before them. The only drawback according to official remarks was in the numbers. The other bands numbered thirty pieces and St. Michael's only nineteen pieces. Their credit mark was 12 1-2 points below the winning band from Hamilton, Ont.

Special Honor to St. Michael's Band

Major C. P. Thiele founder of the Festival, invited them to play on the main platform that evening before an audience of fifty bands and over twenty thousand people. He himself introduced them as the youngest band he knew if in the continent. He especially remarked that while all other juvenile bands were conducted by band men experienced in years, this little band was perfectly led by a child, 10 years of age, from among themselves, Barbara Forhan. As a token of his appreciation Major Thiele presented the Band with his own baton. The programme played by the children in front of this vast audience received tremendous applause and they seemed to feel keen regret when it was announced by Major Thiele that they would have to leave after their next selection for their train. He again referred to their outstanding musical ability and hoped Waterloo could look forward to having this talented aggregation of Band musicians with them again next year.

Among those accompanying the Band on this trip was Right Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G., M.C.

JOINED C. A. S. F., U.S. CITIZEN LOSES HIS CITIZENSHIP

Soldier Who Was Honorably Discharged from C.A.S.F. Barred by U.S. Court of Inquiry

Montreal, July 2—(CP)—A United States board of inquiry ruled here today that Philip Stegerer, 26, of Washington, forfeited his United States citizenship by joining the Canadian Active Service Force. The board refused him permission to return to his native country.

Stegerer said he believed his case set a precedent by which hundreds of other United States citizens may be deprived of their American right because they gave oaths of allegiance to King George when they joined the C.A.S.F.

Stegerer enlisted in the C.A.S.F. last February and was given honorable discharge papers last week after old injuries made it physically impossible for him to continue service. He stands six foot three and weighs 260 pounds.

"If I want to get back to the United States I'll have to go through the formalities that any immigrant faces," he said. "And we've been residents of the United States since before the revolutionary war when two of my ancestors were army leaders under Washington."

The formal decision of the board of inquiry was that Stegerer was barred from entry into the United States because he was "an immigrant not in possession of an unexpired consular immigration visa."

The expatriated Washington man said: "I come to Canada to fight for democracy and I wind up a guy without a country, without a job and without a dime. Gosh."

TANKER AGROUND WITH 'GAS' CARGO

Acadialite of Imperial Oil Company's Fleet Stranded During Fog Near Georgian Bay

Tobermory, Ont., July 2—(CCP)—The Acadialite, 10-year-old tanker of the Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., remained aground today off Cove Island at the Lake Huron entrance to Georgian Bay. The vessel stranded during a thick fog Saturday and is reported to have lost 10,000 barrels of her cargo of 22,000 barrels of gasoline.

District fishermen said the ship is damaged severely and that it swung broadside onto a shoal after striking it. None of the crew was injured and another Imperial Oil vessel is standing by, awaiting the arrival of additional salvage equipment from Toronto.

Fishermen said that after the tanker struck the water for some distance around the vessel was "red from the gasoline" which had poured out. Further damage to the ship was caused by a swell sweeping in from Lake Huron.

The Acadialite is of Montreal registry and was built in England. She is of 2,000 gross tonnage and is 250 feet long.

Canberra, Australia, July 2—(CP)—P. C. Spender, the Commonwealth Treasurer, announced today Australia had a surplus of 3,000,000 pounds, ($8,400,000) for the fiscal year ended June 30. There was a cash surplus of 12,000,000 pounds, ($33,600,000) from which was deducted 9,000,000 pounds ($25,200,000) to defray war expenditures in the last six months.

The treasurer budgeted before the war for a surplus of only 38,000 pounds ($106,400), but a rush of imports against possible wartime shortages and increased wartime taxation produced a revenue of more than 10,000,000 pounds, ($30,000,000 greater than the original estimate.

No Windfalls Ahead

In the new financial year the treasurer can expect no windfalls, however. On the contrary, it is expected there will be a greater shortage in customs revenues, coupled with incalculable expenditures for the manufacture of munitions and aircraft.

The providing of camps, clothing and equipment of the army is another costly undertaking. Including the Australian imperial force, militia undergoing compulsory training for home defence, war veterans on guard duty and coastal defence forces, Australia has 100,000 men under arms.

63,000 Men Enlisted

The Australian imperial force for service abroad totals 63,000 enlistments. Men are joining up at the rate of 1,000 a day. By calling up further age groups for compulsory training and enlisting volunteers Australia plans to assemble a home defence of 250,000 men, in addition to the 57,000 men she has undertaken to contribute to the Empire Air Training Scheme.

The Royal Australian Air Force soon will have a first line strength of 19 squadrons. Naval personnel has been increased by 1,000 ratings.

3 STOLEN CARS ARE RECOVERED

In One Case, Everett McDonald, Trenton, Charged With Taking Car Without Consent of Owner

Three automobiles were reported stolen in Belleville over the holiday week end, all being recovered through the efforts of the police.

Late Saturday night an automobile was reported taken from its parking position at the upper end of the main street. The vehicle was reported missing by Mark Spafford, 156 Church Street, it being a 1929 model Oakland. Early Sunday Constables Ellis and Wright found the car abandoned near the C.N.R. station.

Everett McDonald, Trenton, was arrested in Trenton, Sunday after an automobile had been allegedly taken from the Trudeau Motor Sales. McDonald, who was a previous employee of the local Ford branch, was charged with taking a motor car without the consent and knowledge of its owner and held in custody. Belleville police alleged McDonald took the vehicle from the Trudeau Motors and drove home to Trenton.

The third vehicle reported missing was owned by A. D. Cameron, Trent Road, and removed from its parking position on John St. Saturday night. Police later learned that the vehicle had been moved by friends in a joking gesture. It was later returned unharmed.

Kingston police reported the theft of a 1939 model Plymouth sedan taken from that city on Sunday. The car was equipped with Ontario licence plates number 176-N-7 when stolen.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT MOVES TO VICHY

LESS RAIN FELL IN JUNE 1940 THAN IN JUNE 1939

But Lower Temperature Was Reached in June 1940 Than in the Previous June

Believe it or not, here's one for Ripley. Contrary to the sworn opinion of every resident of the district that the month of June was the wettest on all record, absolutely spoiling the plans of many a picnic party with its finicky changeability and making life miserable for country and city folk alike, it is now revealed that the month of June, 1939, only one year ago, was wetter than the month just closed.

According to figures released today from the pump house where records of such kind are kept with meticulous care, it seems that in June, 1940, there was exactly 1.15 inches of rainfall, all of which fell during eighteen days of the month, thus leaving only twelve days upon which this district was not visited with old Jupiter Pluvius. For the same period last year there was 1.43 inches of rainfall in 14 days, so it appears that there were a few rainy days during June, 1939, also. All of which figures out that there was exactly .18 inches less rain in June of this year than of June, 1939.

Temperature figures also reveal some startling information. During the month just closed the high temperature reading was 80.5 and the low for the month was 41.8. During June, 1939, the high reading was 88.5, exactly eight points hotter or warmer, whichever you like, while the low reading was 41.5, .3 points lower than last year and here we were thinking that the month just passed surpassed all records in climatical provocativeness.

Ward Ketcheson Lands 12-lb. Trout At Salmon Lake

Probably the happiest camper in the north country at the present time is Ward Ketcheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, who landed a twelve pound trout at Salmon Lake over the week end. Fishing with his father and Alderman McLean Haig, who incidentally had not put out all his line, Ward got a hefty strike and the battle was on. For a short time the trout did not move from the bottom and there being a strong wind blowing at the time the boat was pulled back some feet before Mr. Trout gave a rise. All in the boat were anxious to see the finny beauty and he was hauled nearly to the top of the water and when his size was noted excitement reigned supreme but Ward took charge and with careful manipulation succeeded in bringing the fish to the net, where he was successfully landed in the boat. The fish is on exhibition in Luckins window.

Mr. Hannah, of Cobourg., also secured a 12-pounder in the same lake.

Germans Depend On Yugoslavia, Finns For Copper, Nickel

Washington, July 2 (AP). — The United States Bureau of Mines reported today that Germany now is almost entirely dependent on Yugoslavia and Finland for sorely needed supplies of nickel, lead and copper.

Officials said that Yugoslav rapprochement with Russia, together with Soviet domination of industrial Finland clouded the future of German access to these metals. The outlook was made more uncertain, they said, by Russia's unknown intentions in southern Europe where she already has advanced into Bessarabia and Bucovina.

They believed that if the Russian advance ran into resistance from the Berlin-Rome axis, there might follow serious curtailment of normal German imports of Yugoslav and Finnish minerals.

Young People's Unions Hold Annual Picnic

The Belleville and South Hastings District Young People's Unions held their annual picnic on Wednesday, June 26 at the Tabernacle, Oak Lake with an attendance of 150.

The main event of the afternoon was a baseball tournament. Each union in the district was entitled to enter a team. There were ten teams in the competition but the play-off game was between Zion Hill and Foxboro and was won by the former. They were presented with three pounds of chocolates. The losers also received a consolation prize.

The picnic supper was followed by a Galilean worship service conducted from a boat in the lake. A cornet solo by Mr. James Ketcheson provided the call to worship. As the boat came into sight a quartette of Foxboro girls sang "Jesus calls us o'er the tumult". Myrtle Hubble gave the Scripture reading after which the quartette sang "Now on land and sea descending" with Jubilate chorus. A story entitled "The Pearl of Great Price" was told by Marion Daniels. All united in singing "Taps" as the closing of the service. The boat gradually moved out of sight while the girls sang "Jesus saviour pilot me".

This impressive worship service was planned by Miss Muriel Milligan, Christian Fellowship convener for the district.

Announcements by the president, Mr. Ralph Campbell and a vote of thanks to all who had taken part during the day marked the closing of a very successful picnic.

Picton

Picton, July 2—(Special)—Little Bobby Harrington returned on Monday from the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. He will be confined to bed for some time, as a small bone from the ankle was grafted onto his arm. He will return to Toronto later for further treatment.

Herbert Stewart and Mr. Recie Selman of Camp Borden are on leave at their homes in Picton.

Mr. A. H. Lloyd is building a fine new boathouse with living quarters overhead on the bay shore and with his family will occupy it for the summer. The summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Goodwin on the McDougal property along the bay is also nearing completion.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. Max Dodds of Picton and Mr. Jamie Dodds of Trenton on the death of their grandmother, Mrs. James Baker, at her home, Bridge St. Mrs. Baker had reached a very advanced age, but had enjoyed good health until recent months. Before coming to Picton thirty-two years ago, the deceased lived at Adolphustown. A daughter, Miss Gertie Baker at home is also left to mourn. Interment was made at Adolphustown on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cunningham and family have rented Mr. Jack Shannon's cottage on the bay for the summer.

LAKE LOUGHBORO YIELDS NICE TROUT

Several fine catches of game fish were reported by Belleville anglers with the opening of the bass and maskinonge season over the week-end. Bruce Smith displayed a 9½-pound salmon trout at the police station last night, which measured 29¼ inches long. This finny beauty was caught in Lake Loughboro near Kingston.

Herb Burley, 47 Yeomans street, caught a fine 6 pound 10 ounce pickerel that measured 21½ inches long. Both fish were recorded in the records of the Belleville Anglers' Club.

"HARD FIGHTING," SAYS IL DUCE.

Rome, July 2—(AP)—Premier Mussolini claimed today in a letter to Crown Prince Umberto that "hard, bloody fighting" occurred in what he calls the four-day "battle of the western Alpine front" before Italy and France signed their armistice June 24. Italians, Mussolini claimed, fought their way through French defences from eight to 32 kilometre, (roughly five to 20 miles) on a 120-mile front before the fighting ceased.

Mussolini wrote that the French continued fighting on the Italian front "even after the armistice was signed, since they were kept literally in ignorance of what was happening in the rest of France."

Il Duce said thousands of dead testified to the bitterness of the combat. A list of Italy's dead will be published later, he said.

Five times in his letter Mussolini began his statement with the words: "Italians and foreigners ought to know," showing a desire to make the world believe that Italy had taken part in real warfare.

HOMES FOR BRITISH CHILDREN

Appeal for homes for children who are to be evacuated from the British Isles is made by Superintendent T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society who will supervise the placing in this district of the young evacuees. The need is very great and time is pressing as the British autthorities will soon have numbers of the children on their way to Canada and other Dominions. Cities, towns, villages and countryside of Canada have made a magnificent response to the appeal to provide homes for the British boys and girls who have under the stress of conditions been chosen to leave their country and families and friends to escape the possible ravages of conflict. The authorities are confident that the response of Belleville and district and all other parts of Canada will be such as to provide more homes than may be necessary.

These homes are to be provided for the duration of the war, after which the children will return to their homes in the Motherland, according to plans.

Here is a great humanitarian movement and also an opportunity to which the response is everywhere very gratifying. There is the opportunity of bringing up and guiding for the period of the war these children who will form a new link of Empire. Homes which shelter these boys and girls will be blessed with the satisfaction of knowing they have done their duty and have taken part in a great war effort to make life more secure for these little ones and to provide them with the guarantee of seeing life without drawbacks of life in the immediate war area.

Every person who possibly can take one or more of these children should communicate at once with Mr. Ruston.

BRITISH AIR STRENGTH GROWS

British air raids on many military objectives in different parts of Germany formed the most impressive impressive combination of forays over Germany by the R.A.F.

News of this happy character comes at the time when planes from the United States are being received in large numbers.

Canadians have a part in this acceleration of plane strength as Lord Beaverbrook stated that Canadian planes were better than first rate and are in every way satisfactory.

British air strength is growing. But there is still a long way to go before production reaches the point desired says Lord Beaverbrook but such fine results have been achieved in the past recent weeks that there is good encouragement that the ideal will be reached.

Britain is growing more and more formidable in the air. Her airmen are better than the Huns, her bombers better than the enemy's. The odds have been against Britain in the air but in spite of enemy numerical superiority the British have shown marvellous results. With the odds steadily diminishing, the tables will be turned soon and the R.A.F. will be a constant nightmare to the enemy.

Hitler, passing incognito through Paris the other day, took a look for the first time at the tomb of Napoleon, the French Corsican who dominated Europe and marched his armies over Germany and kept other sections under foot but not England. What must have been the nazi's thoughts as he gazed upon Napoleon's resting place? Did he think of St. Helena?

Hitler posed before the world a week ago in the Compiegne Forest as he dramatically tried to erase history by denying the German blame for the First Great War and planning the destruction of memorials to upset the records of history. Did the thought pass through that fertile and violent brain that his history could be wiped out, that there will be another Waterloo?

MACAULAY'S LINES ARE QUOTED

The Vancouver Province quotes Macaulay's lines on incidents of events in a war in Italy twenty-five centuries ago to illustrate a statement of fascist authorities that Italy has 10,000,000 women, old men and minors, exempt from military service, who are said to be available for the third line of defence as civilian war workers are called.

These are the lines of Macaulay:

"The harvests of Arrentium, this year, old men shall reap.
This year, young boys in Umbro shall plunge the struggling sheep.
And in the vats of Luna, this year, the must shall foam
Round the white feet of laughing girls, whose sires have marched to Rome."

The Province also comments "As the French say, the more things change, the more they are still the same."

Blind To Tactics

One of the oddest parts of the break through in France is that General Gamelin and his staff should have been taken by surprise. Experts have known all about the new German method of war for long enough and they have seen it practised in Poland. Even the layman knew. The whole method of attack was tried out, with representatives of the powers watching, at the great German military manoeuvres of 1937. The details appeared in Max Werner's "Military Strength of the Powers," which was published last summer. You will find an exact account of the present German offensive—the low-flying bombers, followed by hundreds of monster tanks and then by motorized units; you will even find a prophecy of the section of the line where the Germans would attack.

Why, then, were the French generals surprised? The answer would take one far. The first reason is that the French relied ever since the last war on defense and built up for themselves a myth of an impregnable fortress—which only makes it more strange that they should not have built a Maginot line all the way to the sea.

One recalls the well-supported story that one of the reasons for Mr. Hore-Belisha's unpopularity with General Gamelin and others was his unduly searching questions about the strength of the new lines that were being constructed between France and Belgium. Behind all this, I note a deeper reason for our surprise and unpreparedness. The Germans have the elan of the French revolutionary army, 1792. They have also trained a generation without pity or scruple; they are the Martians. We cannot dehumanize ourselves. Hence we, still civilized men, stand as best we can today against machine men to whom our lives, our aspirations and our humanity earn us nothing but contempt.—New Statesman.

Salesmanship Needed to Salvage Tourism

There's grave danger of Canada's $300 millions tourist trade being "sold down the river" by Nazi propaganda, ignorance and misunderstanding among our would-be visitors across the line.

A few weeks ago, everything pointed to a record influx. The barring of European travel opportunities had released a quarter of a billion dollars of travel money. Our U.S. friends were showing unusually keen interest in the Canadian scene.

Now, alarming stories are being heard of the effect of war fears on prospective tourist guests. One tourist, en route to Canada for a customary six months visit, was so distressed by what he saw and heard that he took time at St. Louis to write urging that Canada do something to offset the negative propaganda and ignorance regarding Canada's position. He says:

"From Florida to St. Louis (1,300 miles) invariably people say: 'Oh, you are not going to Canada this year, are you? They are at war.' This distresses me because I know how sorely Canada wants the U. S. tourists now that her war effort is reported to be costing her $2 millions a day.

"My experience indicates that Canada will fail to get the U. S. tourists expected, because those responsible for publicity have failed to get across to U.S. tourists the fact that they are welcome as never before, war or no war."

One specific suggestion made by this correspondent is that Canada should arrange to make spot announcements through the day, extending our welcome to U.S. tourists and counteracting the fears which U.S. citizens have regarding Canada.

There is urgent need for some constructive publicity in the United States. There is need, as well, for co-ordinating our tourists effort on a nation-wide scale in much the same manner as the War Savings Campaign is being put across.

In some communities this is being done by public-spirited groups of younger men as for example in Winnipeg where the Young Men's Section of the Board of Trade has mapped out a program to encourage Americans to visit Canada and to urge Canadians to "Be a Good Host to a Good Neighbor" when our visitors do arrive.

The plan being developed in Winnipeg might well be sponsored and developed by Boards of Trade, service clubs and similar organizations in every community.

It should be backed by a vigorous, effective national publicity campaign, headed if necessary by a separate Minister of the Crown.

At present the Canadian Travel Bureau is an orphan department along with other branches of the Department of Transport, since Mr. Howe took over the new Ministry of Munitions and Supply.

Above all, speed is the essence of the problem. Most families here and in the U. S. are now making their plans for the summer. If the plans of 15 millions or more Americans do not include a visit to Canada, this country stands to lose not only some $200 or $300 millions of badly-needed U.S. dollars, but also the chance to talk in friendly, informative fashion about the terribly important issues at stake in the present conflict.—Financial Post.

Flight From Paris Was Difficult; British Haven Pleases Refugees

London, — After days in flight across France and aboard an overcrowded ship this country seems to be a haven of peace. It is hard to realize that this, too, is a land of war.

In travelling to Bordeaux from Tours the greatest difficulty was obtaining gasoline on the road. Many cars had been left behind on side roads, their owners going on afoot and hoping to be able to find a place in a truck.

We stayed for several hours at Partiers, the next big town after Tours. Except for the increase in population, it looked normal as ever. The cinemas were open, outside cafes were full of people as gay and talkative as ever and the shopping district was well supplied with customers. No one would have thought that the Germans were so near. That was on June 22. I arrived at Bordeaux at 8 P. M. the next day and immediately went to the Ministry of Information. No one could tell me anything about other members of The New York Times staff, whom I was supposed to meet there.

As it was getting late and I wanted to find a place to sleep if possible, I headed with my wife and boy by car in the direction of Arcochon, knowing that it was impossible to find sleeping accommodations in Bordeaux, whose population had swelled from 400,000 to nearly 1,000,000. After many fruitless efforts to find a room, we obtained permission from a farmer to sleep in his barn on the hay. We slept well and were not cold, because we had carried blankets and sleeping bags in the car.

All Houses Were Full

In the morning I started out on a bicycle with my son looking for a house or at least a room for the three of us. But every one told us that we were wasting our time. Belgium, Dutch and French refugees from the north and Normandy had been there before us and had taken everything in sight. Parisians also had been arriving for three days. At 11 A. M. I went to Bordeaux hoping that the Minister of Information would have requisitioned living quarters for the press.

The Minister had nothing to offer us; most of its staff had been sleeping for several days in their cars. Some one finally told me that I could find newspaper men at the Cafe Desuede, in the centre of Bordeaux near Allies de Tournon and close to the Havas news agency office. I did find a lot of newspaper men and war correspondents and sat down with some of them for a drink while waiting for Charlie Michaelis, my assistant, from whom I had been separated since leaving Paris. He arrived about 1 P.M. with Mr. King, manager of The Associated Press news picture service, and they told me that all British subjects had to leave France immediately and that France wanted an armistice. We went together to the British Consulate and were informed that we had to board a ship at 3 P. M. Some one said the ship was at Bordeaux and others said it was at Leverdon.

I rushed to fetch my wife, who was ten miles away, and found the road flooded by the terrific rainstorm we had had at noon. We finally reached the farm by using side roads, and with the family together came back to the British Consulate at Bordeaux, as instructed, to show my wife's passport. From there we started for Leverdon, sixty miles away, at top speed with Michaelis and Mr. King leading in another car. Tenders were waiting at a pier at Leverdon.

My wife and son and I went aboard one of them with the hand luggage we had carried from Paris. I left my Citroen and after a last-minute conversation with Michaelis regarding working and financial arrangements we sadly said good-bye and left to board the Tamara a few miles offshore. We did not have to show our passports or any other papers. No questions were asked and any one was admitted aboard. Passport examination took place after the boat had departed for England.

Bombs Fell Near Ship

We were supposed to sail at midnight Monday, but did not get under way until 6 P. M. Tuesday. Shortly after we had boarded the ship a German plane dropped bombs somewhere on the coast in the direction of Royan and we saw a big fire. Later, around midnight, other planes dropped bombs near the ships in the harbor. The guns of one of our escort made a direct hit and a German plane was seen losing height until a French fighting plane appeared and finished it.

We all went to sleep finally after a third raid at 2 A. M. Tuesday and awoke quite rested and surprised to be still alive. There had been a full moon, and we had expected more bombings while we slept. On Tuesday more passengers kept arriving on tenders until 5 P. M., and we finally sailed at 6.

That Tuesday evening was the gloomiest time we had aboard, although no one said anything about it then. There was not much conversation. Some of the passengers slept in deck chairs and others on the hard deck, on floors, in the dining room, in the bar, in alleyways and anywhere one could stick his body. Many slept on the decks without anything covering them but the clothes they had on, and many were without overcoats. A few persons, luckily enough, had brought air mattresses. They were shared in shifts day and night.

Ship Was Blacked Out

We were blacked out during the whole voyage. When one tried to light a cigarette, or use a flash lamp, he immediately was called to order by half a dozen voices.

There were about thirty ships together at Leveron before we sailed, and Wednesday morning we found ourselves traveling with another ship about 500 yards away.

The weather was very good. There was a little pitching, but not enough to disturb our luggage, piled all around us on deck. We first saw a destroyer traveling a short distance ahead of us Wednesday morning, going this way and then the other like a sheep dog, then stopping completely for a moment, probably to listen for submarines. Later in the day two more destroyers appeared and we felt much better.

We were placed on short rations with two meals a day, one at 9 A. M., consisting of tea with milk and bread and butter, the other at 5 P. M. consisting of tea, rice, one small potato and a small piece of boiled meat. The food was served by passengers who had volunteered.

We had submarine watchers who were on duty day and night for an hour at a time. Volunteers taken from the passengers included many journalists. We were instructed to look for periscopes, mines and airplanes. We saw nothing, but were not disappointed.

We arrived at our destination somewhere in England on Thursday morning and as we were waiting to go ashore we saw a shipload of French sailors enter the harbor.—N.Y. Times.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

When The Heart Begins to Fail

If you find yourself getting out of breath easily after taking your usual walk or few minutes of home exercise, you may get worried about your heart. And, as a matter of fact, if your nose is not blocked nor you have not just eaten a large meal, it would be good sense to suspect your heart and have your physician make the usual tests. You have, or you have not, beginning heart failure, and the sooner you learn the truth, the better for your peace of mind and for the heart itself. If no heart disease has started you can forget about it; if heart disease has started the following of a few simple rules may mean living as long a life as if you had no heart disease.

If you have beginning heart disease and any infection is present—teeth, tonsils, sinus, gall bladder, intestine—this should be removed so that no further acute attacks will occur to put further strain on the heart.

By knowing how much exercise you can safely take you will have this much exercise and no more and so maintain the tone or strength of the heart muscle. This is better than considering yourself an invalid with heart disease, resting all the time, and not getting enough exercise.

If your heart disease was really advanced the physician would prescribe digitalis and complete rest. The fact that he doesn't prescribe digitalis and complete rest in bed doesn't mean that you can take strenuous exercise, nor does it mean living like an invalid.

Just as important as getting the right amount of exercise is getting the right amount of food. If a large meal is eaten, there is an added strain on the heart in providing more blood for digestive purposes. If in addition to a large meal exercise is immediately taken, heart symptoms—breathlessness and tightness over the heart—are vary likely to occur.

Should you be overweight, more precautions must be taken than if you are of normal weight, because the added weight and the excess fat that may be crowding the heart preventing normal action, will put extra strain on the heart. Cutting down in starch foods, fat foods, all liquids, and table salt will reduce the weight and the work of the heart.

Any time you feel short of breath or tired, lying down for a few minutes, completely relaxed, will avoid danger.

A WILLING SACRIFICE

Mr. Churchill, you are leading a war-like nation, fifty times more war-like than it was last September, last Christmas, last Month. We ask you, when the time comes, to protect our centres of aircraft production, our munitions factories, our ship-building yards, everywhere that weapons are forged to sustain our fighting men. If need be, forget the suburbs and the residential districts. You can ask for the sacrifice of our homes and lives in the cause of liberty.—London Daily Express.

POOR SHOOTING

Americans returning home on the liner Exochorda brought with them further evidence of the kind of Allies whom Hitler has taken unto himself. The fact that an anti-aircraft shell, fired at a British plane by Italian gunners, actually struck the deck of the ship is good indication of how little our troops have to fear from Italian soldiers. The passengers reported, too, that the anti-aircraft guns in the hills about Genoa did much more damage to the city than did the bombs of the raiding airmen.

We can only hope that, when British and German troops again meet face to face in battle, the Italians are asked to lay down the barrage for their German allies. That should be about the quickest way of wiping out the Hun army. —Windsor Star.

Why Has Hitler Won His Victories

Why has Adolf Hitler marched his troops into seven European capitals since the beginning of this war? What explains his conquest of Holland in four days, his lightning drive through Belgium, his all but incredible defeat of France? Does he possess some black magic, or some secret power, some weapon that is invincible? Or is it just totalitarian efficiency?

A Chicago Daily News correspondent with the French Army last week wrote something of the answer. He told of a captured German aviator, brought before his captors, with "triumph all over his face". He was a prisoner, alone, yet he "positively mocked at the French soldiers standing about, including the stocky, baby-faced Frenchman who had shot him down . . . a feeling of superiority was written all over his face".

The Chicago Daily News correspondent went on:

"Yet, somehow, looking from Karl Heinze's arrogance to the simplicity of his conqueror, the French aviator, I could not despair. For, by any decent test you chose to make, the Frenchman was the better man. After shooting down Karl Heinze in fair combat he dived after a second Messerschmidt and got it, too, only being disabled by a surprise attack of seven or eight more Messerschmidts".

The correspondent asked himself why it was, if the French were better men—"as they are"—that the Germans had been able to puncture the French lines? If the French were finer, why were they not holding even against heavy odds? He answered:

"Because they are more civilized. They let the beaten Germans off lightly in 1919. They permitted them to be molded by a Hitler into a society whose only sense was aggression. They did not believe in war, or want war, and so they did not properly prepare for war.

"The French were retreating because they had forgotten how to hate . . . . They had watched, like children, a powerful neighbor prepare their ruin. Their Allies, the English, had up to a late hour, through a misplaced sense of justice, disarmed themselves. Not because the French and British were really stupid or honeycombed with Fascism, but because they were happy—happy and comfortable and perhaps a little soft, like all happy peoples."

The New York Times, in a thoughtful editorial, drives home the moral. Scoffing at the idea that there is some "black magic" in his armor, that some "secret weapon" or "infallible prescription" enables him to win Napoleonic triumphs, it rejects the people who believe Hitler "competent" because he dispensed with faddists and theorists, cuts through red tape and "knows what he wants and gets it".

"Hitler has no magic wand. The reasons for his colossal military conquests have been plain for years, and should have been plain long ago to the countries that have now been overwhelmed. For seven years Hitler has been mobilizing all the moral, military and economic resources of Germany 'for the sole purpose of waging war with all means'. For this terrible purpose he has destroyed Germany's economy, revolutionized Germany's moral concepts, subsidized his informers and used unwitting dupes in every country, and has infected the youth of Germany with a fanaticism that has now stormed the barricades of the bravest democracy on the European Continent".

Thus Germany's "secret" weapon. And, as the New York Times goes on to say, it is no indictment of democracy to contrast Hitler's "total" mobilization of Germany with the slow, halting, half-hearted mobilization of the democratic countries. The be-all and end-all of democracy is not waging war. Free men will never share general Ludendorff's belief that "war is the highest expression of the racial life". The goal of democratic peoples has been the happiness and dignity of the individual, in peace and freedom. Says the Times:

"Nor does it prove the failure of democracy to say that Hitler has been able to dispense with democdacy's cumbersome procedure. The method of co-operation, which is the essence of true democracy, is more difficult than the giving of a dictatorial order. The crack of a Hitler whip could never have solved labor problems or achieved social security for millions as well as the British and French and Scandinavian democracies did in the past generation, nor could it ever have built a mighty republic out of a continental wilderness in the New World."

That is the truth. Democracy is civilization, and civilization detests ruthlessness and violence, leans towards peace and happiness, puts checks and balances on the power of the State. It is a mechanism for peace, not for war.

But if the democratic system cannot be indicted, indictment there must be for those who refused its responsibilities. That indictment, a tragic thing now, is slated with truth by the New York Times.

"Free peoples in our time cared too little for their privileges, too little for their democratic duties. The leaders thrown up by Britain and France in recent years did not lead but lulled and soothed. They saw the German threat rising, but shrank from facing it. They heard good advice, but shut their ears. They knew how to win elections, but not how to strengthen and safeguard their democratic birthright. And because these inadequate leaders were freely elected and kept in power by the votes of free men and women, the people of the Western democracies cannot be acquitted of blame. They, too, preferred to keep their comforts and shrink from inconvenient truths. They were not ready until too late to make sacrifices for keeping their way of life—sacrifices that would have meant universal training in England, or more efficient industrial production in France. If they knew their responsibilities, they chose to evade them, as we in the United States evaded ours when we washed our hands of Europe in 1920, and built tariff walls around ourselves in 1922 and 1930, and decided that courage and idealism in international affairs were counterfeit coin."

So in the story of Canada. We in this country spoke of our "partnership" in the British Commonwealth of Nations? To what extent did we realize — and live up to—the implications of that partnership? We boasted of our new "sovereignty", of our "status", of our membership in the League. We never accepted clearly, or much thought about, what these things involved. We were content to be in the League with "reservations"; to be of the Empire without "commitments"; to claim our "sovereignty" without thought to defend it. In this deficiency, this state of mind, our successive governments were no worse than the rest of us. All of us together, jointly in default, were false to democracy. Took our blessings for granted.

Today democracy, in desperate jeopardy, faces tests for which it never was intended. If it is to survive it must marshal its strength with the determination that its enemies have shown. The luxuries of freedom, of indecision, of wishful thinking, of partisanship and petty bickering, have become deadly perils; things to be put aside.

This is no time for disbelieving in democracy. No time for the glorification of autocracy. It is a time for passionate faith in our democratic creed—for sacrifice, clear vision and courage. A time to remember that the democrat — the freeman — is the better man. — Ottawa Journal.

"NOTHING, NOTHING"

In Britain the time has come for a full-sighted gaze into the truth of events. We are facing the most critical and dangerous days in the whole of our history. There is no time for any dilly-dally. No time for play. No time for any inquests or for seeking to lay at anybody's door the responsibility for our present situation. No time for anything except taking the most active and determined steps to avert our peril. Time, in fact, is no longer on our side. It may be doubtful if ever it was. One thing remains to be done. Get into the line. The whole manhood of Britain, old and young, rich and poor, wise and foolish, are needed to impose their bodies as an impassable barrier to Nazi domination. . . Nothing, nothing, nothing shall make us bend our heads and pass for centuries beneath the Nazi yoke. . . The Germans must be stopped. The last corner of the last ditch of the last field in Britain must and will be defended to the death. — London Sunday Express.

Doctor Urges Britain's Cabinet be Purged of 'The Men of Munich'

London, July 2.— Dr. Aleck W. Bourne, noted British obstetrician and gynaecologist, said in a letter to the Press tonight that "it is desperately essential" that Britain's war cabinet be purged of "the men of Munich", who, he claimed "are the same as the men of Bordeaux".

The letter was displayed prominently in the News Chronicle. Dr. Bourne, famous for his expressions of Liberal views, was acquitted two years ago in a widely-publicized test case on England's abortion law. He held that such operations in some cases are justified.

"It is interesting to note the names of the supporters of "the link" (a disbanded pro-German group) and the Anglo-German fellowship in the Tory party of the present parliament", Dr. Bourne said. "It is noteworthy that the new member for Bournemouth— Sir Leonard Lyle (of Tate and Lyle)— was a member of the Anglo-German fellowship.

"Not only the individual members, but the corporate membership of Large Industrial firms and some banks indicate a deep business interest, apart from a personal sympathy, with the general principles of Fascism. . . .

"They represent our right, men who in one Allied country after another have sold their country to Hitler.

"The men of Munich are the same as the men of Bordeaux.

"Britain is in danger so long as these men remain in the government as the spearhead of our right wing".

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE BISCUIT EATER"

A story as warm and color-filled as its captivating Dixie background is told in "The Biscuit Eater" Paramount's faithful screen adaptation of a famous magazine yarn, which had its local opening last night at the Capitol Theatre.

Based on James Street's well-liked Saturday Evening Post story, "The Biscuit Eater" tells a memorable tale of a boy and his dog, a yarn as true as the bark of a pup, as thrilling as the final run-off of a field trial and as engaging as the Georgia hunting country against which it takes place.

In spite of his meager ten years of age, Billy Lee turns in a thoroughly adult performance as the boy in the case, teamed with a surprisingly able newcomer, one Cordell Hickman, who plays his spirited pickaninny companion and fellow-adventurer. Others who keep the acting of "The Biscuit Eater" well over par include Helene Millard and Richard Lane, as Billy's devoted parents; and Lester Matthews, a rich Northerner who sets the story rolling when he buys the Southern plantation upon which the family lives.

Billy, a typical boy of the shooting country, shows his spunk and love of dogs by adopting the "runt" of a thoroughbred litter and setting out to turn him into a real animal. The youngster and his darky pal succeed far better than any one expected, and before long the despised dog, "Promise," is a serious contender for first place in the field trials.

A terrible problem arises for the boy when he discovers that the possible victory of his dog will spell disaster for his family, because the Northern owner of the plantation has set his mind on raising horses instead of dogs. Only if a champion raised by the boy's dad wins the grand prize will the Northerner become convinced that dog-raising can be profitable. At this point the youngster is forced to choose between his love for the dog and his devotion to his family.

Behind the highly authentic-looking background of "The Biscuit Eater" stands one of the year's most novel and ambitious location trips. Director Stuart Heisler transported his cast and technical crew three thousand miles from Hollywood and filmed the entire production on the spot, in Albany, Georgia. The colorful and genuine setting of the picture vindicates the extravagance involved.

"They All Come Out"

For the first time in film history, one of the Federal Bureau of Prison's most potent forces in making better men of their prisoners is shown on the screen. An authentic reproduction of the United States Industrial Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, is shown in the powerful new prison drama, "They All Come Out." The Chillicothe institution, a former army camp, houses the younger Federal prisoners transferred from Atlanta, Leavenworth and McNeil's Island. There is no wall around the place and trusted prisoners are housed in dormitories rather than in cells. Jacques Tourneur directed with Rita Johnson heading the cast and Tom Neal as the youthful prisoner who goes to Chillicothe, in the leading male role.

A colored cartoon closes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Turnabout"

Keeping up with the presentation of Hollywood's biggest laugh hit—the McCarthy Theatre adds to its credit, right now with the current showing of Hal Roach's comedy hit, based on the Thorne Smith novel "Turnabout" which includes in its big cast of funmakers, such proven personalities as Carole Landis, John Hubbard, Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor, Verree Teasdale, Donald Meek, William Gargan and Franklin Pangborn.

"Turnabout" easily rates as one of the greatest laugh hits of a Lifetime and for perfect screen entertainment, this reviewer recommends to one and all movielovers, put it down as a "must see". The balance of the program is also worthy of mention and includes an excellent Walt Disney Mickey Mouse tecnnicolor cartoon, a laugh-packed Leon Errol comedy "Scrappily Married" and Fox news events on World-Wide important happenings.

"North Sea Patrol"
"Love, Honor and Oh Baby"

The McCarthy Theatre's next attractions are also worth planning to see as both from advance reports are outstanding screen hits, "North Sea Patrol" hit No. 1, is a story of the British Navy in action and "Love, Honor and Oh Baby" co-feature offering, is a comedy-drama, with a barrel-of-fun in every reel. The last chapter of the popular serial "The Shadow" will also be presented with "North Sea Patrol" and "Love, Honor and Oh Baby".

AT THE BELLE

"Hell Below"

Thundering thrills of naval battles and an intimate panorama of the sailors of the submarine fleet form a huge background for romance in "Hell Below", in which Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Madge Evans, Eugene Pallette, Robert Young and a large supporting cast are new playing at the Belle Theatre.

Submarines battle airplanes, and a whole fort is blown up in a remarkable episode in which a harbor full of enemy destroyers is bottled up. Against this crescendo accompaniment is the simple love story of a lieutenant who falls in love with the daughter of his commander.

Montgomery does the finest work of his film career as Lieutenant Knowlton who in the end sacrifices his love for his duty. It is a straight, honest portrayal, at all times sympathetic and convincing. Huston contributes a performance of distinction to the talkies as the stern commander of the submarine. Madge Evans, more stunning than ever, was an excellent choice for the feminine lead, and the riotous Jimmy has another of his inimitable laugh roles as the ship's cook who is drawn into a boxing match with a kangaroo. What a fight that is!

The excellent cast also includes Eugene Pallete, Robert Young, Edwin Styles, John Lee Magin, David Newell, Sterling Holloway, and Charles Irwin. The photography of this picture is something to talk about, particularly the brilliant underwater scenes, the like of which have never before been shown on the screen.

"Girl in 313"

"Girl in 313", a lively and sophisticated film drama of New York's Broadway and Park Avenue, in which a lovely and smart young lady matches wits with a clever band of jewel thieves, is announced as the companion feature attraction.

Smart night clubs, swanky apartments and exclusive jewelry shops furnish the background for the picture which features Florence Rice, Kent Taylor, Lionel Atwill and Katharine Aldridge.

The popular Belle Newsreel will be exhibited on the same program.

Sales of New Gasoline Given Big Impetus by Advertising Campaign

Reading reports on sales for his company to date led W. L. Baragar, general manager of Supertest Petroleum Corporation, Limited, to make some comments of interest to advertisers.

"Our latest product, the new 'Wonder' gasoline," he said, "was on sale at our stations for several days before we made any public announcement in the newspapers. Station operators were able to tell customers that the new gasoline was available and we experienced a slight increase of sales from that factor, but when the first large-sized advertisement appeared in the daily newspapers throughout our territory of Ontario and Quebec, the immediate response was unmistakeable.

"Our whole organization was kept busy filling the demand. Station operators, tank trucks, storage depots, divisional and zone offices, all felt the impact of increased business.

"It proved to us, among other things, that the public, in war days as in peacetime, will respond to newspaper advertising; also that having the product for sale at established well-located outlets and making the fact known at such points by large signs and other means is not sufficient, since only the proportion of population passing such outlets is made aware of the new product.

"Another gratifying feature to us has been the practically instantaneous response, giving us an immediate yield on our advertising investment, because of the timeliness and flexibility of the chief medium used, daily newspapers."

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Geographically the war moves closer to the Motherland. While air raids continue nightly over the United Kingdom the Germans have occupied the unprotected islands of Jersey and Guernsey in the English Channel.

Nevertheless there are various straws in the wind that bear on the position of the German and Italian powers. These are incidents such as a little trouble in Holland and the promulgation of severe penalties for offenses such as possession of arms or radio outfits in France. The very geographical and ethnological extent of German conquests would appear to carry the seeds of trouble for the victors.

Another facton is the appointment by General Charles De Gaulle, head of the provisional French national committee in London, of Admiral Muselier as commander of "several ships and several air groups" of France have not fallen into enemy hands.

But the unknown element is the action of the dictator of the Soviets in moving Russian forces into Bessarabia by agreement with Rumania perforce and then seizing control of the Danube.

Nobody outside the Kremlin knows what Joseph Stalin intends to do but the history of both Hitler and Stalin for the last few years shows that they operate as they consider the necessity of the movement dictates.

It may be that Russia, alarmed by German successes, is moving to get what she can in the Balkans while the opportunity offers or perhaps by simultaneously effecting a distraction in the east she is moving to prevent an attempt at complete German domination of western Europe.

In any event, by occupation of Bessarabia and in the securing of his position in the east, Stalin has seized the only bumper wheat crop in the Balkans, and threatens to control part of the oil supply essential to the Nazi war machine.

Stirling

Stirling — Held under the auspices of the River Valley Branch of the Ontario Women's Institute in co-operation with the Stirling branch of the Canadian Red Cross, the musical and novelty concert presented on Thursday evening in the Stirling Theatre was a success from every standpoint. The theatre was filled and the program thoroughly enjoyed from beginning to end.

Mr. W. C. West, Reeve of Stirling, acted as master of ceremonies and in a brief address at the opening of the program thanked the ladies of both organizations for the effort in assisting a truly worthy cause, and the display of interest shown by the large attendance was in his belief a demonstration of local patriotism that was characteristic throughout the British Empire which would bring ultimate victory in the cause of freedom and righteousness.

Splendid Program

Previous to the feature presentation of the evening a fitting prelude of musical numbers and readings by local artists was presented in the following order: vocal duet by Margaret Anderson and Marion Forsyth, and roller-skate tap dance by Shirley and Beverley Bennett. Real juvenile talent was displayed by little Neil Hubble who received several curtain calls for his splendid rendition of patriotic and comic songs. Mrs. Hubble played his accompaniment.

Elocutionary brilliance was also displayed by Shirley Bennett and the song and dance performance of Jacqueline Sanders won the hearts of the crowd.

The main feature of the evening combined novelty numbers, stirring patriotic numbers and plenty of real comedy. Entitled "The Kitchen Band" the musical organization formed some time ago by the ladies of Havelock Presbyterian Church had within its cast twenty-two ladies each manipulating an instrument created from some kitchen utensil. Centering the stage was a set of drums and traps created from saucepan lids, a garbage can and a clothes basket. A set of chimes were effected by the use of a number of silver graduating spoons. An electric range was transformed to a pipe organ. Bass violin was made from a broom and dishpan. Another violin was made from a corn popper with a poker as a bow. Two large chimes were made from twisted pokers and the rendition of the famous Anvil chorus on these was very cleverly done. Midway through the program the sounds of bagpipes were heard and this effect, with a lady entering in swirling kilts and playing Highland music, from the tube of a vacuum was a riot of laughter.

The numbers presented throughout the program included stirring marches, Hungarian Gypsy music, patriotic songs and all the old time songs that were favorites of the crowd.

After a fifty minute concert the ladies climaxed their fine show with the playing of Rule Britannia and God Save the King, and marching from the stage to the music of Round the Marble Arch. The entire evening was original in every detail and in addition to the knowledge they had given support to a real worthy cause, the audience expressed real delight in the performance.

Point Anne — An event of interest to the community took place on Wednesday afternoon when the staff and pupils of Point Anne school gathered in the Primary room to honor the teacher of those grades, Miss Mildred Bonter, who is resigning her position. A group from Mrs. Sullivan's room sang: "My Country" and from Miss Burke's room sang "Playmate". Iona Carter, a pupil in the senior room read an address which was signed on behalf of the school by teachers H. O. Walkom, Ena Sullivan, Maude Burke, and pupils Iona Carter, Sheila Insley.

Sheila Insley, a pupil in Miss Bonter's room then presented her teacher with a silver entree dish. Miss Bonter thanked the gathering in a fitting manner and expressed her regret at leaving. Miss Bonter has made many friends during her years of service in Point Anne and while all regret her departure the best wishes of all accompany her in her new life.

On Thursday morning the staff of Point Anne school invited the parents and friends of the pupils to come to the school and inspect the work which was on display. Art and penmanship and other work. A number visited the school and in the afternoon a picnic was held in the Recreation Park for the pupils and they were joined by the pupils from the Front Road school with Miss Barnum at their head. Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Summer Care

Let me repeat, because it is so important: don't wean the baby in hot weather. If you do, then you are asking for trouble. No baby should be weaned during July or August.

As a rule babies should be fed at the breast nine months. But if this period ends in the month of July, the mother is wise to do the weaning in June. If the period ends in August, then she should continue to nurse him until September.

This is a very important point because a breast-fed baby often has trouble in becoming adapted to other feedings. If she has the added complication of hot weather to contend with, then trouble is almost inevitable.

As I said in another column, diarrhoeas that affect babies in hot weather fall into two definite classes. One is mild, caused by over-feeding; the other is caused by infection and is a real threat to any baby's life.

Even the milder form of diarrhoea can be mighty serious because, if it is allowed to continue unchecked, or untreated for a while, the baby's system is robbed of its water. Of course, if feedings are cut down immediately, and the amount of water given is increased, then the baby should respond quickly to treatment. But if you wait for a while after the symptoms appear, mistaking the trouble as something that will clear up itself, the diarrhoea may become serious.

This brings up a point I failed to mention in other columns on summer care of baby. The same scrupulous attention given to keeping the food supply safe and uncontaminated, should be devoted likewise to keeping the surroundings germ-proof. And since baby is surrounded day and night by a diaper, it is certainly correct to list these squares as "surroundings", the medical cleanliness of which is of the highest importance.

Just to wash diapers is not enough for safety. They should be laundered in super-careful fashion, and they should be sterilized.

Diapers should be washed every day, and never should be just dried and then used a second time without washing. Upon removal, they should be placed in a covered pail filled with cold water until they are washed. This pail itself should be washed and sterilized thoroughly regularly.

The badly soiled diapers should be kept apart from the others until they have been cleaned as thoroughly as possible by holding them under a toilet flush or by some similar means, or washed separately.

In the laundering process, very hot water and plenty of mild white soap should be used, and they should be rinsed four or five times, for baby's tender skin can be irritated by any particle of soap left adhering to the diaper. After the rinsing, the diapers should be boiled, and this precaution should never be overlooked. And diapers should be dried outdoors in the wind and sunshine, whenever possible, instead of indoors.

Babies should be changed in daytime whenever they soil themselves, and at night when fed. The diaper problem can be simplified quickly by starting the child in good habits of toilet hygiene early. This training can start at a few months.

Grass For a Table

By ALICE DENHOFF

Picnic your way through the summer, even if you don't go farther afield than your porch or the old back-yard. There's nothing like al fresco munching to bring a new zest into summer living. Of course, whenever it is possible, try to go far afield in search of your open air dining-room, for it is fun and is worth all the preparation entailed. Wise folk invest money in such picnic equipment as large thermos bottles, baskets, and portable grills that burn charcoal. It is an investment which chalks up extra dividends in health and well-being.

Make up your mind to use the porch, terrace or yard as a dining-room on the next nice day. Stifle that impulse to set the table the same old way in the same old room. Get the family together to make the sandwiches and prepare the food. Pack a hamper and give a prize to the packer who does such a good job that not one trip has to be made into the house in search of any item. Just make believe that you are far from home and won't be able to get back and you'll do a swell job of packing the home picnic basket.

Here's Picnic Thrill

Fix the porch as an outdoor dining-room. A good investment is one of those handsome tables of plate glass and wrought iron, once a costly item but now featured at very down-to-earth prices. And for real fun buy one of those portable grills. Broiling bacon, frankfurters or hamburgers over a grill is one of the best picnic thrills there is. So why not get all the thrill of a picnic with one of these grills at home?

If the yard is fairly large, do right by the family and install or build a barbecue pit. You'll never know how much fun summer meals can be until you give a barbecue party. The family won't want to eat indoors any more, and when you do use the pit you'll be spared all the discomfort of cooking indoors on a hot day. For frequently it is the cook who is cooked as well as the food.

Be Prepared

But don't let these expedients take the place of real honest-to-goodness, ants-and-all picnic. As much as possible, bring along the food in bulk to be put together at the meeting and eating place. Here again, the portable charcoal-burning grill comes into its own. The most beautiful perfume falls short by several sniffs of the odor of bacon or franks broiling in the open. The hamburger should be seasoned and made into flat cakes at home. And steaks should be cut before packing too. The bacon or frankfurters may be stuck on the end of a stick and held over the flame to cook. Roast chicken should be carved into portions and joints at home so that it may be eaten with the fingers. For vegetables, place a number of cooked and uncooked vegetables mixed into a salad in a large Mason jar or thermos container. If desired, place salad dressing in another jar and put over the individual portions served in paper plates. Diced cold potatoes, beets, asparagus tips, beans, tomato, diced celery with salad greens is a good mixture. Potatoes or green corn roasted in the embers of the fire are heavenly!

Hard-boiled eggs, pickles, whole tomatoes, cheese in individual portions with crackers to be taken from fresh boxes, are all nice picnic foods.

Remember Cleanup

The sandwich is, of course, the pride of the picnic, and the picnicker has an endless repertory of fillings and spreads. Ribbon sandwiches and rolled sandwiches, while a little more difficult to do, bring that element of surprise and something different that is the making of any meal.

To simplify the cleaning-up process, carry paper plates, paper forks and spoons, paper cups and a huge supply of large, very large, paper napkins. An old table cloth long past its dining-room prime will add pleasure to the meal, so will a label for each container, so that nothing is opened before its turn. For with large-mouth thermos containers, a full-course dinner may be carried to the picnic ground, and no one wants dessert before dinner, not even at a picnic.

Table Tools

When laying out the items to be packed, give first thought to a good supply of good knives, otherwise you'll tear through the picnic in cave-man style. Pack condiments in leak-proof containers. Take a supply of large soft rolls, split in half and buttered and well wrapped in wax paper.

DON'T TURN YOUR BACK ON BEAUTY

By HELEN FOLLETT

During the whole year through, the feminine back is on display, revealed in the winter time by the wearing of the formal evening gown, exposed to the public eye on the bathing beach in the good old summer season. Bare arms and throats get attention from their owners. But of their own backs, ladies know nothing at all. And backs have their beauty griefs, let me tell you.

Blackheads often appear on the upper portion. They can be routed out by applying alcohol after a brisk scrubbing with soap suds and a heavy brush. If something isn't done, these horrid wax-like blockades will break the walls of the pores, germs and germesses will crawl in, pustules will result.

If the shoulder bones show up, as happens on the skinnies, arm swinging exercises will strengthen and fill out the muscles. These same exercises will slenderize plump backs, because they are normalizing.

Posture is important. Perhaps you've heard us harp on that same old string before. Posture is just another name for chic and the girl who is ambitious to gain a reputation for good dressing had better keep that fact in mind. We have more respect for the woman who carries herself beautifully than for the one who trots about in a slouchy manner. She's full of spunk and spirit, faces her responsibilities.

When you wear a long sleeved gown, dress your wrists prettily, dear lady. Sleeves that haven't a neat fit at the wrist make the neatest hands look ugly. Have them long enough to cover that little bony bump that is more useful than ornamental.

Cunning collar and cuff sets are adorable. Made of fine fabrics they impart daintiness of appearance. Have them scrupulously clean and without a ripple. Soiled finery is strictly taboo these days of fastidious dressing. Surprising how many nice girls "make things do."

Young Women's Guild Hold Annual Meeting

Rev. D. T. McClintock Also Gives Talk on 'The Grapes of Wrath'—Discussion Follows

A helpful talk by Rev. D. T. McClintock and discussion of "The Grapes of Wrath" as well as annual reports and election of officers, were features of the last monthly meeting of the Young Women's Guild held last week at the home of Mrs. Wm. Hunter, Albert St.

Mr. McClintock tackled the doubts and questionings in men's minds and often on men's lips as reports from Europe grow worse and worse, such comments as "where is God?" and "If the Nazis win I'll be an atheist," or "If the Nazis win I don't want to go on living."

Mr. McClintock asked in a broader way "Is the universe (God) friendly to us or antagonistic?" He showed that in nature we do not find a uniform "yes" as answer. In history we do not find a uniform "yes" as answer and likewise in human experience.

Study Christ's attitude towards these three.

That the sun shines and the rain falls on the unjust as well as on the just is a real revelation of God's love.

Jesus' grief over Jerusalem and his own Jewish nation reveals to us how Jesus loved Jerusalem and the Jews as we love Britain. Yet he saw a Kingdom of God bigger than the Jewish Kingdom and that a greater than the Jewish Kingdom was to prevail. Likewise Christians today belong to a Kingdom greater than Britain. We must live on, even though Britain were to fall; we must even want to live on.

The great gift of Rome to the word was law, of Greece, art, of the —Jewish Kingdom, religion. These things of eternal values in these nations continued after the nations perished.

Christ's message was "Go and make disciples of all nations" and "Lo I am with you always."

A solo "Clouds" by Miss Doris Houston accompanied by Miss L. Riggs, blended beautifully with the thoughts aroused by Mr. McClintock's message.

The special topic for this meeting under Mrs. Wishart was "The Grapes of Wrath" by John Steinbeck, a book dealing with a current social problem, the title being taken from the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Mrs. Bews introduced the book by explaining four standards by which we can measure the value of a modern novel on a social theme:

1. The author must present a true case story to carry his characters and drama.

2. He must have the principle gifts of the novelist for story telling.

3. He must reveal that his case is not singular, but general, not unique but typical.

4. He must have the appeals that will get his book widely read.

A synopsis of the story was told by Miss Olive Elson and an article on the real situation in California read by Mrs. Carl Read.

In the general discussion which followed opposing opinions regarding the ultimate value of the book were expressed and it was pointed out that in order to "get a problem across" to the people popular reading is necessary. The same material is in government reports but they are not read.

The recent speech in the Canadian House of Commons by Mrs. Neilsen, M.P. was commented upon.

Annual reports of committees were given as follows:

The secretary, Mrs. Buck, reported 57 regular members and many visitors.

Miss Hill gave the treasurer's report.

Miss Elson, convener of the program committee reported ten meetings, one outside speaker (Prof. Vlastos in February) and Christmas and closing parties for the School for Leisure.

Mrs. Marshall reported for the look-out committee. Mrs. Scripture for the nominating committee.

After the balloting the members of the new executive were announced.

Movie Medicine

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

I am very fond of the movies. I attend them about as regularly as I do anything. So my opinion is often asked about the authenticity of the medical scenes that are portrayed in some of the productions.

The movie studios have set themselves a very high standard as to accuracy in the portrayal of details. Especially accuracy in historical scenes as to costume and every other detail. It is all the more amusing to find them every once in a while lapsing into trivial error.

An instance in point was a scene in Gone With the Wind. The Confederate Army had been thrown back on Atlanta and the wounded were lying in the streets, in churches, on porches—everywhere. The nurses and doctors, as many as could be found, were moving in and out doing their best to attend to them. And every once in a while a nurse would produce a nice little clinical thermometer and take a soldier's temperature. The only trouble about that is that the clinical thermometer had just been introduced and the Confederate Army didn't have any.

Thermometers were introduced during the Civil War but were only used on the Confederate side beginning in 1862. They were enormous instruments, ten inches or more in length, and took five minutes or more to reach the temperature of the body when placed under the armpit. The small clinical thermometer, as seen in the picture was introduced by Dr. Clifford Allbutt after the war.

Bright Students!

Disputed Passage is very accurate so far as details of operating room technique are concerned. But I have yet to see a teacher in a medical school act in anything like that sarcastic and smart Aleck way to a group of students. It was a little strange also to find the new students sent right into the surgical amphitheatre to view an operation their first day in school; they usually are not prepared for that until about the second year. And for the benefit of the eminent nerve surgeon who operated on a colleague's skull and was sitting by the bedside waiting for consciousness to return, muttering, "The pressure is relieved, he should be regaining consciousness," I may say that relief of pressure in a brain injury is not the only factor in recovery.

Silver Plates

I have been associating with brain surgeons lately and I ought to know. During that association, by the way, the old controversy about a silver plate in the skull came up. One of the older and most distinguished in the group told me they used to put in silver plates but most of them sloughed out. A few stayed put. He has seen one, in an experience of thousands of cases.

Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet is wholly good—and a thrilling and wholesome drama. It may give a somewhat weird picture of the relations of the superintendent of a hospital to the staff, but its review of the life of Paul Ehrlich is true and moving.

What a wonderful record of accomplishments for one man — staining of blood cells, perfection of diphtheria antitoxin, discovery of the method of staining tubercle bacilli, the side-chain theory of immunity, the beginning of specific chemical therapy against infections— and a hundred others too technical to mention.

Slow-Talking Child May be Bright

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

WHILE IT is true that the child noticeably defective mentally begins speech very late, not nearly all children slow in beginning formal speech are feeble minded, or even dull. Indeed some of them are very bright. The baby may have acquired an effective sign language which has been so well obeyed, that he finds no occasion to employ conventional speech. Then defective hearing may retard speech, since it hinders the child from hearing his own vocal sounds.

A mother writes from Canada: "Dear Mr. Myers:— "I have a little girl two and a half years old. She is a rather smart child. She understands everything you say to her and knows what everything is. She is not deaf. But as yet she can say only: Cup, mama and Daddy, door, book, boat and river. Any other words I try to teach her, she just grunts. I have tried not giving her a drink or anything else she wants until she will say what it is, but have had no results....She has been saying these few words I mentioned for over a year now. She has a sister four years old with whom she plays and still it doesn't seem to help her to talk....Please tell me what is best to do for her."

The mother enclosed a self-addressed stamped envelope. My reply:

Attract other children to play with this child. Don't insist that she talk. Read aloud to her a great deal. Then let her alone. You can be pretty sure her speech will develop normally, since she started with real words in good time. I have come across a number of such cases which turned out well. It might be well, however, to have a doctor examine her.

For your comfort and the comfort of other mothers with a like problem, let me tell you that you have almost exactly described my eldest son when he was about at the same age as your child is now. Like your child, he started to talk when he was a year old, developed a small array of words and then, until in his third year, added very few words; after which he took a spurt and made up for lost time. That lad is now on his last lap for his doctor's degree in Plant Physiology, at Minnesota University.

Q. What do you think of bringing up children to do only what they want to do and when they want to do it?

A. I consider it about the most atrocious doctrine that prevails. How would you like to spend your life with a person brought up on this doctrine?

Eaglet III Wins Gold Trophy At Picton Regatta Defeating Jack Cooper in Deciding Heat

Dave Forman Drives His Buffalo Craft at a Speed of 63.604 M.P.H. in Final Heat

5,000 SPECTATORS

Cooper of Picton Wins 210 Cu. Inch Class With His Fine Boat Donna Marie

Picton, July 3 — Five thousand boat race fans acclaimed Dave Forman of Buffalo, N. Y., as he drove Eaglet 111 at a speed of 63.604 miles per hour to win the third and deciding heat of the 225 cubic inch class for hydroplanes and to carry off the Prince Edward Yacht Club's $500 Gold Trophy at their annual regatta here yesterday.

Forman was given fast competition by Jack Cooper, 69-year-old veteran of Kansas City, Mo. Cooper managed to win the second heat but lost the third and deciding heat, when Forman sent his frail craft skimming over the water at a speed, which threatened to send it hurling in the air. Then he was only three boat lengths behind. Cooper was driving Tops 111, the same craft which last year set a world record for 225 class hydroplanes here last year in mile trials. Cooper won the Gold Cup in 1938 and lost last year to Robert Jaite, 79, of Jaite, Ohio, who did not defend his laurels this year. After the 1939 regatta Cooper went on to establish the record of 87.485 miles an hour, indicating the fine qualities of Forman's new boat.

Forman is associated with the Bell Aircraft Corp. of Buffalo and was third in last year's race. He was presented with the trophy by the Commodore of the Yacht Club, Wilfred Lane.

Rain Fell Heavily

While the day was bright and fair, dark clouds rolled up after events were less than half over, and rain fell heavily for some minutes at three intervals. This sent the five thousand spectators to seek shelter in cars and beneath the trees. The officials, reporters and others on the starting barge in the bay were compelled to hold the card tables over their heads as few had brought raincoats, deceived by the clear skies and sun, when the regatta began at one o'clock. Some were badly soaked and a chill breeze made it uncomfortable. Events were held up only briefly as clear weather returned. From both the viewpoint of the Yacht Club and the spectators, it was the best regatta yet held in the club's seven years' history. Events were run off quickly and without accident of any kind.

Gold Cup Race Highlight

The Gold Cup race was the highlight of the fine program and saw six entries. Forman annexed 1100 points with two firsts and a second; Cooper was second with 1000 points, with a first and two seconds. In third place was Jerry Lenthier of St. Rose, Quebec, with 619 points, finishing 3-4-3. I. Brunell of St. Eustache, Quebec was fourth with 563 points, being 4-3-4. Leo LeBrun of Montreal, with Escapade, had 381 points, finishing 5-5-6. C. Hamlin of Buffalo, with Voo-Doo met with hard luck, meeting with engine trouble in the first heat and he was unable to compete. He had John Olmstead, famed air pilot and sportsman as driver, having suffered a broken arm a few days ago. Best times for the fifteen miles were 4.55-3, 4.44, 4.43, the latter mark being set by Forman in the last heat. Jaite's best time last year was 59.880 miles an hour, the speed of all three heats being much faster yesterday.

The officials were—flag, Frank Harris, Wellington; gun, E. Mason and Corey Harris; timers, Pat Hodgson and Hugh Stowell; clock, Marshall Palmer; summary sheets, Miss A. M. LaValle; chief of scorers, Mrs. R. Schelling, Toronto; announcer, Tommy Mason, Belleville.

The regatta came to a close with a big dance in the armouries with Jimmie Rennie and his orchestra of Kingston providing music. All proceeds were donated to the Red Cross from this dance.

Water conditions were perfect as the bayis sheltered by high banks and the crowds of these had a perfect view of the course.

In a matched race, Jim Channell of Bloomfield defeated Mel Campbell of Wellington and in a challenge race, Keith Gilmore defeated J. C. Cooper, both of Picton.

TONY GALENTO CALLED TO WIN

Meets Maxie Baer in 15-Rounder in Jersey City Ball Park Tonight

Jersey City, N.J., July 2.—(AP)—Those two upstanding heavyweights, Tony Galento and Max Baer, meet in a 15-round fight at the local ball park tonight, providing, of course, that Tony doesn't get crowned by a relative before he can climb into the ring.

Around 30,000 fans are expected to watch the two veterans fight it out (about 1 o'clock E.S.T.) for the right to meet champion Joe Louis in a September bout.

Nothing has happened to change the widespread opinion that Galento will win probably by a knockout. Tony couldn't possibly get himself into poorer physical condition at the last minute than the experts have thought him to be for a week or two, and the cut he received on his chin from a flying beer glass night before last didn't mar his sterling fighting qualities.

FOXBORO DOWNS LATTA BY 3-2

Guay Hurls for Winners to Hand Latta Initial Defeat

Behind the two hit hurling of Vince Guay, Foxboro handed Latta their first setback of the current baseball season at Latta last evening when in playing a postponed game they landed on "Joey" Marsh, Latta's hurler for five hits, including two doubles to eke out a close 3-2 decision.

A lapse of control in the third inning by Guay allowed the two runs the losers counted as with one away three walks and a hit batsman coming in succession forced in one run with Dunning coming through with a single to score another.

Foxboro scored two of their runs in the first canto when Spencer was safe on an error only to be scored by Vince Guay as he slashed a rousing double. Peacock came through with the second extra base hit of the inning when he smashed another double to score Guay. Foxboro won the game in the fifth when Spencer singled and stole second and third to score when Hudgins dropped the third strike and had to toss the batter out at first.

In addition to holding the opposition to only two safeties, Guay struck out five but rather mitigated his pitching effort by walking six and hitting one batsman. Marsh held the opposition to five hits, struck out ten and walked one.

Spencer with two singles led all hitters of the evening with Guay, Peacock and Hudgins counting doubles. Norm Guay and Dunning were the only other hitters to connect safely.

The teams:

Latta: Parks 1b; Hudgins c; Marsh p; Wager ss; Dunning 3b; Foster 2b; Bailey rf; Goulet lf and Platt cf.

Foxboro: Jamieson ss; Spencer c; V. Guay p; Walt 3b; Peacock 1b; Faulkner 2b; Norm Guay lf;- J. Guay rf and Bird cf.

Umpires: Hall, plate and Platt, bases.

DELORO LOSES EXHIBITION 8-7

Foxboro Nine Win Exhibition Tilt Over Holiday

Playing an exhibition game in Deloro over the holiday, the Foxboro ballsters triumphed over the Deloro "Smelters" when they pounded the offerings of Callery for ten safeties to pull out an 8-7 victory.

The game was played in a veritable sea of mud as the rain came down in torrents shortly before the game commenced which proved a big handicap to the players, as they slithered around the diamond.

Peacock hurled for the visitors and held the opposition to two safeties for the six innings he worked on the hilltop but his efforts were mitigated with a long string of walks that almost spelled defeat as the homesters counted twice in the second after walks had loaded the base-paths. Again in the sixth after Brown had doubled three walks in succession forced in a run and in all five funs scored before the side was retired.

The visitors counted once in the first, four timer in the fourth, twice in the fifth and once in the sixth. They won the game in the stventh after a walk had put a runner aboard to be scored by a single off Jamieson's bat.

The homesters made it interesting in the last half of the seventh as two walks started the inning with Guay coming in to relieve Peacock on the mound. Vince came through with flying colors to retire the side on strikes.

The teams:

Foxboro—Noley, Guay, c; Spencer s.s.; V. Guay, 1b; Walt, 3b; Peacock, p.; Faulkner, 2b; Norm Guay, l.f.; Bird, c.f.; Priest and Jamieson, r.f.

Deloro—Gazley, s.s.; O'Neill, 1b; Hunter, c.f.; Brown, c; Wright, 2b; McInroy, 3b; Goodchild, r.f.; N. O'Neill, l.f.; Callery, p.

St. Louis Browns Are Causing More American Loop Turmoil Than League Has Known in Yrs.

Team Shades Cleveland Indians 2-1 and Reduces That Team's Lead Over Tigers to Half a Gage

DODGERS GAIN

Brooklyn Squad Also Only Half a Game from Top Spot in National Loop

(By Judson Bailey)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Louis Browns had better not expect any more "help" from their fellow American League Clubs.

The team that finished a poor eighth last year and had to be strengthened during the winter and spring by a series of deals following a reported plea for assistance is causing more turmoil than the junior circuit has known in years.

They knocked Boston Red Sox out of first place ten days ago and last night they undermined Cleveland Indians' standing with a 2-1 victory. This shaved the tribe's first-place margin to a single game over Detroit Tigers.

Elden Auker one of the hand-me-downs sent the Browns in the off season, held the Cleveland sluggers to eight hits however, he forced in a run in the ninth.

The Browns were held to seven hits by Joe Dobson, but one was a home run by Harlond Clift and the other was a double by Rip Radcliff, who went to third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

St. Louis Cardinals crowded out Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in another close game. Lon Warneke gave seven hits but was tight in the pinches. The Cards were rationed on five, but two were home runs by Enos (Country) Slaughter accounting for all St. Louis' runs.

Dodgers Score 4-3 win

Brooklyn Dodgers got seven hits and the Phillies eight, but Brooklyn triumphed 4-3 with the help of a three-run assault on Hugh Mulcahy in the first inning.

The Giants crushed Boston Bees 7-1 although they had only a 7-6 advantage in hits. Three of the blows were home runs.

Pittsburgh Pirates edged out Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 10 innings. Vince DiMaggio hit his ninth homer for Pittsburgh to tie the score in the ninth and in the 10th relief pitcher Claude Passeau forced over the winning run with a walk.

Big Buck Newsom got his 11th straight victory as Detroit Tigers took Chicago White Sox into camp 3-1. The only time Newsom let a runners get past second was in the fourth when the Sox scored through an error by Dick Bartell.

New York Yankees and Washington Senators shared 20 hits evenly but the world champions easily won 8-4 with the help of five Washington errors and the wildness of Hal Chase, who hit three batsmen, walked four and made two wild pitches.

The day's only game decided strictly on slugging was a 9-1 triumph by Philadelphia Athletics over the struggling Boston Red Sox. The A's made 15 hits two of them home runs by Catcher Frank Hayes. He had a perfect day at the plate as did Al Rubeling. Nelson Potter held Boston to eight well-spaced hits.

JACK DEMPSEY WINS EASY BOUT

Clarence "Futile" Luttrell Beaten Into Insensibility by Manassa Mauler

Atlanta, Ga., July 2—(AP)—The cry of the crowd and the clang of the cash register beckoned middle-aged Jack Dempsey down the comeback trail today after his lopsided knockout of a tubby wrestler.

It took the old Manassa mauler only four minutes and 58 seconds last night to pound Clarence (Futile) Luttrel into insensibility, and before the flabby 224-pound grappler regained consciousness the former heavyweight champions glad-handers were assuring him that he was the "Old Dempsey".

Dempsey, weighing 205 pounds, did carry power in his 45-year-old fists but his blows were landing on a practically defenseless bulk.

Fresh from a triumphal struggle through a yelling crowd of punch-hungry fans—he was hit harder by the back slappers than he was by Luttrell— Dempsey sat puffing slightly on his rubbing table and said "I need more work" when asked if this bizarre return to the ring heralded a serious campaign.

The turnout of about 10,000 paid and the gross of $15,000 was a bit below advance estimates of promoters.

The whole affair carried an atmosphere of unreality from the time it was announced a few weeks ago that Dempsey was donning the six-ounce gloves for the first time in eight years to settle a "feud" started by some duly press-agented scuffles with the wrestler while the old champ was refereeing some of his wrestling bouts.

ROCHESTER WINS TWO

John Berley, Relief Hurler, Saves One Game in the Ninth Innings

(By The Associated Press)

Nomination for the most valuable player in the International League, as of July 1—John Berly, the veteran "fireman" of the Rochester pitching crops.

Since his first appearance on the hill May 23, Berly has taken part in 15 of the 48 games the Red Wings have played. And often as not it was to save some faltering flinger who couldn't quite get through the last inning or two.

Fireman John has credit for two victories and one defeat and has served without official credit in nine more winning games and only three that were lost.

He played his usual role yesterday as the Red Birds swept the Dominion Day doubleheader at Montreal 5-3 and 5-1. He took over from Mike Ryba in the ninth inning of the opener with Rochester leading by two runs, only one out and two runners on base. Berly needed only three pitches to retire the side, getting George Staller and Jimmy Ripple, two dangerous clouters on pops ups.

Charlie Brumeloe didn't need any assistance in the nightcap as he pitched four-hit ball for his tenth victory. He got the benefit of 11 hits including a homer by Harry Davis.

Rochester's third straight double victory since Tony Kaufmann became manager added only a half game to Rochester's lead as Newark's second-place Bears belted over Baltimore Orioles 6-2.

Leafs Out of Cellar

Toronto Maple Leafs climbed past Syracuse into seventh place by a five-point margin as they whipped Buffalo 10-9 and 4-1 in their holiday bill while the third-place Jersey City Giants collected a 9-4 "gift" victory over the Chiefs.

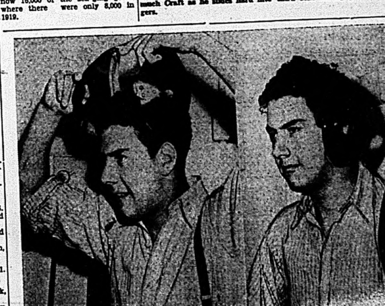
Newark's victory was the 13th in 17 starts. It was gained mostly by pounding Italo Chelini in the first four innings while Norman Branch scattered eight Baltimore hits.

Phil Marchildon's fine relief hurling saved Toronto in the opener after the Bisons had belted Les McCrabb out with a six-run assault in the fifth. The Leafs came back to score five runs in the next frame as Mickey Dejonghe contributed a three-run homer. A four-run rally against Joe Rogalski in the third settled the nightcap as Jim Walkup pitched effectively.

Jersey City scored only two earned runs against Syracuse but five errors by the Chiefs permitted the Little Giants to score seven more in the fourth and fifth innings and go on to win easily when Roy Henshaw settled down after a bad third frame.

Arch Ward says in the Chicago Tribune Sonja Henie and Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn Dodger football team, will wed within the next few days….what does a guy have to do to make the all-star team? Here's Detroit's Barney McCosky hitting around .350, leading in runs scored, tied for triples and covering centre field like an old revival tent—but doesn't get a tumble.

OOPS, MY DEAR!—Harry Craft, of the Cincy Reds, doesn't use much Craft as he slides hard into third base during game with Dodgers.



Spurred by the epidemic of "beanings" in his bailiwick, Ford Frick, president of the National Baseball league, will propose to club owners legislation to make the wearing of helmets (such as the one picture, ABOVE), mandatory for big league batters. The helmet is a tough, fibrous affair that clamps its conical earlaps over the skull of the swatsmith. Sponge rubber and lightweight leather rim the insides to prevent the helmet from becoming too onerous. President Frick will make his proposal next month at the annual meeting of club owners on the eve of the all-star game in St. Louis. He will offer this and several other types of headgear designed to minimize any lurking chance of a baseball "death in the afternoon."

Belleville's two civic playgrounds officially opened over the holiday week-end. Chief Supervisor Bill Bowerman and his assistants provided the conventional sports and recreational programs, as well as handicrafts, for the occasion. Hundreds of Belleville kiddies swarmed the East and West Belleville playgrounds, which proved to be the mecca for young Belleville to inaugurate the summer playground season. Supervisor Bill Bowerman is being assisted this year by Don Grant, while Miss Margaret Houston and Miss Marion Diamond are the respective grounds overseers. Lieut. Jack Cousins, who has been connected with this type of children's recreational work in Belleville during the summer months for some years past, recently joined his military unit for active service duty. The two Belleville playgrounds will remain open until Labour Day, when a gala display of the handicrafts and sports will terminate the season.

Although several games were rained out last week, the standing of the local softball leagues reads as follows:

Men's Senior

	W.	L.	Pct.
Shell	5	2	.714
Pt. Anne	4	3	.571
Uptown Jrs.	3	3	.500
Corbys A. C.	3	3	.500
Picton	0	4	.000

Games this week: Wednesday, Corbys at Shell; Friday, Uptowns at Point Anne.

Ladies' Mercantile

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Vikings	3	1	1	7
Corbins	3	2	0	6
Big-Z	3	2	0	6
K-Nines	2	2	0	4

Five-ten	0	3	0	0

Games this week: Tonight, Five-ten at Big-Z; Thursday, K-nines vs. Corbins; Friday, Vikings vs. Mets. (B.C.I.)

Do you remember when Bobby Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., world's professional sculling champion, lost to Bill Miller, United States titlist, in a mile event at Port William four years ago today? The champion, however, later won decisively a three-mile event from the Philadelphian.

It is not expected that G. Schaeffer, Olympic sculling champion, will come to the U.S.A. to defend his world's amateur rowing title this summer. Joe Burk, Penn A. C. champion and generally recognized as the top sculler in the world, has challenged Schaeffer to a race at Red Bank, N.J., but since the European war it is not likely that the German will risk an ocean voyage. As there will be no 1940 Olympics Burk has challenged for the $5,000 Philadelphia Gold Sculling Cup, emblematic of the world's singles sculling supremacy and if the challenge is not accepted, the trustees, all of whom are Americans, can name a defender, who undoubtedly would be Burk, unless the Philadelphia Gold Cup was declared an open trophy and not held by any individual, if Schaeffer declines the challenge. In all probability the latter suggestion will be put into effect and a special race held for the world's singles sculling title at Red Bank next month.

Elongated Tommy Pointer, former Belleville National portsider, was up to his old slab tricks on Saturday when Tommy limited the league champion Bowmanville Royals to one hit as the Ontarios beat the Royals 3-0. Incidentally Tommy is new pitching-manager of the Port Hope Ontarios. He had ten successive strike outs on Saturday and whiffed 17 Bowmanville batsmen. Kinda makes us think of the days when Tommy was foggin' 'em through for the old Nationals, and when Tommy wanted to bend 'em, it was just a sorrowful day for the opposition batters. Apparently he's lost none of his mound cunningness.

The local softball moguls have been bewailing their inability to make ends meet at Coleman Flats this season. Actually they haven't much kick, as we hear another softball league went to the wall over the week-end when the Grey County loop folded up. The league consisted of teams from Owen Sound and incidentally the war charity game between Belleville, Meaford and Kingston was cancelled yesterday owing to a heavy program.

Despite inclement weather some tall power boat racing was seen at Picton yesterday. "Tops" Cooper and his Tops 3rd failed to win the feature 225 c.c. feature class for the Gold Cup as was anticipated, Dave Forman with his Eaglet of Buffalo captured the big race of the day. After each had won a heat Forman beat Cooper over the starting line, as the veteran driver got into difficulty. However, the Eaglet and Tops 3rd made a really thrilling race of that third heat, that saw Forman swish through a Gold Cup winning. Despite the adverse weather that prevailed over the week-end, a goodly crowd saw the A.P.B.A. races at Picton yesterday.

"Ironman Joe Jakafby," he'll be known as henceforth. Yes, big Joe Jakafby, well-known Peterboro hurler, pitched and won games for the Petes yesterday, as he beat the Toronto Parkdales 6-2 in the morning and blanked 'em 12 to 0 in a p.m. match. However, the Petes weren't so fortunate with "Gunner Eddie" Whitehill on Saturday, when Oshawa beat Eddie Murphy's gang 3-0, but yesterday's pitching feat by Jakafby left everything rosey in the Petes' camp.

Tony Galento was just testing his chin for tonight's bout with Max Baer when he stopped an empty tankard with his chin the other night. "Two-ton Tony" and his brother Russell became engaged in one of those family controversies when Russell ups with a heavy beer mug and lets one of the fugitives from a squirrel cage have it flush on the mug. Tony's chin was gashed but not enough to halt tonight's brawl.

SPORT SPICE — Despite some exceedingly poor and adverse fishing weather, several fine catches of game fish were reported over the week-end, especially in North Hastings waters. Two good catches we saw were Bruce Smith's 9 1-2 pound salmon trout and Herb Burley's 6 pound 10 ounce pickerel. Both were splendid catches and were duly recorded to the Anglers Club. Better fishing weather is coming up for July, we hope.

HAPPIER HUNTING

Ottawa — (CP(— Through careful observation, the muskrat population of northern Manitoba rose from 500 to 200,000 in five years, and 126,000 were trapped this spring. The conservation was planned to give Indians better hunting.

NAVIGATOR WETTED

London — (CP) — When a submarine was forced to dive suddenly, the navigating officer was left on deck. He was missed at once, and the sub resurfaced, to find the navigator clinging to the periscope, quite unharmed.

Evacuation of Children From United Kingdom Will Be Delayed

London, July 2—(CP-Cable)—The flow of evacuee children from the United Kingdom's invasion-threatened shores to Canada cannot start as early as had been expected, it was learned today.

A delay of possibly a few weeks has been found necessary due to the great amount of preparatory work required on this side of the Atlantic.

One reason for the postponement is that the forms freeing the government of liability for the children's safety during the voyage, which had already been circulated for the mother's signature, now have to be sent out again.

It was discovered that English law required the father's signature. Complicating this is the fact that hundreds of fathers are on active service. This is a considerable problem where they are at sea with the navy.

Lord Queenborough, President of the St. George's Society, announced he had received a cable from the organization's Toronto branch saying members there will provide an unstated number of homes for English children.

Artie Shaw, Turner Romance Nearly Over

Hollywood, July 2 —(AP)— It looked for a few minutes last night as if the brief separation of Artie Shaw and Lana Turner was over.

The stage was set for a reconciliation. Lana had come to the radio studio where her brilliant but moody husband was resuming the band leading career illness forced him to give up more than a year ago.

Flash bulbs popped as Shaw embraced the shapely little redhead who two years ago was an unknown, if very ornamental, member of the Hollywood high school student body.

To reporters, Shaw was saying:—"It's like I've told you all day. I don't know where this separation talk started. We're together, aren't we? Everything's all right."

Then he turned his back and walked away.

On Lana's face was a look of hurt and bewilderment no movie camera ever caught. Alone, her lips quivering, she murdered:

"I'm sorry, but I'm all upset. Yes, I've moved, but I haven't exactly left him. I'm sorry, I just can't say any more now."

Then she glanced up. Shaw was still walking, off to the other side of the stage. Her expression stiffened as she watched. The lips stopped trembling.

"All right," she snapped. "It's true."

And she broke into tears—not the professional tears of the actress but the very unprofessional tears of a 19-year-old girl faced with a very real crisis.

Thus ended—to all appearances, at least—the romance that began with an airplane elopement to Nevada on the night of their first date in mid-February. All Hollywood knew about Lana's friendship with the idol of jitterbugs, 10 years her senior, was that they had quarreled endlessly throughout the only movie they had made together.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

INSTALMENT 28

The salad was on the table. The ice in the goblets of water had melted and Mrs. Epperson was fussing about it.

"I might as well have stayed with my sister another hour," she complained. "Here I rush home so that dinner can be on time and she's late. That's the trouble with this house. You can never tell what she is going to do."

"Mrs. Lambert said she would be back in time for dinner," Star said. "I feel sure she will be here soon."

"I don't see why she had to tear out of here like that after she'd just gotten home. She went down the driveway like a bat out of hades."

Star did not reply. She was in no mood for conversation. But she had taken a bath and changed to one of the light frocks Nina liked for her to wear in the evening. Now that the excitement of seeing Milton was over, she felt dull and tired.

Nothing that Nina could do or say would change things. Tomorrow Milton would be on his way to Paris. Star wished that she might escape, too. It would help to get on a ship or a train and travel far away.

But there was no such solution for her. She must stay and continue with her work. Typing Nina's stories that always ended happily. So different from real life where your difficulties went on and on. You didn't fall in love and live happily ever after. You fell in love and suffered.

Oh, well, it was all over now. Nothing more to expect, ever. When Milton returned from Paris with his wife, they might drop in sometimes to see Nina. He might even come there alone, but it would never again mean anything to Nina's secretary. She would greet him pleasantly and pass the cocktails; if Jennifer were with him, she would have to endure the amused triumph of Jennifer's eyes, but Milton would not dare to look at her.

Star went to the window and stared down the street but there was no sign of Nina's car. Suddenly she felt that she could bear it no longer. She couldn't sit there waiting for Nina to return. Putting on a coat, she entered the kitchen.

"I don't want any dinner, Mrs. Epperson. Please tell Mrs. Lambert that I have gone for a walk."

The housekeeper surveyed her disapprovingly.

"You're getting almost as bad as she is. I never saw so much temperament in my life. You need your dinner, Miss Bright. You're getting thinner every day. You'd better take care of yourself."

"I'm not hungry," Star said, anxious to escape. "But if I am later, I'll fix myself a sandwich."

Mrs. Epperson sniffed and retorted something Star did not wait to hear. She walked along the dark street aimlessly. It was late in October and a touch of frost was in the air. Most of the leaves had fallen, leaving the bare beauty of naked branches outlined against the sky.

By the time Milton came back from Paris it would be too late to take out his boat. The Adventuress would be deserted just as Star had been.

A desire to see the boat again made her turn in that direction. It was a distance of several miles but in her present mood she could walk it easily. She told herself there would be a melancholy satisfaction in watching the little craft rock in her berth. Milton never went there on week nights so she would be unobserved.

Absorbed in her thoughts, Star walked rapidly. It seemed only a short time before she reached the yacht harbor and passed down the tethered line. When she reached The Adventuress she paused. It was dark and empty. Tugging at the restraining ropes as if impatient to get away.

Dear little boat! How happy the three of them had been together. Just like a family, because the cruiser seemed like a person, too.

There was a lump in Star's throat as she remembered how Milton had said that his wife had never seen it. The Adventuress and her memories belonged to Star. It was the only thing unmarred by Jennifer's touch and Star told herself she would have been willing to give up everything else. Jennifer could have had his name and bank accounts—all those things which meant so much to her—if only Star could have had this boat and Milton. If they could have gone abroad and sailed away.

A car was coming. She'd better go. A deserted yacht harbor was no place for a girl to be alone at night.

"Good-bye!" she whispered and started back, but as she walked, the lights of the approaching car were turned full upon her, blinding her. Then she heard Milton's voice.

"Why, Star, what are you doing down here?"

Confused and angry at herself, she cried, "Does it matter?"

"Of course it matters," he replied, parking his car. But she had walked on so that he had to run to catch up with her.

"Where are you going now?" he demanded.

"Home. Let me alone, Milton, please. I didn't come down here to see you."

"Well, I didn't expect to see you, either," he admitted. "I told Nina I wanted to be alone. To think things over."

"I haven't seen Nina," she confessed, but something in his voice made her tremble. "I left before she came home."

He took her arm and led her back toward his boat.

Now that you're here, you don't think I'm going to let you go?"

Star did not speak until they were inside the lighted cabin, then she said, "I don't know what Nina has said to you, but whatever it is I had nothing to do with it."

His face was grimmer than she had ever seen it, but his tone was gentle.

"Don't you think I know that? You haven't any idea, have you?"

Star shook her head, leaning against a table for support.

"Sit down," Milton suggested. "It isn't easy—what I am going to say. I wanted to think this over because it was such a shock." He fumbled in a drawer for his pipe and as he filled it she saw that his hands, too, were shaking.

"Isn't it strange," he asked bitterly, "how every one else in the world can know things except the one most concerned? I've seen it happen so many times, but I never expected it to happen to me."

She waited breathlessly, afraid to guess what he was trying to say.

"Nina tells me that my wife has been travelling all over Europe with a wealthy man who owns a racing stable. She has been staying at the same hotels with him, posing as his wife. Registered under his name."

His eyes, shamed and angry, met hers but she did not dare to comfort him.

"Nina would never have told me if she hadn't overheard our conversation this afternoon. It does something to me I can't explain. That's why I wanted to be alone."

He added, "I suspected that Jennifer didn't love me but I trusted her. What a fool you must think me."

"Yes, and Mother's worries are over too. At last she has a machine that does everything the way she wants it done. It washes fast. It washes clean. It is quiet. It handles delicate fabrics gently. It drains easily. It wrings beautifully. And it's always ready at the flip of the switch to go to work.

LOANS WITHOUT ENDORSERS

You can borrow $100 if you can pay back $7.78 a month

Here's a convenient way to borrow and a convenient way to repay. Household Finance is now making loans to employed men and women in this community on a helpful "fit-your-budget" plan. No endorsers or guarantors, no stocks or bonds are required. You may take as long as fifteen months to repay. Or you may repay sooner to reduce the cost.

Choose your own payments

Suppose that you need $100. You find this amount in the first column of the table below. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see that monthly payments of $7.78, for instance, will repay your loan in full in fifteen months. Or twelve monthly payments of $9.46 each will also repay a $100 loan if you pay on schedule. There is nothing more to pay. You may wish to borrow an amount not in the table. If so, just tell us how much you need and for how long.

You can borrow $20 to $500 if you can make these convenient monthly payments

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you prepay your loan in full or in part, since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at the rate of 2% per month as authorized by the Small Loans Act, 1939.

DOTTIE WAS A HOT-WEATHER OFFENDER

She Spent a Fortune on her Hair

—but nobody ever asked her out twice

SCIENTIFIC FACTS ABOUT 'B.O.'

The adult skin has 2 to 3 million sweat glands which act as a cooling system, giving off from 1 to 3 pints of perspiration daily—even when we are sitting still. If perspiration stopped, we would die from hyper-pyrexia (heat stroke).

Because much of the water in perspiration evaporates, we do not see or feel it. Summer heat, nervous excitement, heavy clothes or warm rooms quickly decompose this sweat deposit—turn it stale—cause offensive "B.O." (Body Odor).

DOTTIE always looked attractive . . . She took infinite pains with her hair, for example, but she was careless about bathing, even in hot summer weather — offended her would-be admirers . . . And when "B.O."—offensive body odor—comes in, love flies out the window.

All of us have to perspire to live—and this hot humid weather speeds up the time during which sweat left on the body decomposes—turns stale. When this happens YOU have "B.O."

"B.O." can ruin romance, business and social chances. Check it before it starts with Lifebuoy. For Lifebuoy contains an exclusive deodorizing ingredient, not found in any other leading toilet soap. Used in your daily bath, Lifebuoy stops "B.O."—its purifying lather washes offensive sweat deposits away. And Lifebuoy peps you up—refreshes. Why not take this inexpensive precaution of careful people.

"IT'S NO FUN FOR ME TO TELL YOU... BUT IN THIS WARM, STICKY WEATHER ESPECIALLY YOU NEED LIFEBUOY."
"AND WE'RE GOING TO THE DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT, AREN'T WE DOTTIE?"
YES, DEAR
THANKS TO AUNTY AND LIFEBUOY

Goodyear Earnings Exceed Dividend Requirements

Total Sales Keep Pace With 1939 Levels

With letter to shareholders enclosing quarterly dividend cheques, President A. G. Partridge stated:

"While completed reports for the first six months are not yet available, our total sales for this period will compare very favorably with the same period of 1939 and earnings will continue to exceed dividend requirements.

"In Canada new car and truck registrations are over 30% ahead of 1939."

BRITISH AIRMEN

"One bomber was set on fire and five others seriously damaged. Buildings near the hangars suffered direct hits and were set alight

Naval Communique

Mersa Matruh and Sidi Barrani are on the Egyptian coast. The Moyale area is on the frontier between Ethiopia and Kenya Colony. Augusta is on the east coast of Sicily.

A naval communique said:—

"British naval air forces operating in the eastern Mediterranean between June 27 and 30 destroyed four Italian submarines.

"An Italian destroyer sunk by British naval forces June 27 was the Espero. Forty-four survivors were picked up. Unofficially it is understood there were some survivors from the submarines who were rescued.

"The Espero was completed in 1928, carried four 4.7-inch guns and had a speed of 36 knots."

Direct Hit on Main Road

"A direct hit was scored on a main road.

"This attack by our aircraft was pressed home despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. We suffered no losses.

"A formation of bombers raided an oil refinery and oil tanks at Augusta. As a result of this low bombing attack, the refinery was set on fire. Four minutes later, huge clouds of dark brown smoke were seen.

"All our aircraft returned safely.

RUMANIA RUSHES

Reich could not fail to look askance at the Soviet move into two of Rumania's richest provinces of Bessarabia and Bucovina and near certainty that anything Germany got from there hitherto would not be available hereafter.

Rumania's Neighbors

Further, she was faced with the possibility that Rumania's other grasping neighbors might not desist but might attempt to seize by force of arms what they have so far sought to achieve only by threats. This would almost certainly leave Germany no alternative but to fight on the eastern front.

From the British standpoint such an eventuality would be an undisguised blessing, weakening Germany's hold on the western part of the continent and rendering still more effective the workings of the blockade.

Eastern Crops Will be Shorter

Even if no fighting occurs in the east, events to date probably have done much to insure that eastern crops will be even shorter than was anticipated and Central Europe so much closer to hunger.

Bucharest, July 2 —(AP)— The Rumanian army rushed more troops to the Hungarian and Bulgarian borders today in fear of invasion after reported attacks there.

A Rumanian diplomatic report said apparently concerted Hungarian and Bulgarian attacks against Rumanian frontier posts had occurred simultaneously Sunday night and Monday morning. The exact locations were not given.

Some official circles said these attacks were a form of pressure on Rumania in Hungary's clamor for return of Transylvania and Bulgaria's demands for return of Southern Dobruja, territories which Rumania won in the First Great War settlement.

There were rumors, meanwhile, that Rumania might conclude a military and political alliance with Germany following her renunciation last night of Allied guarantees. These could not be confirmed.

Germany, it was believed in diplomatic quarters, may be offering full military support to Rumania on condition that Rumania make a peaceful adjustment of the Hungarian and Bulgarian claims—with Bucharest in a difficult position to refuse.

A number of frontier outposts were attacked by Hungarians with rifles, machine-guns and even artillery, with casualties on both sides, it was reported. At about the same time similar Bulgarian assaults were made against Dobruja outposts, also with casualties.

The situation further was aggravated by a protest from the Hungarian government warning Rumania of a "possible unpleasant consequence" of the frontier incidents. Hungary charged Rumanians had penetrated Hungary at Visk.

(A Budapest dispatch said Hungary was on a war footing and dispatch of troops into Transylvania was expected momentarily.)

These incidents and reports of general mobilization in Hungary caused redoubling of precautions throughout Rumania. Air raid defence squads made their first appearance in Bucharest's streets with full equipment.

Efforts to strengthen defences on the new Russian frontiers in ceded Bessarabia and northern Bucovina continued but reports from those areas said all was quiet there.

(Tass, the Russian news agency, announced Red Army troops had "accomplished their task" along the entire length of the Prut and Danube River frontiers.)

Russian Forces Withdraw

Russian forces were reported withdrawing from some points where they over-ran the demarcation line and invaded Rumanian territory in their rushed occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina last week.

There were some fears, however, the Russians might try to advance again.

These fears were believed to be the reason for the sudden delivery to Rumania last night of a fleet of German-made bombing planes. The planes, their number undisclosed, landed at the Brasov airport in a corner of Transylvania which is in central Rumania.

Ordered by Rumania

The planes were said to have been ordered by the Rumanian Government but their delivery at this time was believed by diplomatic circles to be a warning to Russia. It was pointed out Germany was not likely to furnish planes for use against her friend Hungary.

The fact that Germany delivered the planes to Rumania was seen as evidence she hopes to settle the differences between Hungary and Rumania without difficulty.

Delivery of the planes also was regarded as significant in that they arrived only a few hours after the Rumanian cabinet announced it was renouncing the British-French guarantees given in April, last year.

Diplomatic circles said this move definitely placed Rumania in the German orbit and that she was likely to listen to German advice regarding Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial claims.

(Well informed London circles described this action as a "curious gesture", stating the guarantee was given uni-laterally, Rumania not having asked for it, and that "if Britain wished to carry out her promise she would do so despite such a renunciation.")

Placed on War Footing

Budapest, July 2—(AP)—Hungary placed herself on a war footing today to back up her claims to border province of Transylvania which she lost to Rumania in 1918 but informed sources said she might consider a peaceful settlement ceding her only a part of the disputed territory.

Hopes for a compromise were pinned on the possibility of intervention by Germany, who was said to be trying to avert an outbreak of hostilities to protect her own interests in the Balkans.

A repetition of border "incidents" which already have brought a Hungarian protest to Rumania apparently was the only thing necessary, however, to send Hungarian troops marching across the Transylvanian border.

The protest said that "unpleasant consequences" might follow further incidents.

Some observers believed that Hungary's military preparations were intended chiefly to impress Rumania for bargaining purposes.

Point of Collapse is Report

Officially - inspired Hungarian news reports said that Rumania, already compelled to cede Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Soviet Russia, was "on the point of collapse." It was intimated Hungary might find it necessary to intervene to "protect" the Hungarian minority in Transylvania, estimated at about 2,000,000.

Three civilians were reported killed in the "incidents" which brought the Hungarian protest yesterday. Official reports also asserted that Rumanian troops had penetrated Hungarian territory at Visk, but were driven back after an exchange of shots.

Signs of unrest were apparent elsewhere throughout the southeast.

Dispatches from Athens said that Greek troops, armed with bayonets, were standing guard on the Rumanian frontier to back the government's determination to halt any attempt to cut off eastern Macedonia and Thrace.

raised when Gen. Charles De Gaulle head of the French committee established in London, announced appointment of Vice Admiral Museller as commander of "all free French naval forces" and said there were already under the Vice Admiral's command "several ships and air groups."

Vice Admiral Museller was said to have escaped from Marseilles when the Petain government surrendered and to have taken a warship to Gibraltar to join the Royal Navy there.

Children Killed in Streets

Almost all the latest air raid casualties occurred in one town in northeast Scotland which German craft reached first at twilight. Four children were killed as they played in the street and three women and a man were killed in a shop. The casualties appeared to indicate carelessness in obeying air raid precaution instructions.

The first German attempt, in broad daylight, failed to send any planes across the coast. This was in the southwest. Two German machines were downed over the sea as Royal Air Force fighters intercepted them.

The first fight started almost five miles high and ended almost at sea level. The second started at an altitude of about two miles where a German was downed by three spitfires.

In the last raid bombs fell on the Welsh coast.

Rumor Mongers Jailed

On the home front authorities were worried by rumor mongers, including some who repeated wild stories that German parachute troops had landed on the south coast. The Ministry of Information denied that any such landings had taken place and a women's auxiliary air force telephone operator was sent to jail for three months for repeating the rumors.

British authorities announced German landings on the demilitarized Channel Islands of Jersey and Guernsey, home of famous breeds of cattle and popular tourist resorts in summer. The announcement followed reports two days ago of air raids over the islands in which German pilots sought apparently to destroy crops by machine gunning fields and ended by killing and injuring a large number of civilians.

Most of the islanders and their prize cattle have been brought to England and everything edible has been destroyed along with public facilities and the two little airports on the islands.

The islands were described as of no strategic importance to Germany as they lie no closer to the English coast than French territory the Germans have conquered. Their ports are small and useless for operation of anything bigger than launches and small trawlers.

Manufacturers to Pool Resources

Manufacturers of margarine announced they would pool their resources for the duration of the war and act as one company. This, they said, would greatly simplify production and transportation of their products. Margarine, worth about 16 cents a pound, has not yet been rationed.

In a letter to The Daily Mail Bernard Shaw, Anglo-Irish playwright and wit, urged abandonment of the blockade and suggested Hitler be asked how much food his armies required so that they could be thoroughly beaten on the field, instead of possibly being forced into submission by starvation.

Mr. Shaw also suggested that if the proposition were put before the Eire Government and people in the right manner, they would not only consent to join northern Ireland and the United Kingdom in a common defence, but would demand the right to do so. "We must regard Eire as Stalin regards Rumania or as he did Poland and Finland," he said.

Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, was expected to make an important statement in the House of Commons today regarding the blockade, particularly as it affects French territory occupied by the Germans.

The new United States passport regulations, effective Monday, stemmed the usually heavy Dominion Day flow of traffic across the border. Some border points reported many Canadians lacking the necessary passport were turned back from the United States. It was expected also that some Canadians, resident in the United States, who had crossed into Canada would be stranded here until they obtain their passports.

Record Low at Sarnia

Only a dozen Canadians crossed into the United States at Sarnia, across from Port Huron Mich., and officials said this probably is a record low. There was only a trickle from British Columbia to Washington State, which usually had seen a steady stream of Canadian traffic.

The worst acident of the week-end occurred in Alberta where six persons lost their lives in a drowning accident. Gene Shceppler, a farmer, his four children and Fred Osmond, his hired man, were drowned in Fish Lake, east of Drumheller, when their boat capsized. Scheppler had gone to the rescue of the other five after they were blown into the water from a raft.

Two residents of Lethbridge, Alta. were killed in automobile accidents and there were two drownings.

Two R.C.A.F. Men Killed

Two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force were among those who died in Ontario. Aircraftman John Leonart Gaudet, 25, was killed Sunday in an automobile accident at St. Thomas and Aircraftman Russell McCuaig, 24, of Biggar, Sask., died Monday from injuries suffered Friday when struck by a car on the highway near Port Stanley.

Three persons were electrocuted during the week-end. Daniel O'Neil, 26 and Wilbur Ritchie, 36, died after touching a highway fence which became electrically charged when a high voltage wire fell across it near Pakenham, 50 miles northwest of Ottawa, and John Henry Norway was electrocuted at the Hanalda mine in Patricia township.

There were two drownings in the St. Lawrence River near Montreal. Mrs. Lottie Brown, 49-year-old Montrealer, was struck and killed by an automobile and William Albert, 31, of Ottawa died at Hull, Que., from injuries suffered in the same way.

Ontario Victims

Other Ontario victims were: Alan Edward Vosburg, 32, of Detroit, fatally hurt near St. Thomas Saturday when he lost control of his car; Elizabeth Sheppard, Frankford nurse, killed in a highway crash at Cobourg.

Ronald Marks, six, of East York, Donald McGregor, 76 of Ottawa and William Fortune, 58, of Kirkland Lake, died from injuries suffered when struck by motor cars in separate accidents. D. Zeidman of Toronto was killed Monday at Belleville when a train struck the end of a station cart he was pulling along the platform and he was pushed under the wheels of another train.

Thomas Elston Melluish, 44, of Port Arthur, and August Rubin, 17, Fort William, were drowned in the lakehead accidents. Also in that area, Emil Turi, 64, died in hospital Monday at Port Arthur after being crushed by a tree.

The body of Loran Wegenest, 44-year-old Toronto resident, was found in the middle of Toronto Bay Monday. A search was started after the discovery of some of his clothing on a pier. The body of Henry Busch, 56-year-old German resident of Phelps Township, was found Saturday hanging in his home near North Bay.

SHIPPING LOSSES

Escort Plans Upset by French Armistice

The authoritative source said escort plans had been upset by the French armistice and by the fact that escort ships had to be diverted to withdrawal of British, French and other Allied soldiers "all the way from Brest to St. Jean de Lus."

This source said that, although the number of German submarines had increased, it was not to "an alarming extent." He declined to state what proportion if any of the British losses was caused by Italian submarines.

No Losses in Mediterranean

"There have not been many losses in the Mediterranean," the source declared, but added that some of the enemy submarines now operating in the Atlantic might be Italian.

Of the total British losses 30,446 were lost during combined operations off French ports and "therefore are not mercantile operations in the ordinary sense," it was said.

Actual mercantile losses were put at eight ships totalling 57,813 tons.

In the same period, eight Allied ships totalling 36,750 tons were sunk in addition to 33,020 tons lost in operations off the French coast. Neutral losses were put at 11 ships totalling 34,882 tons.

Britain Better in Actual Tonnage

The source said that "in actual tonnage" Britain is better off than she was ten months ago, since losses have been more than made good by new construction, captures and transfers. In addition, it was said, "considerable" tonnage belonging to Allied countries has been "placed at our disposal."

danger they might present in the British isle should the Motherland be invaded.

The debarkation brought relief from hours of tense watchfulness on the part of the ship's crew and guards. As one officer explained, "the real danger was in the presence aboard of so many merchant seamen, who would have been quite capable of handling the ship if they could have got control."

The officer said that the army men caused little trouble, "but those flying fellows are an arrogant lot—they called us swine nearly every chance they got on the way over." Another officer revealed that the merchant seamen were a bit particular too, complaining that the marching of sentries kept them awake at night.

The prisoners were not backward, either, in telling their guards the war would be over "in six weeks," with Germany the winner.

Many Training Planes Delivered

Nearly 200 elementary training planes have already been delivered from Canadian plants, Mr. Howe revealed. One Canadian plant is producing more than two of these planes a day. By the end of 1940 Canada will have produced all the elementary training planes required by the plan which specifies 800.

At the same time the minister announced the appointment of R. P. Bell of Halifax to the executive committee of the Munitions and Supply Department. Mr. Bell will be responsible for co-ordinating the entire aircraft production throughout the Dominion and accelerating, even beyond its present speed, the output of the aviation industry.

Will Head Federal Aircraft

Mr. Bell, serving without salary, will also be president of a newly-formed company, Federal Aircraft Limited, with headquarters in Montreal and designed to co-ordinate the output of all Anson plane parts and to expedite production of the complete Anson machine.

Nine Canadian plants are engaged in production of this twin-engined, advanced training plane, 1,500 of which are to be built for the air training plan.

Assisting Mr. Bell in Federal Aircraft Limited will be a board of directors consisting of Sydney Dawes, Blair Gordon, Russell Smith and Allen Aiken of Montreal.

General manager is R. J. Moffett, formerly chief aeronautical engineer of Canadian Vickers. Frank L. Jeckel, of Montreal, has been appointed treasurer.

Work Well Advanced

"Work is well advanced on all the orders for planes required under the joint air training plan," said Mr. Howe. "Arrangements have been completed for the purchase of some 5,000 engines. Originally most of these engines were to have come from Great Britain.

Under the air training plan pilots receive their first air experience in elementary flying training schools where they fly Fleet trainers and de Havilland Tiger Moths. Then they go on to bigger and faster craft including Harvards and Fleet 60's and Ansons.

Pop was looking at the paper and ma said, O, is that the Evening Speeker, Willyum? Just let me have one fragmentary look at it. No, you look for me, Willyum, I couldn't bare it she said.

Bare what for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, My own picture face to face.

What have you been up to, to have your picture in the paper? pop said, and ma said, Not a living thing, that's just the point. Cant you just picture all my friends telling each other Have you seen Pawleen's picture in the paper? Why no, what for, has she been in the thick of some social event? O, no, nothing like that, it seems she was just walking along the street. Can't you just imagine it, Willyum? ma said.

No, not with my present meagre stock of information on the subject, pop said, and ma said, Well, it seems one of the Speeker's photographers has been snapping fokes passing by on the street, and the next day their picture appears in the paper and when they idennify themselves they receive an order entitling them to any 2 doller volume in Hookbinder's book department. Well anyway, to avoid a long story, yestidday afternoon I found myself being snapped by a terribly fresh young man with a big camera right in front of the Speeker Bilding, and when I indignantly asked him how he dared, he only laughed and said, I'll see you in the paper lady. So it must be there, Willyum, O deer how embarrissing, she said.

Let me relieve your anxiety here's a row of nameless people that were snapped on the street and you're not in their mist, unless this is you diskized as a fat boy in a sweatter, pop said, and ma said, Well of all the uncalled for impositions. I've a good mind to write to the Speeker the idea of arousing such groundless fears in inocent people, and there's nothing to laugh at, Willyum, she said.

AIR RAID EFFECTS

Quickening Tempo of German Air Raids Seen by Some as Sign of Irritation of Germans Over Extensive Raids Conducted by British Air Force Over Many Parts of Germany

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Britain experienced further German air raids last night and today while the Royal Air Force hammered back at Germany, striking again at the much-blasted battle cruiser Scharnhorst as she lay at Kiel undergoing repairs.

As on previous occasions most casualties occurred in one place, apparently chiefly among persons who had neglected to avail themselves of air raid shelters. This appeared from the disclosure that most injuries resulted from flying glass.

For the first time, however, a German plane appearing on the south coast loosed its machine-guns at soldiers on shore. It was not disclosed than anyone was hurt in this raid.

Quickening Pace of Raids.

The quickening pace of German raids was taken in some quarters as evidence that the long-awaited German attempt to invade the British Isles might begin at any moment. Others suggested it was merely a Nazi attempt to repay Britain for the frequent, widespread and devastating raids the Royal Air Force has conducted over Germany for months.

No raid by either air force fails to have some damaging effect for, even if no bombs are dropped work must be stopped during the raids while inhabitants of danger zones duck for cover. Each raid cuts into industrial production, even if only slightly.

An illustration of this was provided last night by newspapermen who arrived at Munster in northwestern Germany as guests of the German army. An air raid alarm during the night sent everyone below ground for three hours, a considerable slice in the night shift of industrial plants in the vicinity, and the vicinity in this case covers a wide area of Germany.

In addition to this is the huge loss Germany has suffered in blasted military factories, damaged airports, disrupted railway and water traffic and fires in oil dumps.

Germany faced an increasing threat from another enemy, hunger, that threatens to stalk up through the Balkans and attack her next winter, hunger that will be partly of her own making.

Whatever the outcome of this Balkan struggle, one thing seems certain — little or none of their food will reach Germany this year

Air and sound! Everyone knows sound travels on the air; if there were no air we could not hear. If the air is disturbed too much, sounds ordinarily easily heard become inaudible. Two persons standing on opposite sides of a good camp fire can not easily hear one another. This is because the rapidly rising air over the fire disturbs the sound waves which are either absorbed or bent away from the hearer. Airplanes are heard with different degrees of distinctness in different parts of the sky. Similar phenomena are due to either stratified layers of air of different temperature or to rising and descending columns of air which either bend the sound waves or absorb them..

Each Man Detailed to Guard Mile of Coast and Report Any Incidents

MAPS CONSTRUCTED

Sherbrooke, N. S., July 3—(CP)—Guysboro County stands ready to fend off enemy attacks on its rugged Atlantic coast-line today under a plan devised by the Sherbrooke branch of the Canadian Legion. It involves both young and old.

The scheme, approved by both military and Legion authorities, aims principally at making Guysboro's population "defence conscious." Fishermen, light-house keepers, miners, even boy scouts have their places.

Each man is detailed to guard a mile of the shore. If he should sight suspicious-looking craft it is his duty to phone a central headquarters and prearranged action will be launched.

A test of the system found it clicking the other day when the Pacific-bound schooner Thunderbird foundered on the coast. Within half an hour, its identity was established and "headquarters" was in possession of full details.

Detailed maps cover the region; every telephone is charted; guides for regular armed forces have received instructions; and equipment for "actual preliminary defence" has been given the men. Fire fighting units have been organized. Lighthouse keepers keep a vigilant eye cast on the Atlantic as the first line of defence.

Boy scouts, who will act as guides or messengers, are also being instructed in signalling.

FAVORS CANUCKS TO ENGAGE ENEMY SHOULD HE LAND

Lord Mottistone Praises Canadians' 'More Novel Conception of Warfare'

HOW TO MEET FOE

Mottistone Would Have Australians Engage Any Germans Trying to Land From Air

London, July 3—(CP Cable) — Lord Mottistone, Commander of the Canadian cavalry in the First Great War, suggested in the House of Lords today that Canadian troops should be chosen to engage the enemy if he lands in Britain because of their "more novel conception of warfare."

He recommended the Canuck soldiers not because he served with them in the last war for 3 1-2 years "and so know their value, but because amongst these Canadian divisions—and this also applies to other divisions overseas where there are wider spaces — there are people with more novel conceptions of warfare."

Lord Mottistone said he had made the suggestion to a Canadian officer with a distinguished record, who had replied "that just suits me."

He was introducing a motion in the Upper House asking the government to take prompt action to increase the offensive power and equipment of the citizens of Britain. Equipment had been greatly increased, he declared, but the method of meeting an invasion needed more consideration."

"I've seen ridiculous tank traps, barbed wire and so on along the beaches would prevent our people from going down to engage the enemy," he said. "What's the good of that?"

Lord Mottistone suggested that an Australian division be given the job of dealing with enemy troops attempting to land from the air.

Enemy's Aim is Distruction

Lord Croft, Under-Secretary for War, warned that the enemy seeks the "destruction of our people" and declared he hoped for the "defeat of the invasion at sea, or even before the enemy embarks on his ships but, if not, then in the process of landing."

He declared that he believed that no German would pass the defence works "except over the dead bodies of the garrisons."

Istanbul, Turkey — Reports that Gen. Maxime Weygand, former commander in chief in France, had arrivd in Syria were received here today. Rene Massigli, French Ambassador to Turkey, left Ankara for Syria and it was reported he was to confer there with Weygand, who commanded the French forces in the Near East before being summoned to France in May.

'Restrict Propagation Of Jews' in Hungary Aim of New Bill

Hungarian Nazi Party Introduces Bill to Allow Only Eldest Sons and Eldest Daughters of Jewish Families to Marry—Would Make Jews Ride in Special R. R. Cars and Forbid Jews to Drive Automobiles, Become Midwives, Hoist Hungarian Flag or Sign Any Legal Document

Budapest, July 3 (AP).—Segregation of Jews in special railway cars is one of the provisions of a new anti-Jewish bill introduced in parliament today by the Hungarian Nazi party. The bill forbids Jews to: drive automobiles; become midwives; hoist the Hungarian flag; buy anything from a peasant; sign any legal document.

In order to "restrict the propagations of Jews" in Hungary, the bill also provides that only the eldest sons and eldest daughters of Jewish families may marry.

The bill further provides that non-Jewish men who marry Jewish women would henceforth be classed as Jews. Jews with "Hungarian family names" would be required to change them to "Hebrew" names. Jews would be permitted to buy, sell or read only books written in Hebrew or Yiddish.

No foreign Jews would be given visas to enter Hungary. Jews would not be permitted to employ gentile women under the age of 40. All business establishments employing one or more Jews would be classed as Jewish enterprises.

Germany Warns Netherlands Over 'Demobilization' Disorders

Amsterdam, German - occupied Netherlands, July 3 (AP).—Germany warned the conquered Netherlands today against "further disturbances of demobilization" on pain of "the sharpest counter-measures" after taking action against General Henri Garard Winkelman, commander-in-chief of The Netherlands armed forces.

Charged by German authorities with taking advantage of privileges allowed him following his surrender, Gen. Winkelman has been dismissed from duties in supervising his army's demobilization and taken to Germany as a prisoner of war.

What the "disturbances" were was not explained but Germans asserted the general and other officers of the Dutch army "by their personal behaviour did not respect the moderation which might have been expected on the ground of privileges granted them by the fuehrer."

Col. I. G. Schwabedissen was appointed German commissioner to administer Holland's demobilization.

GOV'T ACTIVITIES TIGHTEN WARTIME REGULATIONS

Moving Toward Complete Mobilization of Nation's Resources

MORE DISCIPLINE

Ottawa, July 3—(CP)—Moves to tighten wartime discipline and regulations imposed upon individual activities, natural resources and industry became apparent on Parliament Hill today.

A series of announcements showed how Government activities are moving towards a more complete mobilization of the nations resources for war and a sharper limitation on the activities of individuals which may run counter to the national purpose.

The developments included:

1. Creation by order-in-council of a War Industries Control Board, each member of which is clothed with wide powers over some branch of industry.
2. A recommendation from a special committee of the House of Commons for stiffer penalties, including death, or persons aiding the enemy.
3. Announcement that aircraft needed for the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan will be available from Canadian and other North American sources.

Tobermory, Ont., July 3—(CP)—Efforts to release the tanker Acadialite, which ran aground in a channel near here during a heavy fog Saturday, were started today with the arrival of salvage equipment.

The vessel lost 10,000 of her 22,000 barrels of oil and the area about the ship is covered with the inflammable liquid. Cooking on the Acadialite has been prohibited and members of the crew are not permitted to smoke. They are fed with food prepared on the Royalite which is standing by to take the balance of the cargo.

PACKARD TO BUILD PLANE ENGINES FOR GT. BRITAIN

Motor Car Company Will Construct 9,000 Rolls-Royce Engines — 6,000 of Which Go to England

KNUDSEN GIVES ORDER

Washington, July 3—(AP)—The National Defence Commission announced today that the Packard Motor Company had agreed tentatively to undertake a contract for 9,000 aircraft engines 6,000 for Great Britain and 3,000 for the united States.

William S. Knudsen, in charge of Defence production, said the agreement was subject to approval of the Packard directors. Henry Ford refused the order, saying he would produce only for the defence of the United States.

Meanwhile, a supplementary defence program which may run into additional billions of dollars was talked over at a conference between President Roosevelt and key men in the defence setup.

Start in Ten Months

The airplane motors in the Packard transaction are of Rolls Royce design hitherto made only for Britain.

M. M. Gilman, Packard president, said his company's Detroit plant would be tooled and prepare. to begin actual production ten months from the date the contract is actually signed.

Knudsen said the production, as estimated would start at the rate of 20 engines a month and reach a total of 840 monthly after fifteen months.

The Packard Company manufactured aircraft motors for the United States and Allies in the first Great War and several years ago experimented with a Diesel Aircraft motor.

Bucharest, July 3—(AP)—Anti-Semitic rioting spread rapidly throughout Rumania today, complicating King Carol's difficult problem of trying to save his kingdom from further dismemberment.

Scores were injured, some believed fatally, in a number of riots last night in Bucharest and other places ranging as far as Jassy, near the border of Russian-occupied Bessarabia. Today they extended throughout the country.

Many wealthy Jews fled to the country and others remained inside their homes. Bucharest has between 100,000 and 200,000 Jews.

The attacks started Sunday near the Bessarabian border.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett 70 Years Old Today

London, July 3 — (CP-Cable)—Today was the 70th birthday of R. B. Bennett, former Conservative Prime Minister of Canada, but he did not celebrate the occasion.

As usual Mr. Bennett left his country house near Dorking in the morning and spent the day in London attending to business affairs. He returned home toward evening.

His secretary said Mr. Bennett was working as usual, or at least as nearly usual as war circumstances permitted, and planned nothing to mark his birthday. He received a number of messages of congratulations.

1,640 British Women and Children, Who Left Hong Kong, Reach Manila

Precautionary Evacuation Step, Taken Because of Unsettled Conditions in Far East

MANY IN BARRACKS

Manila, July 3—(AP)—More than 1,600 British women and children leaving Hong Kong in a precautionary evacuation because of unsettled conditions in the Orient, reached a haven of safety here today.

The 1,640 evacuees arrived this morning aboard a liner.

Wearied mothers gathered their limited baggage and restrained wide-eyed and laughing children who took the evacuation as a lark.

Most of the refugees were quartered temporarily in barracks at Fort McKinley. Almost 500 were placed aboard a special train for Baguio, the summer capital, where they will be quartered in hotels, government-owned cottages and the American Brent School Dormitory.

The King Reported Opposed to Removal Of the Princesses

No Blockade of Crown Colony Intended by Japan Says Consul

Hong Kong, July 3 (CP).—Japan's Consul General here, Gen. K. Okazaki issued a statement today saying Japan had no intention of blockading this British colony by military measures taken along the colony's mainland border.

The Japanese actions, Okazaki said, in no way blockade the inflow of Hong Kong's food supplies, since, he said, all coastal and foreign shipping continues unmolested.

Japanese military measures taken along the mainland border are solely to plug this 20-mile gap in Japan's tightened and extended supply blockade against the areas of China controlled by General Chiang Kai-Shek, the consul-general explained.

The Japanese, he said, will arrange to permit foods to pass through these mainland lines to Hong Kong.

Okazaki's statement appeared to ease Hong Kong's apprehension regarding the intentions of Japan.

Neutral observers said that Japan's force along the Hong Kong border probably was of less than 2,000 men. They thought it was not large enough to threaten the colony.

It was announced today that Maj.-Gen. E. F. Norton, at present commanding the western district of India, has been appointed Hong Kong's first military governor since 1912. He is expected to arrive here by air soon.

Nazi Long-Range Program Seen For 'March to East'

Istanbul Dispatch Says Informed Opinion in Turkish Former Capital is That Persia (Iran) is Now Pro-Nazi

IRAQ QUERIES TURKEY

It is Reported from Istanbul That Turks Feel War May Soon Spread to Near East

Istanbul, July 3 (CP).—Informed Turkish quarters asserted today that they expect a German-inspired drive against the oil-rich state of Iraq, which has an alliance with Great Britain.

Iraq, it was said, already has asked Turkey what help could be expected in the event of possible aggression by Iran (Persia), which now, according to informed opinion here, is pro-Nazi.

The shah of Iran, Reza Khan Pahlavi, is feared here to have plans for carving a mid-eastern empire for himself by collaborating with the Germans in their long-range program for a "march to the east".

Turks also feel that the war will soon spread to Syria in view of France's apparent determination to hold it and, failing that, Britain's plans to take it over to protect, in turn, Palestine and Egypt.

Dr. T. E. Gregory, economic adviser to the government of India, will participate in the investigation with the co-operation of H. S. Malik, Indian Trade Commission in New York, the Government announced today.

Action Dismissed By the Magistrate

Cobourg, Ont., July 3—(CP)—An election argument, which took place in a Warkworth village store last February, was held responsible for remarks said to have been made by Lewis Kelly of Percy Township who appeared in court yesterday charged under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

James Armstrong, C. Bowen and W. McLaren of Warkworth said Kelly had made the remarks about the government.

Kelly was not clear as to his actual statements at the time but denied that he was disloyal. Several persons testified as to Kelly's good character. Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell, declaring that Kelly had probably said too much in a political argument, dismissed the charges.

British Bombers Swarm Over Germany, Hit Refinery, Viaduct and Blast Furnace

London, July 3—(CP)—Anti-aircraft defences went into action against German aircraft that crossed the south coast this morning and dropped bombs at several points.

A joint communique issued by the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security shortly after noon said that the anti-aircraft defences still were in action—indicating a daring daylight raid.

The morning attack followed raids during the night in which 12 persons were killed and 123 injured, according to official figures.

Royal Air Force fighter planes took off this morning after an enemy plane was seen flying toward the southeast over the south coast. The invader fired machine-gun bursts off the coast, strafed soldiers near the beach and dropped incendiary bombs.

Melbourne, July 3 (CP). — The Australian shipbuilding industry which during the last war turned out many cargo vessels is going full blast, building destroyers, sloops and coastal defence vessels for the Royal Australian Navy and a number of small patrol vessels for the United Kingdom.

Several of the patrol boats, of Australian design and equipment, have been completed in record time.

The industry is concentrating on smaller types of craft. Australia is also sending a steady stream of officers and men to the Royal Navy and is training anti-submarine personnel and manning some of the vessels built for Britain for this purpose.

HUM OF PEA VINERS NOW FAMILIAR SOUND

The hum of the pea viners is now a familiar sound along country sideroads and byways as well as at canning factories as farmers rush their pea harvest to the viners to be "threshed." At the viners the pea vines and pods will be rolled and blown until the peas are separated from the pods to be sorted, graded and prepared for putting into cans from whence they will later grace our tables as dinner delicacy.

The pea crop, now being harvested, is one of the farmer's first main cash crops of the season.

BANCROFT WILL NOT HOLD FAIR THIS YEAR

There will be no annual exhibition of farm products in the village of Bancroft, 40 miles north of here, in 1940, it was unanimously decided at the annual meeting of the Bancroft Agricultural Society this week.

Due to the serious war situation overseas and other elements entering into the situation as regards to the successful operation of a fall fair, the Bancroft Fair Board voted unanimously to abandon this year's exhibition.

Other fairs throughout the County of Hastings will be held, however, including the Belleville Industrial Exhibition, which will be held as a three-day fair this year, instead of the conventional four days.

GRAPE-GROWING TRIED IN P. EDWARD COUNTY

With hopes of converting Prince Edward County into the vineyard of Canada, several farmers in the West Lake district of Prince Edward County are striving to build up a new industry in the grape-growing business.

Alex Williams, West Lake farmer, revealed today he had planted a large area of vines. "We hope we will not have to depend on tomato growing in the future, if we can convert our lands into vineyards," explained Mr. Williams as he stated government inspectors had inspected certain sections of Prince Edward County and described them as "ideal for grape-growing."

Ten different farmers in the West Lake district are reported to have already planted grape vines with the idea in mind to convert Prince Edward county into "the vineyard of Canada." The county is free from many diseases which are prevalent in the western vineyard areas, it was also revealed here.

Tweed-Yarker C. N. Branch Line May be Closed

Ottawa, July 3—(CP) — The Board of Transport Commissioners has under consideration a proposal of the Canadian National Railways for abandonment of the 34-mile Tweed-Yarker branch line, it was learned today.

Built under the charter of the old Napanee, Tamworth and Quebec Railway Company, now operated by the C.N.R., the route passes through the towns of Tweed, Stoco, Larkins, Marlbank, Erinsville, Tamworth, Enterprise, Moscow and Yarker in the area west of Kingston. Sometime ago the board authorized abandonment of about 20 miles of track extending northwest from Tweed to Bannockburn.

Application of the C.N.R. stated the system suffered an annual loss of $20,000 on operation of the Tweed-Yarker line. In accordance with the usual procedure, the track will be examined, and a hearing will take place in the district before a decision is reached.

County to Pave Two Sections of Road System

Aside from maintenance work, which is going on at the present time there will be very little new highway construction in Hastings County this year according to information received at the office of W. L. Langlois, County Road superintendent this morning.

Tenders are now being received for the paving of two sections of road within the county but the work is by no means assured as yet. Plans are to pave one and a half miles of the Foxboro-Madoc road extending the paved portion of the road from the end of the present pavement to Ivanhoe postoffice, with the second piece planned for the village of Frankford on Trent St. running from the Canal Bridge to Bata Shoe factory in the north end of the village.

The final decision on these tenders will be made at the monthly meeting of the road committee, which will take place on July 9th.

One hundred an thirty-one tons of calcium chloride have been used by the county this season as a dust layer, most of this being used on the fifth concession of Sidney and on the Shannonville gravel and also around Tweed. The fourth concession of Thurlow is now being treated with an asphalt dust layer with the work expected to be completed tonight.

FAMILY PICNIC HUGE SUCCESS

Fourth Annual Reunion of Bradshaw Family Held at Springside Park, Napanee

The fourth annual re-union of the Bradshaw family and their relatives was held at Springside park, Napanee, on July 1st, 1940. Nearly 170 members coming from points as far west as Toronto to Brockville in the east Marlbank at the north and Carthage, N.Y., in U.S., gathered together at the noon hour and despite the threatening elements arranged themselves some at tables, and some on the grass, and a happy crowd was enjoying themselves to the ful; until a heavy shower sent them scurrying to their cars for shelter. This lasted only for a short time and the enjoyment was resumed.

Registration was effected by the secretary and resulted as above, and after the repast was finished, the President, Vernon R. Campbell of Clayton, N.Y., called order and welcomed the new members. "Should Old Acquaintances be Forgot" was sung and a brief silence was observed for those departed during the past year. The minutes of 1939 meeting and Treasurer's report was given a couple of violin selections by Mr. Jack Snider of Toronto, a reading by Mrs. Hawley Bradshaw of Roblin, and one by the President, and the election of officers for the incoming year was effected resulting as follows:

Hon. President: Rev. W. K. Bradshaw, Carthage, N.Y.; Past President; Vernon R. Campbell, Clayton, N.Y.; President—1941: Geddes C. Bradshaw, Belleville, Ont.; Secretary-Treasurer: Dr. Vincent O. Hart, B.A., Napanee, Ont.; Genealogist, M. Ostrander Deseronto, Ont.; Management Committee: Everett Windover, Belleville; Mrs. Ada Hart, Napanee and Mrs. Hawley Bradshaw, Roblin, Ont.; Sports' Committee: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Windover, Selby, and Mrs. Casper Lewis, Napanee, Ont.

Time and place of meeting for 1941: July 1st, Napanee, Ont.

The Sports Events were then enjoyed by young and old alike, and group pictures were taken. The oldest lady present was Mrs. M. McKeown, 84, the oldest gentleman, Mr. Daniel Lasher, 83, the oldest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. D. Lasher, having spent 58 years of wedded bliss, the youngest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McKeown, wedded one month ago, the youngest child present Miss Vivien Pennell, one month old, the couple coming the longest distance, Rev. W. K. Bradshaw, Carthage, N.Y., and wife.

The genealogist reported progress in the family tree and hoped copies would be available for distribution in 1941, the family line now being traced back through English records to the time of the Norman Conquest. It is expected a much larger attendance will be on hand in 1941 to enjoy this annual get-together.

First Drill of A. L. I. Under New System Held Tuesday Night

Recruiting for the Argyll Light Infantry, under the Dominion Registration regulations, commenced at the Belleville Armouries last evening. All recruiting at present is purely of a voluntary nature, Lieut.-Col. A. B. Gribble, Commanding Officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, announced today. Recruiting for home defence will continue at the Armouries on Thursday and Friday nights of this week, it was officially announced.

"Later a more pronounced system of training will be held, following the introduction of the Department of National Defence compulsory training bill, revealed Lieut.-Col. Gribble today as he urged voluntary enlistment for home defence by all those physically fit.

"It is our duty as Canadian citizens to offer ourselves for service to our country in any capacity. The recruiting at this stage is purely voluntary, but compulsory service will be introduced in the near future," added Lieut.-Col. Gribble, in making the official announcement that voluntary recruiting will continue Thursday and Friday evenings of this week .

Last evening the initial group to voluntary enlist for home defence service held a short impromptu drill period at the Armouries. Later in the program drilling will be held at the Armouries and possibly the Fair Grounds three evenings a week

Laurie Lewis Heads Veterans, Ontario Headquarters Brought Here

Ontario Command of Army and Navy Veterans Decides in Favor of Headquarters Being in District in Which President Resides—J. H. Lazenby Becomes Provincial Secretary - Treasurer

Bringing for the first time the Ontario Command of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association headquarters out of the city of Toronto, a resolution passed at the Army and Navy Veterans convention held at Kitchener over the weekend will in the future make it possible for headquarters to be regarded as being in the district in which the president is resident. As a result of this resolution and to the fact that Comrade Laurie Lewis of the Belleville Unit No. 201 was elected President of the Provincial Command at the convention, the headquarters will be now in Belleville.

The convention was held on June 29-30 and July 1st with a monster banquet being held on the 29th at which various speakers were heard. Sunday morning the delegates attended the cenotaph and laid a wreath. The march to the cenotaph took the form of a parade with delegates and women's auxiliary taking part, headed by the pipe band with Capt. Murchie, President of the Ontario Command leading the parade.

Loyalty is Pledged

The main convention work was handled on Sunday evening with the executive meeting of the new officers being held on Monday. A telegram was sent to the Governor-General of Canada by the new president, Comrade Laurie Lewis, affirming loyalty to the Crown and to the cause of the Empire.

Another member of the local Army and Navy unit was also signally honored when Comrade J. H. Lazenby was elected to the post of Secretary-Treasurer of the Provincial Command. The election of Laurie Lewis to the presidency carries with it the rank of director on the Dominion Comand.

A Provincial Command executive meeting will be held on Saturday, July 13th for the purpose of transferring the Provincial Command Headquarters to Belleville. President Lewis is particularly happy that the local unit has been so honored with the president and secretary-treasurer being chosen from this district. Working together Mr. Lewis feels that much can be done for needy members of the local unit of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association.

Other members who attended the convention were Comrade Fred Wiggins, President of the Belleville Unit No. 201 Army and Navy Veterans' in Canada and Comrade Herb Willerton, treasurer of the local post unit. During the Provincial Command convention considerable business pertaining to the defence of Canada by War Veterans was the chief item of business discussed on the agenda.

Letter to the Editor

FUR TRAPPING

Toronto, Ont., June 28, 1940.
The Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Sir:

Quite recently I met a lady who told me of a comparatively new organization concerned with the removal of what I have always looked upon as a blot on our national life, that is, fur trapping. She pointed out that the very same forces are at work in peace time and at all times as those against which the armies of the Empire are mobilized today—the forces of merciless aggression by the strong against the weak.

The fact that a group of people have organized to try to save the fur animals of our woods from days of anguish in traps and are not merely philosophizing but acting has given me a new faith in humanity. It prompts my writing this letter as doubtless many of your readers will feel likewise and will be glad to get the name and address of such an organization—The Association for the Protection of Fur-bearing Animals, P.O. Box 342, Toronto, Ont.

The point my informant stressed strikes one the more forcibly the more one considers it. After all, how can man solve his own problem and rid himself of the consequences of the cruel inventions of the human mind such as machine guns, bombing planes and magnetic mines, when he will not do the much simpler thing and rid his forests of those other cruel inventions—steel traps which amputate, pole traps which crucify, shelf traps which impale and snares which strangle.

FRED CLARK.

Congregations Bid Farewell to Popular Pastor and Family

Stirling—Sunday services at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling and Carmel, marked the climax of four years' successful ministry of Rev. W. J. Scott who delivered his final messages to large congregations prior to his departure for Almonte, Ontario, to which pastoral charge he recently accepted a call. During their stay in Stirling Rev. and Mrs. Scott and their three sons, Douglas, Donald and Munro, have won the friendship of many as they filled to the full their respective places in the life of the community. Continually striving to perform all phases of his ministerial duties Mr. Scott through the radiance of his friendly personality was popular as a citizen throughout the entire community and the faithful assistance offered by Mrs. Scott in Sunday School and organization work was greatly appreciated. Douglas, now attending Queen's University, Donald and Munro, were among the most popular students at the Stirling schools. The departure of the family will be keenly felt by many friends who wish them continued success and happiness in their new field of labor.

Addresses Stirling Orangemen

In the morning service at St. Paul's Rev. Scott addressed the members and officers of the Stirling L.O.L. and Stirling L.O.B.A. as they gathered for the annual service of divine worship. Emphasizing the present need for genuine loyalty to the British Empire and all things Christian, he spoke on the subject "Britons never shall be slaves." A phrase that denotes freedom at its best. Political and religious freedom, freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

"Appreciation of the costs of these liberties as paid by ancient Britons is the basis upon which the present display of Empire loyalty is founded as Britons everywhere rally to defend them." The service was largely attended and special music by a large choir under the direction of G. L. Clute added interest to the strvice.

Final Messages Delivered

At Carmel United Church, sister congregation of the Stirling Church Rev. Scott delivered his final message to a large attendance in the afternoon and in the evening St. Paul's congregation were joined by members and adherents of other local churches for his farewell message. Basing his thoughts on the text "On this rock I will build my church," Rev. Scott pointed to the firm foundation upon which it was founded, Jesus Christ, as the staying girders that have held intact for centuries and will continue to give it strength. "One of the greatest problems of the ministers of today is to create a broader view of the Church and remove the narrowing barriers set up by denominationalism". At same time "denominationalism" has contributed much in the way of loyalty to the great general movement. Loyalty is a virtue like charity and begins at home. A movement based upon Jesus Christ himself and against which "The gates of hell shall not prevail." At the close of his address Mr. Scott expressed his appreciation to all those who had given undivided support and urged them to continue that supper under the guidance of the minister about to be inducted. Rev. W. H. V. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church assisted in the service and special music by the choir under the direction of G. L. Clute included an anthem "The word was God" and a baritone solo by Arthur Duncan, soloist of St. Andrew choir.

Honoured by Friends at Social Functions

During the past week Mr. and Mrs. Scott and family have been honored by friends in various organization farewell functions. Members of St. Paul's Mission Circle and the senior girls S. S. class met on Wednesdy night at the home of Mrs. R. A. Patterson to honor Mrs. Scott, their teacher and organizer. During the evening which was spent in sewing and preparing articles for the W.M.S. bale, Miss Phyllis David took charge and called upon Miss Greta Nicholson who presented Mrs. Scott with a lovely walnut end table. Mrs. Scott expressed her appreciation of the kindly gesture and stated that her interest in the group would be continued. The members of the So-Sew Club met recently at the home of Mrs. C. B. Mackin and presented Mrs. Scott with a sewing-kit and silver comport from the members of the club. Dainty luncheon and interesting social periods climaxed both these events. On Sunday morning the members of the Sunday School and the officers presented Mrs. Scott with a lovely modernistic lamp. Mr. J. L. Good spoke briefly, expressing the school's gratitude to Mrs. Scott for her faithful services. The presentation was made by little Joan Cranston and Roberta Good. Donald Scott was also honoured by his classmates in the gift of a handsome fountain pen.

Congregation Say Farewell Socially

On Friday evening June 28th, St. Paul's Church parlors were crowded with members of both Carmel and St. Paul's congregations as they gathered for a social evening and to bid farewell to Rev. Scott, Mrs. Scott and Donald and Munro. Mr. J. B. Thompson presided over the meeting which opened with the singing of "Blest be the tie that binds". A vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown of Carmel United Church was very much enjoyed. Lively community singing was thoroughly enjoyed at various points in the program under the capable leadership of R. A. Patterson. The highlight of this part of the program was the singing of the patriotic song "There'll Always be an England". Two splendid readings were offered by Mr. Lewis Bird of Carmel from the works of Edgar Guest "Life's Highway" and "The Layman". Miss F. Poynter contributed a contralto solo, "The Holy Hour" in splendid fashion with Mr. G. L. Clute playing the accompaniment at the piano. Following a period of community singing Rev. and Mrs. Scott were called to the platform and Mrs. R. A. Patterson read an address on behalf of those present as Mr. Frank Bailey presented them with a purse of eighty dollars. In expressing his appreciation, Rev. Scott reflected upon many happy events that had taken place in both churches during his ministry and of many kindly associations which will always be cherished by himself and family. This part of the program climaxed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the ladies of both churches assisted in serving a dainty luncheon.

The address was signed on behalf of the members of the United Church, Carmel, and St. Paul's, Stirling: J. B. Thompson, Lewis Bird, C. E. Macklin, Gilbert Thompson, J. L. Good, Harry Brown, C. H. David, R. Patterson, Volney Richardson, Frank Bailey.

3rd. Sidney

3rd Sidney — Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it," was the text of the sermon delivered by Rev. L. W. Scott, at Aiken's Church on Sunday morning.

Eight out of ten new business concerns fail during the first year, Rev. Scott stated, owing to the wrong spirit within, that of "let the other fellow do it."

The law of business is solvent, he said, as long as people are putting into it.

The building up of the Kingdom of God on earth grows only as church people are willing to put everything into their Christian lives. They must put in something besides money. Christians are pledged to be about their Father's business, and should use their gifts of talents and service and when they see something that ought to be done, to do it.

Rev. Scott urged that each person realize their personal responsibility and go forward and be stronger in the work of our Lord.

Teachers and Pupils Of Sidney Schools Hold Enjoyable Picnic

Cars bearing pupils, and parents with well-filled baskets began to arrive about eleven o'clock and by twelve tables were spread on the ground under a large elm tree. Grace was sung and all partook heartily of the good things provided by the mothers. Among the pupils no lack of capacity was noted whatever.

After dinner seating was arranged in the pavilion and a program under the direction of Miss Bedford, Miss Sheffield and Mr. Bird with Miss MacDonald in charge of music was put on. Mr. E. R. Carlisle, secretary of S. S. No. 22, capably filled the position of chairman. After welcoming all and thanking them for their interest and presence he proceeded to the following numbers of program:

Chorus, O Canada, S. S. No. 19 and 22; Play in three acts — "The Ice Box Speaks", S. S. No. 17; Chorus "Macnamara's Band", S. S. No. 19 and 22; Choral reading "This is the way my father sows", S. S. No. 19; solo, Miss MacDonald; trio, Cradle Song, 3 girls S. S. No. 22; choral reading, Godfrey Gordon, Gustavia Gore, S. S. No. 17; two part song, "The Sparrow", S. S. No. 19; choral reading, "The Tower", S. S. No. 22; God Save the King.

After generously patronizing the booth the pupils went to the softball diamond where two teams were chosen from the boys of the three schools. While the ball game was in progress games for the girls were conducted by Miss Sheffield and Miss Bedford. A team of girls then played a game of ball with a team of boys.

At four o'clock the crowd dispersed, tired but happy. It was agreed by all that a pleasant and profitable day was spent.

Cheese Factories May Manufacture Own Cheese Boxes

Cheese factories of the Northumberland-Peterboro district which board cheese at Campbellford may go into the cheese-box manufacturing business if they follow the suggestion of George S. Vanvolkenburg, president of the Northumberland Cheese Producers' Association and several other factory presidents who are determined they will not continue to pay what they regard as an unfair price for cheese boxes.

This opinion was expressed at a meeting of factory presidents following the regular board meeting and grew out of a discussion at last week's board meeting, when opposition to the new prices was first sounded. It was pointed out that the price of cheese boxes had been upped from 18 to 28 cents this year but that factories in some other districts were asked to pay only 25 cents.

According to some reports the chief argument for the increased prices was that manufacturers were finding it difficult to secure help. Hector Arnold, president of the Crow Bay factory and also a member of the committee verified this report and it was recommended that the matter be taken up with the War Time Price Board.

WATCHING THE BALKANS

The situation in the Balkans absorbs current interest, not only of statesmen but of readers in every land that has a press that is free to publish the news. For the movement there is in a sphere where there have been complications so involved that almost an endless number of wars has been fought. It was out of the Balkans that the First Great War came which engulfed the greater part of the world.

Today there is the Russian move in Bessarabia and North Bucovina and there are the issues of the former Hungarian and Bulgarian territory now in Rumania. Hungary has been much in the news and Rumania is said to have appealed to Germany in her predicament.

Germany does not like the move of Russia which brings the latter closer to the oil fields of Rumania, which Germany eyes with envy, but Germany has a major problem on her hands—the western front—where she is faced by the British people who are determined to crush Hitler and end the menace of Europe.

One commentator says that he sees something like a balance of power re-emerging in Europe in the latest events.

Italian leaders must have done a great deal of thinking lately. They did ponder long and slowly over entry into the war on the side of Germany, getting there just in time to be able to stab France and in some degree no doubt speeding up the armistice between France and Germany. But Italy had not yet ceased congratulating herself when the Balkan problem was opened in a manner undoubtedly unpleasant to Italy but the Italy which had spoken so often about her power in the Balkans and her determination, has been silent.

Hitherto Germany has been protected largely by her own central position in the middle of Europe with access to the North Sea and by her friendship with Italy and has been able to hide behind the neutral states until Hitler decided it was time to cut them down to make a dash at the Allies in the west. So Norway, Denmark, The Netherlands and Belgium were invaded. Switzerland, always in a precarious position, has so far been safe. In the east and south, too, Germany was protected by neutrals but not altogether as she had Russia dividing Poland with the Reich, and as the Balkan question has always been a source of anxiety. Now with developments in the Balkans the guards which Germany has had have lessened and if there is one thing Germany has been said not to want it is a war on two fronts, or even a development such as the present as Russia sets out to strengthen her defences, if that is her aim.

Hitler is concerned in keeping the Balkans quiet if he can. But the Balkans have always been known as the powder keg of Europe and only time can tell if it will explode.

If it does, it will have a marked effect, no doubt, on the course of the present war for Germany has deeply interested herself in the Balkan states and the Basin of the Danube. So Hitler is concerned and must watch the developments in that quarter with anxiety. The Russian move with the turmoil in the Balkans is a matter of double importance, its aim whatever it may be, and its result if it means distraction of Germany's war effort in the west.

RAIDS ON NAZI COASTLINE

Recent British raids on the coastline in nazi hands from Norway to the coast of France furnished good news to readers as they indicated how difficult will be the German attempt to patrol this vast area of coastline and shore. The objects of the raids are not specified, one guess is that they were for the purpose of discovering information as to the possibility of invasion against England, of exploration of bases or of guerrilla methods of harassing the enemy whose ambition has made him take in a vast seacoast which he has not the means to patrol, not only for the lack of ships but because of the British blockade.

It was noted in the official statement of the forays a few days ago "some enemy dead fell into our hands." Much useful information was obtained.

It is to be noted that there have been several references lately to British initiative, the latest being those made by Anthony Eden and Supply Minister Herbert Herbert Morrison. The latter has pointed out that while the short range view of defence must be kept in mind, Britain has not taken her mind off the long distance view which includes offensive against the enemy. Immediate production counts but this is the means to the ultimate end, summed up in long term policies.

These raids indicate the spirit of the British people, and their determination. They act as an inspiration to the morale of the British and act as a blow to the enemy's spirit, which must be irritated by such manifestations that they have not won the war by merely overrunning the Low Countries and the Channel coast. They know they are within range of the British raiders, that the Royal Air Force is able to inflict heavy blows and that these may occur at any place.

These raids are evidences of the strength of Britain.

As Prime Minister Churchill said, Hitler knows that his task is just beginning. He has to invade England if he wants to get within reach of winning the war but that Hitler cannot do is the confident but stern view of the British people. Hitler has not frightened them. There are instances of women showing extreme bravery under the trying circumstances of air raids. The men who fought their way out of Flanders are the nucleus of that defence force in the world's greatest fortress which will give the Hun a "warm reception" when and if he attacks.

POET LAUREATE PRAISES CANADIAN EFFORT

A tribute to Canadians has been written by Britain's poet laureate, John Masefield. This appeared in the Sunday Times recently:

TO CANADIANS

Our Friends in Need

They say that your memorial has been broken.
It was but marble your memorial stands
More lastingly than any made with hands.
Wherever freedom makes a heart to beat,
Wherever in the world our tongue is spoken,
It will be said of you, that without spur,
From fellowship alone and sense of kin,
Out of your freedom, you took side with her
Who is your mother, asking nothing more
Than death upon a foreign shore
That friendship among nations might begin.

Canadians appreciate these lines of the Poet Laureate, which will help to inspire Canadians of every rank and condition and age to greater service.

Mussolini's 5th Column in Tunisia 100,000 Strong

The "Fifth Column" was not invented by Hitler. The Fuehrer adopted Mussolini's political methods as he aped his shirt and salute theatrical. The Mussolini "Fifth Column" has been digging in in Tunisia for the last fifteen years. Through virulent anti-French propaganda and civilian activities the Italian consular officials have been "unifying" the 10,000 Italian population of Tunisia until they have become more Italian than the Italians of the mainland.

Tunisia, with its Carthage where tourists see the ruins of Rome's ancient glories, was the African land the united Italy wanted most. France grabbed it first. Italy felt she was cheated.

Tunisia is the corner of Africa nearest to the tip of the Italian "boot." It is a stone's throw from the air bases in Southern Italy. It has a population of over 100,000 Italians.

Two to One

How did it happen that a French colony in Africa became populated by two Italians to one Frenchman?

French capital was interested only in exploiting the resources of the land. Frenchmen could not be tempted to go to Tunisia unless they went as businessmen, executives or officials, big or petty. Italians were encouraged by the French officials to colonize there by droves.

The French did not attempt to make French citizens of them. The Italians lived a separate communal life, preserving their language and mode of living. When Mussolini became all-powerful Tunisia had everything to tempt the modern Caesar.

Laval Had Plans

Then the French woke up from their long political lethargy. An alien population of such magnitude in that strategically important colony had become a menace to French rule. Laval, Foreign Minister at the time, took the matter in hand. In January, 1935, he prepared a plan which would have made every Italian in Tunisia a French subject by 1950.

Mussolini accepted the plan, for he is a realist. A bargain was made. Laval, the half-Moorish Frenchman, gave Il Duce a free hand in Abyssinia in exchange for Italian renunciation of all claims of Tunisia. Mussolini wanted no cause for a dispute with France. Not then. But no sooner was the Abyssinian conquest achieved than the controlled Italian Press and the mobs began to shout, "Tunisia! Tunisia!"

Laval had exchanged principle for expediency and the pigeons began to return home in flocks.

Secret Meetings

The Abyssinian conquest achieved, the Fascist societies, who had been told to lay low until further instructions, became venomously vocal. Italians in Tunisia were harangued publicly to form a solid bloc. In secret meetings they were told to prepare for the day when the mighty Duce would come with his legions. Like Caesar of yore, and reunite their ancient heritage (Tunisia) with the mother country.

They were told they were victims of French oppression. The Italians of Tunisia believed it. Immigrants, of whatever race, in new lands, harbor, for years, a craving for the very streets on which they once played, even if barefooted. Italians had gone to Tunisia because they had failed to obtain two meals a day in their homeland. But far away from that homeland, in new surroundings, they forgot the miseries of the past.

Then Complaints

The Italians in Tunisia sang Fascist songs on the streets and shouted at the French officials that the day was at hand when they would be delivered from the French yoke. No one could tell them the French yoke was padded with cotton-wool while Mussolini's was lined with splinters.

Mussolini saw his methods work successfully in Austria and Czechoslovakia. He went ahead full speed A Tunisia irredentism created, the Duce's agents applied discipline in the Italian colony. There were many who, at first, objected. They objected to the blustering Italian Consul-General. They could not stomach Signor Bombieri who was tougher than the Duce. The objectors were mostly Italian businessmen, long established in Tunisia, who cared little for Mussolini and his dreams of an Empire They ignored whipper-snapping Bombieri.

Jews Were Ousted

The Livornese Jews (Livorno is a seaport of Northern Italy, capital of the Province of the same name) were in Italy what the Rothschilds were in Austria. They were firmly established in Italian commercial life. They were unsympathetic towards Mussolini's African Empire dream. Their Tunisian branches were cool towards Fascist intriguers in that French colony.

The Livornese Jews were ousted in the homeland and their branch offices were dissolved in Tunisia. The Fascists took full charge of Italian banking houses.

Nature Aided Fascists

Then came the world-wide depression. And as though Nature had conspired with the Fascists, harvests went bad. The distress thus created lasted until nearly the end of 1938. Rome took advantage of the situation. Fascist money poured into Tunisia. The faithful received doles. Their children were forced to attend Fascist schools. No Italian, his wife or his children, would be allowed in Italian hospitals unless approved by the Tunisian Fascist Chief.

Having for years permitted the Italians to live and manage their own communal lives, the French authorities had no school and hospital facilities for them. The Italians in Tunisia, therefore, had to think and believe as Fascists think and believe. Even if they did not believe and think as Fascists did, they had to pretent they did or else starve.

Awaiting The Day

And, besides, if the day should come when the Duce would march into Tunisia, hard would be the fate of "unbelievers!"

So even if there is or was an opposition to Fascism at Tunisia, today it is silent and Mussolini's Fifth Column, 100,000 strong, is daily awaiting the day when it will be the vanguard of an Italian army of occupation. — Percival Sughrue in Montreal Standard.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Enjoyment of Life Depends on Your Liver Greatly

You have heard the expression that "life depends upon the liver", but an improvement on this expression might be "the enjoyment of life depends upon the liver". A healthy active liver enables us to face our responsibilities and troubles with our best selves, whereas a sluggish liver, with slow moving bile, makes little trouble or responsibilities loom very large in our minds.

Some idea of the work done by the bile salts in the body is outlined by Drs. A. C. Ivy and A. L. Berman, Chicago, in Minnesota Medicine, who remind us that the bile salts promote the formation of bile, keep fatty acids in solution, aid in the digestion of fats and their absorption into the blood, enable the blood to absorb iron and calcium (two very necessary minerals) more readily, have a laxative action and take an important part in destroying poisons in the intestine.

As mentioned before, this action of the bile in causing the large intestine to move its wastes along and prevent constipation, is one of the big factors in enabling us to face our daily work and responsibilities with the courage man naturally possesses. The fact also that the bile can destroy the poisons or harmful wastes that would poison the blood stream means much in maintaining our everyday courage. Poison from an infected tooth or tonsils can lessen our courage because much of our fighting force is being used to combat or fight off this poison.

The bile can be manfactured by the liver and flow freely from liver only if the liver is kept healthy.

How can the liver be kept healthy? I have spoken a number of times of the two ways you can keep your liver working properly; first by not eating large meals, especially of fats, and second, by bending, twisting, and breathing exercises which "squeeze" the liver, stimulate the circulation and speed up the flow of bile from the liver and gall bladder.

Where there is stasis or sluggishness of the gall bladder, Drs. Ivy and Berman suggest the use of bile salts to increase the flow of bile.

Where there is acute gall bladder disease, the use of bile salts or other remedies should be prescribed only by a physician.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

An Unheard Speech

New York,—Mr. Willkie stands on the Republican platform. It is very weak timber on which to stand. The good American earth is firmer.

At the convention I listened for a voice. I listened for a voice which would say what my ears, just one pair of American ears, wanted to hear. If it had spoken, I think it might have said something like this:

Men and Women of the United States of America:

In the gravest days of this Republic to make a bid for the leadership of this nation is a serious responsibility. It is a responsibility that no man should lightly seek, and from which, if his soul is awake and aware, he will recoil. Half the world is engaged in a great civil war,, testing whether any nation, conceived as ours was in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal, can long endure.

If, therefor, we seek the leadership of the nation in this hour, it must be with humility, and with the utmost dedication to a gigantic task. No man is to be envied who sets his foot upon the path to the White House in these times.

Yet there will be sources of great strength behind him, if he lets them get through to him. Those sources of strength are in myriad souls that are crying out to us: Save America! Let us listen to what they are crying out to us. They are crying, Save America — Save her for the present and for the future—Save her for the purpose for which she was born; the lifting and ennobling of man upon this earth. Preserve her and rebuild her! Keep flying the banner of the brave and the free. Make it the banner of the New World, built by the children of a world in collapse—the Old World. Show us how to use our energies and our great untapped reserves of manual and mental and spiritual energy, that we may make, and make speedily, a paradise for men upon this heartbroken earth, and a paradise that we can defend forever.

Must Serve All.

This is what the people of the United States are demanding that political leadership should do. This and nothing less is what political leadership must undertake to do. We must liberate the energies of this continent, for regeneration and for defense.

The American nature, the American tradition, the American way, is not to regiment men and resources into a rigid army commanded by party bureaucrats and ununiformed Gestapos. The great American world is Freedom. But it is not our task to free our resources in order that each man may scramble for his own privilege, but to free them that each individual and each organization may realibe themselves as individual players in the great symphony orchestra of a common effort.

Whosever becomes President of the United States today as a candicate of a great party must seek only to serve the whole people of this nation—the cotton picker of the Alabama plantation, the farmer on his farm, the youth battering vainly at the doors of opportunity, as well as the organizers of industry, who in the last years have been baffled and bound by ill-considered theories and confused means gropingly used to promote necessary and desirable objectives.

Whatever party can find the key, liberate the energies and save America need not worry about its future. Its future is inseparably linked to the future of the United States of America. The future of our youth, the future of every industrialist, the future of every farmer, the future of our workers, are all inseparably linked to the future of the United States of America.

We should waste little of our energies in this campaign upon recriminatory attacks upon each other, whatever our party may be. Let the dead past bury its dead. None of us is all-wise; none of us has had such foresight that he can be arrogant about the failures of others.

Freedom Lives in U. S.

The New Deal, for all its idealism, is inadequate to the tasks at hand and ahead. Let us give credit to its social reality. But let us not repeat its mistakes, and subject our program to petty partisan considerations of political preferment. Let us not try to keep ourselves in power by trying to buy the American people. We do not need to buy them. We only need to attract them, and show them what to do. They are eager to have their heads and hearts and hands unleashed.

In a few short weeks a world has passed away. We must therefore look at ourselves and at our nation and its problems with fresh eyes. Much of what all of us said yesterday is no longer valid, for the premises on which our words and thoughts were based are no longer there.

Yet we were not born today, and though our program and performance must be adapted to a new situation, the things in which we believe, the body of our national faith is more valid than ever in history. Men are still born free and still seek equality and happiness. Government of the people, by the people and for the people is still the hope of this earth. Freedom of speech, of press and of assembly, freedom of enterprise, freedom to own property, freedom to live one's personal life in privacy—all these freedoms have not lost their validity because they have been locked up in concentration camps or trampled into earth by marching men. They live on this soil and they live in millions of hearts everywhere on this unhappy earth. They will live until the last human soul has perished off this globe.

Outlaw Reds, Bund.

Our party must make it absolutely clear that we shall defend these freedoms, and defend them where they must be defended — against their enemies. These freedoms are instruments to preserve freedom. They must not be turned into instruments by which foreign powers invade our press, our assembly halls and our corporations to divide this nation and plunge it into strife. They must not be used as a means of promoting class hatred and racial fury, letting loose the dogs of war in our midst rather than across the seas.

We should make it clear that the Communist Party will be outlawed under our administration, because it is an instrument of a foreign Government; and that the Bund will be outlawed for the same reason. But we should deal with this problem at the source, and not by persecuting deluded W.P.A. workers. And we should grant to all Americans whose party line is not laid down in Moscow, Berlin or Rome, the right to advocate what they will, as honest, independent men. Nor shall we interpret freedom of enterprise to mean freedom to betray this greater freedom for any investments or opportunities abroad.

We should give our oath to the people of the United States that never while we are in office will any other flag be carried in our streets, or any uniforms not our own be worn.

We should give our oath that never will there be a Nazi, a Fascist or a Communist movement camping on the White House lawn or in the halls of government.

We should swear that never will men live in terror because of their race.

Profit From Mistakes.

We shall not protect our institutions by a defensive, but by an offensive war. But we shall wage that offensive against the leaders and not against the little fellows, for they will come with us when they see where we are going.

The chief reason why the Fifth Column is a menace is because all our own columns are not mobilized, but are seeking their own interests.

The beginning of our defense program is spiritual integration.

For twelve hundred years, in victory and in defeat, France has been a great and independent nation. Today France is beaten to her knees.

Why has this happened? France was beaten in part because she did not have enough machines, but she was also beaten because men dropped their guns upon the field of battle. Why did they drop their guns and abandon whole mechanized columns? Because their leaders had wasted their energies in petty bickerings; because their leaders loved their own political jobs and their own foreign investments and their own dividends more than they loved the nation. Because their leaders were blind to the social discontent amongst the people. Because of the incredible complacency of those leaders, who up to the last moment were prepared to settle things with a deal.

Let us not make the same mistake.

Let us have from now on, neither an Old Deal nor a New Deal but a new America.

Today, to a degree that could not even be imagined two months ago, machines and mechanised equipment are essential to win a war or defend a nation. But machines are driven by men, and no country can defend itself whose soldiers and citizens do not fight their several battles with complete solidarity and conviction.

No Fuehrer Need Apply.

This hemisphere, as the last refuge of the Rights of Man must be equipped to repulse not only one mighty power but a combination of hostile powers. America must arm herself, using whatever means are necessary for this task, with a joyful willingness to sacrifice and on a scale and with a speed that will surpass the expectation and the imagination of all potential enemies of this country. America must arm herself in spirit and in might. We must make a nation which every American of every race, creed and economic condition will die to defend.

We shall look to our defenses, to our social defenses and to our material defenses. And I have absolute confidence that if we do so, there will pour forth that spiritual energy without which nothing great can be done.

America is facing the greatest moment of her history; she is facing one of the great moments in the history of the world. She is not yet awakened, either to her peril or to the sublime grandeur of her destiny. We shall either fulfill on this hemisphere the hopes that mankind has always had of us or we shall perish off this earth.

We shall not perish. We shall fulfill those hopes. There is no time to lose.

Let us begin—today.

Fellow citizens: It does not greatly matter who is President of the United States, so long as he is an honest and able man. We need no Fuehrer. We are self-governing. But it matters very greatly that the people of the United States who feel the importance of this hour should get together in the greatest pressure group in our history—the pressure group for America.

In response to your many letters, I have therefore made this move. Let us find each other and then find millions more.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

German efforts to keep peace in the Balkans despite the Russian grab for Rumanian territory appear to be meeting with some success as Hungary and Rumania have agreed to withdraw troops from their mutual border.

Hungary, violently anti-Russian because of a tragic experience with a communist government years ago, and determined to regain the province of Transylvania, lost to Rumania after the First Great War, mobilized troops with a view to occupying the province and at the same time establishing a sounder defence against a Russian-dominated Rumania.

Germany, probably secretly annoyed at the Russian grab, is believed to have induced Hungary to await a peaceful settlement of its affair with Rumania over the lost territory. At the same time Germany is believed to have given Rumania guarantees against Russian advances beyond the former Russian province of Bessarabia and the part of Bucovina stipulated in the original Soviet demands.

With the battle of Britain about to start Hitler wants no Balkan war which will endanger Germany's position in the rear. Apparently he is unwilling to see Rumania fight Russia or Russia fight Rumania lest the conflict spread.

MARMORA

EIGHT CONFIRMED BY BISHOP LYONS

Candidates Presented by Rural Dean Rev. A. B. Caldwell, Rector of St. Paul's Church

Marmora, July 3—(Special)—On Saturday morning Mr. Herbert Toms of Toronto, driving east on No. 7 highway attempted to pass a truck. At the same time the driver of the truck made a left-hand turn to the Blairton road with the result that Mr. Tom's car jammed into the centre of the truck. The truck was driven by Clifford Anderson of Campbellford and owned by H. N. Carr of the same place. Mr. Toms received lacerations of the face and T. A. Life, a passenger in the car received a fractured collar bone. Provincial Constable J. H. Hatch of Marmora, investigated, and tendered first aid. The car was badly damaged and charges are pending.

Eight Confirmed

In the presence of a large congregation Right Rev. J. Lyons, D. D., Lord Bishop of Ontario, administered the Apostolic rite of confirmation to eight persons at St. Paul's on Sunday morning. The candidates were presented by the rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. Preaching from Acts 16, verses 30 and 31—"Sirs, what must I do to be saved. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved", the bishop sketched the circumstances under which the question was put by the Phillipian gaoler, and answered by Paul and Silas, and impressively spoke on the two words which loomed in the text — Belief and Salvation. He warned against a religion which is merely emotional. On the other hand he remarked that religion should not be devoid of emotion. "Religion", he said "is based on the love of God. As human love carries with it emotion so should the love of those abiding in the love of God have emotion." Touching upon Salvation, the Bishop recalled to the minds of his hearers, the words of the catechism, which speak of the state of salvation. Salvation, he said, could be termed a process. It had also been referred to as a way upon which one could not by his own powers be assured of staying. It was through the grace of God being regularly sought that one remained in the way a process of salvation. Reference to the great conflict in Europe and the fact still remaining that the religion of Jesus Christ had changed the world constituted the Bishop's closing remarks. Those receiving the laying on of hands were: Albert Leonard, William McInroy, Mrs. Donald McInroy, Gwendolyn Rundle, Betty Mumby, Ruth Graham, Jean Graham and Margaret Graham.

The altar, font and chancel were beautifully decorated with red and white peonies and other summer flowers.

3 BOYS, GIRL FACE MURDER COUNT

They Are Quoted as Saying They Did Not Intend to Kill Their Father

Shoshone, Idaho, July 2 (AP).—Three boys and a girl who were quoted as saying "we didn't intend to kill him—we just wanted to give him some of the same thing he was giving us" were charged with murder today for the exposure slaying of their father.

Sheriff G. M. Brown signed the murder complaint, naming the four as slayers of Charles Sanders, 48, retired storekeeper at the ghost town of Yale, Idaho.

Brown said the four were: George, 16, and Joseph, 20, their sister Florence, 18 and her husband, Chester Phillips, 22.

From their questioning, officers pieced together this story of the slaying, Brown said:

About June 21 the four children went to their father's house and told him they wanted to take him for a ride. They enticed Sanders into the rumble seat of an automobile, then slammed down the top and drove off across the sagebrush-covered desert.

They dumped him out and the sheriff quoted Phillips: "We tied him up so he wouldn't come back."

Sanders' body, showing signs of a terrific struggle, was found Saturday. Dr. F. H. Howard, Lincoln County coroner, said the man might have lived "four or five days" after being left on the desert.

After all had partaken of the good things they adjourned to the upper part of the church when the following program was much enjoyed: The school children opened the program with two vocal selections, "There'll Always be an England" and "O Canada". Rev. G. Crabbe, who acted as chairman gave a few remarks; Two readings "Betsy and I are out" and "The Picnic", by Mrs. Jack Empey; Two musical numbers with guitar by Miss Jennie Burris and E. Burris; a duet by Irene and Harry Whyte with encore; a skit, "Table Manners", was presented by the girls club; those taking part were: Misses June Strebe, Grace Robinson, Florence Walker, Irene Whyte and Phyllis Strebe; a musical duet was given by Misses Phyllis and June Strebe and the program closed with the Benediction.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to $40.50.

School here has closed for the summer season. We are glad to make mention of Clayton McCann, Helen Tate and Charles Thompson who got their entrance on recommendation of the high standing on their year's work.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Formal Church Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My question concerns the attendants' clothes for a formal church wedding.

1. Is it proper for a bride to tell her bridesmaids to wear a certain kind of dress, color, style and so forth, and expect them to pay the bills? Or should she pay for her attendants' costumes?

2. Also is it the bride's privilege to decide that her attendants are to wear one type of head-dress and then change her mind and ask them to buy expensive hats?

3. Are garden hats, made of horsehair braid, proper in a church wedding?

4. When a bride-to-be invites girls to be in her wedding party, should she call on them to invite them, or just call on the telephone?

B. F. S.

1. It is indeed the fact that the maid of honor and the bridesmaids are expected to pay for their dresses and for every accessory (except their flowers) of their costumes. It is also true that it is the bride who chooses the type and color of the dresses that are to be worn by her attendants, and every other item of the costume.

Each bridal attendant accepts the bride's invitation to be in her wedding party with the understanding that she must bear the expense of her entire costume. If she is unable to do this, her only alternative is to deny herself the joy of being in the wedding party. Occasionally, we hear of a bride, whose budget is ample and whose heart is generous, giving her attendants their costumes, but if this is to be done, she of course immediately informs her attendants of this good news.

However, a bride who has any pretenses of understanding takes thought of the purses of her friends whom she asks to be her attendants, and conscientiously tries to choose costumes that will not be too expensive. She can easily plan these days with a friendly eye on their budgets, for now department stores and dress shops will show her charming and inexpensive ready-to-wear models.

2. The bride should be definite about every clothes detail before she presents the costume-plans to her attendants. If she changes her mind about any detail after the attendants have bought this item, she should, in fairness, pay for the new one. As a matter of fact, very often the bride, besides giving her attendants their flowers, gives them also their hats.

3. Yes, garden hats of this type are very appropriate and very effective at a church wedding.

4. It seems to me that a mannerly bride-to-be would not be so casual about such an important invitation as to give this over the telephone. She should either go to see the girls whom she wishes to invite to be her attendants, or, if they live too far away for this, write notes.

Money Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is being married, and I would like to send a money gift. Since he and the bride-elect live in a distant state, I would like to know how it should be sent. Do I send it to him or to his fiance?

Mother

If possible, send this wedding gift money by check, made out in the name of your son's fiancee. If this isn't convenient, send a money order. Or, if you wish, you can telegraph this money.

All wedding gifts should be sent to the bride-elect, and this rule would apply to the money you are giving as your wedding gift. Enclose the check or money order in a note to your daughter-in-law-to-be, asking her to buy with the money something that she would like for their new home.

Gloves

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon at an informal ceremony. I am wearing gloves. At what part in the ceremony is the glove removed? Are both gloves removed at any time? Do I hand my glove (or gloves) to my bridesmaid?

R.

It is not necessary, and not usual for the informally-dressed bride to wear gloves. However, if you really feel that you would like to wear gloves, the left one is removed either before the ceremony or before the ring part of the ceremony. Hand it to your bridesmaid.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Brutal Stepfather Causes Marriage Rift

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have broken up my home, as it became a choice between my husband, who proved to be a most brutal type of stepfather, and my 13-year-old son. My boy is delicate, sensitive, overgrown for his age, and very bright mentally. His stepfather has been jealous of him ever since our marriage, and in the face of my protests has whipped him unmercifully, often for things of which the boy was not guilty.

The showdown came ten days ago, when my husband insisted the boy stole six dollars. He was whipped so terribly that though I ran in to his defense and got a good many of the blows myself, I was forced to have the child treated by a doctor. The cleaning establishment to which my husband sent his clothes returned the six dollars, which had been left in a vest pocket.

I have made my choice. My son's life is not going to be ruined on account of a jealous, brutal stepfather. Fortunately, I'm a good stenographer and typist, and will have little trouble I think in getting a job. The question is, where can I keep my son while I am working? He is a Boy Scout.

A Mother.

Inquire at Scout Headquarters concerning camps in your town. All faiths have camps where boys are received free or for a minimum charge for two or three weeks.

Have you any reliable relatives with whom you could board and keep your boy with you? And thank goodness you have the ways and means of earning your own livelihood. So many women with troubles like yours have no way of earning a penny.

"Oh, I could be Happy with Either"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past five years I've been going with a girl five years younger than I am. About a year ago, I met a woman three years older, and we started a romance which can't seem to come to an end.

Although I'm still in love with the younger woman, who is a college girl, my friends advise me to discontinue my association with the older woman because she has been married. I'll admit a deep feeling for her, but my problem is how can I tell her about the young girl without breaking her heart? We've even talked of marriage and I'm thoroughly convinced she loves me.

J. E.

It seems to be a case with you, my dear sir, as in the old ballad, "Oh, I could be happy with either were t'other dear charmer away."

If you tell the older woman about the younger, it will make her unhappy, or as you say, it will "break her heart" and vice versa.

You'll have to make up your mind about these two women, and which one your prefer, then be honest about it and tell the other one, unless you're just flirting. But if matrimony and the big front door of the church is what you have in mind, be honest, for your own peace of mind, as well as theirs.

Just Baby Talk Carries A Lot of Meaning

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

A number of vocabularies of young children have been published, each word being recorded when first heard or at various intervals. Dr. Arnold Gesell of Yale University studied 50 babies 12 months old and 50 more 18 months old. He says:

"The median 12-month-old child not only can say dada and mama, or its equivalent, but has mastered at least three or four distinguishable words which he articulates with much precision."

The other words most popular were bye-bye and baby. At eighteen months, bye-bye, ta-ta, hello and how'do were most frequent. And the words used most frequently up to and at the sixth year are: I, is, it, you, that, do, a, this, not, the.

Here's Chart

Many children have not begun to talk at one year and some have not at 18 months. Of the children studied the average vocabularies are as follows:

At one year, 7 words.
At 18 months, 71 words.
At two years, 328 words.
At two and a half years, 690 words.
At three years, 896 words.
At three and a half years, 1,222 words.
At four years, 1,540 words.
At four and a half years, 1,870 words.
At five years, 2,070 words.
At five and a half years, 2,289 words.
At six years, 2,562 words.

Since emotional expression is a large factor in the development of speech, words of exclamation are among the first. Nouns and verbs rank high in the first few years and adjectives develop earlier, as a rule, than adverbs.

Piaget, after careful and extensive observation of children from four to eight, concludes that the child tends to talk a great deal as if he were carrying on a monologue while with other children, rather than with the purpose of communicating what he has to say to other children, and that the social phase of speech develops relatively late — more evidence that speech is principally emotional matter and a means of self-expression.

Wants Attention

On the other hand, the child, even at three or four, while mingling with us parents, does talk to us and is often very much annoyed when we do not look at him then and listen courteously and attentively. Moreover, children learn to carry on conversations with one another even before entering school.

Language becomes a social matter in proportion to the growth of social interests and social contacts among those of the same age and in proportion, furthermore, as older persons understand and treat courteously and sympathetically the child from his earliest years.

MUCH TRAVEL and stirring about, with the accent on enjoyment, celebration and excitement, may be expected from the lunar and mutual transits. The emotional and sentimental urges may be stressed with elders cooperative and not at all averse to some romantic expressions of their own.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of moderately aggressive and adventurous endeavor, particularly in launching new ideas or promoting some very novel or even revolutionary projects. In these elders, groups or old institutions may be found heartily willing to lend assistance or practical support, even to considering endowments, trusts or substantial financing of objectives aiming at humane or social welfare.

A child born on this day should be solid, serious and steadfast despite much originality of thought and independence of action. It may be senitive to criticism and resist control, but withal kindly, affectionate and gracious.

IT CLIMBS, the thermometer, but a wise gal is ready for torrid weather in town. A good town suit is a gingham jacket costume in tissue plaid, the short-sleeved jacket with a ruffly collar of white mousseline de soie. There's a parasol to match the gingham plaid.

JUST LOOKING here and there we note many girls are going in for those big velvet berets. Black velvet is used for a handsome halo beret, the front fluted and gathered into soft tucks.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Conduct

It is strange but it is true that we often find young people of good intellect, living in a good environment, who tend to be cruel, pugnacious, irresponsible and resentful of authority. They are always showing sudden changes of mood, and are generally emotionally unstable. These children resent when parents or others try to help them.

We often find that these youths, with their bullying, bragging egotism, are really trying to cloak a feeling of inferiority and lack of self-confidence. These resentful adolescents usually react worse at home than anywhere else. Parents usually become the butt of their moods of defiance, probably because they didn't take a firm stand at first.

In its early stages such a mental state is characterized by the building up of petty grievances. The boy or girl complains that people are unfair to him, he is always badly treated. When it makes its appearance first, this tendency is easily checked. Later on, it becomes a thing that is difficult if not impossible to destroy.

Parents should realize that defiance and sullenness can't be overcome by force and discipline. Talking won't do much good either, for chances are the child will become even more rebellious when he is forced to listen to reason. This is the time when the parents need patience. For the time being, they must try to make the child happy without regard to obedience or usefulness, for the rebellious, delinquent child is invariably an unhappy child. Parents in such a crisis, should find out ways of using the child's good points to best advantage. For the time being they may even have to withdraw their parental authority as much as can be safely done. Sometimes if you do this, you can show the child that freedom is really a means to an end, whereas he has been thinking and acting all along as though it was actually the end itself.

When I said that parents need patience, I had in mind the fact that personality traits and mental attitudes cannot be changed over night. They must be moulded over periods of months if they are going to be successful. And if parents are ever going to solve the conflicts they have with their children, they must be sufficiently interested to learn the real motives behind the child's conduct.

If parents would just look these matters squarely in the face as their children grow up, the juvenile courts would soon close for lack of business.

Presentation

On Friday, June 28, the teacher of S. S. No. 15, Rawdon, Miss Eva Casey, held a picnic in Spry's grove at the bridge for the pupils, parents and friends.

After partaking of a sumptoous repast prepared by the ladies, Mr. Nathan Bronson read an address to the teacher, who is leaving the school.

The address was signed on behalf of the pupils and friends of the community, Ruby McCann, Ruth Storms, Carl Spry, Mrs. Nathan Bronson.

Miss Casey was then presented with a beautiful electric table lamp and table cloth for which she thanked them.

During the afternoon races were held, the winners receiving prizes. Ice cream was served by the teacher and all went home feeling that the last day of school had been very enjoyably spent.

Taste is Beauty Asset No. 1

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE OF THE greatest, most valuable, of all beauty assets is good taste. Some women seem to have been born with it. Those who haven't it, can "go get it"; all they have to do is to be observing, follow good examples that are to be found for the hunting of them.

The woman with good taste has an appreciation of beautiful colors, selects those that are flattering, side-steps the dingy tones that the fromp invariably picks out. She has an understanding of line, knows exactly where her belt should be placed to make proportions good, does not wear an extremely short skirt if she is over tall or over wide or if she has legs that don't help the beauty picture.

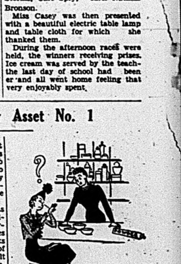
Charm is Beauty

Good taste directs her toward discreet applications of make up; she prefers to look like a lady instead of a lithograph. It will have an effect upon her behavior. The woman with good taste is never quick of speech or rude. She realizes that beauty without charming manners isn't beauty at all, just a cheap counterfeit.

Of one sartorial crime she is never guilty, that of over-dressing. You won't find her trailing over the golf links in fussy clothes or wearing white gloves to some simple neighborhood affair.

Tiny cracks at the finger ends can be tormentingly painful. They seem to take forever to heal. Every touch of the finger opens the wound.

They come when the hands have been too much in soapy water. Some soaps cause more trouble than others. The best way to get rid of them is to snip away the hardened lifted flesh with the needle point manicure scissors, to apply ointment of zinc oxide at night, covering the open cracks with a small piece of grauze held on with adhesive.



"Good taste directs her toward discreet applications of make-up."

LETTERS INDICATE BRITISH VICTORY

Some Oak Leaves in Lindsay Area Bear Letters "B" and "V"

With farmers in the immediate district discovering that in some mysterious manner their oats and wheat stalks have the letter "B" as though stamped on them, memories are going back to the year 1918 when a similar phenomenon occurred on the oat leaves. Coming as it did in the year that the Great War was brought to a close, the phenomenon was taken as a forecast of an Allied victory. Such is the case with the letter "B" again being found on the leaves and there are those who take it as an indication that Britain will win the war and perhaps within the year.

A slight departure from the oat version of the phenomenon was related by a Lindsay man over the week-end. This man stated that in his district the oak leaves bore as though stamped on them, two letters "B" and "V." In the last war same phenomenon occurred only the letters were "A" and "V" and were taken to indicate an Allied victory. This year the letters "B" and "V" are being taken to indicate a British victory.

Alliance Commends War Fund Movies

Toronto, July 3—"The patriotic gesture of the motion picture interests to promote the sale of war savings stamps and certificates has been strengthened by their decision to place their show on the evening of Monday, July 15, instead of the Sunday previously selected," declared Rev. George G. Webber, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance.

"Citizens who opposed the selection of the Sunday for the theatre shows can now heartily commend the plan," he said.

HUNGARY URGES LONG-STANDING LAND CLAIMS

Indications Says Correspondent Point to Hungary as Intent on Using Force to Regain Transylvania

BULGARIA IS CALM

Budapest, July 3—(AP) — Hungary's military preparations reached the highest peak in her peacetime history today as she pressed long-standing territorial demands upon a Rumania weakened by Russian incursions and domestic strife.

Thousands of men—some as old as 50 years—have been called to the colors in the last few days.

Highways and railroads in the eastern part of the country were jammed as reinforcements, including tanks and heavy artillery, streamed toward the Rumanian frontier. During the night long columns of requisitioned horses moved through the streets of Budapest en route to the front.

There was every indication that Hungary intends to use force if necessary to regain the disputed border province of Transylvania which she lost to Rumania in 1918, although some hope remained that Germany, anxious to preserve peace in the Balkans, might be able to effect a compromise settlement.

Speculation is Rife

The return to Budapest of Laszlo Bardossy, Hungarian Minister to Bucharest, stirred speculation that some sort of negotiations were in the air. There were reports he had brought back a report on the extent to which Rumania might be willing to satisfy Hungarian demands.

Reports of domestic strife in Rumania, threatening King Carol's place upon the throne, gave rise, however, to popular belief that the time is ripe for Hungary to strike.

Fresh claims of persecution of the Hungarian minority in Transylvania increased demands here for action.

Addressing the Hungarian parliament yesterday, one deputy asserted the military requisitioning by the Rumanian Government in Transylvania was "taking on the character of free looting of Hungarian property."

Bulgaria Expects Peaceful Settlement

Bulgaria—seeking southern Dobruja from Rumania — appeared calm. There were no indications of extensive Bulgarian military preparations, and some troops were reported to have been given leaves.

Information from Sofia indicated Bulgaria was confident her claims would be satisfied by peaceful measures.

Fear grew, meanwhile, that unless the Balkan crisis ends soon there may be serious difficulties over harvesting of crops needed to carry the population through the winter.

Little Benny's Note Book

Three fellows were late for school today, being me and Puds Simkins and Raymin Levy, and Miss Kitty made us all come up to her desk saying, Now isn't this a fine spectacle? Well, I never detain a boy after school for lateness without first giving him a chance to present a good and sattisfactory excuse if he is able to, wich unfortunately is seldom or never the case, he said.

I had to help my mother, Raymin Levy said and Miss Kitty said, What do you mean, you had to help your mother? Wouldn't you help your mother unless you had to, Raymin? she said.

Sure, G, I'd be glad to Raymin Levy said and Miss Kitty said, Well that sounds a little better, and he said, Anyway I had to help her put the laundry in the laundry bag because the laundry man came exter early and he was in a hurry.

Now for once I'd call that excuse sattisfactory, a boy cant have any better excuse than helping his mother, you're excused, Raymin, Miss Kitty said, and Puds Simkins said, I helped my mother too.

My my, in what way? Miss Kitty said and Puds said, She made too many bukweak cakes for breakfist, so I took time to eat more than I really wanted just to keep her from feeling bad.

Quite noble I must say, you may remain a half an hour after school, Miss Kitty said, and I said, I helped my father, is that just as good?

I'll know better when I hear more details, Miss Kitty said, and I said He dropped a lot of change on the front steps pulling his key out of his pocket when he came home last night, and I helped him pick it up.

But you said that was last night, Miss Kitty said. and I said, Well I took an exter look this morning to see if either of us hadn't missed any.

The result being I had to stay and keep Puds company on account of having to sit there without talking.

France May Yield $1,850,000,000 Gold

Authoritative sources quoted by The Associated Press estimated yesterday that Germany may have captured as much as $1,850,000,000 in gold in the conquest of France—and the whole treasure may be under water. This on the assumption that France did not have Poland's success in spiriting her gold out of the country.

The most recent reports available to banking circles were that France held $1,250,000,000 in gold in the rocky labyrinths under the Bank of France in Paris. To that store was said to have been added $600,000,000 in gold hastily moved from Belgium when Germany invaded that country.

The storage vaults are some eighty feet below the surface of Paris's rock foundation and well below the waters of an underground stream that, Bank of France officials said years ago, should be diverted into the vaults at the touch of a button.

The builders of the vault planned that, if Paris ever were captured, the vaults would be floated. Then, they said, it would require months at least to locate the source of the river, dam it and re-enter the underground storehouse.

Of course, no one has announced how much, if any, of the French gold stock was removed before Paris was captured. Nor are there exact figures on how much of the total French gold reserve was stored, under "earmark," in United States Federal Reserve Bank vaults. Undisclosed millions of French gold also have been used in buying munitions in America.

The bank of France, in its statement of May 31, reported a gold reserve of 84,616,000,000 francs—then about $1,693,000,000. The difference between this figure and local estimates indicates about $500,000,000 in gold stored outside France.

Among the items of war booty that it seems fairly certain Germany will obtain in whole or in part are 1,570 American-made airplanes known to have been delivered to France in the last eighteen months. The deliveries were: 200 Doublas bombers, 600 pursuits, 280 Martin bombers, 40 Vought-Sikorsky bombers and 450 North American Aviation trainers.

One of the most valuable acquisitions, from the German point of view, is the iron mines of France, which annually produce 19 per cent of the world's ore supply, compared with 4 per cent produced in Germany and 8 per cent in Great Britain.

Since France is primarily an agricultural country, Germany's chief booty will be in the form of farm expansion. France, for example, produces 6 per cent of the world's wheat, compared with Germany's 4 per cent. This figure does not take into account the farming area taken from Poland.

Prisoners Behaved Exactly as One Might Expect of Their Breed

New York, July 3.—(CP)— The New York Herald Tribune, commenting upon the arrival in Canada of German prisoners of war, said in its leading editorial today:

"The first Nazi prisoners of war to be evacuated from the United Kingdom to Canada behaved on the voyage over exactly as one might expect of their breed. They misconstrued the initial courtesy of their guards as evidence of British weakness or decadence sulked, indulged in boasts and insults and in general earned the crew's forthright opinion of them as 'skulking, swaggering louts.' One of them, in the words of a cockney steward, 'scutted hisself' by leaping overboard in a fanatical rage. Apparently, many of these 'louts' were officers, obviously deliberately trained out of the archaic nation that an officer must be both 'an officer and a gentleman'.

"But if their conduct is simply one more demonstration of the Nazi spirit, consider the contrast presented by other Germans in the same complement of prisoners. These were principally former civilian sailors, among them the captains of some of Germany's famous passenger liners, captured while on transport ships off Norway. From the press account of the voyage, they took their fate philosophically and were embarrassed and distressed by the crude, unsportsmanlike arrogance of their Nazi compatriots. When the ship docked at Montreal the mercantile captains made the rounds of the British officers and crew, thanking them for their kindness.

"Here, it seems to us, is a significant illustration of that basic division among Germans which may some day again assert itself politically as it has in the past. Ascendant for the present is the ruthless barbarian, the synthetic Goth, contemptuous of Christian instinct. But throughout his country, suppressed but surviving, is an anithetical element, perhaps numerically superior, steeped traditionally in them and tenacious of the amenities of civilization. Despite current evidence of German unity under the Nazis this cleavage is unmistakable and may yet prove to be the fatal joint in Hitler's armor".

To thrill you for the last time the great air epic, "Hell Divers," with Cliff Edwards, Wallace Berry and Clark Gable, coming next to the Capitol with the added western, "West of Carson City."

Haying Operations Become General Throughout County

Haying operations have now become general throughout the district and although farmers report alfalfa and sweet clover as being a splendid crop, continued wet weather has made the curing of hay very difficult. In order to facilitate the curing of alfalfa and other legumes despite the backward haying weather, many farmers have starter using tripods for this purpose and report this method, which is used principally as a means to cure early-cut hay, as working very well.

The feature of using the tripod for curing is that it permits the cutting of hay in the bud or early bloom stage, which yields a very high quality hay. When this procedure is followed, farmers are advised to leave the hay in the swath until it has wilted but not until it is dry enough to lose the leaves. The use of a pushsweep or rake is then advised to collect the hay near the tripods upon which it is left for two weeks.

The number of tripods per acre varies according to the crop but ordinarily from 1,200 to 1,400 lbs. of green hay per tripod is advised with seven to ten tripods per acre being necessary. The hay is piled on the tripod in a cone shape to turn the water. Holes are left in the skirt of the hay at the ground to let the air circulate underneath and through the hay, while the sides are combed down to shed the water.

Detroit Tigers Ascend Pinnacle Of American Loop for 1st Time; Dodgers Leading in National

St. Louis Clubs Were Downfall of Indians and Cincinnati Respectively

GOMEZ WINS

New York Hurler Has Not Seen Action Since April 19th and Goes Only Seven Innings

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The fourth of July is supposed to be a magical date in baseball because of the legend that the teams leading their leagues on that day will wind up with the pennants later on. But the major leagues have two new pace-makers today, and are just as likely to have a different pair tomorrow.

Detroit Tigers ascended to the pinnacle of the American League yesterday for the first time this year and Brooklyn Dodgers regained the National League top rung for the seventh time.

The two St. Louis clubs took charge of yesterday's re-routings. In the afternoon the Browns tamed Cleveland Indians 5-3 and at night the Cardinals crushed Cincinnati Reds 4-0.

The Browns, who a few days ago bumped Boston Red Sox out of the American League lead, seemed to get a lot of pleasure administering the same medicine to the Indians. All St. Louis' runs came on homers and pitcher Vernon Kennedy himself decided the game with a two-run home run in the ninth inning, his second of the season.

Detroit, which had muffed opportunities to take over the lead on other occasions, booted this chance around for two hours and 37 minutes, but finally nosed out Chicago White Sox 10-9.

McGee Tames the Reds

The Cardinals' shutout of the Reds was the handiwork of Fiddler Bill McGee, who kept seven hits scattered and batted in two of his team's runs.

The Dodgers were ready and eager to resume the lead, plastering a 4-1 shellacking on the hapless Phillies behind the three-hit hurling of Tex Carleton.

New York Giants, who are close enough to take control in the senior circuit if their rivals falter, lost ground as Boston Bees banged out a 5-3 triumph.

Bill Lee, the big gun of Chicago Cubs, returned to form to shutout Pittsburgh Pirates 10-0 on five hits.

Lefty Gomez, who hadn't made a pitching appearance in the American League since April 19, went to the mound at Washington and was effective for seven innings to help New York Yankees to a 6-2 decision over the Senators. Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with Philadelphia Athletics. Ed Heusser beat them in the first game 4-3, but Jim Foxx and Joe Cronin hit homers in the nightcap and Boston triumphed 15-9.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Jersey City, N.J., July 3—(AP)—Ancil Hoffman, Max Baer's manager, who laid $1,000 against $1,550 cashed in on the biggest single bet of the fight. Johnny Ray, manager of Billy Conn, dropped $900 on Signor Galento . . . the way Tony was missing with those roundhouse lefts made you think of good old Zekus Bonura tangling with foul pops along the first base line. . . As for Baer, he's going to start howling challenges at Joe Louis every hour in the 24, but hopes to goodness Joe won't accept. . . Galento's dough was attached by the late Joe Jacobs' heirs. . . . and Tony's brother Russell, who rates more than an assist for bopping Tony with that beer glass, is thinking of attaching Baer's end.

The word is out that July 4th is the deadline for the non-producing Yankees . . . The grapevine says unless the club perks up, Babe Dahlgren will be replaced by Tommy Henrich and Frank Crosetti benched in favor of Billy Knickerbocker.

Minneapolis says the depleted condition of the Berg family coffers is the main reason Miss Patty will sign that $30,000 pro contract. . . Ken Overlin (he owns half of the middleweight title) isn't ducking Tony Zale as western papers hint. Ken merely wants to pick up a little dough in over-the-weight bouts before laying the title on the line. Can't blame him for that . . . Walter Cox, veteran trainer and owner, estimates he's driven more than 800,000 miles behind trotters and pacers.

TONY GALENTO UNABLE TO GO ON ANY LONGER

Jersey Barkeeper Slugged Into Unhelplessness and Loses to Max Baer in Eighth Round

TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

Baer Fought Brainy Contest and Won Six of Seven Rounds Before Bout Stopped

(By Gayle Talbot)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Jersey City, N.J., July 3.—(AP) — Two tired, fat old fighting men slugged each other into a state of utter exhaustion out on the Jersey Marshes last night, and finally one of them, Tony Galento, was unable to go on any longer.

The fat tavern keeper was sitting on his stool, blowing blood like a harpooned whale, when the bell rang to start the eighth round. His handlers wouldn't let him go out, so the referee raised Max Baer's hand. It went into the books as a technical knockout in the eighth.

The fight—and it was a hard one while it lasted—proved only that there isn't a heavyweight in the world today worthy of challenging Joe Louis for the championship.

Baer, exuberant in his dressing room afterward, was shouting his defiance of Louis and demanding another shot at the big negro to whom he once surrendered while on his knees. But Max is about six years too late. If he is smart, he will challenge Louis from the housetops now, but not get into the ring with him.

Max Fought Brainy Fight

Max fought about as brainy a fight last night as one would hope to see. He took his time, dodged Galento's might lunges, and steadily punched the fat man into a state bordering on helplessness. But, even so, he did not look like a fighter to face the Louis thunderbolts. He looked old in the face, and without fire.

Tony who had been a solid favorite, found the handicap of 244 1-2 pounds of fat and bar-room cut on his chin too much. The pounds slowed him to where he was awkward in the clinches and a sucker for Baer's sharp blasts. The cut, administered originally by a beer glass pegged by his brother, opened up round by round until finally he was choking and blowing froth.

Tony, through a heavy bandage about his mouth, said he had broken his left hand in the second round.

That, on the Associated Press score card, was the only round Galento won. The other six belonged to Baer. Max nearly floored his floundering opponent with a tremendous right to the chin at the start of the sixth round, and he gave Tony an awful going-over in the seventh, even smacking him a couple after the bell. Tony went to his knee once, but it was hard to say whether he had been hit or slipped.

A crowd of 22,711 paid $98,004 to sit in Jersey City's ball park.

MARBLE CHAMP

Here's a proud lad if there ever was one. His name's Douglas Opperman, of Pittsburgh, Pa. He was crowned marble champion of America at the N.Y. World's Fair. The keen-eyed 14-year-old youngster holds the trophy, wears his gold-plated crown and in his pocket is $250—honors and cash to Doug for defeating all opposition in the national tourney which was conducted in 380 American cities during the past several months.

TORONTO LEAFS IN SIXTH PLACE OF INT. LEAGUE

Only Three Games Behind Fifth-Place Royals and Orioles, Who Are Virtually Tied

ROCHESTER LOSES

New Manager, Tony Kaufman, Drops First Game since Assuming Command

By the Associated Press

If Tony Lazzeri wasn't such a lively, aggressive sort of guy, you might figure he was managing his Toronto Maple Leafs on the theory that he could get what he wanted just by waiting for it.

Whatever waiting Tony has been doing this International League season has been forced upon him. He just didn't have the team at the outset to keep the kind of pace the leaders were setting. Leafs still are a long way from the three top teams in the standing, but they already have waited long enough to see most of the others come back to them.

When they beat Buffalo Bisons 6-2, last night for their third straight victory over the herd, Leafs moved into sixth place in the standing. Now they're only three games behind the fifth-place Montreal Royals and fourth-place Baltimore Orioles, who are virtually tied.

Pitcher Vallie Eaves and third baseman Mickey De Jonghe were mainly responsible for last night's triumph. Eaves overcame his wildness by tight pitching in the clutches, leaving 11 Bisons stranded, while De Jonghe made three hits, including a double with the bases loaded in the fourth.

Things were happening on all sides in the International League last night in addition to Toronto's advance.

The league-leading Rochester Red Wings lost their first game under Tony Kaufmann's management, after eight straight triumphs, and 8-7 decision to Montreal. Baltimore Orioles broke a five-game losing streak by handing Newark its second setback in seven games, 3-1, and Jersey City, which checked a chain of losses Monday, slipped back into form again, taking an 8-1 drubbing from the last-place Syracuse Chiefs in the second half of a double-header after winning the opener 2-0.

PERFECT ACTION SHOT

A perfect action shot is this Speedray photo of Sybil Cooper, Nancy Cowperthwaite and Sylvia Rothenberg as they cleared a hurdle during tryouts for the Metropolitan championships to be held in Brooklyn. All three girls hold world records and are rapidly nearing their best form for the U.S. National championships to be held on July 6.

BIG-Z LASSIES IN FIRST PLACE BY 22-13 VICTORY

Defeat 'Five and Ten' Girls in Softball Tussle on Armories Lawn

YOUTHFUL BATTERY

"Pee Wee" Colden and "Pudgy" Donovan Show Considerable Promise

Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies moved into the league leadership of the City Ladies' Softball League with a 22 to 13 win over "Doc" Dougherty's "Five-ten" laddies at the Armouries last evening.

The Big-Z nine scored six runs, on seven hits, in the initial frame and were never headed as they continued to score in every subsequent inning, except the sixth. The "Five-and Ten" lassies rallied in the latter inning, but their scoring efforts were too belated to be of any consequence.

Manager Barnett started his ace moundsman, Betsy Adams, but once his squad enjoyed a substantial lead he introduced a 12-year-old battery in "Pee Wee" Colden and "Pudgy" Donovan, these 12-year-olds showing considerable promise. Ruth McClelland, drafted from the infield, pitched the entire game for the losers and was touched for 26 hits. Betsy Adams limited the "5 & 10's" for four hits in five frames, while Miss Colden yielded up 10 hits and nine runs.

Helen Garrow, Big-Z shortstop, led the hitters of the night with the only circuit blow of the game and added three singles and a double to count five hits in six trips to the plate. Colden hit a double and two singles and Donovan a triple and double in two tries, while Jean Sherry helped her batting average with three one base blows. Irwin with two doubles and a single led the losers at bat. N. Hales and McClelland also hitting well in the clutches. The K-Nines and Corbins clash at the Armouries Thursday.

The lineups:

Big-Z: Colden 2b, p; Bennett 3b; Garrow ss; Adams p, 2b; Emerson c; Hunter cf; Sherry 1b; Moore rf; Cordon lf and Donovan c.

Five & Ten: Irwin 1b; N. Hales rf; McClelland p; P. Hales 2b; Alderman c; Ewenson 3b; Rollands and Thompson ss; Randall and Barragar lf and Thompson and Thompson and Welmark cf.

Score by innings:		R	H	E
Five-Ten	300 012 034—13	14	5
Big-Z	632 330 51x—22	26	4

Umpires: Schrieder, plate; Colling, bases.

SHERIDAN NINE LOSE TO PAPPAS

Winners Move Up a Notch in Neighborhood Loop by the 11-9 Victory

Pappas moved up a notch in the neighborhood softball loop after winning over the Sheridan nine 11 to 9 at Coleman Flats last night.

Five runs in the fourth frame gave the Pappas squad a slight margin after they had scored two in the second. Sheridans had scored six by the time the bottom half of the fourth rolled around, but the winners pushed runs across in the last three frames while Sheridans failed to retaliate sufficiently to haul down their opponents' lead.

Rennie Reid hurled steady softball for the winners while Fitzgibbon delivered them up for Sheridans. J. Baylx, R. Reid and W. Bell came through with timely hits for the winners, while Whittard, Burley and Sheridan wielded potent bats for the losers.

The line-ups: Sheridans—Tomaso, 3b; Whittard, 2b; Crosley, l.f.; Fitzgibbon, p.; Burley, s.s.; Carson, 1b; Barnum, c.; Sheridan, c.f.; J. Tomaso, r.f. Pappas—Colden, c.; Lloyd, 2b.; Baylx, c.f.; J. Baylx, 3b; Reid, p.; Bell, 1b.; Collins, l.f.; B. Baylx, r.f. and E. Colden, s.s.

Score by innings:
Sheridan 0 3 0 0 3 1 0 2 0— 9 runs
Pappas 0 2 0 5 0 1 2 1 x—11 runs

Umpires—G. Barriage, plate; W. Reynolds, bases.

The popularity of these "Kid Kar" or Soapbox Derbies is growing with rapidity across Canada. Of course in the U.S.A. the sponsorship of Soapbox Derbies is handled for the greater part by the larger newspapers across the American continent. In Canada, however, the Ontario Intelligencer is the only newspaper to assist in this work, which naturally means that the winner of the fifth annual Kinsmen Club "Soapbox" Derby next Tuesday will be recognized as the Canadian champion. Incidentally the management of the fifth annual Kinsmen "Soapbox Derby" informs us they have more entries this year than ever before, some 75 entries having already been accepted. With a larger field of entries on hand it naturally follows that the patrons will be treated to a larger number of heats or events before the championship run commences atop "Derby Hill." This year the youthful "Barney Oldfields" will break even when it comes to the latest type of roller-bearing wheels, the Kinsmen Club of Belleville having purchased 75 sets of these smooth-rolling, rubber-tired streamlined wheels, which they presented to each entry.

With each "Kid Kar" in this year's fifth annual Kinsmen club Soapbox Derby equipped with the latest type of roller-bearing wheels it naturally follows the respective racing cars will be speedier than in previous years. With this is mind the spectators should be cautioned against crowding around the finishing line, as a matter of fact this should hold good for officials as well, simply because the 'Kid Kars' this year will be speedier and it goes without saying it will take the drivers a longer distance in which to break and stop their vehicles. The least swerving might result in a bad accident, so it is with this thought in mind we suggest that the Kinsmen provide plenty of space behind the finishing line in which to bring their drivers' cars to a full stop with the maximum amount of safety attached. Incidentally this year's crop of Soapbox Derby cars are far superior and better looking than any heretofore.

The following ditty may have taken place at Coleman Flats, but in all probability it was during a girls' game at the Armouries. Here goes and don't toss anything softer than Irish confetti:

"Two mosquitoes once lit on the features
Of two fair and peroxided creatures.
When asked by what right,
They replied—'We're not tight,
We're just seeing the game from the Bleachers'."

Do you remember when C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville won his first Canadian amateur golf crown at Toronto 14 years ago today. The London, Ont., shotmaker, finalist in three successive years, beat "Happy" Fraser of Kanawaki, Montreal, four and three in the 1926 final. Somerville, now in the Canadian Active Service Force, has won the crown four times since.

The big softball game of the week is scheduled for tonight when Corbys A.C. and the Shell "Oilers" clash. The "Oilers" eked out a 6-5 win over Corbys in their last meeting and the Barriage-Simpson outfit is vowing vengeance tonight.

It was just a case of too much power when Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies trounced the "five and ten" girls 22 to 13 last night to take over the top rung on the girls' softball loop ladder. Skipper Barnett is an apparent firm believer of bring 'em up young. Last night he used a teen-aged battery of "Pee Wee" Bolden and "Pudgy" Donovan. This pair of lassies are just 13-years of age and both attended public or separate school this year and they'll be the stars of another season. Incidentally Barney Smith took his Corbin lassies out to Hastings on Dominion Day where they entered a girls' softball tournament. The Corbin girls were eliminated by the strong C.G.E. nine of Peterboro, the team that went on to beat the Toronto 'Kiks' team and win the tournament championship. Incidentally Thelma (Morgan) Henika hurled for the Kiks team, while Lela Empey caught. Both Thelma and Lela learned the fundamentals of girls' softball in Belleville.

No matter how one looks at it, last night's result of the Baer-Galento fight was bound to be a surprise. Max Baer, who had shivered and shook at the sight of Joe Louis, steps into the ring and batters "Two-ton Tony" Galento into such a condition that Baer is awarded a T.K.O. in the 8th. Baer hit Galento with most everything, except perhaps the ring posts, and had "Two-ton" bleeding and badly cut about the face. They do say that Baer fought his craftiest fight in years, but it would appear as though Galento had won in the long run—at least he doesn't have to meet Joe Louis, the Dark Destroyer. While on the subject of boxing, Jack Dempsey K.O.'d a wrestler named Cowboy Luttrell and now hopes to be the "white hope." Dempsey has agreed to meet another punk leather-pusher named Bull Curry in Detroit July 15th and they do say he entertains hopes of eventually meeting Joe Louis. Doesn't Dempsey know yet—"they don't come back."

SPORT SPICE—Freddie Walsh, well known Toronto umpire who is now calling 'em in the Can.-American loop, is running into difficulties with this new passport regulation business. . . See where Dizzy Dean won his first two starts at Tulsa while using his "side-wheeler" delivery, that he hopes will sky-rocket him back into major league fame. Brother Paul and Schoolboy Rowe came back, can Ol' Diz? Tomorrow is the Fourth of July and it is said the teams leading the two major leagues on that date invariably clash in the fall baseball classic. . . . However, there is still the 1914 Braves to upset that dope bucket, they were last on July 4th, 1914, and went on to win the World Series, but that sort of inspired ball just ain't being played in these so-called modern times. . . And again, don't pass up tonight's Corby-Shell mushball clash, looks like action aplenty.

AT THE McCARTHY

"North Sea Patrol"

Britain's first line of defense—in a spectacular drama showing Canada that there will always be a British Empire, is vividly brought to the screen in the up-to-the-minute, timely production, "North Sea Patrol," which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

"North Sea Patrol," presents a robust spy story, played against Britain's present war activities on the high seas, which is reported to provide first-class entertainment set in action and surmounted in thrills.

"North Sea Patrol," features an all-star cast including Geoffrey Toone, Judy Kelly, John Wood and Clifford Evans, four of England's most outstanding stage and screen stars, and the film was directed by Norman Lee, who began his preliminary preparations for the production when Hitler made his first drastic demands upon Poland.

Filmed under the supervision of retired commander John F. Hunt of the Royal Navy, this new film presents the most authentic spectacle of naval action ever filmed. Many of the scenes are laid on a British cruiser, and much of the breath-taking drama is enacted as England starts her blockade in the North Atlantic. In addition to this spectacular production an excellent comedy-drama, "Love, Honor and Oh-Baby," starring Wallace Ford, Mona Barrie, Donald Woods and Warren Hymer is to be presented on the same program, also the closing chapter of the "Shadow" serial.

"Turnabout"

Carole Landis, John Hubbard and Adolphe Menjou in "Turnabout," Hal Roach's new comedy-riot, is now showing for the last time at the McCarthy Theatre and if it so far has not been your good fortune to see this smash comedy hit, do so at once. An amusing Walt Disney cartoon, also Leon Errol in "Scrappily Married" and latest Fox News complete this swell program.

INSTALMENT 29.

"Nina and Bob just happened to run into Jennifer and this man with whom she has been travelling abroad," Milton continued. "Their testimony would be sufficient evidence for a divorce but I don't want my private affairs blasted all over the front page. It will be better for Jennifer to get it."

"Suppose she refuses?" Star asked, remembering Jennifer's threat.

"She won't have any choice about it. I've already cabled her that I'm coming to Paris—I wish I never had to see her again."

"Must you go?"

"It takes so long to write letters back and forth and it isn't the kind of thing we can discuss by cabling."

"I'm afraid of Mrs. Wood," Star admitted. "If she doesn't want a divorce, she may find some way to prevent it even yet."

"She can't," he said grimly. "I don't think she'll try. After all, she knows that Nina and Bob saw her. She probably thinks that's the reason I'm sailing."

It was still very complicated, Star decided, but so long as he loved her, so long as there was any hope at all she could be patient.

"We'd better go home," she suggested. "Mrs. Lambert will be worried about me as I told Mrs. Epperson I was just going for a walk."

Milton rose and took her hands.

"You'll wait for me, darling? Give me a chance to straighten things out in a civilized way?"

"You know I will."

"I still can't believe that you are really in love with a man like me," he confessed. "You are so young and lovely. I am so much older and so disillusioned."

"You're hurt," she said gently. "But at heart you will always be an idealist. In some ways I am older even than you. You see I've never had any one to believe in except myself. I haven't any illusions."

"I'll make it up to you, Star. We'll be happy together."

"We'll probably have plenty of adjustments to make," she reminded him, "but nothing can ever alter the fact that we love each other."

"Nothing," he answered.

He did not go in when they reached Nina's. Star ran upstairs, calling out, "Mrs. Lambert, where are you?"

Nina answered from the writing-room. She looked as if she had been crying.

"Well, where have you been?" she began, but Star did not give her time to say more. Putting her arms about Nina's neck, she cried, "You darling! How can I ever thank you?"

The writer said dryly, "Obviously you've seen Milton—but where?"

"At his boat in the yacht harbor," the girl answered. "Oh, Mrs. Lambert, I am so happy! I think you are the most wonderful person in the world!"

"Sit down and tell me about it." Nina answered. "Here I thought I would have something to tell you and Milton doesn't even let me do that."

Star was too excited to be quiet. She paced the floor as she explained how she had gone to say farewell to the boat on which they had spent so many happy hours. Adding that it was in the yacht harbor where Milton discovered her after she had left Nina.

Nina sighed. "You didn't tell me that before. But yes, it would be like that."

Star imagined that Nina was blaming herself for the fact that Milton had fallen in love with her secretary but Star knew it couldn't have happened otherwise. All her life had led up to this point.

It was late when the two women said good night and later still before Star slept, but she was awakened early in the morning by Mrs. Epperson knocking at her door.

"Telephone for you, Miss Bright. It's Mr. Wood and he says it's important."

Star did not wait for a dressing gown. Thrusting her feet into the mules beneath her bed, she ran downstairs. What had happened now? Milton would never have awakened her without a good reason. She prayed frantically, "Oh, God, please don't let anything go wrong."

His voice was quietly excited but happy.

"Sorry to dig you out so early but I had to tell you. I've just had a cablegram from Jennifer asking me not to come to Paris. She is suing me for a divorce."

Star's heart was beating so wildly she could not answer.

"What's the matter?" he asked anxiously. "Are you there?"

She said faintly, "Yes, darling!"

"Well, aren't you glad?" he asked, disappointed in her lack of enthusiasm.

"Glad!" she repeated and began to cry.

"Hold everything," Milton shouted. "I'm coming right out."

She had not cried when fate had dealt her most cruel blows but now when her heart's desire was coming true she could not bear it.

"It's so wonderful I simply can't believe it," she explained to Nina who had rushed to the head of the stairs.

"You'd better get dressed," Nina advised. "If I know Milton he'll be here in five minutes. And, Star, tell Mrs. Epperson to set the table for three. He'll have breakfast with us, of course."

"I never heard of such goings on," Mrs. Epperson objected. "As if it weren't crazy enough to call up at seven in the morning, he has to come busting out here . . . that woman and her ideas . . ."

"This is my fault," Star said, smiling through her tears. "I'm going to marry him, Mrs. Epperson."

"You're going to marry Milton Wood?" gasped the housekeeper. "Well, for land sakes, what are you crying for then?"

"Because I'm so happy," Star explained, smiling through her tears.

"Well, if you ask me, it's a good thing you're leaving this house," the other said. "You were a sensible girl when you came here but you've been different lately. You're getting more like her all the time."

Star laughed and ran upstairs to dress. She was just ready when Milton arrived. She heard the bell and Mrs. Epperson answering it. Then his voice from the foot of the stairway, Star Bright, where are you?"

"Coming," she answered and ran down to be folded in his arms and kissed under the approving gaze of Mrs. Epperson. This was something the housekeeper could understand. Love was enough to make the sanest behave peculiarly, but for Mrs. Lambert there was no such excuse, she decided, hurrying back to the kitchen.

The breakfast she served was her tribute to Cupid. Never had waffles been so light and deliciously brown, never had bacon been so crisply delicious. The irony of it was that only Nina appreciated it. The other two seemed to be unconscious of what they ate. Nina, who was supposed to be on a diet, thought dolefully, "I may as well eat. What have I got to lose?"

AT THE BELLE

"Saturday's Children"

Tomorrow at the Belle theatre brings to the screen Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Saturday's Children." John Garfield and Anne Shirley are co-starred at the head of a cast which includes Claude Rains, Dennie Moore, Roscoe Karns, Lee Patrick, Risdon, George Tobias and Berton Churchill.

Adapted for the screen by Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, who scripted the "Four Daughters" series, "Saturday's Children" is a real-life story of a young love on a budget. Like so many big city romances do in reality, this one begins in a office, flourishes over the filing cabinets, and at the water-cooler, and expands into true love in the shadow of the subways. And so they are married, with high hopes and big hearts, and two jobs. But the wife soon loses her job, and then begins the struggle to get along on twenty dollars a week. Some of the bright edges wear off under the economic stress, and their marriage comes close to the breaking point, until both learn a few lessons about what it takes besides love to make a marriage tick.

Claude Rains plays the role of the girl's father, a somewhat cynical fellow, but wise in the ways of love. Roscoe Karns is his ne'er-do-well son-in-law, and Lee Patrick is Karns' perpetually complaining wife. Dennie Moore is cast as a typical "stenog" and George Tobias as her aspiring office boy friend. Vincent Sherman directed. Elizabeth Risdon, plays the role of mother of the family, and Berton Churchill is cast as the employer.

CANADIAN NURSES VISIT LONDON

Brighten Many of the Empire Capital's Historic Spots on Walk About City

By GLADYS ARNOLD

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

London, July 2 (CP).—Blue-uniformed Canadian nurses, enjoying a short leave in London, today brightened many of the capital's historic spots.

Many of the nurses were disappointed to find that most of the ground around the grim old tower of London was not filled with water. Instead it had been converted into vegetable gardens as part of a plan to boost home food production.

However, they found that Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral and other famous places more than fulfilled their expectations.

Miss E. F. Pense of Kingston, Ont. matron in chief of the Canadian Active Service Force's nursing services and in charge of the Sisters, said they have received every attention and hospitality from private individuals and organizations.

"We are having a marvellous time," said Sister E. Ford of Toronto. "Today we were at No. 10 Downing Street and actually saw Anthony Eden. He really is the best dressed man in the empire and very handsome. We saw Gen. Ironside too."

Miss O'Donohue said she and Miss Marjorie McCullough, both of Winnipeg, learned to walk all over again since they came to London and have been busy exploring the sights.

The blue uniforms attracted many youthful autograph hunters.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 3—(AP)— The stock market poised itself uncertainly today on the edge of the July fourth holiday and share averages got nowhere.

Early declines largely disappeared toward the fourth hour in dawdling trading which left the ticker tape slack most of the time.

Among the more active shares—holding their own or moving fractionally ahead—were New York Shipbuilding, Packard, Loft, International Mercantile Marine, Allied Chemical, Pennsylvania Railroad, American Telephone and Youngstown Sheet.

Most Canadian issues were inactive. Dome lost 1-4 while McIntyre gained 1-8. In the bond market Canada 4s were unquoted.

LEWIS ENDORSES SENATOR WHEELER

Washington, July 3 — (CP) — While a 12-member advisory committee took charge of Wendell Willkie's Republican presidential campaign, John L. Lewis' endorsement of Senator Burton K. Wheeler for president of the United States developed new third party talk today among the Wheeler forces.

Lewis gave his endorsement in an address at the National Townsend Pension Convention at St. Louis yesterday shortly after Wheeler had told reporters that his name would be placed before the Democratic national convention regardless of whether President Roosevelt sought renomination.

Wheeler previously had said he would seek the nomination only if Mr. Roosevelt did not run for a third term.

Without waiting for the Democrats to pick his opponent, Willkie began yesterday to organize his campaign. He said that he wanted no "corporate contributions in any guise," and that any contributions exceeding $5,000 from one source would be rejected.

Egg Prices Firm, Butter Trading Dull

Toronto, July 3—Prices held firm for eggs and steady for butter and cheese during the week's opening session of the Toronto open produce market yesterday.

Good inquiry from the start was reported on the egg market. Offerings continued light, with receipts falling off and a reduced proportion of grade A large in the shipments that arrived here. Prices were firm, particularly on top grades, in both sections of trading. Government inspected shipments brought 1-2 cent per dozen premium.

The butter market remained steady although light trading prevailed. A little business went through at 21 1-4 cents for No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids, but in many cases holders were not willing to sell at this figure at which buyers were willing to purchase. A similar situation was seen in the Western product, where buyers bid 21 3-4 cents and sellers refused to release supplies below 22 cents per pound. No sales were recorded in the product here.

Sales were a shade better on the wholesale cheese market. Current make, new, large paraffined traded at 13 3-4 cents per pound.

PRINCESS ALICE GREETS EVACUEES

Is One of First to Open House to Three British Children—Will Welcome Three More

Ottawa, July 3 —(CP)— Among the first to open her home to evacuees from Great Britain, Her Royal Highness the Princess Alice, has welcomed three children to Government House since her arrival here June 21. Three more will come this week.

Foremost consideration just now for the wife of the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, is the settlement of thousands of children to be brought from Great Britain to Canada for the duration of the war.

Meantime the two little daughters of Princess Juliana of The Netherlands, Beatrix, 2½, and Irene, nine months, play in the Rideau Hall grounds every day and bring children's laughter to the vice-regal residence for the first time in many years.

Baroness Rouell, lady-in-waiting to Princess Juliana, has arrived at Rideau Hall with her young daughter to add to the royal refugees who came from England after fleeing Nazi-invaded Holland. They too will remain for some time.

Later this week three small grandchildren of the Governor-General will come with their mother, Lady May Abel Smith, to stay probably until after the war is over.

On sunny mornings the ping of the tennis ball can be heard on the Government House tennis courts where the Princess Alice and her husband may be found playing a few sets before luncheon. They are both fond of walking and tramp about the spacious lawns of Rideau Hall.

GOV'T ACTIVITIES

4. Announcement that the Citadel Merchandising Company, a Government-owned corporation designed to ensure a supply of machine tools and euipment necessary to war industry, was in full operation. It will co-ordinate production and procurement of machine tools throughout the Dominion.

5. Announcement that 1,000 tradesmen a week are being enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force in advance of actual requirements.

Impart Military Training

Meantime officers and officials of the department of National Defence worked on plans to impart military training to thousands of men for home defence purposes.

However, men may not be called up for compulsory service for some time as training facilities will be fully employed with training the non-permanent active militia as well as the mobilized units of the Canadian Active Service force.

All militiamen will probably get a prolonged period of training in camp before the doors are opened to the new men who may be called upon under the recently enacted National Resources Mobilization Act.

The War Industries Control Board will consist of the Steel, Oil, Metals and Timber controllers appointed under the Department of Munitions and Supply and any other controllers who may be appointed.

Organized as a Board they will discuss common problems and adapt their policies to conform with those of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

Seek For More Gold Production

Thus the Metals Controller may seek to encourage gold production, perhaps use his powers to clear away obstacles holding up production in particular cases, such as lack of capital, transportation or power difficulties.

In this way a greater output of gold might be encouraged to better Canada's exchange position.

The powers of the Controllers include the rationing of products and the licensing of producers and dealers. They include confiscation and payment in some cases at prices fixed by the Controllers and in some cases of the Exchequer Court.

The Timber Controller, for instance might order cut a stand of timber being kept in reserve by the owner, or send his men in to cut it and take it away.

Death Penalty Recommended

The Special Committee of the House reviewing the Defence of Canada Regulations made an interim report finding Canada's laws dealing with treasonous activities inadequate. It recommended the death penalty for direct acts of assistance to the enemy and life imprisonment for less serious acts.

The committee recommended the death penalty be inflicted for knowing assistance to the enemy's forces, for impeding the forces of His Majesty and endangering life. Acts less serious and likely to assist the enemy, to prejudice public safety or the defence of Canada or to interfere with the efficient prosecution of the war might be punishable by life imprisonment.

In the preamble to the report the committee recognized that it was common knowledge the enemy conducted treasonable and dangerous activities in countries with which he was at war, commonly known as "fifth column" activities. Some time ago in the Commons Arthur Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) a member of the committee suggested in the Commons the death penalty be made applicable to treasonable acts.

Problem Largely Solved

Munitions Minister Howe announced the problem of getting aircraft for training purposes which became acute when Great Britain was unable to supply the planes, had been largely solved. The original plan for Canadian production as well as British production would be carried out in Canada. Increased Canadian aircraft production and the purchase of large numbers of engines made this possible.

Air Minister Power gave a few details about the application of the recently announced policy of putting air force volunteers in uniform instead of letting them wait until they were required as tradesmen in the expanding training program. The 5,000 it was proposed to call were being taken on strength at the rate of 1,000 a week.

ANTI-JEWISH

Parliament to Meet

Official quarters made no effort to minimize the seriousness of these disorders; coming at a time when Hungarian troops were massed on the frontier in support of Hungary's claim for return of Transylvania and when Bulgaria was pressing for a similar annexation of southern Dobruja.

The Rumanian Parliament was scheduled to meet today after two postponements.

While Rumania observed a day of national mourning as a result of the cession of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia, Rumanian and Russian delegates met at Odessa to discuss the new boundary between the two countries.

Diplomatic quarters expressed belief that the anti-Semitic attacks were inspired by Iron Guard (Fascist) extremists trying to embarrass King Carol. Spread of the attacks coincided with Rumania's definite alignment with Germany.

Say King Wanted to Abdicate

(Diplomatic circles in Belgrade reported that Carol had told his cabinet he was planning to abdicate because of the loss of territory to Russia and other developments of the past few days but that the cabinet had persuaded him to remain on the throne.)

Bucharest had a real war-time appearance last night as a partial blackout was put into effect for the first time. Only blue street lights were visible.

Police were given carbines and all cafes were closed.

On Guard Against Hungarian Attacks

Reports from Oradea, in Transylvania on the Hungarian frontier, said the Rumanian army was busy with defence preparations against what officers called "habitual Hungarian night attacks."

Meanwhile Carol kept in close touch with the Axis powers, which were said in diplomatic quarters to be making every effort to avert actual war in the southeast.

The worst anti-Semitic disorders last night appeared to have been in Bucharest itself, where fighting broke out among students, chiefly at Polytechnic High School. Several were injured critically here.

Women Dragged from Trains

Near the Prut River Jewish refugee women and children were said to have been dragged from trains and beaten.

An indication that Rumania expects to get back Bessarabia and northern Bucovina some time—perhaps with German aid—was seen in an address by Foreign Minister Constantine Argetoianu in which he said these territories "are still and will remain Rumanian."

Argetoianu told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies that "one of the main reasons for our consent to Russia's demands was that we found ourselves without friends and without support."

The status of German-Soviet relations was a topic of speculation in diplomatic circles. It was reported that a German general arrived today to confer with a military mission already in Bucharest. A German delegate who went to Bessarabia to look after the interests of German citizens there returned to Bucharest with the report that Soviet authorities refused to let him enter.

3 COASTAL TOWNS

First Full Daylight Raids.

An afternoon communique of the Home Security Ministry said the bombs dropped this morning "were few in number and do not appear to have been directed at any particular objective. So far as is known only two persons were slightly injured."

The attacks were the first in the full light of day for the British Isles. On Monday and Tuesday, however, raiders appeared in the long summer twilight.

One lone plane, believed German, was sighted after dawn today near the coast but was quickly chased to sea by anti-aircraft fire and fighter planes. An Air Ministry communique said the Germans had lost 24 aircraft since they started wholesale raids on this country the night of June 18.

Nazi Cruiser Hit in Kiel Drydock

The newest raid came after British bombers swarmed over Germany, raided the Kiel district and bombed the ill-starred battle cruiser Scharnhorst as she lay in drydock undergoing repairs for damage suffered in two fights with British naval forces. Four direct hits were scored on the vessel and on the drydock.

Other bombers hit the Homburg Oil Refinery, a viaduct at Hamm, an "important target" at Duisberg and a blast furnace at Meiderich, all in the vicinity of Kiel.

The Royal Air Force also bombed an aircraft factory at Deichshausen, near Bremen, hit the airport and damaged the works. Other airports at Wesel, Cologne and Venlo were subject to attack, while fleet air arm craft bombed barges and river traffic in the Rotterdam neighborhood.

Four British aircraft were lost.

(War correspondents arriving at Munster as guests of the German army reported last night that persons there spent three uncomfortable hours in air raid shelters in what the Germans told them was the third consecutive British air raid on the place.)

Three Coastal Towns Raided

The heaviest assault on Britain last night came at three northeastern coastal towns.

At least ten of the dead and many of the injured were reported in one town where a lone raider dropped high explosive bombs on thickly inhabited areas.

In a section embracing four or five streets, firemen and air raid precautions squads worked in relays throughout the night digging for trapped victims.

Shattered glass coated the streets for more than a quarter of a mile.

Eight persons were injured—two seriously—when bombs fell in another northeast town and in the outskirts of another. One woman running for refuge died of a heart attack.

The Nazi raiders dropped bombs "at random in some southern and southwestern areas," a communique of the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security asserted today, but paparently there were no casualties or serious damage there or in Wales.

It was the second successive evening of raids in which the German bombers crossed the coast during the long summer twilight.

Mother and Child Killed

Names of last night's victims were not disclosed immediately, although it was said the father, mother and young child of a family named Scullion were all killed when they emerged from their shelter too soon.

Most of th injuries were reported caused by broken glass, an indication that the populace was not making the fullest use of shelters provided by their local authorities and the Home Office.

While the nation watched developments in the Balkans, The Times described Soviet Russia's advance into Rumania as designed "to keep Germany and her Axis partner (Italy) at a safe and respectful distance."

It commented that any outbreak of hostilities in the Balkans "would jeopardize Germany's supplies at a moment when she is about to embark on her decisive challenge to Britain."

Other developments included:—

Eighteen persons were arrested by Scotland Yard yesterday in one of the most extensive roundups of suspected "Fifth Columnists" in London.

M. P. Asks Pledge of Victory

Captain Frank Medlicott, M. P., said he would ask Prime Minister Churchill in the House of Commons "if he will take such steps as will enable individual Members of this House to enter into a solemn pledge that this House will not assent to signing of any treaty of peace with Germany until decisive victory over that country has been won."

300 YOUNGSTERS NOW EVACUATED

Passage Paid by Their Parents and Will be Affiliated With Canadian Schools

Quebec, July 3 (CP).—Early arrivals in the greatest overseas movement of children in history, a group of 300 youngsters evacuated from the war dangers of the United Kingdom, were in Canada today.

A six-year-old British boy had a word for it when he landed at Quebec yesterday. "Oh my, this is Canada. Doesn't it look peaceful?" he remarked to a four-year-old companion.

The youngsters had their passage paid by their parents. Other groups will have their transportation provided by the British government.

One of the groups arriving yesterday was in charge of Maj. F. J. Ney, executive vice-president of the National Council of Education. They are being transferred from British schools to affiliated schools in the dominion.

Prominent passengers were aboard the same ship as the children. Among them were Lady May Abel-Smith, daughter of the Earl of Athlone and the Princess Alice, and her three children. She will visit her parents at Rideau Hall.

Frau Engelbert Dollfuss, widow of the Austrian chancellor, and her two children were other passengers. After wandering about the Balkans following the murder of her husband by Nazis in 1934, she took up residence in Rural England two years ago.

Children Inspect Quebec.

Curious about their new country, the children inspected Quebec's towering cliffs. One youngster was unable to cavort with his comrades. He was Hon. Victor Harmsworth, grandson of Lord Rothermere, British publisher, who suffered a broken arm in an accident on his way to the Dominion.

Some of the group in Maj. Ney's charge will go to Ashbury College, Ottawa, and others to Edgehill School for Girls, Windsor, N.S. Maj. Ney said plans for evacuating other school children in England were practically complete.

Maj. Ney said he found among the British' people "a growing sense of the fact that they are searching the hour for which the empire was born," during his recent trip to England.

"People know," he said, "where they stand and what they have to face. No doubt, there are hard and dark days ahead but all are confident that eventually Hitler will be beaten."

60 Italian Planes At Least Downed By R. A. F. in June

Cairo, July 3 (AP)—The Royal Air Force shot down 60 Italian planes in the Near East in June and probably 25 others, an authoratative source declared today.

British losses were not disclosed, but they were said to be "exceedingly small."

Rhodesian fliers from the south are attacking Ethiopian bases frequently, causing "considerable damage", this source said. Scores of gasoline and bomb dumps have been fired.

The mis-named British camel corps (actually composed of motorized units of Samali Desert tribesmen) is causing heavy damage to Italian military concentrations in Ethiopia.

British activity on the western Libyan frontier has been confined principally to bombing military bases. The British air raiders apparently are testing out Italian strength as a possible prelude to land offensives.

The last attack on Macaaca airdrome, near Assab, Eritrea, brought destruction of three Italian planes.

Operating from Sudan, R.A.F. bombers attacked an Italian military concentration at Metemma, Libya, starting fires in the quarters of natives troops and damaging machine-gun and artillery posts.

PATIENT SHOOTS PSYCHIATRIST

Tells Police He Wished to Make Doctor 'Suffer' as He Had

Cleveland, July 3 (AP)—Shot by a disgruntled former patient who "wanted to make him suffer as I have," Dr. Louis J. Karnosh, 48, noted Cleveland psychiatrist, lay critically wounded today.

A bullet pierced the right side of the doctor's neck after he answered his assailant's ring at the door of his home in Shaker Heights, fashionable suburb, shortly before midnight.

An hour later a man who gave his name as Abraham Vartanian, 40, of Akron, O., surrendered at police headquarters and reported he had shot the doctor, officers said.

Detective Carl Zicarelli quoted Vartanian as saying he wanted to make the psychiatrist "suffer" for a report he wrote after treating him for an industrial injury received at an Akron rubber company.

Vartanian asserted the report resulted in reduction of his injury compensation of $30 weekly and this was not enough for support of his wife and children, the officer said.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, July 3. — (Special) — The funeral of the late Mrs. Catherine Flindall took place yesterday afternoon from the Northey Funeral Home on Dundas Street, Trenton.

The late Mrs. Flindall died at Cobourg on June 29, following a short illness. She was the widow of Henry Flindall of Cobourg, who predeceased her several years.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. W. Robins of the King Street United Church. Interment was held in the family plot in the Carrying Place Cemetery. The pall bearers were all nephews of the deceased woman.

Sequel to Accident

Joseph Switzer of Smithfield, was fined $10.00 and costs in police court here yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving. Magistrate E. J. Butler imposed the fine after hearing the evidence given by Chief William Bain.

The charge arose out of an accident on the intersection of Queen and King street, yesterday morning. An automobile owned and being driven by Switzer north on Queen Street collided with a truck driven west on King Street by James Leeworthy. Damage to the truck was estimated at $150.00.

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving Clifford Dawson, R.R. 6, Trenton, was fined $7.00 and costs, here yesterday afternoon.

It was charged that Dawson while making a left hand turn from Dundas Street to Ontario Street cut the corner too sharply and collided with Jean McCoy, 57 Herbert Street, Trenton, who was riding a bicycle west on Dundas Street. The girl escaped with minor injuries.

Four Trenton citizens were fined one dollar each yesterday on charges of breach of the Parking By-Law.

Bernard Dolan, Trenton, was fined $5.00 and costs on a highway traffic charge.

Highway Traffic Charges

Joseph Michalek, Frankford, was fined $10.00 and costs on a charge of driving without a permit. He appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, yesterday and paid the fine.

Harry MacFarlane was fined $5.00 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding.

Found guilty on charges of panhandling James Sweeney, and William Maxwell, both transients were sentenced to eight days in the County Jail.

Unable to pay his fine of $10.00 and costs, when he pleaded guilty to a drunkenness charge, Gerald Wycott was sentenced to fourteen days in the common jail.

Charge and counter-charge were aired in the Trenton police court yesterday before Magistrate E. J. Butler. Vincent McEvoy, Campbellford, charged Miller Cameron, Perth, Ontario, with crowding on the highway under the Highway Traffic Act. Cameron laid a counter charge of cutting-in. The Magistrate reserved judgment for one week after hearing the evidence of the two charges.

Girl Sent Back to Oshawa

Trenton police apprehended a young girl who was found sitting in a doorway on Dundas Street, in the early morning hours. The girl gave her address as Oshawa.

She informed the police they said, that she had left home on Monday night to look for a job. During the first night, the girl stayed in Bowmanville and then got a ride to Port Hope on Tuesday, where she looked for a job, she said, according to the police. Last evening, she hitch-hiked to Trenton and had been wandering the streets until the police picked her up at four o'clock this morning. Chief Bain placed the wanderer on an Oshawa-bound bus, this morning.

Wanted since last Christmas, Ethel Purdy, alias "Babe" Dunford, was brought to Trenton yesterday to face a number of charges of false pretences. It is alleged that she passed a number of worthless cheques in the district during the Christmas rush.

The accused woman was apprehended in Cobourg on Monday and was returned here yesterday. She was remanded in custody until Friday.

Passport Issuing Suddenly Becomes Big Business

Ottawa, July 3 (CP)—Passport issuing has suddenly become big business.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons Tuesday that every effort was being made to meet the situation created by the new "United States" regulations requiring a passport for entrance of Canadian tourists.

Meantime the passport authorities here have received 100,000 applications and have sent 75,000 application blanks to points where they may be picked up by would-be visitors to the United States.

The Ottawa passport staff has been increased from nine to 60. Thousands of letters of enquiry are received daily.

A branch office has been set up in Windsor, Ont., where border crossing has heretofore been as casual as breakfast. There is another branch in southern British Columbia and informed officials may be sent to St. Stephen N.B., and other border points.

Largely Increased Staff

Because up to last Monday no passport was required of Canadians visiting the United States and the war had cut down Canadian travel abroad the passport office here has been a quiet place. Now with the holiday season at hand it is the busiest place in Ottawa with the largely increased staff on the job from nine o'clock in the morning until past midnight. Until a couple of weeks ago arrangements to handle the new situation had to be made in a hurry.

With the new price of $1 on special one-year-passports to the United States officials believe that the situation will shortly quiet down.

Canadians resident in the United States who find themselves visiting in Canada without having procured re-entry permits are, however, in a slightly awkward situation. It will be necessary, it was explained at the United States Consulate, for them to obtain new visas for entry. It has not yet been decided whether they will require passports.

Coast Defence Of Great Britain Is Quite Deep

By TOM YARBROUGH

Associated Press Staff Writer

Somewhere on the English Coast, July 3 —(AP)— Drawn bayonets of Britain's finest fighting men glisten in defiant watch along England's new front line — beaches cleared of holiday crowds and studded with gun emplacements and pillboxes.

Guns are wheeled into place, pointing out to sea. Sentries stand ready to cry the warning and fire the first shots against expected blitzkrieg troops.

Military officials today took reporters on a tour of defences around this once-teeming beach resort from which the civil populace is barred, effective last night.

Guides pointed out machine gun nests in the sand and heavier guns hidden in the hills behind.

Troops we saw along the sandy front were the men of Dunkirk, bitterly experienced in the Nazi war technique, but ready for another crack at "Jerry."

The Germans chased them out of Flanders, but it's different now, as one veteran put it:—

"Because we're fighting for our homes."

The troops hustle bren gun carriers resembling light tanks over hills heavy with history and spread smoke screens in rehearsal for attack.

The depth of the coast defence system was not disclosed, but one high officer commented: "It's deep, all right."

Only a few civilians turned out for their last day on the beach.

Soviet Advance Puts Germany And Italy on Spot

London, July 3—(CP)—The Times described Soviet Russia's advance into the Balkans today as designed "to keep Germany and her axis partner at a safe and respectful distance".

"In this country it will be well to suspend judgment on these proceedings and to resist the temptation to exaggerate any displeasure which they may have caused at Berlin", the newspaper advised in an editorial on the "Balkan cauldron".

The Times expressed the view, however, that the Soviet advance has "complicated many problems for Nazi authorities".

"Soviet troops are now established far too near to Rumanian oilfields for Germany's peace of mind", the Times continued.

"Hungary, indignant that satisfaction given to Moscow's claims against Rumania should be refused to her own is pressing her demands in Rome, and, doubtless, also in Berlin. Bulgarian impatience, though more carefully veiled, is not less real and not less well founded".

The Times said: "There are signs that Italy, not without German backing, is wooing the co-operation of the Petain government in terms of defence of a common Latin and Catholic civilization against Bolshevism— a reversion to pre-war ideology which will hardly smooth the thorny path of German-Soviet relations in south-eastern Europe".

SUBJECT OF TALK IS CITIZENSHIP

Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne is Special Speaker at 'Citizenship Week' Luncheon

A better conception of citizenship and what it means to be a citizen of Canada was exemplified by Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Rector of St. Thomas Church, when he addressed the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon, on Tuesday at the Queens Hotel, on the subject "Citizenship Today". The occasion was the celebration of Citizenship Week inaugurated by the Kiwanis International to make the members more conscious of the fine heritage it is theirs to enjoy. The address was one of the best and most timely that has been given the club in some time and the members were decidedly conscious after the meeting of the responsibility that confronts them as citizens of Great Dominion and the British Empire.

After an introduction by Cliff Baragar, Rev. Mr. Payne stated we were all citizens because of an inherent right and a privilege handed down for many generations. "Our citizenship was gained by the Magna Charta" said the speaker "because the Barons of England arose and demanded Justice, Liberty and Freedom. Today some think that citizenship will offer because of the state of affairs of the world a better opportunity to make more of these worldly goods but if that is the interpretation of citizenship we had better lose it immediately because today the keynote of citizenship is unselfishness and unless we are prepared for sacrifices we are not entitled to the privileges that have been handed down to us."

Slave of State

The speaker explained that in the totalitarian states the person is a slave of the state and the subject of dominating minds but in our system of citizenship the boundaries are not limited to local conditions, Provincial or Canadian but it reaches out to the whole civilized world. "We must be uncomplaining and must be ready to toil and sacrifice and even make the supreme sacrifice of all if we are to retain our citizenship in this democracy. Mr. Payne stated an instance of this was given in the budget where it was accepted without a murmur knowing that we must pay and pay dearly if we art to retain our freedom. He cited many cases of response to that citizenship in the valiant deeds of our Canadian Navy, the valor of our army and the valor of our Air Force. He told his listeners that England had her "back to the wall" but he added "that is when we are at our best." Victim of blitzkriegs and fifth columns, the furnace of affliction has brought forth the real soul of the Empire the speaker declared and a great effort will be put forth, yes a winning one that our citizenship will be retained.

Rev. Mr. Payne recounted how Britain had lost first one ally then another until she stands alone but she will always have one great ally first and last and that is God. The Great Comforter will stand beside Britain because Britain is right and the British Navy will keep open the seven seas and the Britisher will fight on in the country, on the beaches and in the streets and fields until the curse of Europe is wiped from the face of the earth.

The appreciation of the club was expressed by Ross Stiver.

Bill Anderson was chairman of the meeting with Ed Willing as Sergeant-at-Arms and Harold Carruthers as song leader. Leo B. Riggs accompanied for the community singing. The club discussed the plans to be employed to raise money for their forthcoming street carnival but the matter was left for the directors to decide and a decision will be given at a future meeting.

GUNMEN KILLED BY OFFICERS

McAllen, Tex., July 3 — (AP)— Two unidentified gunmen, who earlier had killed a woman hostage, were shot to death today in a second battle with peace officers.

The woman, Mrs. D. Davis, 25, of Kingsville, was shot as she fled from the outlaws with her husband and a man companion, at the outset of the first battle. The gunmen had commandeered the Davis car.

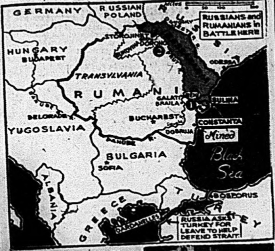
RUMANIA FACES FURTHER LOSSES AS NEIGHBORS SNARL



Oil-rich Rumania, already shorn of valuable territory by Soviet Russia, momentarily expects to face further demands from two other neighbors, Hungary and Bulgaria, both of whom seek return of areas lost to King Carol's country at the end of the first great war. The map shows the area of Russian occupation and also the boundaries over which Hungarian troops (LOWER LEFT) and Bulgarian forces (LOWER RIGHT) may soon be marching. Carol's armies (TOP LEFT) retreated before the Red invasion but there are indications that they might be ready to match their strength with either or both the other revisionist nations. Best bet is that Russia will peacefully complete occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina and that Hungary and Bulgaria, under pressure from Italy and Germany, will leave their claims for later settlement.

Large Scale Bombing Raids Carried Out By R. A. F. Fliers

London, July 3—(CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that the Royal Air Force last night raided military objectives in Denmark, Belgium, the Ruhr and Westphalia.

The ministry said that Texel, in the Frisian Islands, and Ymiuden, in northern Holland, were bombed today and the Belgian port of Zeebrugge last night.

One R.A.F. plane was reported missing.

WAR BRIEFS

In Conversation With Gov't.

London — The British government "are in relation with the Petain government of France through the French charge d'affairs in London," Richard Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today.

"I cannot further define how our attitude to the Petain government will develop," he added.

Possible Free Mail

London — Postmaster General W. S. Morrison told the House of Commons today that he is communicating with the Dominion authorities with a view to arranging for the Dominion military forces in this country to send mail home free of postage.

Strong Resistance Seen

London—Richard Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today that there is "evidence of strong potential resistance" in Ethiopia against Italy's rule.

How to Make Good Meals at Low Cost Taught Ontario Women in War Effort Course

Guelph, Ont., July 3 — (CP)— Under the direction of Superintendent Olive Cruikshank the special nutrition and war effort course got under way at Macdonald Institute, Ontario Agricultural College, here.

The course is designed to show Ontario women how to make good meals at low cost during wartime, when conservation of the nation's food supply may become necessary.

Candidates for the course, chosen through the Canadian Red Cross Society, Ontario Division, are expected to spend some part of their time during the coming months in bringing the important facts they learn to the attention of other women in their community.

The cost of the course is being born by the Ontario Agricultural College and the Canadian Medical Association, with the assistance of the life assurance companies.

The course will continue until July 27.

Japan's ambassador to the United States, Kensuke Horinouchi, slices the ornate birthday cake which decorated the head table at ceremonies marking the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of Japanese empire. The celebration was held in New York. His excellency doubtless appreciated omission of the customary candle-a-year on the birthday sweetmeat.

Despite the fact that they have absolutely no military defences, the peaceful Channel Islands were strafed and bombed by Nazi planes 75 miles south of England, shortly after the British government had forcibly evacuated 90,000 persons from the islands. Lying within easy artillery fire from German guns, the islands were stripped of all crops and other us able products before the population left them. Despite the small number of persons left on the islands, 29 were killed by the low-flying Nazi bombers who strafed the islands with machine-gun fire. A view of the harbor of St. Peter's, port on the island of Guernsey is shown, LEFT, while a view of Boulay bay on the island of Jersey may be seen, RIGHT.

COL. FRANK KNOX APPROVED AS NAVY SECRETARY

Senate Naval Affairs Committee Sanctions Appointment by 9-5 Vote

GOES TO SENATE

Washington, July 3.—(AP)—The Senate Naval Affairs Committee today approved by a vote of 9-5 the nomination of Col. Frank Knox, Chicago Republican, to be secretary of the United States Navy.

This action declared the way for Senate consideration next week, of the Knox appointment and the nomination of Henry L. Stimson, also a Republican, to be Secretary of War.

The Naval Committee vote came after Knox had been questioned about, and had denied, a report that he favored sending United States soldiers to fight in Europe. Stimson's nomination was approved yesterday by the Senate Military Affairs Committee, 14 to 3.

Knox reiterated, as Stimson and he had testified yesterday, that both men accepted the Cabinet positions out of a sense of duty.

Senator Rush Holt (Dem.-West Virginia) asked whether Knox thought there was any "danger" in the formation of a coalition government.

Just Trying to Do Job

"You haven't got a Coalition government", the witness replied. He said it was his idea that a "coalition" implied official party action on both sides.

"We are not representing the Republican Party at all" he added of Stimson and himself. "We are just two private individuals trying to do a job", he continued.

Mrs. Henel Essary, columnist for a Washington newspaper, had been invited to testify today about an article she wrote June 22 asserting Knox had told her that he favored sending not only cash, credit and supplies but also men to fight for the Allies. She did not appear.

Not His Position

Knox said he had spoken to Mrs. Essary at a party in Washington on January 30, but had had so many conversations then that he could not remember all of them in detail. He insisted, however, that sending men to Europe was not his position and never had been.

Walsh also reported that a committee member had told him that a constituent said he could produce affidavits of a movement to permit the British fleet to use American harbors.

Knox said he had not heard of any such a proposal and expressed the opinion that if any British fighting ships put into American harbors they would have to be interned.

Switzerland Hears First Echoes of Criticism From Reich

Berne, Switzerland, July 3—(AP)—Switzerland, acutely aware of her position as an island of democracy in the midst of totalitarian lands, heard with concern today the first echoes of criticism from Germany.

Only last night German troops occupied the last of the former French outposts along Switzerland's western border.

The Swiss cocked an attentive ear to these two statements from Berlin:

1. In comment on expulsion from Germany of Reto Caratsch, chief Berlin correspondent of the leading Swiss newspaper Neue Zuricher Zeitung, an authorized Nazi spokesman said that "if such reporting had continued, it would have endangered the existence of the Swiss state." The spokesman said the action resulted from comment on Soviet-German relations.

2. The German radio said British bombers which reached German cities on Lake Constance Sunday and then flew south to drop some bombs in Swiss peat bogs and forests had flown over Swiss territory to get at Germany.

Although the Swiss Government has made no comment on these two incidents, President Marcel Pilet-Golaz has warned his countrymen in effect that their life henceforth will be no bed of roses.

BRITAIN REFUSES JAPAN'S DEMANDS

Will Not Close the Arms Route Through Burma to Chinese Forces

Tokyo, July 3 —(AP)— Great Britain has refused the Japanese demand that the arms route through Burma to the Chinese forces of General Chiang Kai-Shek be closed, it was reliably reported tonight.

London's attitude was said to have been conveyed to the British Ambassador in Tokyo, Sir Robert Craigie, who has not yet informed the Foreign Office here.

This question is a factor in the tense Japanese political situation marked by strong representations of army leaders to the cabinet over the policy to be followed in the Far East in the light of Allied reverses in Europe.

The military leaders are said to have expressed dissatisfaction with the stand taken by Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, apparently holding that this plan for an "Asiastic sphere" dominated by Japan is not strong enough.

Foreign Policy Stated

Arita enunciated last Saturday a foreign policy based on creation of an "Asiatic sphere" in which Japan would be dominant—an advance from the previous position of insistence of maintenance of the status quo in East Asia.

The Foreign Minister's speech caused dissatisfaction among the military, it was reported, but informed political quarters held that the real issue between the military and the Foreign Office is deeper than that.

Saturday night a group of leading Japanese army men, said the newspaper Nichi Nichi, decided the war in Europe had presented Japan a "golden opportunity" in which she must take a "strong attitude."

Observers expressed belief that the military men were disappointed in Arita's speech because it avoided both flat encouragement of the Axis powers and an outright declaration for redistribution of the world's resources as a prelude to peace.

URGES BRITAIN BLOCKADE SPAIN

Bartlett Claims Germany Has Almost World Monopoly of Mercury from Spain

London, July 3 (CP). — Vernon Bartlett, M.P., writing in the News Chronicle today urged Britain to blockade Spain since Spain "now is in direct contact with Germany."

Germany, he said, had almost a world monopoly of mercury from the Almaden mines in southern Spain and vast new supplies of iron ore.

"There are already some 60,000 Germans in Spain, and the imminent arrival of mechanized troops for a triumphal parade at San Sebastian naturally gives rise to questions about British measures to secure control of the western Mediterranean," Mr. Bartlett said.

"Answers to questions are not made known in official quarters but one hopes that they are good," he added.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, asking whether non - belligerent Spain is "going to follow non-belligerent Italy into the war against us," declared:

"This much is plain. You need have no fear of Sir Samuel Hoare appeasing Franco. For Franco is in no position to threaten us." Sir Samuel is now British Ambassador at Madrid.

DAYLIGHT RAID MADE BY NAZIS THIS AFTERNOON

A.R.P. Firemen Called Out as Bombers Set Fire to Big Building in S. E. England

NAZI PLANE DOWNED

Baby and Grandmother Are Killed by Bomb Which Demolishes House in S. E. England

London, July 3 (CP)—German bombers in all-day attacks over Britain today killed two persons and injured 22.

London, July 3.—(CP)—German bombers set fire to a big building in Southeast England during an attack this afternoon. Air raid precautions firemen were called out.

One bomb fell in a garden, smashing the front of a house, and two others in an adjoining roadway. Other bombs fell in the open country and in the sea. Royal Air force fighters went up and machine-gun fire was heard.

At one small town three salvos of three bombs each were dropped on the seafront. One of the salvos landed on a golf course.

Nazi planes also throbbed over a northeastern town, but no bombs were dropped immediately.

British defenders tallied their 34th raiding plane brought down in two weeks.

At one point in the south a German bomber fled southward pursued by three Royal Air Force hurricane fighters. With Swastikas plainly visible it swooped to drop "whistling" bombs, then circled and dropped more. A column of smoke rose where the bombs fell.

This morning anti-aircraft defences went into action against German planes which crossed the south coast and dropped bombs at several points.

A baby and a grandmother were reported killed by a bomb which demolished a house in the south-east coast town.

Several workmen were injured by three bombs which dropped in northeastern England.

Four officials with the Secretary of State Department receive no salary. Brig.-Gen. E. deB. Panet, director of internment operations; G. H. Lash, director of public information and Claude Melancon, associate director of public information, each receive $10 a day when away from home.

COMMONS CHEERS CHURCHILL ON DECISION

There Are No British Losses to Ships or Crews at Oran but it is Feared French Lost Heavily. French Ships Boarded in British Ports Include 2 Battleships, 2 Light Cruisers, a Number of Submarines, 8 Destroyers and 200 Smaller Craft — At Alexandria British Seized One Battleship, 4 Cruisers and Some Smaller Vessels — Mr. Churchill Tells of 'Callous' Treatment of Britain by Petain Government Not by French Nation — Many Frenchmen Desire British Nationality — Churchill Praises Courage of French Seamen — Greater Part of French Fleet Now in British Control or Out of Action or Withheld from Germany — No Thought of Peace, Says Churchill, Who Speaks of the 'Spirit of Alert and Confident Energy"

LONDON, July 4 (C.P. Cable)—In the most bizarre and melancholy naval battle of all time, a British battle squadron yesterday destroyed or disabled a big flotilla of French warships at Oran, North Africa.

Prime Minister Churchill told the story to the House of Commons and when he finished every man and woman in the crowded chamber rose and cheered and cheered.

The Prime Minister disclosed that a "large proportion" of the French fleet was in British control at Alexandria, Portsmouth, Plymouth and Sheerness, or put out of action by the Oran naval battle.

Britain, he emphasized time and again, was determined never to permit the Petain government to hand over the French fleet to "their German masters." In British ports the navy took control of two French battleships, two light cruisers, a number of submarines, eight destroyers and 200 smaller vessels. At Alexandria the navy captured one battleship, four cruisers and a number of small vessels.

This was done practically without firing a shot but at Oran, the French colonial port in North Africa, the French Admiral Gensoul was given six hours to make up his mind on five choice which ranged from continuing the fight against the Germans to scuttling his fleet or taking the consequences from the big guns of the British warships covering his squadron.

Admiral Gensoul decided he would resist any attempt to take his ships and the British warships under Vice-Admiral Sir James Somerville started to fire when the time limit elapsed.

When the smoke of battle cleared away, marking the end of this strangest of naval engagements — a battle between Allies, a civil war of the seas — a battle cruiser of the Strasbourg class was damaged and ashore, a battleship of the Bretagne class had been sunk, another of the same class was heavily damaged, and two French destroyers and the seaplane carrier Commandant Teste had been sunk or burned.

The other of the two battle cruisers of the Strasbourg class got away to Toulon but was hit by at least one torpedo by the fleet air arm.

The British battle squadron, which included the aircraft carrier Ark Royal and a cruiser force, apparently suffered no losses, and, as the Prime Minister put it, "the Italian navy kept prudently out of the way."

The most remarkable feature of the Prime Minister's speech was the demonstration he received when he concluded. It was the sort of thing that staid Westminster seldom witnesses—members shouting, cheering and waving order papers. [illegible] minster, the scene bordered on the hysterical.

One British seaman was killed, two British officers and one seaman wounded and one French officer killed. There was no other bloodshed, Mr. Churchill said.

Off Oran, Algeria, a French battleship of the Bretagne class has been sunk and another heavily damaged during the fight for possession of the French fleet, said Mr. Churchill.

'Whole Nation Rejoices', Says Paper, On Seizure of French Warships

London, July 4 (CP)—The Evening Standard today lauded the action of the Royal Navy in seizing French warships and declared "the whole nation rejoices that no academic formulas were permitted to stand in the way of the discharge of our clear duty to our cause."

"We know at any rate," the paper added, "that some part of the Nazi design has been thwarted by display of the same adventurous seamanship which settled the fate of the Graf Spee. . .

"The alternative to this action was certainly to allow the whole might of the French navy to pass into German service. . .

"The first principle in war, as it should have been in diplomacy, is to recognize the enemy. To appease Petain is to appease the Tiger's cub. The cub may be pitied. It is the Tiger's strength and appetite which would be enhanced."

2 Nazi Planes Downed in Raids On English Coast

London, July 4 — (CP) — Two German planes were shot down in attempting attacks on England this afternoon.

Residents on the southeast coast said they saw one German plane crash in the sea after being attacked by British planes.

Another was downed by British fighters over southwest England.

Raiders dropped several bombs on the outskirts of one town in the southwest.

TWO MORE AMBULANCES RECEIVED

Halifax, July 4—(CP)—Two more ambulances have been received by the Nova Scotia division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, bringing the total donated to the division up to five. The latest additions are the gifts of Mrs. Charlotte Warner of New Ross, N.S., and Mrs. T. J. Armstrong, Portland, Ore.

NAZI CASUALTIES IN WESTERN DRIVE NUMBER 400,000

German Official Figures Not Worth Very Much Says London Report

FRENCH LOSE 1,500,000

London, July 4 (CP). — British military circles estimated today that Germany's total casualties since May 10, when Germany launched her westward drive against the lowlands and France, have been about 400,000.

(On July 2 the German high command placed the Nazis' total casualties since May 10 at 156,492. These figures represented, the high command said, 27,074 killed, 111,034 wounded and 18,384 missing.)

(Private estimates have placed French dead, wounded and missing at 1,500,000 in the last month of her hostilities.)

These circles, pointing to German official figures of 10,000 killed between May 10 and June 4 and 17,000 killed between June 5 and June 21, said, "the general conclusion is that German official figures are not worth very much."

The 400,000 estimate included casualties of all kinds except prisoners subsequently released.

CALLING OF MEN WILL NOT WAIT FOR REGISTRATION

Prime Minister King Answers Inquiry from George S. White, M.P. Hastings - Peterboro

REGISTRATION METHOD

Ottawa, July 4 (CP).—Calling of men for service with the Canadian defence forces will not await general registration of citizens, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons yesterday.

In reply to a question from G. S. White (Con. Hastings-Peterboro) concerning registration and the time when the first call might be made for defence forces under the Mobilization Act, the prime minister said:

"Until the Department of National Defence has made the regulations which it deems essential with respect to the calling up of men, it would be premature on my part to attempt to say just when that calling up will take place."

Asked if there would be registration before the men were called, Mr. King said, "I think I can say that the calling up of men will not necessarily await registration."

Method of Registration.

Reports by the committee on registration presenting a suggested questionnaire and a method of registration are now before the government for decision, Pensions Minister Ian Mckenzie, said in an interview.

The minister said he was not at liberty to discuss a report that the questionnaire would secure information from all citizens from 16 to 60 on age income, qualifications and experience, number of dependents, and that a date might be fixed for registration throughout the country.

This report said that the general election machinery with the voters' list used last March 26 might be employed as a basis for registration and that each person who registered would be given a card to prove that he had conformed to the law.

Penalties, it indicated, would be provided for failure to register.

STAUNCH FRIEND OF NAZI GERMANY NAMED PREMIER

Ione Gigurtu Becomes Chief of Government and Head of Nation's Single Political Party

CAROL SHUNTED BACK

Bucharest, July 4 (AP). — Rumania's new Nazi-Fascist regime was ushered in today with a change of governments bringing formation of a new cabinet headed by Ione Gigurtu, a staunch friend of Nazi Germany.

Like Hitler and Mussolini, Gigurtu becomes the chief of the government as well as the head of the nation's single political party.

Gigurtu succeeded Gheorgehe Tatarescu, whose pro-allied government resigned this morning.

The new pro-German government was named as unconfirmed reports circulated here that Soviet Russia had made new demands on Rumania. These demands, as yet not confirmed officially, were said to call for Soviet control of all bridges along the Prut and Danube rivers where these rivers form the new Soviet-Rumanian frontier.

May Take Back Seat.

Informed political quarters expressed the belief King Carol now may take a back seat for the time being, at least—perhaps something like King Vittorio Emonuele in Italy.

There have been many reports that the pro-Nazi Iron Guard has been clamoring for abdication of King Carol as the man personally responsible for the loss of Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina to Russia. Other leaders, on the other hand, reportedly have urged him to stay.

Tatarescu's resignation has been in the cards since the government's recent renunciation of French-British guarantees of territorial integrity in favor of orientation toward Germany.

All ministers of Gigurtu's government are expected to be former members of the Goga pro-Nazi anti-Semitic cabinet which had more than a month's reign of terror against the Jews during its regime.

Strong Pro-Ally.

Tatarescu was strongly pro-ally. He once declared publicly that Rumania's alliance with France was "unshakable".

Three probable ministers under the new premier are former members of the Nazi-type Iron Guard. They are Gen. Ion Antonescu, former minister of war in the Goga government and probably new vice-premier; Radu Budisteanu, likely under-secretary of justice, and the chief of the Iron Guard, Horia Sima, expected to be under-secretary of education.

American-Japanese Relations More Friendly With Announcement

"Concrete Facts and Deeds" Needed to Relieve "Grave Concern

BRITISH CRITICIZED

Tokyo, July 4—(AP)—A Japanese naval spokesman declared today that United States abandonment of "unwarrantable interference with and obstruction of" Japan's policies in the Far East is among the "concrete facts and deeds" needed to relieve "grave concern" among the Japanese over American-Japanese relations.

He also accused British authorities of deliberately delaying this answer to Japanese demands that passage of military supplies to China over the Burma highway be halted.

Other American "deeds" in which the spokesman said the Japanese would have more confidence than "mere verbal gestures" would include:

1. Abandonment of assistance to the Chinese Government of General Chiang Kai-Shek.
2. Lifting of economic pressure against Japan.

Statements in Washington, he said, show "It is not advisable for the United States to attempt to intervene in far eastern issues beyond legitimate bounds."

He added, however, that "Japan likewise is not in a position to provoke the United States fleet and therefore always has pursued a policy of non-provocation."

The Japanese spokesman also declared Japanese feel the British are "deliberately delaying" a reply to Japan's demand for closing of a military supplies route through Burma to China, thereby "aggravating" Japanese feelings toward Britain.

QUEEN LEARNS ABOUT SNOOKER

London, July 4—(CP Cable) — The Queen now knows the elementary rules of snooker. While visiting the Salvation Army hotel in Bloomsbury for Canadian soldiers on leave, Her Majesty halted at a table where two Canadian seamen were playing a tense game. She stood fascinated by the difficult shot-making. She encouraged the youths to continue the game, inquiring concerning the rules covering each play.

Refugee Children Leave For Homes in Canada

Ottawa, July 4 (CP).—Far from zones of war several hundred refugee children, sons and daughters of the United Kingdom, scattered today to new homes in various sections of eastern Canada.

This changing of abode to escape Hitler's total war threatening their homeland appeared a little strange to most of them. But, cheerful and stout-hearted, they found a ready welcome in a Canada preparing to shelter thousands of such children.

These youngsters came to Canada under private auspices, their fares paid by their parents, relatives or friends.

Soon, however—and across Canada homes are being prepared for them — thousands of children will come to the dominion under the British and Canadian government's plan to house them in safety for the war's duration.

Enter Private Homes.

These first arrivals landed at Quebec and Montreal. Entrained for various centres to enter private homes or schools.

There were little girls with their hair in braids and little boys with knee pants—"stovepipe pants" Canadian kids call them. Most of them clutched some treasured toy, mothers accompanied some of them. Others came with school mistresses or nurses.

They included the sons and daughters of nobility and the sons and daughters of Britain's plain men and women, children from the downs and the coal mine country.

Most prominent, perhaps, were the three children of Lady May Abel-Smith, daughter of Canada's Governor-General and the Princess Alice. They continued on from Montreal to Ottawa to stay at Rideau Hall, already the shelter of three Royal refugee children from The Netherlands.

Lord Bessborough's Son Here

Other notable were Eva, 10, and Rudolph, 8, children of Madame Engbert Dollfuss, widow of the assainated Austrian chancellor and Hon. George St. Lawrence Ponsonby, 8-year-old son of Lord and Lady Bessborough. He was born in Montreal while Lord Bessborough was Governor-General of Canada.

Some 200 children, ranging from two to 16 years, went to Toronto where they were met by officials who will see they get to Ontario homes that have been opened to them. Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the University of Toronto, met 16 children of Oxford University professors who will be cared for by members of the University of Toronto. Eight-year-old Nickey Hardacr was typical of these children. He met newspapermen on their own ground and asked more questions than he answered.

Like Canada a Lot

Nickey pronounced his surname "Hdicker" and barked it out like a machine gun burst. When a reporter couldn't get it on the fourth try Nickey worriedly asked: "Tell me sir, are you deaf?"

Nickey, whose father is serving in Borneo, figured Canada was going to be "topping." He found the locomotive bigger than those at home and saw a mounted policeman almost as soon as he reached Ottawa.

"I am going to like Canada quite a bit really,'" he announced.

Nancy, among 300 children disembarking at Montreal wouldn't tell reporters her last name. She waved her mother and father but she was brave when they didn't show up in the baggage shed. Her father is in the Royal Air Force. Her mother is an air raid warden. For the war Nancy is going to be a Canadian.

Several Hundred Aliens Believed Killed Outright by Blast of Torpedo—Internees Become Very Panicky Mounting Loss of Life

London, July 4 (CP).—Estimates of loss of life in Tuesday's torpedoing of the internment ship Arandora Star ranged upward today from 1,000 and the first survivor to reach London described the vessel's decks as a "sea of faces as she went down".

A torpedo, fired from a German submarine, ripped the one-time luxury liner open off the west coast of Ireland as she plied toward Canada with 1,500 Italians and Germans interned after the outbreak of war.

It was believed that at least 800 Germans and Italians lost their lives during a panic in which they fought each other with fists, nails and teeth in a wild scramble to reach lifeboats.

1,000 Survivors Landed.

About 1,000 survivors were landed yesterday at a west Scottish port, leaving roughly 1,000 missing. About 200 of the missing were believed to be members of the crew and soldiers assigned to guard the aliens on their way to Canadian internment camps.

The sinking was the greatest passenger ship disaster since the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine May 7, 1915, with a loss of 1,198 lives.

May Ask Canadians To Ease up on Pleasure Trips to United States

Ottawa, July 4 (CP)—Confronted with heavy requirements of United States dollars to pay for purchases of war materials in that country, the Canadian government is expected within a day or two to call upon Canadians to ease up on the use of United States exchange in pleasure trips across the border, it was learned last night.

The question was raised in the Commons yesterday when Conservative Leader Hanson protested a Canadian National Railways advertisement offering cheap rates for trips from Montreal to New York:

"Does not the government think that the Canadian National Railways should refuse to foster this kind of appeal to our people—an appeal to go outside our country and spend large sums of money?" Mr. Hanson asked.

"It will be understood," said Transport Minister Howe, "that the Canadian National Railways are in the business of moving passengers and freight and I presume their policy is to attract freight and passengers in both directions." He added the company also advertised in New York to bring passengers to Montreal.

"On the question of exchange I would say that I believe it is a matter receiving the close attention of the government," Mr. Howe said. "I believe action along that line should be announced by the government."

British Oilmen in Rumania Given 24 Hrs. to Leave Country

British Circles Fear This is First Step Toward Nationalization of Oil Fields

ALL 'MINUTE MEN'

Bucharest, July 4 (AP).—British official sources said today British oilmen in Rumania have been given 24 hours in which to leave the country.

British circles said they feared this was the first step toward nationalization of the Rumanian oil fields.

Those involved were said to include the so-called "minute men", who were prepared to sabotage the wells, as in the last war, in case of invasion by Germany or Russia.

These British sources said Ted Materon, head of the English Phoenix Company, one of the largest British concerns was prevented from entering his refinery and was given 24 hours to quit Rumania.

MANITOBA MAN SAVED WHEN ARANDORA SUNK

London, July 4—(CP Cable) —A lone Canadian member of the crew of the torpedoed liner Arandora Star returned to London, reported to his agent, and then disappeared to recover from the long wait in a lifeboat after the rescue. He is E. H. Baldwin, 21, of Starbrook, Man., who served as a scullion or kitchen man.

Strength Detailed of French Navy At Beginning of War Last September

London, July 4—(CP) — The Press Association said today in connection with Britain's seizure of French warships that "the present strength in main vessels of the French navy is stated to be over 180."

At the beginning of the war, the Press Association said, the French fleet had the following ships in commission:

Five capital ships, including the Dunkerque and the Strasbourg, which, pending the completion of new British and French 35,000-ton vessels, are the most modern and fastest capital ships in the world;

Seven 10,000-ton "A" cruisers with eight-inch guns;

12 "B" cruisers from 6,000 to 8,000 tons with speeds between 34 and 40 knots.

38 Destroyers;

37 escort vessels and similar small ships;

30 ocean-going submarines;

One aircraft carrier and

A large fleet of auxiliary vessels.

These ships were manned by 4,900 naval officers, 17,000 warrant and petty officers and 65,000 able and ordinary seamen.

The day before the war began the French had under construction nearly 300,000 tons of warships—four 35,000-ton capital ships, two aircraft carriers, three light cruisers, 26 destroyers, 24 submarines, 26 escort vessels, 53 submarine chasers and motor torpedo boats and nine large oilers.

France's naval losses in the war were negligible until the Dunkirk operations, when she lost seven destroyers.

"Our empire soldiers have been convoyed across the seas partly by French warships, which also have helped, sometimes alone, in bringing food supplies to Britain," the Press Association said.

"A French admiral was in charge of convoying the second contingent of Canadians.

"A French cruiser cooperated in the protection of Australian and New Zealand troops on their way to Egypt.

"The French navy's part in the Dunkirk evacuation will become one of the most glorious episodes in its history."

WATER TOO COOL FOR SWIMMING

A beautiful bright afternoon drew throngs of half-holidayers to Victoria Park on Wednesday afternoon with the express intention of taking a dip in the Bay of Quinte but the temperature of the water proved anything but enticing to the bathers as was proven by the predominance of spectators over swimmers. Only a few hardy ones braved the cool waters of the bay with the vast majority of visitors contenting themselves with a stroll on the park.

EVEN SEE PLANES AT LOCAL GARAGES

And you see them at garages now! A mere ghost of a plane, lacking wings, rudder and elevating planes, with only the bare fuselage and undercarriage visible to tell the passerby that it was once a proud sky-bird, the machine rests in the parking lot of a garage on Moira St.

At one time owned by the Leavens Brothers when they operated a flying field east of Belleville, the plane was stored in a shed at the farm several years ago. Heavy snows came and the roof fell in with dire results to the wings of the plane as the fabric was torn and the ribs broken. Not considered worth repairing, it had remained in the shed until recently when acquired by local interests with the intention of selling or wrecking.

FALL WHEAT, RYE, NOW HEADED OUT

Fall grains such as wheat and rye are now completely headed out in this district but as yet have not started to turn the golden color which signifies the ripening of the crop, soon to be ready for the binder. These two crops are reported to be particularly good in the district with very little lodging evident.

All spring grains, which were sown early are making good growth while some fields that were too wet for oats and barley have been, or will be sown to such alternate crops as millet and buckwheat.

STRAWBERRIES FIRM IN PRICE ON MART

A definite firming in the price of strawberries was noted on the Belleville market on Thursday morning, with eager buyers quickly picking up the morning's offering of berries at ten cents the single box with crate lots being sold for three boxes for twenty-five cents.

Early potatoes began to make their appearance in limited quantities with half pecks being sold for 35c and berry boxes at 15c or two for 25c. Old stock "spuds" were commanding 35c the peck or [illegible] per 75 lb. bag. Peas were offered 40c the quart and 20c the pint with smaller peas going for 35c the six-quart basket. Goose berries were to be had in quantities at two boxes for twenty-five cents.

A limited display of cabbages, lettuce and other vegetables was offered at regular prices, while white fish were selling at 22c lb.

Motorist Injured Near Bancroft

Bancroft, July 4 — (Special)— Claiming he was blinded by the lights of an approaching automobile, a motor car driven by Jack Russell of Bancroft, crashed into the rear of a parked delivery truck operated by Peter Kellar Jr., also of Bancroft, two miles south of this village on Highway No. 62 shortly after 1.30 a.m. today. Kellar, who was getting water for the radiator of his truck from a nearby spring, was knocked down by the force of the impact and sustained an injured knee and badly lacerated face, County Constable G. P. Wells of Bancroft stated after investigation.

The force of the impact, when Russell's car struck the Kellar vehicle, drove the truck some 30 feet ahead, the truck striking Kellar, who was attempting to pour water into the radiator of his truck. Russell is alleged by the police to have moved his automobile before the arrival of the authorities for investigations. Both vehicles were badly damaged while Kellar was attended by a Bancroft physician.

VICTOR MORRIS GETS 26-POUNDER IN MOIRA RIVER

Casting from Shore Near Fairfield's Bridge, Morris Dragged Some Distance in River by 'Lunge'

LOST 10-POUNDER

A story of a fish, which took the fisherman for a swim, was told this morning by Victor Morris, 204 Station Street, as he related his experiences while landing a twenty-six pound 'lunge near Corbyville on Wednesday evening.

While casting along the banks of the Moira river between Corbyville and Fairfield's Bridge, 'Vic' hooked onto a fish that all but defied him to bring it ashore. He had waded out into the soft mud of the river wearing hip-length rubber boots when suddenly the line began to unreel and as he braked the reel to stop the onrush of the fish he was catapulted almost clear of his boots and into the deep water of the river.

He lost one of his rubber boots but hung tenaciously to his fishing rod, as the monster 'lunge endeavored frantically to escape. At times the 'lunge leaped fully ten feet clear of the water in the forty-five minute struggle in which it took to land the beauty.

Mr. Morris stated that he had been fishing in the same spot the night before and had hooked onto a 'lunge of about ten pounds weight but the fish had managed to escape him. Going back last evening he hooked onto the twenty-six pounder which took him into the river and with which he was forced to swim ashore.

'Vic' was as proud as punch this morning as he displayed his catch at the office of the Ontario Intelligencer. A tape line proved his catch to be exactly thirty-six inches in length.

BILLION DEFENCE CONTRACTS SIGNED

U.S. Army and Navy Have Put Pens to Large Orders in Past Month

Washington, July 3—(AP)—The United States army and navy have put their pens to more than $1,000,000,000 worth of defence contracts during the last month, a recapitulation showed today.

The contracts, covering items from beans to bombers, soldiers to submarines, represent, for the most part, the first big block of expenditure commitments in the $4,500,000,000 cash program voted by Congress for the fiscal year which began July 1.

Reports of this progress came as the Senate Naval Committee scheduled consideration of the unprecedented $4,800,000,000 Navy Expansion Bill which would authorize a 70-per-cent jump in fleet strength. The House of Representatives already has approved the measure.

Orders for 87 Navy Vessels

In compiling the $1,000,000,000 contract record, the navy led the way with orders for 87 vessels at a cost of $910,279,000. The sum represents hull construction and machinery only. At least $250,000,000 more will be required to complete equipment of the ships.

The awarding of the navy contracts put under way all the 11-per-cent fleet expansion voted earlier this month, with the exception of two cruisers and three aircraft carriers.

Other defence developments:

President Roosevelt, acting on legislative authorization, imposed a stringent curb on the export of numerous vital war materials and machinery in order to safeguard the country against shortages. This will check the flow of army and navy equipment to Britain.

Labor Policy Unified

Sidney Hillman, Labor specialist of the Defence Commission enlisted the services of 16 American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial organizations leaders to assist him in working out a unified labor policy in defence industries.

The Senate Naval Committee gave quick approval to legislation authorizing construction of a $15,000,000 dry dock in New York harbor, capable of handling the biggest American warships and liners.

Raising of Rents May be Concern Of the Government

Ottawa, July 4 (CP)—The matter of landlords raising rents beyond reason in certain areas where war activity has produced congestion has been receiving the attention of the government, officals said yesterday.

It is probable that if the question becomes serious in such centres as Halifax, Ottawa, Kingston and other cities, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board may be given broadened powers to deal with the situation.

For the last two months authorities do not find that there has been any large increase in rents generally. Figures for May show a rise of about 1 1-2 per cent, but it is admitted that there may have been considerable increases in highly localized areas.

It is understood that the government does not contemplate the setting up of a special board to take care of the situation but that the matter, if it became acute, will be turned over to the Prices Board.

SALVATION ARMY'S 'OTHER-MILE' SERVICE

The Salvation Army news-letter tells a story of war effort. The latest number starts off with "The Army is serving the Navy! At Halifax and Victoria, hotels operated by the Salvation Army are going 'full swing.' Hundreds of navy lads are finding nightly lodging, food, recreation, a genuine home atmosphere in these congenial places. At Halifax there is occommodation for 225 men at the hotel. At Victoria following insistent requests from naval authorities, the service centre premises have been greatly extended to provide sleeping quarters for the seamen." But this is in the line of the Salvation Army, which has for years operated naval and military homes in all the great outposts of British civilization throughout the world.

There is the story that tells more than what is related above. It gives a glimpse of the work of the Salvation Army.

How close the S.A. work comes to the people of every district is shown in an item of interest to this district. "A fine new building has been opened at Trenton, Ont., for the boys of the Air Force."

Here is one of the factors of the Salvation Army. "Our officers are keeping spiritual purposes to the core in all this activity. The news-letter tells of informal and happy Sunday evening sing-song periods during which the officer "got home" some shafts of truth. The letter tells how a high-ranking military officer remarked "It is the spiritual touch we need and you people are qualified to give it."

The broad spirit of the Salvation Army is shown in this—"each one of our auxiliary officers accompanying troops overseas takes with him a trunk packed with chocolate bars, gum, writing paper for distribution to the men aboard ship." '

Then there is the Salvation Army universality. Landing in the Old Land, the soldier is still in touch with the same Salvation Army spirit and purpose.

This letter also contains an appeal for sports equipment for overseas troops. Brigadier Steele says "the demands coming to us to supply sports equipment have been almost beyond our ability to meet. Baseball outfits, football, badminton, punch ball, shot put, tennis, boxing, softball, cricket equipment are found in the inventory of supplies.

The Salvation Army has offered its help in evacuation undertakings because it has had years of experience in large scale migration work and possesses a trained personnel.

At the bottom of the letter are words which mean a great deal: "Once more without apology we emphasize personal service. There must be a divine register for these untabulated acts that seem so small but mean so much," and then there are a few words about visits to piers, mailed last-minute letters and parcels, the giving of writing paper and post cards to soldiers, and cheerful chats with the troops. In one case seven words told a full story, "Our band played them to the station." And so on the story of The S. A. interest in the men as individual souls and as a group of society goes. Her officers have visited homes of enlisted men where there is sickness, have given advice and helped in a myriad of ways in dealing with personal problems. This truly is "other-

FRANCE UNDER NAZI HEEL

What is the position of the French people under the Nazi heel following the armistice? New York Times puts it this way—"The best way to sum up the disciplinary laws imposed upon France by the German conqueror is to say that the Nazi decrees reduce the French people to as low a condition as that occupied by the German people," for military orders now forbid the French to do things which the Germans have not dared to do since Hitler came to power. Half a dozen years ago the Germans lost the right to own radio senders, or to listen to foreign broadcasts, to organize public meetings and distribute pamphlets or to retain possession of firearms. And these same things are denied the French.

The Times asks: "Is it harder on the French people that their liberties have been taken away by a foreign conqueror? Do the German people find solace in the thought that the men who have enslaved them are of their own flesh and blood? Perhaps. But it may conceivably work the other way. Frenchmen may shrug away the bitterness of subjugation by recalling that Frenchmen are no worse off than Germans."

But that is to be doubted. Frenchmen are too spirited to take what the Germans have taken from Hitler and the Nazis. They have known freedom. The German never knew it as the Frenchman did. German repression of the individual was not all the work of the past decade. Old Prussian imperialism which created a Bismarck believed in repressing the life of the people and that imperialism dates back far into history. But France has tasted the precious nectar of liberty and now she tastes the mental and political bondage and stagnation of the German. How can she endure the yoke until the deliverer comes?

General von Brauchitsch's decree on failure of any person to comply with certain orders of the Huns condemns to death or imprisonment at hard labor. That is Germanism, which knows no better. That is one of the tragedies of the world that the German race does not know how far from freedom and liberty it is, how brutal and cruel and unjust it can be.

What must an honest Frenchman who has been as free as the wind that blows think of laws which bind him to his place of employment for he dare not leave his work nor dare his employer dismiss him? No unfavorable reflection is permitted upon the Reich.

German laws rule in the military tribunals set up. Hamilton Spectator comments: "That last condition is the one which must pierce the heart of every free man and woman, every lover of democracy the world over. Nazi courts are a hideous travesty on justice, closed to the public and their procedure based on terror and perjury. They are laboratories of torture and differ little, if at all, from the secret tribunals of the Spanish Inquisition. The accused who enters them is guilty before his "trial" opens and doomed to death or a lingering and living agony of it. Hitler knows neither mercy nor justice; and poor France may never cease to mourn the day that she was given into his clutches."

It is to be hoped that Hitler and his Nazis will demand for themselves in the same measure the severity as they have accorded others over whom they as foreigners have no right but usurp the authority of life and death.

Newspaper Scoop

Ageing journalists might well ask themselves "Where are the scoops of yesteryear?" for these great triumphs, which seemed so momentous at the time, die and are forgotten, save in very rare instances, almost as quickly as the newspapers that print them, which live but a few hours on their brief journey from the printing presses to the yellowing files, says Douglas Reed, writing on famous newspaper scoops in The Strand Magazine, London:

"Only yesterday, as it seems, the entire world was startled by a great scoop—the news from Abyssinia, in the midst of the Italian advance, of the grant of oil rights to a Britisher, Mr. Francis W. Rickett, representing the great Standard Oil Company. At a blow the situation seemed to have been changed. Britain, America and other countries might become involved in a war that they were doing their level best to keep out of, if the great international oil concern were to become implicated. The governments in Washington and London were staggered and alarmed by the news, which they could not believe at first.

"Well, in the end nothing came of it. Abyssinia quickly went the way of all small states, and now it all seems very long ago and to have been much ado about little. But in its day that was a tremendous scoop.

"Sir Percival Phillips, for The Daily Telegraph, and James Mills, for the American Associated Press, shared it. Let into the secret by Rickett himself, they alone knew what was afoot in the Emperor Haile Selassie's palace at Addis Abbaba on that September night in 1935. The Emperor was virtually giving away half his country to the American oil concern in the hope that he could thus save it from being swalowed up by Italy.

"Late that night Rickett came to their hotel and gave them the text of the treaty, and they each sent long stories to their organizations. At first The Associated Press refused to print this dispatch from one of its senior correspondents—who was afterwards nominated for a valuable American journalistic prise for the exploit.

"When the story eventually appeared the entire world was flabbergasted. Ultimately the American Government persuaded the Standard Oil concern not to seek oil in such explosive soil, and the matter dropped. The oil treaty still nominally holds good.

"The hunt for scoops sometimes leads to fantastic places. In the effort to be abreast of their competitors with every piece of news, newspapers sometimes try hurriedly to deal with matters which are not suitable for newspaper reporting at all. or instance, some years ago, in pre-Hitler Berlin, word went round that Professor Einstein, then still in Germany, was about to say something further about the theory of relativity, and that this something would take the form of a pronouncement on the unified theory of fields.

"Some fifty British and American newspaper reporters in Berlin were made miserable for the next fortnight, by admonitory messages from their editors in London and New York, reminding them to send 'good stories' and 'full dispatches' about the new pronouncement as soon as it became public.

"Eventually it became public. Newspaper reporters work to an unwritten rule—that they must be able rapidly to produce an intelligible message on any subject — but not one of them could even begin to translate, much less to understand, the unified theory of fields.

"Then one of them, an indomitable journalist, found a British scientist, who was by chance in Berlin, and who prepared a rough summary of the unified theory of fields in English, beginning like this:

" 'The introduction of farparallelism means that according to this theory there is something like a straight line, that is, a line whose elements are all parallel to each other; such a line is of course in no way identical with a geodetic line."

"A column of this was telegraphed to London and appeared next morning in a daily paper. The reporter in Berlin received an enthusiastic cable of thanks for this 'excellent exclusive message.' On this occasion something that was not intelligible to one reader in twenty counted as a scoop. So fierce is the competition among newspapers."

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Resuscitation from Drowning

At a time when swimming and boating are at their height, I believe it would be well for all of us to be ready to give a helping hand in cases of drowning. The old idea that unless the body is recovered in five minutes or less, nothing can be done, was wrong, and resuscitation has been accomplished when the individual has been in the water over half an hour. In fact we read of cases where recovery has taken place after even longer periods in the water.

At this time therefore, I would like to refer to the recommendations of Drs. D. W. Lougheed, J. M. Janes, and G. E. Hall, University of Toronto, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

All mud, or other substance should be removed from mouth and throat. The body should be gently lifted by the waist, to allow as much water as possible to drain from stomach and lungs. The body should then be placed face downward with the head and chest lower than the rest of the body. With the head of the patient slightly drawn back and lying on one side the Schaefer method of artificial breathing should be started immediately. The tongue should be pulled forward. If tongue does not remain forward and a catheter is available catheter should be pushed gently down throat and if foam blocks it, the foam can be drawn out by suction. A "perle" of amyl nitrite if available, should be crushed and held over open end of catheter.

It is, however, the Schaefer method of artificial respiration that is the most important part of the treatment. It is as follows:

Place the patient face downwards on the ground, then, without stopping to remove clothing, commence artificial respiration.

Put yourself astride or on one side of patient's body, in a kneeling position, facing his head. Placing your hands flat in the small of his back, with the thumbs nearly touching and the fingers spread out on each side of the body over the lowest ribs, lean forward, and steadily allow the weight of your body to fall over upon your hands and so produce a firm downward pressure. By this means the air (and water if any) is driven out of patient's lungs. Immediately thereafter swing backwards, rapidly removing the pressure but without lifting the hands from the patient's body.

Repeat this forward and backward movement every five seconds.

BIOLOGIST BANDS 1,400 BABY TERNS

Herbert A. Southern and Three Associates Visit Gull Bar Islet Near South Bay

South Bay, July 4.—Mr. Herbert A. Southam, Toronto biologist from the Dominion Bird Protection Association and three associates, visited the Gull Bar, tiny islet off Point Traverse, and banded over fourteen hundred baby terns there early this week.

All bands placed upon the birds are numbered, which Mr. Southam records along with data pertaining to date and place of banding.

Two thousand biologists band over half a million birds on this continent annually. The Dominion Bird Protection Association is in conjunction with the Biological Survey, Washington, D.C.

Mr. Southam informed The Ontario Intelligencer that birds banded by him at the Gull Bar shoal had been found as far south as Florida.

Good Catches

Several fine specimens of bass were taken from local waters over the week end according to several Toronto sportsman who returned to their homes well pleased with their catches.

High winds prevented anglers from getting good catches at Point Traverse, and the real big ones were found in more tranquil waters.

News Briefs

Commercial fishermen report that myriads of shad are infesting local waters.

Mr. William McBrian and Charles Ward, Toronto Transportation Commission, were week-end guests at the 'White House', Point Traverse.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mullens and children, Toronto, were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lobb.

A Point Traverse resident reports a southern flight of three Canada wild geese and may mean a continuation of several days more of cool weather.

Naturalists visiting the Gull Bar, tell The Ontario Intelligencer that a bevy of white wing scooters are disporting about the tiny islet.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

German Plans as They Affect the United States

New York, July 4.—As soon as the Balkan situation is more or less clear the Germans intend to "create order" in the Iberian Peninsula—Spain and Portugal.

Portugal they expect to take with the aid of the "fifth column" which is tremendous. It consists of German tourists and technicians who have been there most visibly for months as outposts of the Gestapo and of internal elements who are dissatisfied with the regime of Salazar. The Salazar dictatorship, which has had an exceptionally good press in the conservative world, is very similar to the regime of Dr. Schuschnigg, late Chancellor of Austria, removed from there by the Nazis. It is Catholic and Nationalist and has suppressed Socialists, Communists, Liberals and Freemasons. These, its victims, now the "outs", hope to be rehabilitated by the Nazis. This may seem strange, but stranger things are happening daily. Recently La Passionaria, fiery voice of the Spanish Loyalist cause during the Civil War, spoke in Moscow and praised Hitler as the leader of the German proletarian revolution.

Portugal is of great interest to the United States and the Western Hemisphere as a whole. Among its possessions are the Azores, the Cape Verde Islands and Portuguese Guiani, the latter on that spot of Africa nearest to Brazil. The Azores and the Cape Verde Islands are at least as much outposts of our defense in the Atlantic as Hawaii is in the Pacific.

Islands Strategic Points.

Their ownership by Portugal, a country closely tied up with Great Britain, has caused us no more inconvenience or apprehension than have the Bahamas or the British, French and Dutch possessions in the Caribbean. But these Portuguese is lands lying between the Bermudas and Lisbon are vital to our defense in the Atlantic and vital to offense from the European Continent against the Western Hemisphere.

The first part of the Nazi program against the West is to obtain possession of these islands. They contemplate the occupation of Greenland, should England be defeated. Dudet, the German ace who planned the parachute campaign over the heads of the German General Staff, has explored Greenland, and knows it thoroughly. The distance between Greenland and the Northwest Territory of Canada is less than the distance between Norway and England. Greenland, of course, belongs to Denmark, now a Nazi protectorate, and between Denmark and Greenland are the following hops: Denmark-Norway-Iceland - Greenland. The last named is only about five hundred miles from Iceland. The route is similar to that which the Pan-American clippers used to follow from England: Iceland-Greenland-Canada-New York.

With these outposts in their hands, the Germans intend to bring military, economic and propaganda pressure upon North and South America. The object will be to secure Governments both here and in South America which are "co-operative."

The appeal will be to self-interest and fear. It is well known that there are German conspiracies in all the South American States. Their hardest work is now being done in Mexico and Brazil, the nations nearest to Panama. They are very active at this moment in Uruguay and Guatemala.

Plan Disarming Attitude.

The moment the war is over on the Continent of Europe, Germany will make great peace gestures toward the Western Hemisphere. It will be stated that Germany and Italy are now satisfied nations, that they have no interest in the Western Hemisphere and that the destruction of Europe demands in all humanity the release of American money and resources, for which they will be willing to pay by trade agreements. They count on this campaign appealing to humanitarian Americans, and they are sure that it will appeal to American bankers and industrialists anxious to reopen world trade. In an atmosphere of relaxation and pacification they count on our rearmament program being slowed down. At the same time they hope to replenish their own exhausted stocks of oil, octane gas for airplanes, cotton, etc. They have already laid the groundwork for this program of collaboration with certain industrialists and popular leaders in this country.

The propaganda machine, which is very powerful in North America and which has not been used except in veiled ways to spread Nazi propaganda, has concentrated on demobilizing public opinion here, insisting that there was no danger and branding as "warmongers" all who have tried to warn the public.

Following a victory in Europe the same propaganda machine will tout this "peace" with all its power and again brand as warmongers and hysterics all who beg that energetic measures be taken against "fifth columnists" and that armament building should not be abated. The Nazis hope to divide America on this program of peace with Hitler versus continued vigorous internal defense and preparedness.

This is exactly the tactic that worked so well until the very outbreak of the war with the so-called Cliveden set in England, with the Sir Samuel Hoares and the Sir John Simons. They were repeatedly told that all that Germany desired was a sphere of influence in Eastern Europe, and that in this England and Germany could co-operate to mutual advantage, England furnishing the financial means and Germany the organization. It was this sort of argument that led to the Runciman Commission and to the Munich appeasement.

Precisely the same overtures are now being made to prominent and influential Americans on the promise that the Western Hemisphere will be reserved for the United States, and that Pan-American trade with a German-dominated Europe will be a great and lucrative deal.

But the Nazis will not relax their propaganda, either in South America or here. On the contrary, in the general reconciliation they will vastly increase it. The restoration of vigorous trade relations with important firms, industries and agricultural interests will permit of penetration on an unprecedented scale. We may count on their making such gestures as the dissolution of the German-American Bund, which they think has served its purpose anyhow to unite a large part of the German minority in America. They do not care for the Kuhns and the Kunzes if they can work through more powerful and "respectable" agents.

Premises Made in Past.

What is the value of all such promises? After the occupation of Austria, General Goering gave his word of honor to the Czech Minister and a pledge to the British Ambassador in Berlin that Germany had no intentions against Czecho-Slovakia. That is on the record. At Munich Hitler gave his word that with the restoration of the Sudetenland he had no further interest in Czecho-Slovakia and was even prepared to guarantee its independence. After the occupation of Prague in March, 1939, Hitler, in a public speech, stated that Germany had no quarrel with Poland and called attention to the non-aggression pact which he had signed with the late Marshal Pilsudski in 1934. In August, 1936, Leopold, King of the Belgians, withdrew from the military alliance with France and asked guarantees of Belgian neutrality from France, Britain and Germany. France and Britain gave them in April, 1937, and Germany in October, 1937. At the beginning of the war against Poland, Germany, through diplomatic channels renewed the validity of her previous guarantees and at the same time informed the Dutch that she would respect the inviolability of the Netherlands. Afterward the Germans discovered so-called diplomatic evidence to "prove" that the Allies had contemplated violating the independence of these States and that Germany, therefore, had acted only in self-defence.

It is undoubtedly true that Allied diplomats and military strategists, informed by their secret services of German plans, discussed and considered the possibility of moving first. They were deterred by respect for home opinion, by the cause for which they were fighting, and by fear of the reaction of public opinion in the United States.

Germany, on the contrary, believes that success is the only good propaganda and was deterred by none of these things.

On the evidence that these appeasements, overtures and promises are worthless, the United States, being forwarned, is also forearmed and should plan a political, diplomatic, military and commercial strategy to deal with what is certainly approaching in the event of a total Nazi victory. This strategy must be one which will neither involve us in war, which, in our present state of preparedness and in view of already lost opportunities, will be insane, nor permit this program to succeed. And the first measure of defense against it is to understand what form it will take.

Northern Africa where both Italy and Great Britain have territories and garrisons is the scene of a type of fighting quite different from any hitherto seen in the present war. It is a sort of guerrilla warfare with modern weapons, including aircraft, light tanks and mechanized vehicles.

Scattered posts on both sides of the border are raided from time to time, aircraft range over the desert areas, seeking targets. It is a war of movement and surprise and one which gives ample scope to the initiative and the imagination of individual officers and soldiers.

In contrast to the operations or compact and heavy Russian forces which hammered ponderously through the defences of Finland and the equally heavy German forces which moved speedily through Poland last autumn and through Belgium, Holland and France recently the African war is just a series of skirmishes.

On both sides the main purpose of the African fighting is probably fundamentally defence. Neither Italy nor Britain would appear likely to improve its military position by the conquest of new slices of African territory.

Italy, particularly, however, can not stand to lose much without suffering loss of prestige with its recently-conquered Ethiopian subjects, some of whom have already taken the field in open rebellion.

While Britain is threatened with invasion, however, it is unlikely that large forces will be sent to Africa to carry on a war of destruction against Italian power there.

Fashion Flashes

CHILLY EVENINGS this year call for shawls. A beauty is of black crepe with a deep knotted fringe of white silk. Nice in white with a black or red fringe.

EVEN MERMAIDS must be envying our new swim suits. A beautiful maillot of white elastic rayon satin has a halter and a separate skirt of red, yellow, white and navy striped jersey.

A BOON for the country girl is the pinafore frock of white sharkskin with its low, square neck, wide, full skirt and sash tied in a back bow. When faring forth, slip a striped cotton shirt under it and you're dressed for out-of-doors.

STILL GOING STRONG is the twin print ensemble. A new model has a silk crepe frock with all-the-way-down button fastening. It is in mint green with white and burgundy flowers. The matching coat which is of chiffon, is collarless, pleated all the way down and has short pleated sleeves.

Eye-Shadow For Mystery

By HELEN FOLLETT

Powder highlights eye glitter—but repair make-up in private.

Rouge has taken a back seat, lipstick is subdued, eye shadows are in the limelight. They're swell fun to play with. Give a girl a mysterious air. She loves that; feels romantic.

Take a peek-see at eye shadows displayed on cosmetic counters. You'll be surprised. They don't follow nature; maybe that's why we love 'em. Green smears, for instance, which give the red head the right touch. Mauve tones for the white haired sisters whose skins are usually delicate and transparent. Blues in half a dozen shades attract blondes and brunettes.

Mettalic shadows are used with colors. You apply a blue film, then add a soft silvery powder. Puts glitter on the soul windows. Bronze powder is applied over a golden cream and you've no idea how fetching the effect is with the summer's first coat of tan.

Violet and gold make a good combination. No need of telling the beauty clientele that these tricky applications are only for the festive evening when the gay lights are on and all is merry. They belong with the formal robe which gives a girl the privilege of being a bit exotic if that is her little heart's desire.

Certain types of birthmarks can be removed. That is, if they are not raised, but are merely a thin film on the surface. Carbon dioxide snow is an effective treatment. The correct name for this blemish is haemangioma. Sometimes it takes the form of a port wine stain. Sometimes it is pinkish in color with large blood vessels close to the surface of the skin. Get your doctor's advice first.

Medical men who specialize in treatment of skin and scalp diseases recommend that mothers of babies who have these marks should seek medical attention for them, that the earlier they are treated the better.

FIGHT FOR LOVE
by SYLVIA TAYLOR

INSTALMENT 30

The day the divorce was granted Star went to see Mamie, who had not as yet been informed of her daughter's plans. It was one of Mamie's good days, Star realized gratefully. She was wearing a clean dress and her hair was neatly combed. Mrs. Brady had done a great deal for Mamie's appearance, and Mamie had begun to take more interest in how she looked, and was keeping herself better groomed.

Deciding to break her news immediately, Star said, "I've something to tell you, mother."

"And I've something to tell you," Mamie interrupted. She picked up the evening paper and showed Star a picture of Mrs. Milton Wood.

"This is that women who used to come to see the man in number eleven," Mamie said, excitedly. "Mrs. Brady said all the time she was some society dame."

Utterly unprepared for this, Star managed to say, "She doesn't look like the same one to me. You see, mother. I know Mrs. Wood. I worked for her husband while Mrs. Lambert was away."

"You did?" Mamie exclaimed, impressed. "Well, how was I to know it? You didn't tell me anything about it. You are always so cagey about your affairs."

"I'm trying to tell you now," Star explained. "Mr. Wood and I are going to be married on Thursday."

Mamie's eyes opened wide.

"You're marrying this Milton Wood? Why, Star Bright, then you must have known who she was all the time."

Star had never lied to her mother before but if Mamie knew the truth she would tell Milton, and the girl had taken a solemn vow that never again should he be hurt by any mention of Jennifer's conduct.

"Mrs. Wood is not the woman I passed on the stairs," she declared. "This picture does have some resemblance but they are not the same. I've seen Mrs. Wood too many times."

That settled it. Mamie's face fell at having her bit of gossip blasted but immediately lighted up at the prospect of her daughter marrying the wealthy Mr. Wood.

"Well, Star, I don't know how you do it but I've got to give you credit. I suppose you'll live in his big house and have everything."

"No. We're going to live in an apartment and build a house of our own next year."

Mamie beamed.

"Everything certainly happens at once. Mrs. Brady is moving away, too. Going to Seattle. Have you told your future husband about me?"

"Milton has been very kind," Star said. "He is going to give you the same amount I've been paying, so you won't have to move."

"But I don't want to stay here any more after Mrs. Brady leaves. Why can't I come to live with you? You'll have a big place with servants so I won't be any trouble."

"That's impossible," Star began, but Mamie blurted, "You're ashamed of me! You've always been ashamed of me! After all I've done for you!"

A shadow crossed the girl's face but there was no hint of weakening in her reply.

"I'm sorry to disappoint you, mother, but Milton and I prefer to live alone."

"It's what I might expect," muttered Mamie. "But I'm not going to stay in this place by myself."

"I told you long ago I thought you'd be happier in a boarding house," Star reminded her. "You'd have more money for other things if you didn't keep this apartment."

"Will he give me the same amount no matter where I live?"

"Yes, I'm sure he will. He's very generous, but you are not to ask for any more. And if you ever tell him about the resemblance between that woman and his wife, I'll have him stop helping you altogether."

"Why, Star," Mamie said with mock meekness, "You don't think I'd do anything like that?"

"I want to be sure of it," Star replied, firmly.

There was no pretense of sentiment between them, either then or two days later when Mamie moved to the boarding house she had selected. It had been recommended, Mamie admitted, by an old friend of Joe's and was occupied by a group of night-club dancers.

"You know I always did want to go on the stage," Mamie confided to Milton, who was meeting her for the first time. "I spent a lot of money giving Star dancing lessons but it was no use. She just wasn't interested. But I'm going to enjoy living in the same house with these girls, listening to them talk about their experiences. Some of them knew Joe, that was my second husband, who was killed in a—an accident. If I can't live with my daughter, I can't think of anything I'd rather do."

"The old bluffer," Milton said on their way to Nina's. "She wouldn't live with us if we paid her to. She'd be perfectly miserable."

Star smiled and snuggled closer against his arm. She felt no necessity to explain or be embarrassed about her mother with Milton. He understood, just as he understood everything else about her. Mamie would be accepted as another of his responsibilities, but never again would her shadow be permitted to darken her daughter's life.

Mamie was not present at the ceremony, which was performed in Nina's living-room with the writer and her housekeeper as the only witnesses. And when it was over, Star's suitcases were put into Milton's car and they drove to the country where they were to have two weeks' much needed rest. Milton had suggested a honeymoon, but Star said she would rather take it later.

"You're too tired to travel," she said sensibly, "and I haven't the right kind of clothes."

"I'll get them for you," he offered.

"Not until after we're married," she insisted. "And then the first trip we make together must be aboard the Adventuress.

"Just as soon as it's warm enough we'll take the old boat out," he promised, kissing her.

"She certainly was a lovely bride," Mrs. Epperson said as she and Nina watched the big car drive away. "And as sweet as she is beautiful. I hope he'll be good to her."

"He'll be good to her," Nina sniffed. "You needn't worry about that."

Mrs. Epperson looked at her sympathetically.

"You look all in, Mrs. Lambert. Why don't you go to bed? I'll bring your supper up on a tray."

"I don't want any supper," Nina said, drying her eyes. "Just a pot of hot coffee. I'm going to be up late tonight working on the plot for a new story."

Mrs. Epperson's face expressed her disapproval as she retired to the kitchen. Mrs. Lambert paid good wages and was nice enough to work for but she was getting more temperamental every day.

Upstairs in the waiting-room Nina put a match to the fire and sat down in front of it with pencil and paper and a fresh package of cigarettes.

"I didn't consider her good enough for my son," she thought, gazing at the photograph of Bob on her desk. "So I help her marry the only man in the world I have ever wanted. But life is like that . . ."

A moment later she had written on the sheet of paper, "The Mills of the Gods by Nina Lambert".

THE END

THERE'S A HINT of autumn formality in many of the new evening gowns. A just-in model is in black silk crepe cut on very slim lines. Square neckline and wide shoulder straps caught at the base with giant jeweled clips? Subtle drapery at the hips and a very slim skirt that tapers to a train in back and is slit in front to show the ankles.

IT'S HERE again, that red shoe that we have been wanting for years. A nice model for town wear is a wide strap shoe in dark red kid made with a scuffless heel. Done in red suede and red lined too.

DRESS UP little daughter to make a pretty summer picture. Neat and sweet is a little princess type frock of white waffle pique. Its square neck is filled in with Irish crocket lace, which makes a ruffle band on the short sleeve cuff. A row of buttons conceals an all-the-way -down slide fastener.

Colorful Closing Exercises Held At West Huntingdon Public School

West Huntingdon, July 4.—Miss Margaret Wright, principal of the public school, and her pupils put on a very interesting and helpful program on Thursday afternoon in honor of Mr. Geo. A. Kingston of Toronto.

Mr. Kingston is a native of West Huntingdon and although he has been absent from here since early manhood he is deeply interested in the community where he was born. In addition to his many duties Mr. Kingston has composed a number of songs and a large number of poems. In the year 1938 these poems and songs were printed in book form and named Legendary Lyrics by the author. Mr. Kingston is especially interested in the younger generation and each year since his book was printed has presented a copy to the best all round pupil in the school. Those who have won this book to date are Theda Moorcroft, Lindsay Sills, Arthur Hassall and Donald Runnalls.

This year Mr. Kingston was present for closing ceremonies of the school and presented the book to Don Runnalls.

A number of parents and interested citizens were present and Mr. Howard Ashley performed the duties of chairman when the following program was presented:

Opening chorus by the school, "Peace to the world" (a song composed by Mr. Kingston); patriotic exercise, "The Union Jack", "My Own Canadian Home", chorus; social studies, grade III, Glen Wilson (Holland), Marjorie Wright (Africa), Agnes McAvoy (Switzerland), Gordon Donnan (Mexico), Kenneth Runnalls (China); mouth organ selection by George Dafoe; recitation by Ileen McAvoy, Muriel Thompson and Bernard Hunt; chorus by three girls, Muriel Thompson, Joyce Wallace and Honora McAvoy; Grade V social studies, Frank Yateman (Henry Morton Stanley), Margaret Haggerty (Mungo Park), Donald Wilson (buccaneers); boys' duet by James Donnan and George Dafoe; special studies, grade VI, Muriel Thompson (Balboa), George Dafoe (Norseman); mouth organ selection by John Kerby; duet, Margie Haggerty and Muriel Thompson; solo by Bernard Hunt; presentation of book by Mr. Kingston

In presenting the book to Don Runnalls, all round pupil for 1940, Mr. Kingston spoke to each of the former winners and congratulated the trustees on the fine new school, and of the efficient leadership given by Miss Wright. He also wrote a poem in honor of his first visit to the school.

England Mother Land

God bless dear England, mother land,
In these hard days of stress of war
Give strength to her brave men and boys
Who guard her shores by sea and air
And to her soldiers in the field
Be thou at once their strength and shield.

As France, once strong ally, lays down
Her arms in presence of her foes,
Leaves Britain to wage the fight alone
With what result Thou only knows.
Grant aid to all her arms and men,
Britain must live, do Thou forfend.

Thy sons in thy Dominions wide
Wait not thy call to cross the sea,
But once the need for aid is known
The bugle sounds "On guard for thee".
God bless thee, dearest mother land,
On guard thy sons shall ever stand."

This poem will be memorized by the school and repeated on special occasions.

Others who spoke briefly were Mrs. John Kingston of Tweed (Mrs. Kingston's father, the late John Morton taught in this school for 22 years when there was a membership of ninety scholars); Mrs. Sam Rollins of Tweed; Mr. Kenneth Stewart of town; Mr. Harry Kingston of Toronto, and Arthur Wilson.

Miss Wright in a brief speech thanked Mr. Kingston for his interest in the school.

Miss Theda Moorcroft read one of Mr. Kingston's favorite poems — "Reminiscenses of the Old Farm".

This most appropriate message was written by Mr. Kingston in the front page of Donald's book: "Presented by the author to Master Donald Runnalls in honor of his high standing as a pupil in West Huntingdon public school for the year ending June 1940.

"How happy is the child who hears
Instruction's warning voice,
And who celestial wisdom makes
His early only choice.

"With best wishes to Donald for success in his future career, whatever that may be.

"Sincerely, Geo. A. Kingston.

"June 10, 1940."

BRITISH FORCE ROUTS ITALIANS

Four Italian Guns Destroyed and Invaders Driven from Territory

London, July 4 (CP). — British military circles said today that a British force on the Kenya-Ethiopian border had routed Italians there in "a small but very successful engagement at Moyale."

A few days ago, the British circles reported, the Italians crossed the frontier in "greater numbers" and attacked the British post of about one company from the rear.

"We sent reinforcements by truck," an informant said, "and attacked the Italians in the rear. Assisted by bombers, we drove them out of our territory, destroying four guns."

Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Family vote endorses experts

"What ready-to-eat cereal is the favourite in your family?" This question was put to 2000 housewives right across Canada. Five times as many said Kellogg's as said any other brand of corn flakes! Why? It's their flavour! Mr. F. G. Baillie, Superintendent of Vernor's Ginger Ale, and developer of Cleco Flavours, says: "I was happy to join the distinguished group of flavour-experts who had already taste-tested corn flakes in an impartial blindfold test. You can certainly quote me as saying Kellogg's Corn Flakes are first for flavour!"

SHELL 'OILERS' FORTIFY POSITION BY TAKING CORBYS

In Final Meeting of Schedule Bawden's Charges Win Easily by 8-5

3 HOME RUNS

Henn Ejected from Game for Crabbing at Umpire's Decision

Punching out hits when they meant runs, the Shell "Oilers" fortified their top rung position in the City Softball League with an 8 to 5 win over the Corbys A. C. at Coleman Flats last night. It was the final meeting of the two clubs prior to the league play-offs, the "Oilers" taking the odd game in three played. Shell won the opening game by a 6-5 count, Corbys retaliated in their second meeting to win 1-0, but the 'Oilers' took the final league scheduled tussle 8-5 last night to give them a decided lead in the league standing.

A four run attack in the fifth frame practically settled the issue as after Rowbotham arrived at the initial sack on an error, Schrieder, Henn, Bawden and Sero all hit in succession to score a quartette of runs. Bawden hit for the circuit, with Ronsky aboard, to give the 'Oilers' two more, while Whalen and Goyer punched out hits to give the winners their last counter, Henn having scored in the first inning on Sero's double. Carson scored Corbys initial run, as he drove in one and scored himself in the seventh while homers by St. Louis and Lumberg counted the other Corby runs.

Carson Leads Batters

"Lum" Carson led the batters of the night and helped his own pitching cause with a perfect night at bat, when he hammered out two triples and two singles in four tries. St. Louis and Lumberg hit homers for the losers, but none were aboard.

Bawden, Henn and Sero paced the "Oilers", Bawden getting a circuit blow and Sero two doubles. Henn was ejected from the pastime by Umpire Thomas in the seventh following a verbal attack on the official, Vern Goyer, the Shell bat-boy, taking Henn's place in the batting order. Both Eddie Schrieder, the winning pitcher, and Lum Carson pitched a good brand of ball, but the winners carried a driving punch that wins.

TWO TAILENDERS TAKE LEADERS IN HASTINGS LOOP

Foxboro Beats Shannonville 5-4 While Cannifton Scores 12-0 Shutout Over Latta

A DARK HORSE

Hurler for Cannifton Comes From Western Canada and Shows Fans Plenty

The race for the leadership in the South Hastings League tightened up considerably last evening as the result of two games played which saw the two tailenders take the leaders for a loss. Down at Shannonville the Foxboro lads won their second game of the week when they eked out a close 5-4 win over the homesters, while at Cannifton, the home boys took advantage of the occasion to win their first game of the season as they tromped on the second place Latta nine for an easy 12-0 victory.

Cannifton's new dark hurler from the wide open spaces in Western Canada celebrated his first appearance on the Cannifton hilltop by whitewashing the Latta nine as he scattered the visitor's singles throughout the game and was never in danger. Dunning started on the mound for the visitors but gave way in the later innings to Hall, who finished the pastime.

Down at Shannonville, the homesters were held off the score sheet for four innings as Peacock on the mound for the Foxboro lads retired the side on strikeouts for as many frames. Only two hits were collected by the Shannonville nine, including one double by Juby in the third, as errors and walk crept into the pastime to account for the four runs the homesters scored in later innings. Juby, on the mound for the losers, was nicked for four safeties, but errors by his teammates kept him continually in hot water. Juby also retired the side on strikes in the fourth and sixth to cut short Foxboro rallies.

Foxboro broke the ice in the first frame to count one run, they added two more in the fourth, but Shannonville counted three in the fifth to tie it up. In the top of the sixth, the visitors went two ahead, with a one run rally in the last half just failing to match their score.

The teams:

Foxboro: V. Guay, Spencer, Walt, Peacock, Faulkner, N. Guay, Tummon, Bird and Jamieson.

Shannonville: Reid, Juby, Maracle, Houston, L. Maracle, Snider, Barberstock, Cook and Lewis.

DETROIT RECALLS F. HUTCHINSON

Pitcher Defeats Toronto 4-2 Before Rejoining Tiger Team Mates

(By The Associated Press)

Steve O'Neill might have known it wouldn't last.

At the start of the International League season, O'Neill, Manager of Buffalo Bisons, was reported to have sent out a form letter to every Major League and Double "A" League club stating that the Bisons wanted pitchers and were willing to pay cash for any available talent.

About a month after the season was under way Detroit Tigers obliged by sending down Freddy Hutchinson, $70,000 pitching prospect, to Buffalo on option. This was quite a break for the Herd because they only had to pay half of Hutchinson's salary, while the Tigers took care of the other half.

Hutchinson turned out to be just what O'Neill needed to bolster the Bisons' mound corps but as luck would have it, the Tigers, fighting hard to keep on top in the American League race, decided to recall Freddy yesterday. Lynn Nelson, veteran righthander, obtained by Detroit from Philadelphia Athletics last year, is being sent to Buffalo to replace him.

Hutchinson gave Del Baker, Detroit Manager, plenty to be optimistic about last night by topping off his short International League stay with a six-hit 4-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. It was his sixth triumph of the year and restored the Bisons to sixth place in the standings. He lost three.

Jersey City at Syracuse, the only other game scheduled yesterday was rained out.

Revised Schedule For Softball Loop

Owing to continued adverse weather conditions which resulted in several postponements, Secretary Harry Knott was again forced to revise the schedule of the Belleville and District Softball Association.

The league executive sanctioned the revised schedule and announced today that all future playing dates must be adhered to and carry precedent over any other matches under the penalty of forfeiture.

The revised schedule was released today:

July 5: Uptowns at Point Anne. Picton at Corbys A.C.
July 8: Point Anne at Picton. Uptowns at Corbys A.C.
July 10: Shell at Uptowns. Corbys A.C. at Point Anne.
July 11: Picton at Shell.
July 12: Uptowns at Picton. Point Anne at Shell.
July 15: Picton at Corbys A.C.
July 17: Shell at Picton.
July 19: Picton at Uptown.
July 22: Point Anne at Picton. Uptowns at Corbys A.C.

QUINTE TENNIS CLUB LEADING IN LEAGUE RACE

Defeat Point Anne Five Games to One on Local Courts Wednesday

WEST SIDES LOSE

Tweed Easily Wins Match at Holloway Street Courts 5 to 1

The Quinte Tennis Club of Belleville assumed the leadership of the Trent Valley Tennis League after defeating the Canada Cement Club of Point Anne five games to one in their scheduled league matches played on the local courts yesterday. The Quinte Club defeated the city sister club, West Sides, last week and have won eleven of their 12 matches played this season.

Up at the West Side courts on Holloway St. things weren't going quite so well for the other local tennis organizations, that ultimately lost five of their six games versus Tweed yesterday in regular scheduled matches. All the results were decided in two successive sets at the West Side courts, the home club only winning the second set of men's doubles when R. Lennox and C. Riddell of Belleville triumphed.

At the Quinte Tennis Club several keen matches were played, but only one match went to the three-game limit before a winner was declared, that being in the only match won by the C. C. C. team of Point Anne, the ladies' doubles. In all other matches the Quinte Club players triumphed.

The results of the two matches were:—

DID YOU KNOW THAT the National semi-pro ballsters are toying with the idea of giving two bases for an INTENTIONAL walk, which is not a bad idea at that. . . That the local softballers, both gals and boys, are planning separate gala affairs in aid of the Red Cross? . . . That the lassies are endeavouring to bring down a classy Toronto girls' nine to include all former Belleville players? . . . That the men are negotiating with "Dit" Clapper for a team of softballers composed of professional hockey players? . . . And that such efforts should be patronized until it hurts. . . . Remember Slingin' Sammie Baugh, the Yankee grid star, well he failed at slinging baseballs and is back cowpunchin' in the west. . . . It is hoped that the gals' softball moguls don't go too far with their strict pitching regulations, that is if they desire to keep the scores out of the double figures once in a while.

The Oilers and Corbys met for the third and final time in the City Softball schedule last night. Bawden's "Oilers" took the odd decision in three games played. The game developed into a fairly good pitchers' battle between Eddie Schrieder and Lum Carson, but as a team the Oilers carried too much reserve power in their hitting, as they kicked through with hits with men aboard, while the Corbys hits were coming, for the greater part, with none on the runways. Actually Carson was the only Corby batter who could solve Schrieder's slants with any degree of consistency, Lum getting four for four. Two of his hits went for triples, which is a good night's work besides pitching. Last night's win gave the Oilers such an edge they can almost coast in to the league leadership, as one more victory will turn the trick.

However, looking over the box score we find a woeful weakness in the top half of the Corbys' batting order. Not one of the first five Corby batters crossed home plate with a run, while the first five batters gave their team exactly three safe hits. Generally speaking when the top half of the batting order fails to punch out bingles, there's little hope of victory. True enough the Corbys were minus the services of Alex Simpson and Shortstop Cy Barriage, but to date the "Oilers" have possessed the hitting power that wins—namely they come through with the money-eyed hits, when hits mean runs. Incidentally when Umpire Thomas tossed Teddy Henn out for verbal attacks last night, the hotter heads cooled down a mite. Perhaps an example or two like Henn's ejection last night might prove just what the doctor ordered—less crabbing and more ball playing.

No doubt we've seen the last of "Two-ton Tony" Galento, and his beer barrel polka, as a top-ranking contender for the heavyweight championship of the world. Had the officials let Max Baer continue to slice Galento's mug much longer, it would have doubtless resembled that of Arturo Godoy's after his bout with Louis. All of this reminds us that the Godoy-Louis fight pictures open at the Capitol Theatre tonight, following which the fight fans of the city can take a gander at the slaughter and judge for themselves just what chance Baer has against Louis. The experts do say that Baer fought the brainiest fight of his career on Tuesday, but he wasn't in against Louis and it is agreed today there isn't a worthy challenger for Louis' crown today in the heavyweight mitt slinging business.

Do you remember when England's four-star tennis champion, Fred Perry, won the All-England men's single title for the third successive year four years ago today. Pitted against Baron Gottfried von Cramm in the final, Perry won 6-1, 6-1, 6-0, when the German pulled a muscle.

Of the twelve sets played in the Trent Valley Tennis League this year the Quinte Tennis and Skating Club has lost but one set in two full matches. Last week they swept their sets over the West Sides and yesterday won five out of six sets versus the Canada Cement Club. It was a hard struggle for the Dufferin Ave. nettsters up the grade but it appears as though they've reached the pinnacle. Yesterday the West Sides lost five out of their six matches to Tweed, but here we find a new club breaking into league competition for the first season and too much can't be expected during their initial try.

Sport Spice — They are saying that the referee was the best-conditioned man in the ring during the Galento-Baer fiasco Tuesday night. . . . To spike rumors relative to his death, Galento rolled over in bed yesterday morning and granted: "I'm just sleeping", which would almost prove something or other relative to his being among the living. . . Promoter Mike Jacobs has started his ballyho, for the Baer-Louis fight in Chicago, already . . . . Vic Morris just popped in with a 26 pound 'lunge, that measured well over three feet long. . . . The finny beauty gave Vic a swimming lesson when he made the strike out in the Moira river last evening. . It was a beauty. . . . Detroit is again in a baseball frenzy, they're all agog over their Tigers and even Freddie Hutchinson, the $70,000 pitching beauty has been recalled from Buffalo.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 4—(AP)—The Press already is lambasting the Louis-Baer return. . . . Jug McSpaden, the golf pro, is putting on glasses for his putting's sake. . . . How come Jimmy Braddock, one of the most popular champs we've ever had, was overlooked Tuesday night when every other pug in the park was introduced? . . . Al Hostak, training for Tony Zale July 19, showed his hands are O.K. again by flattening a 205-lb. sparring partner.

The official verdict was Baer won in the eighth round. . . Therefore, the fellows who picked Max to win in that round should be paid off . . . When Maurice (the Angel) Tillett visited the San Francisco Fair his feelings were hurt when nobody turned to stare at him. They thought he was just another freak and didn't give him a tumble.

Milt Aaron vs. Henry Armstrong is just about closed for Chicago. There'll be enough Brooklyn fans at the Polo grounds today for the double bill with the Giants to pay Terry's $40,000 salary. . . . Two Canadian boxers, Orville Drouillard and George Kell, are with their regiments abroad.

Taft Wright, White Sox—Hit in ninth to feature 12-7 victory pinch home run with bases filled in ninth to feature 12-7 victory over Tigers.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, July 4 (Special) — A large number of citizens were present at the C.N.R. Station last evening to witness the fast train pass through carrying a large number of refugees from England. In spite of the fact that the train does not stop at the station, a number of persons were eager to obtain a glimpse of the refugees as they speeded by.

About 300 of these refugees landed at Quebec City on Monday. The evacuees will be sent to various schools throughout the Dominion. Those on the train last evening were bound for Toronto, where they will be boarded by prominent citizens and various organizations.

Wooler Wins Match

Collecting ten runs in the first four innings the Wooler Softball team coasted to a 14 to 10 victory over the McNair Juniors, here last night.

The winners started out in the first frame by collecting four runs, three being driven in by McColl on a circuit blow. In the next three frames, the Woolerites scored two runs in each frame and from that time on took things rather easy until the eighth, when they scored another trio. The Juniors were unable to click against McColl and his fireball, during the first three innings. In the fourth, they scored once and came back in the fifth to score four runs, on two doubles and a single. During the eighth inning, the Juniors made their one and only threat to even the score by collecting five runs.

McColl, on the mound for the winners, hurled snappy ball for three frames, retiring the side in order. During the remainder of the game he gave up eleven hits and struck out seven. Rosenplot, started on the mound for the Juniors but was replaced by Down in the fifth. Rosenplot gave up eleven hits, while Down gave up five.

Break-in at Station

Entrance was gained to Winter's gasoline station at the east end of the town, early this morning and a large quantity of cigarettes, tobacco and candy were stolen. The discovery of the break-in was made shortly after seven o'clock this morning by Mr. Winter, when he went to open his service station.

The break-in artist broke a window at the rear of the service station for his entrance and exit. According to the police the person must have been of small stature, as the amount of glass broken would only allow a small person to get through the aperture.

The thief took ten cigars, five packages of auto strop blades, 15 packages of red and yellow cigarette papers, one dozen bottles of lighter flints, thirty ten cent size packages of cigarettes and 40 packages of 25 cent size, two dozen chocolate bars, five packages of gum and one pencil Eveready flightlight.

Traffic Lights Started

Work was started this morning on two new traffic lights to be erected here. Lights will be erected on the corners of Front and Dundas Streets and on the corner of Dundas Street and Dufferin Avenue (highway 2 and 33) intersection. Police have been advocating the erection of these lights for some time. Recently there were a number of accidents on the Dundas Street and Dufferin Avenue intersection, with one boy being killed.

Complaints have been registered with the Trenton Police by Ben Ketcheson and other citizens concerning children who have been making a nuisance of themselves around the town by picking flowers and apples. The police have promised to give all possible protection to the citizens in this matter.

Knocked Down by Car

Peter O'Neil, 57 Dundas Street east suffered a lacerated forehead last evening, when he was knocked down by a cyclist, on the sidewalk from the R.C.A.F. station to Trenton. O'Neil was taken to Dr. J. Johnson's office, where he received first aid.

Mr. O'Neil informed the police concerning the accident, along with the cyclist. The injured man was knocked unconscious by the blow and had to be assisted to the doctor's office in a passing automobile.

The Stars Say

For Friday, July 5

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DEFINITE degree of enduring progress should be made on this day under the impetus of expansive and substantial planetary influences. It should be a time on which prestige and financial generosity may be depended upon for the furtherance of meritorious and soundly constructive propositions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of solid progress in the way of putting their interests and possessions on a firm and enduring foundation.

A child born on this day may have a substantial, dependable and trustworthy nature, with warmth, generosity and camaraderie despite much dignity.

UNCLE SAM MOVES TO CHECK HIS ALIENS

In keeping with Uncle Sam's determined drive to smash any fifth column activities within his borders police authorities at McKeesport, Penn., have passed strict ordinances requiring the registration of all aliens, who must also be weighed, photographed and fingerprinted. Residents of McKeesport coming under the alien heading are pictured crowding into the city police headquarters to be "filed."

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was standing around the letter box talking and waiting for Skinny Martin so we could start to walk to the Park for some baseball practice, and Skinny came up saying, Good night fellows, you'll have to wait a little longer, I have to go another errand, gosh shang the luck, I tried to argue my way out of it but nothing doing, It's only around to the store, he said.

Wich store? Glasses Magee said, and Skinny said, Holey smokes, in the excitement I forgot all about what I was suppose to be going for. That's a heck of a note, if I have to go back home now and ask my mother what the argument was all about she'll be so mad she wont leave me go to the Park. Now what the dooce did she tell me to get? It was something kind of unusual, that's all I remember about it, he said.

Was it sugar? Shorty Judge said, and Skinny said, What the heck's unusual about sugar?

Maybe it was brown sugar, that's more unusual, I said, and Skinny said, It wasn't like any color sugar, it was something I was never even sent for before.

Good night, let's help him think, I said, and we all started to think of unusual things to buy. Puds Simkins saying, Was it red shoe laces? and Glasses saying, Was it a pair of hair clippers?

Skinny Martin denying it was either, and I said, Was it a new handle for a break knife? and Shorty Judge said, Was it a half a roll of wall paper to paste up and cover a stane?

Hay, sure, that's it, Skinny said all excited, and Shorty said, G wizzickers, I must be a mind reader, and Skinny said, You're a half of a one anyways. It was a roll of shelf paper for kitchin shelfs, O boy, I'll be back in a minute, he said.

Wich he was and so was everybody elts, on account of us all going with him to make it seem less like waiting.

VESSEL'S DECKS

Fair Proportion of Crew Saved.

The owners of the Andora Star announced a "fair proportion" of the crew was saved.

Martin Verinder, first survivor to reach here, said the last he saw of Capt. E. W. Moulton was when he cooly asked a man to get him a glass of water.

Verinder said: "The Germans and Italians were frightful and the soldiers and crew had to threaten them."

Several hundred of the aliens were believed to have been killed outright by the blast of the torpedo which struck at about 6 a.m. without warning while most of the passengers were still in bed.

Panic Cost Many Lives.

Pale from his ordeal, Verinder said bitterly of the internes: "If they had not panicked so completely many more men, particularly Englishmen, would have escaped."

"As they rushed lifeboats with the idea every man for himself," he related, "soldiers and crew had to threaten them. I even saw one German sailor who seemed to have a lot more sense than the rest take a rifle and club his compatriots.

Captain Remains On Bridge.

Verinder said the captain stayed on the bridge which was protected with barbed wire.

"I knew as I saw him standing there that the captain would never get away," he said.

Verinder disclosed that a quarrel broke out between Germans and Austrians the first day out when the Austrians objected to the Germans erecting Nazi flags in the deck space allotted to internees. They were separated as they began to fight.

PASSPORT FORMS NOT OBTAINABLE

So great has been the demand for application forms for passports to the United States by potential Canadian visitors that today there is not a single form to be had in the city. Enquiries are being made every day at the Post Office, Chamber of Commerce building and various ticket offices in the city but in every case the applicants have to be turned away without receiving the required form.

Mr. J. O. Herity of the Chamber of Commerce, stated this morning that he had communicated with Ottawa authorities asking for forms but as yet the application blanks have not arrived.

Butter And Egg Markets More Active

Toronto, July 4—Sellers raised butter prices as trading swelled on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Continued light receipts and good demand strengthened prices on eggs, while cheese showed no change.

The butter market was not overly active, but buying was considerably better than in recent sessions, and prices were lifted 1-4 cent per pound on both Ontario and Western offerings. The first grade Ontario product traded at the opening at 21 1-4c, but later increased to 21 1-2c, at which level the market closed steady.

Prints moved through retail channels at 23c to 23 1-2c for top grades, unchanged from the previous close.

Supplies were reported as very light on the egg market, with the proportion of top grades decreasing. Good demand for receipts caused prices to firm in the graded section. Government inspected shipments retained the 1-2 cent per dozen premium.

A few small sales at unchanged prices were recorded on the wholesale cheese market. Exports are now reaching substantial volume, last week's shipments totalling 68,494 boxes. Shipments since the first of May are reported at 146,420 boxes, compared with 165,046 boxes in the like period of last year.

British Fearing Peace More Than War Says Times

New York, July 4 (CP)—The New York Times, in a lengthy editorial on the traditional tenacity of the British people, said today that in the pause before the expected Nazi storm breaks over Great Britain "the ordinary Britisher gives every evidence of fearing peace more than war."

"John Bull did not get his nickname for nothing. In their island fortress the British people are girdling themselves to meet an enemy that crushed the great military establishment of France in less than a fortnight. Alone, the last free people of Europe, they wait for an attack more deadly than any nation has ever had to face. They know what's coming; they have seen and heard the blitzkrieg from the cliffs of Dover; across the soft-shouldered southern downs the new front line is manned by men who fought in the hell of Flanders. . . .

"Yet while they wait the veterans of Dunkirk chafe to have 'another go' at the Germans. The civilians mobilized to keep the roads free joke about the reception they are preparing for the invaders. . . . in this movement of tense waiting John Bull is giving a remarkable demonstration of his proverbial tenacity. . . ."

LONDON'S WAR COSTS

LONDON — (CP) — Estimates of the London County Council for 1940-41 provide £9,000,000 ($40,440,000) for maintenance of civil defence control, and demolition service, auxiliary fire and ambulance work and so on.

MINERS RETURN TO THEIR POSTS

Glace Bay, July 4 —(CP)— A one day tie-up of five dominion coal company colliers in Cape Breton, affecting about 3,750 men, ended today as miners on the shifts went down into the pits.

The tie-up was caused by refusal of native-born Canadians in nos. 1-B, 2, 4, 10 and 20 colliers to work with foreign-born miners. Majority of the latter did not show up at the mines this morning and those who did made no attempt to go underground.

Yesterday's tieups came as miners born in Germany and Italy prepared to return to work after having been denied employment since Italy's entry into the war pending investigation into their status by Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Assistant Commissioner F. J. Mead of the R.C.M.P. recommended they be given jobs as they became available, and the district executive and local unions of the United Mine Workers of American concurred.

But the miners reversed their stand yesterday.

5 ITALIAN PLANES DRIVEN TO SEA

Alexandria, July 4 (AP) — Five Italian planes attempted to raid Alexandria in broad daylight today but were driven out to sea. No damage or casualties here were reported.

About 20 bombs were dropped.

An air raid alarm, Alexandria's first since June 22, was sounded at 7:50 a.m. as the invaders were sighted at Abukir.

They flew toward Alexandria harbor but anti-aircraft batteries drove them off with heavy fire.

The "all clear" signal was sounded at 8:45 a.m.

It was not known immediately if any Italian planes were brought down.

Bomber Observer Over Hamburg Has Narrow Escape

London, July 4—(CP)—An Air Ministry bulletin told today of the hairbreadth escape of an observer in a Royal Air Force bomber during a night raid over Hamburg when oil storage tanks were attacked successfully.

Bursting shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns blew open the door of one attacking aircraft, almost hurling the observer into space. He hung on grimly to the edge of the door.

"Some moments later he was with difficulty pulled back into the aircraft, suffering from slight shock but otherwise unhurt," said the bulletin. "Later he was able to resume his duties."

The crew of the first aircraft over the target reported that "Our first two bombs missed by 100 yards but the third registered a hit which was followed by a fine explosion."

Pilots of another R.A.F. plane returning from a raid over Germany were forced to descend on the sea on account of engine trouble but managed to get out an SOS before the machine submerged, the Air Ministry related.

The crew of six scrambled out into their dinghy discarded heavy clothing except their shoes which they kept to bale water out of the dinghy and later used as paddles. They were picked up by a rescue launch after 13 1-2 hours in the water.

Number of French Naval Vessels Rally to deGaulle

London, July 4—(CP) — The French National Committee, still directing a French fight against Germany, announced today no capital ship of the French navy had fallen into German or Italian hands.

The announcement was made by Vice-Admiral Emile Musilier, commander of the "free" French naval forces and collaborator with General Charles de Gaulle.

Musilier also said that a number of French naval vessels had rallied to General De Gaulle's cause and a number of French submarines are in British waters.

He said several warships under construction in France were towed to safety together with the workmen to complete them.

"My aim," he said, "is to save the honor of the French naval flag. I do not wish to give the German or the Italian Governments any pretext which would enable them to demand handing over the French fleet or any part of it.

"I hope that any commander would rather blow his ship up than give it up to the enemy.

"I am going to cooperate to the utmost of my ability and strength with our British Allies.

Vice-Admiral Musilier said that part of the French mercantile fleet came under his orders.

Money collected from the chartering of French merchant chartering of Frenc hmerchant ships under his orders and from valuable cargoes seized, he said, gave enough resources — several million pounds sterling—to operate the forces for several years.

BRITISH CONTROL

ternoon off Oran and the naval base on Mers El-Kebir, Mr. Churchill said:

"I fear the loss of life among the French and in the harbor must have been heavy as we were compelled to use very severe measures and immense explosions were observed."

The Prime Minister told the tensely listening House that the French ships "fought with the characteristic courage of the French navy."

Diplomats, including the Soviet ambassador, Ivan Maisky, and also peers and soldiers filled the galleries in anticipation of a lengthy exposition of Britain's attempt to seize the French fleet, part of which already is in British waters.

Address At His Request.

The prime minister informed the House that it was at his request that Neville Chamberlain, Lord President of the Council, gave his broadcast last Sunday on the government's determination to fight on to victory.

Cheers greeted this.

"I have no doubt that it was widely welcomed here and in the United States," Mr. Churchill said.

Mr. Churchill announced that the House would hold a secret debate on economic warfare next Tuesday.

Beginning his main speech, Mr. Churchill said it is with sincere sorrow that I must now announce to the House the measures which we have felt bound to take in order to prevent the French fleet from falling into German hands."

"When two nations are fighting together one of them may be stricken down and overwhelmed and forced to ask its ally to release it from its obligations," he said.

But, he added, the least that could be expected was that the French government in abandoning the conflict "would have been careful not to inflict needless injury upon their faithful comrades in whose final victory the sole chance of French freedom lay and lies."

Offer Not Fulfilled.

"We offered to give full release to the French from their treaty obligations if their fleet was sailed for British harbors before a separate armistice was completed.

"That was not done."

"In spite of every kind of promise and assurance given by Admiral Darlan," he said, "an armistice was signed which was bound to place the French fleet as effectively in the power of Germany as that portion of the French fleet was placed in our power when many of them, unable to reach African ports, came into Portsmouth and Plymouth about ten days ago.

"I must place on record that what might have been a mortal injury was done to us by the Bordeaux government with full knowledge of the consequences.

Bordeaux Gov't Callous Is Claim.

"There is another example of the callous, perhaps even malevolent, treatment which we have received—not from the French nation, but from the Bordeaux government.

"Over 400 German air pilots were prisoners in France. We obtained a promise from Reynaud that these pilots would be sent over to England. When Reynaud fell these pilots were delivered over to Germany."

Mr. Churchill said the decision to take over the French fleet was reached unanimously by the war cabinet.

"Yesterday morning we took the greater part of the French fleet under our control or else called upon them to comply with our requirements," he said.

Two battleships, two light cruisers, some submarines, including the Surcouf, eight destroyers and 200 small mine-sweeping and anti-submarine craft in Portsmouth, Plymouth and Sheerness were boarded after brief notice was given, wherever possible, to their captains.

Scuffle In Submarine.

Fighting started, he said, when "a scuffle arose in the French submarine Surcouf in which one British seaman was killed, two British officers and one rating wounded, and one French officer was killed and one wounded."

Mr. Churchill said the whole operation was carried out without bloodshed except that aboard the Surcouf.

"We must pay particular attention to our own situation," he continued, explaining that the question of what to do about the French fleet was the most "grim and sombre" in his experience.

French sailors mostly have "cheerfully accepted the position," Mr. Churchill said, and "eight or nine hundred have expressed their ardent desire to continue the war."

"Some have asked for British nationality and this will be granted without prejudice to other Frenchmen who prefer to fight on with us as Frenchmen.

Some Subs Join

"Several French submarines have joined us independently and we have accepted their services."

"At Alexandria," he said, "a French battleship, four French cruisers and a number of small ships, warned they would not be permitted to leave the harbor, joined British warships in fighting off an Italian raid."

Detailing the situation at Oran, he said:

"Yesterday morning, an officer asked to interview the French admiral and after being refused presented a document demanding that the French fleet should act in accordance with one of the following alternatives:

1. To continue the fight against the Germans and Italians.
2. To sail with a reduced crew to a British port.

"'If conditions refused,' the request continued, 'we must require you to sink your ships within six hours.'

"Negotiations have been taking place and measures have been taken to ensure that these ships shall be sunk or otherwise put out of action.

"The anguish which this process has caused to the British admiralty can be imagined.

Ordered to Complete Operations

"When finally the French admiral refused to comply, Admiral Somerville was ordered to complete the operation before darkness.

"He opened fire at 5:58 p.m. on the powerful French fleet protected by shore batteries.

"The British attack was accompanied by heavy attacks from aircraft from the Ark Royal.

"By 7:30 a battle cruiser of the Strasbourg class was damaged and ashore.

"A battleship of the Bretagne class was sunk and another heavily damaged.

"Two French destroyers and an airplane carrier were sunk or burning.

"One battle cruiser, either the Strasbourg or Dunkerque, succeeded in sailing out of the harbor pursued by aircraft. She was hit by one torpedo but was joined by other French vessels, all of which reached Toulon before they could be overtaken.

Dunkerque Out of Action.

"The Dunkerque will at any rate be out of action for many months to come.

"I fear the loss of life among the French and in the harbor must have been heavy as we were compelled to use very severe measures and immense explosions were observed.

"None of the British ships was affected in gunpower or mobility by the heavy fire.

"The Italian fleet kept prudently out of the way.

"We shall take the necessary steps to maintain command of the Mediterranean.

"Consequently a large proportion of the French fleet has passed into our hands or been put out of action or withheld from Germany.

"Some other French ships are at large and it is our inflexible resolve to do everything possible to prevent them falling into German hands.

"I leave the judgment of our action with confidence to parliament. I leave it to the nation. I leave it to the United States. I leave it to the world and to history."

Looking toward the future, Mr. Churchill said "we must, of course, expect to be attacked or even invaded.

"No Talk Here of Peace."

"The lies and rumors that we have had some intention of entering into negotiations with the Italian and German governments should be completely swept out of existence by the very grievous drastic action we have felt ourselves compelled to take.

"There is no talk here of peace. We shall on the contrary prosecute the war with the utmost vigor.

"In the fullest comity with our dominions, we are moving through a period of extreme danger and splendid hope, when every virtue of our race will be tested.

"We are making every preparation in our power to repel the assaults of our enemy, whether they be directed upon Britain or upon Ireland.

"Ireland In Imminent Danger."

"All British, without distinction of creed or party, will realize that Ireland is in imminent danger. These are again matters upon which we have a clear view. These preparations are constantly occupying our toil from morning to night."

Mr. Churchill read a message he had sent to all in positions of authority:

Mr. Churchill's Message.

"On what may be the eve of an attempted invasion or battle for our native land, the prime minister desires to impress upon all holding responsible positions their duty to maintain the spirit of alert and confident energy.

"There are no grounds for supposing that more German troops can be landed in this country either from the air or across the sea, that can be destroyed or captured by the strong forces at present under arms.

"They should not hesitate, if necessary, to remove any officer or official found to be constantly exercising a disturbing or distressing influence."

Mr. Churchill finished his momentous speech, which was repeatedly interrupted by cheers, with tears in his eyes and the House immediately began its debate in secret session.

German-Speaking Farmers Return

Basel, Switzerland, July 4 (AP).—Ten thousand German-speaking farmers and peasants of Alsace and Lorraine have returned to their homes from southern France, it was learned today. Although isolated French units in those provinces were reported still resisting Nazi troops.

The vanguard of 700 was led by pro-German Alsatians and officers of the German army of occupation.

The officers and civilian aides rounded up groups in a refugee centre in southern France to be repatriated to the provinces which were ruled by Germany from 1871 to the end of the first great war.

Since Sunday, there has been a constant flow back into the frontier regions, where fields had stood deserted—tangles of weeds and tall grass—since the start of the war in September.

French sources said the Germans are paying especial attention to Alsace and Lorraine inhabitants in an effort to win them over before peace terms which may re-incorporate their provinces into the Reich.

U. E. L. FAMILY HOLDS REUNION

Affair Held in Belleville With Lunch Served on Spacious Lawn

A large Union Jack which fluttered gracefully on the lawn marked the scene of a gala event on Monday, July 1st, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barlow, Belleville, when descendants of Hiram Spencer gathered for their fifth annual reunion. Although the weatherman predicted showers all day there was an excellent attendance. At noon hour lunch was served buffet style in the house as the weather did not permit those present to enjoy their repast at tables on the beautiful and spacious lawn. During the afternoon, races and a peanut scramble were enjoyed by the children, while others indulged in a ball game. Singing was also enjoyed with Mrs. W. G. Bell very capably presiding at the piano. Supper was served at six o'clock in the dining room after which election of officers took place with the following results:—President—Mr. H. W. Jones, Toronto; Secretary—Miss Mary Bell, Portsmouth. The secretary read letters which were sent by relatives unable to be present. Mr. Jones in a very feeling manner referred to the death of Mrs. C. Peckham of Buffalo, N. Y., since the reunion last year. A note of sympathy is to be sent to her bereaved son and daughter by the secretary. An interesting feature was that Mr. John Barlow, who celebrated his ninety-second birthday on July 2nd, was in attendance. A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Barlow for their hospitality in opening their home for the gathering. The singing of God Be With You Till We Meet Again and the National Anthem brought a perfect day to a close. Mr. H. W. Jones of Toronto is responsible for these gatherings each year and deserves much credit for his ever increasing interest in the reunions. It was decided to hold another of these reunions next year, the place and date to be decided later. Among those present were:— Mr. and Mrs. C. Sullivan, Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Chatterson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Chatterson, Misses Shirley and Ada Chatterson, Mr. Clarke Chatterson and Mr. D. A. Ives, Colborne; Mrs. V. Lightle and Master John, Bewdley; Mr. and Mrs. F. MILITARY PORTS CLEAR OF PLANES IN HUNGARY

Precautions Taken to Prevent Surprise Attack as Warlike Preparations Near Completion

TWO CONDITIONS

(By Max Harrelson, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Budapest, July 4—(AP) — Hungary ordered all military airports cleared of planes today to prevent their destruction by surprise attack as warlike preparations neared completion, and through propaganda continued to build up her case for occupation of Transylvania.

But at the same time, there was evidence she still was trying for peaceful settlement of her claims to the rich province Rumania gained from the Austro-Hungarian empire at the end of the First Great War.

The Hungarian minister to Yugoslavia, Baron Gyorgy Takack-Besseney, returned to Belgrade after conferring with Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky. Informed quarters said he took back the government's views on Yugoslav efforts to mediate.

Dr. Laszlode Bardossy, Minister to Rumania, also returned to his post after reporting to Csaky.

Diplomatic circles said there were only two conditions under which the Hungarian army would move against Rumania:

1. If Russia should attempt penetration into Rumania beyond the area ceded the Soviet by King Carol;
2. In case serious disorders in Transylvania should endanger the Hungarian minorities of nearly 1,500,000.

LIBERAL MEMBER AGAINST DEFENCE TAX OF TWO P. C.

T. J. O'Neil Says Taking Tax on $600 and $1,200 Incomes Will Deprive People of Necessities of Life

HANSON CRITICAL

By CARL REINKE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 4 —(CP) Taxation of incomes below $750 and $1,500 for single and married persons respectively drew fire from Liberal ranks in the House of Commons as debate on the budget moved to a close.

T. J. O'Neill (Lib. Kamloops) declared bluntly during yesterday's half-day session that national defence tax of two per cent on incomes as low as $600 and $1,200, as proposed in the budget, should be eliminated "at once."

If incomes as low as these were taxed, difficulty would be found in obtaining the necessities of life, he said.

The Kamloops railroader suggested that additional taxation might well be obtained by cutting salaries of members of parliament and civil servants getting more than $3,500.

One of the troubles with the government, Mr. O'Neill said, was that the cabinet ministers lack opportunity to get out and rub elbows with the common people and learn existing conditions at first hand. As a remedy, he suggested appointment of another minister who would relieve each of the cabinet ministers for two weeks or so at a time, so the minister could visit the country.

Against Excess Profits

Mr. O'Neill agreed with the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation proposal put forward last Friday that all excess profits in wartime should be absorbed in taxation. "The very life, the very existence of our country is at stake," he said, "and the last thing that industry should expect to have today is any measure of excess profits."

While he did not agree with Finance Minister Ralston on this point (the minister proposed a 75 per cent tax on excess profits), he said he recognized that Col. Ralston had the backing of a large majority of the Liberal party.

Conservative Leader Hanson asked how Mr. O'Neill would vote.

"I do not think it is good form for a front bencher in the party opposite to rise and question one of the back benchers who is attempting to make one of the speeches he makes only once in four or five months," retorted Mr. O'Neill to considerable applause.

He felt Canada had as good a financial system as any country but contended it could only be maintained by using national credit "without paying tribute to any private individual." If present taxation and increase of the public debt continued, the financial structure would collapse.

"If we brought about reforms in our monetary system and prevented its total collapse, that would be much better than to continue on the way we have been going until there is total collapse," he said.

Parts and Service Managers' Club Holds Picnic at Tweed

Tweed, July 4 (Special)—The annual picnic of the Parts and Service Managers' Club of General Motors Dealers was held at Tweed Memorial Park on Wednesday under ideal conditions. Representatives were present from Trenton, Belleville, Stirling, Marmora, Madoc, Picton, Napanee, Kingston, Brockville and other places of Eastern Ontario without exception they pronounced Tweed Memorial Park with its ideal location on the shore of Stoco Lake as one of the finest places they have yet seen. Ideal facilities for games, boating, water sports all combined to make the local park one of the finest in the province.

Arrangements for the annual picnic were made by LeSage Motor Sales, Tweed, while the Catholic Women's League served an excellent dinner to about one hundred men. The President of the organization is Harry Bullock of Kingston, and the Secretary, Ron Guthrie, Kingston Motor Co., Kingston.

Program of Sports

A program of sports was held during the afternoon including a softball game between teams captained by Bill Meath, Oshawa, and Jack Simonette, Parham. The former's aggregation captured the contest by a close score.

L. Alyea was winner of the horse-shoe pitching contest with C. Baker of Stirling capturing second place.

Wilson of Stirling won over T. Lewis of Belleville in the fat man's race.

H. Wilson, Kingston and H. Lapp of Oshawa ran one-two in the balloon race which provoked considerable merriment.

C. Welbank, Picton, showed a marked superiority over his competitors in the hundred yards, the broad jump and throwing the softball. R. Guthrie of Kingston placed second in the broad jump.

Oshawa General Motors plant was represented by Wilf Gillette head of Parts and Accessories Department, Russell Kerr head of Service Department and George York, District Service Manager.

Text of Churchill's Address to House

London, July 4 (AP)—The text of Prime Minister Chuchill's statement in the House of Commons follows:

It is with sincere sorrow that I must now announce to the House the measure which we have felt bound to take in order to prevent the French fleet from falling into German hands.

Sir (addressing the Speaker), when two nations are fighting together in long and solemn alliance against a common foe, one of them may be stricken down and overwhelmed and may be forced to ask its ally to release it from its obligation, but the least that could be expected was that the French government, in abandoning conflict and leaving its whole weight to fall upon Great Britain and the British Empire, would have been careful not to inflict needless injury upon their faithful comrade in whose final victory the sole chance of French freedom lay and lies.

Promise Not Carried Out

Mr. Churchill then told of Great Britain's willingness to release France from its treaty obligations on the condition the French fleet sail for British harbors before armistice negotiations were begun with the enemy. Despite the assurance of Admiral Darlan this would be done a section of the French fleet came under the power of Germany and Italy.

But I must place on record that what might have been a mortal injury was done to us by the Bordeaux government with full knowledge of the consequences and of the dangers and after rejecting all our appeals at the moment when they were abandoning the alliance and breaking the engagement which fortified it. This was another example of the callous and perhaps even malevolent treatment which we received, not indeed, from the French nation, who have never been and apparently never are to be consulted in these transactions, but the treatment which we received from the Bordeaux government.

Prisoners Given to Germany

There were over 400 German air pilots who were prisoners in France, many of them shot down by the R.A.F. I obtained from M. Reynaud a personal promise that these pilots should be sent for safe-keeping to England and orders were given by him to that effect, but when M. Reynaud fell these pilots were delivered over to Germany (cries of "shame") in order no doubt to win favour for the Bordeaux government with the German masters and to win it without regard to the injury done to us.

The German air force already feels acutely the shortage of high grade pilots and it seems particularly odious that these 400 skilled men should be handed over with the sure knowledge that they would be used to bomb this country and thus force our airmen to shoot them down a second time.

Mr. Churchill said the question as to what should be done about the French fleet was discussed by the cabinet and never in his experience had the subject been so grim or sombre. When the decision was made, it was an unanimous one, he said.

Took Fleet Under Control.

Accordingly early yesterday morning July 3rd, after all preparation had been made, we took the greater part of the French fleet under our control (cheers) or else called upon them with an adequate force to comply with our requirements.

Two batteships, two light cruisers, some submarines, including a very large one, the Sourcouf, eight destroyers and approximately two hundred smaller but extremely useful mine-sweeping and anti-submarine craft which lay for the most part in Portsmouth and Plymouth were boarded by superior forces after a brief notice had been given, wherever possible, to their captains.

This operation was successfully carried out without resistance or bloodshed except in one instance. A scuffle except through a misunderstanding in the submarine Sourcouf in which one British seaman was killed and two British officers and one rating were wounded, and one French officer was also killed and one wounded.

Many Want to Continue

For the rest, the French sailors in the main cheerfully accepted the end of a period of uncertainty. A considerable number—800 or 900—expressed an ardent desire to continue the war.

Some have asked for British nationality. This we are ready to concede without prejudice to other Frenchmen, numbered by thousands who prefer to fight with us as Frenchmen.

Mr. Churchill said French sailors and soldiers who did not wish to continue the fight against the enemy would be repatriated. Several French submarines, however, offered their services independently and were accepted.

Now I turn to the Mediterranean at Alexandria where a strong British battle fleet is lying. There are, besides French battleships, four French cruisers, three of them modern eight-inch gun vessels, and a number of smaller ships. These have been informed that they cannot be permitted to leave the harbor and thus fall within the power of the German conquerors of France.

Negotiations and discussions have taken place and measures have now been taken to ensure that those ships which are commanded by a very gallant Admiral shall be sunk or otherwise made to comply with our wishes. The anguish which this process has naturally caused the British and French officers concerned may be readily imagined when I inform the House that only this morning during the air raid on Alexandria some of the French ships fired heavily and effectively with us against the common enemy.

Sent With Message

But the most curious part of the story remains. Two of the finest vessels of the French Fleet — the Dunkerque and the Strasbourg, modern battle cruisers—much superior to the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and built for the purpose of being superior to them, lay with several light cruisers and a number of destroyers, submarines and other vessels at Oran and the adjacent Mers El Kebir on the French frontier of Morocco.

Yesterday morning a carefully chosen British officer—Captain Holland, late naval attache at Paris, was sent on in a destroyer to wait upon the French Admiral Gensoul and after being refused an interview put before him a document of which I will read to the House the operative paragraphs:

(Reading) "It is impossible for us now to allow your fine ships to fall into the power of our German or Italian enemies. We are determined to fight to the end and if we win, as we think we shall, we shall never forget that France was our ally and that our interests are the same as hers, and that our common enemy is Germany.

"And we solemnly declare that we shall restore her territory to France. For this purpose we must make sure that the best ships of the French Navy are not used against us by the common foe.

Three Alternatives Given

"In these circumstances His Majesty's Government have instructed me to demand that the French fleet now at Mers El-Kebir and Oran shall act in accordance with one of the following alternatives:

"A. Sail with us and continue to fight for victory against the Germans and Italians.

"B. Sail with reduced crews under our control to a British port. The reduced crews will be repatriated at the earliest possible moment.

"C. If either of these courses is adopted by you, we will restore your ships to France at the conclusion of the war or pay full compensation if they are damaged meanwhile.

"Alternatively, if you feel bound to stipulate that your ships are not to be used against the Germans or Italians unless they break the armistice conditions, then sail them with us with reduced crews to some French port in the West Indies—Martinique, for instance, where they can be demilitarised, or be perhaps entrusted to the United States and remain safe until the end of the war, the crews being repatriated to France.

"If you refuse these fair offers, I must, with profound regret, require you to sink your ships within six hours. Failing the above I have the orders of the Government to use whatever force may be necessary to prevent your ships from falling into German or Italian hands."

Parleys Continue all Day

Resuming his speech, Mr. Churchill said that the parleys continued all day long and hope was held the terms would be accepted without bloodshed. Admiral Gensoul refused to comply, no doubt in obedience to orders dictated by Germany from Wiesbaden, where the Franco-German Commission are in session and announced his intention of fighting. So Admiral Somerville, in charge of the British battle squadron, was ordered to complete his mission before darkness fell.

At 5.58 p.m. he opened fire on this powerful French fleet which was protected by its shore batteries. At 6 p.m. he was heavily engaged. The action lasted for some ten minutes.

It was followed by heavy attacks from our naval aircraft carried on the Ark Royal. At 7.30 Admiral Somerville forwarded a further report stating that a battle cruiser of the Strasbourg class was damaged and ashore and that a battleship of the Bretagne class had been sunk, another of the same class heavily damaged two French destroyers and a seaplane carrier (Commandant Teste) were also sunk or burned.

One Battle Cruiser Escapes

While this melancholy action was being fought the other battle cruiser of the Strasbourg class, the Dunkerque, or another, managed to slip out of harbor in a gallant effort to reach Toulon or North African ports, and place herself under German control, in accordance with the armistice terms of the Bordeaux Government.

She was pursued by aircraft of the fleet air arm and hit by at least one torpedo. She may have, however, been joined by other French vessels from Algiers during the night, for these vessels were well placed to join her and the whole were able to reach Toulon before we could overtake them.

The Prime Minister said every allowance should be made for Admiral Gensoul and his officers who felt themselves obliged to obey the orders of their government. He said he feared the French who fought with characteristic courage, suffered many casualties. He was yet unable to report on the extent of the British casualties other than that the fleet in all military aspects was intact and ready for action.

The Italian Navy, he said, kept prudently out of the way but he believed its turn would come when the British started operations to obtain command of the Mediterranean.

Parliament to be Judge

I leave the judgment of our actions with confidence to parliament (cheers); I leave it to the nation; I leave it to the United States of America; I leave it to history; and I turn now to the immediate future. We must, of course, expect to be attacked or even invaded, if that proves to be possible—it has not proved so yet—in our own island home before very long.

We are making every preparation in our power to repel the assaults of the enemy, whether they be directed on Great Britain or Ireland, which all Irishmen, without distinction or creed or party, should realize is in imminent danger.

Mr. Churchill said the government had clear views on these matters but it would not be profitable to discuss them in public. He said Britain, in full harmony with the Dominions, was moving through a period of danger and of splendid hope that would test "every virtue of our race."

This is not a time for doubts or weakness. This is the supreme hour to which we are called.

Message to Service Read

I will venture to read to the House a message which I caused to be sent to all who are serving in positions of importance under the Crown and if the House should view it with sympathy, I should be very glad to send a copy of every member of his own use—not that such exhortations are needed.

This is the message (reading):

"On what may be the eve of an attempted invasion or battle for our native land, the Prime Minister desires to impress upon all persons holding responsible positions in the government, in the fighting services, or in the civil departments, their duty to maintain a spirit of alert and confident energy. While every precaution must be taken that time and means afford, there are no grounds for supposing that more German troops can be landed in this country, either from the air or across the sea, than can be destroyed or captured by the strong forces at present under arms.

"The Royal Air Force is in excellent order and at the highest strength it has yet attained. The German navy was never so weak nor the British army at home so strong as now. The Prime Minister expects all His Majesty's servants in high places to set an example of steadiness and resolution. They should check and rebuke expressions of loose and ill-digested opinion in their circles or by their subordinates.

Entitled to Confidence

"They should not hesitate to report or, if necessary, remove any officers or officials who are found to be consciously exercising a disturbing or depressing influence and whose talk is calculated to spread alarm and despondency. Thus alone will they be worthy of the fighting-men who in the air, on the sea and on land, have already met the enemy without any sense of being outmatched in material qualities."

"In conclusion I felt that we are entitled to the confidence of the House and that they should sincerely and readily believe that we have not failed in our duty, however painful it may have been. The action we have already taken should, in itself, be sufficient to dispose once and for all of all the lies and rumors which have been so industriously spread in the United States and elsewhere by German propaganda and which you meet with here, fostered here at home by fifth column activities.

These lies and rumors have suggested that we have had some intention of entering into negotiations with the German and Italian Governments. Any idea of that should be completely swept out of the way by the very drastic and grievous action we have felt ourselves compelled to take. No, there is no thought of negotiation.

"There is no thought here I say in this country, whose love of peace has been proved so long. There is no thought here of peace. We shall, on the contrary, prosecute the war with the utmost vigor, by all the means that are open to us until the righteous purposes for which we entered upon it have been in all respects fulfilled."

Somerville Rescued 100,000 Frenchmen In Dunkirk Action

London, July 4 —(CP)— Vice-Admiral Sir James Somerville, in charge of the British operations against the French at Oran, is a veteran of the Dardanelles campaign who retired in 1939 but returned to duty when the new war began.

Admiral Somerville was revealed by Prime Minister Churchill today to have "distinguished himself lately in bringing off 100,000 Frenchmen during the evacuation of Dunkirk."

He commanded destroyer flotillas in the Mediterranean in 1936-38 and was commander in chief of the East Indies in 1938-39.

CONSIDERATION GIVEN

Toronto, July 4 (CP)—Attorney General Gordon Conant announced today that consideration is being given by the Ontario Government to legislation prohibiting members of subversive organizations from holding public office or positions of public trust. A difficulty of such legislation would be furnishing sufficient proof again persons accused, he added.

DUNKERQUE USED AS CONVOY SHIP

(By Sam Robertson)
(Canadian Press Staff Wirter)

London, July 4.—(CP Cable)—When the second flight of Canada's 1st Division sailed safely from home for the United Kingdom last December the troops crossed the Atlantic, lashed by the fury of wintry gales under the friendly protection of the guns of the French battle cruiser Dunkerque.

Today the great ship is either a total wreck or is severely damaged as a result of the refusal of its commander to obey a British order designed to keep it from being used against Britain.

A strong formation of British and Canadian naval units helped guard Canada's fighting sons on their Christmas week voyage to the war but the French Admiral aboard the Dunkerque commanded the convoy.

Like a mother hen heading chicks, the French man-o-War continually circled the troopships from the time they left the Dominion, placing its armored bulk between them and any danger that might have lurked in the fathomless seas.

Nova Scotia troops aboard the transport on which I was privileged to sail often spoke of the "warm comfort" they felt at the sight of the Dunkerque and the four giant "rifles" that poked from each of its forward gun turrets. They nicknamed it "Our Great Grey Father".

Seven witnesses were heard including two doctors who attributed Taylor's death to a blow on the temple causing hemorrhages resulting in intra-cranial pressure.

NAZI VENT SPITE UPON CHURCHILL

Berlin, July 4—(AP)—The Nazi Government-inspired commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, today nominated Prime Minister Churchill as the man "Whom history will stamp as the greatest scoundrel of all times" because of the Royal Navy's action against the French fleet.

"We shouldn't be surprised," the commentary continued, "if the English people were now to hang Churchill on Trafalgar Square in the face of the Nelson statue."

R.A.F. BOMBERS SUCCESSFUL

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Inches or millibars! We used to say average pressure of the atmosphere at sea level was 29.92 inches of mercury in a barometer or about 14.7 pounds per square inch. But an inch is a unit of length, and, since the atmosphere presses down upon the earth, that is, exerts a force, it seems more reasonable to express amount of pressure in some unit of force. A common unit of force is the pound. But weather men have selected the "millibar" as the unit of atmospheric pressure more in line with scientific units. The average pressure at sea level is about 1015 millibars. So in general, pressure in a storm area, or cyclone, is less than 1015 millibars as will be noted in all weather maps.

Cheese Producers Requested To Increase Production

Agriculture Minister, P. M. Dewan, Says England Wants All the Cheese Canada Can Produce

Toronto, July 4 —(CP)— Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Agriculture Minister, issued an appeal today to all Ontario cheese producers to increase production to meet the heavy British demand.

Great Britain is calling for all the cheese Canada can send her this year, the Minister said, and as Ontario produced 72 per cent of the entire Canadian output last year the British appeal must be answered largely by Ontario cheese factories and farmers.

Mr. Dewan said Ontario is well-equipped to give immediate aid to Great Britain on that particular "food front." There are 656 cheese factories in the province, he said, and they are all asked to concentrate immediately on export production.

He said there are 33 plants that make both cheese and butter and if they would switch their output to cheese alone it would mean an increase of 12,000,000 pounds this year.

"We are making 10,000,000 pounds more butter a year than we consume," he said. "If the milk used to produce this surplus was turned into cheese, it would mean an additional 20,000,000 pounds could be exported. There is no indication that our butter is required in Britain where consumers are being rationed at four ounces a person a week.

"The United Kingdom has large quantities of materials used in the manufacture of margarine and as long as these are available margarine will doubtless continue to be used."

Mr. Dewan said the set British price of 14 cents a pound compares favorably with the average price of 12.7 cents in 1939. He said that farmers also gain from increased cheese production because they get more for milk shipments to cheese factories than from creameries.

Cheese factories in eastern and central Ontario are equipped to produce at least 25 per cent more cheese, the Minister said. He expected such factories would step up production at once. All they need is the milk and that should be available owing to the abundant pasturage this year.

TWO ARE INJURED NEAR PLAINFIELD

Jack Lynch Requires Blood Transfusion at Hospital After Admittance

Two persons were seriously injured near Plainfield on Highway No. 37 at 2.00 a.m. Thursday morning when a car driven by Mr. Jack Thorne of Belleville crashed into the ditch after having gotten beyond control.

The injured, Mr. Jack Lynch of 58 1-2 Moira Street West, and Mr. Norman Halsey of 85 Gordon Street were rushed to the Belleville General Hospital, where Mr. Lynch was found to be suffering from severe scalp wounds and Mr. Halsey from a severe shaking up. One other occupant of the car, Beverly Quincey and the driver were uninjured.

Dr. R. A. Flynn, who attended Mr. Lynch, stated at noon today that he lost considerable blood before being admitted to the hospital about 4.00 a.m. this morning, and that it had been found necessary to give the injured man a blood transfusion. His condition was reported as being favorable. Mr. Halsey was attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk, who reported that his patient's condition was favorable.

The party were returning to Belleville, when the accident occurred with the car crossing the highway twice before crashing into the right ditch as the car went out of control. Provincial Constable Adair investigated the accident.

Petain Government Protests Action Against French Fleet

London, July 5 —(CP)— The French Charge D'Affairs in London protested to the Foreign Office today over the British action against the French fleet in the Mediterranean.

The protest was submitted on behalf of the Petain Government by Roger Cambon, who has been in charge of the embassy since Ambassador Charles Corbin resigned last week.

British authorities said that the fact Cambon called at the Foreign Office in his official capacity to submit the protest showed that up to that time at least diplomatic relations continued between the French and British governments.

The French embassy said the protest was "as drastic and as stern a protest as it is possible to make."

'God Bless You All', Says Skipper, To His Youthful Cargo at Montreal

650 Refugee Children Present Address to Captain Pert for His Care in Crossing

PEERAGE REPRESENTED

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 5 (CP).—A proud pied piper with a musical chuckle led an eager, trusting band of children to Canada and safety, wiped the perspiration from his brow and declared with gusto: "You're the snuggest and best cargo a skipper ever had . . . God bless you all."

Captain Robert Pert, R.N.R., a native of Glasgow, had made his first and only speech in his thirty years and more at sea. It was a speech he just had to make.

He had been presented with an address of appreciation, scrawled on ship's letterheads in the bold and awkward hand of his young passengers who are child guests of Canada for the duration of the war.

They trundled down the gangplank at Montreal last night—nearly 650 of them—tired but happy and all eyes for the big red coated Mounties who policed the bustling baggage shed.

And watching with a wistful smile was Captain Pert. In his hand was a treasure for his sea chest. It was the letter of appreciation which bore the signature and age of every one of his young charges.

The letter also mentioned "the purser and the purserettes", "the bo-

Still Counts Italy 'Potential Ally'

London, July 5 — (CP) — Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Welfare, told a foreign press association luncheon Thurs. that Britain would "fight, and if necessary die, before she ever would raise the white flag of surrender."

He said even if the Cabinet and the House of Commons were blotted out, Britain, schooled in self-government, would fight on without wavering.

Economic pressure is making itself increasingly felt, he said, adding that Britain counted Italy as "still a potential ally."

"I think Italians will come to their senses quicker than Germans —they have better senses to come to," he declared.

British Respect and Gratitude For French Courage Will Endure

London, July 5 —(CP—Cable)— The Manchester Guardian, commenting today on the action between the British and French fleets, said yesterday was a "blacker day for both countries than the blackest day in the last or this war."

Although the "future relations of the two peoples are clouded in mists," the paper said, "nothing done by France's present rulers can destroy British respect or British gratitude for the courage of our comrades in the dangers and sufferings of the war. . . . We may justly ask them, as we ask the rest of the world, to judge and to say whether we could have done other than we have done and whether they in our place would have acted otherwise."

The Yorkshire Post said words could not add to the "poignantly graphic account" given by Prime Minister Churchill and compared the tragedy with the popular story of the "two friends or brothers so disguised that they engaged in mortal combat unawares."

The Post blasted the Bordeaux government, accusing it of refusing to turn over the fleet to Britain not only in the hope of obtaining milder armistice terms but "also to buy its way into the Axis and turn the country into a minor totalitarian power." It described as "traitorous" the French order to intercept British merchantmen.

RUMANIA'S CHOICE OF GERMAN IRKS HUNGARIAN GOV'T

Informed Circles Emphasize German Minority in Rumania Only 740,000

SOLDIERS TO HARVEST

By MAX HARRELSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Budapest, July 5 (AP).—The Hungarian government was pictured in informed quarters today as highly dissatisfied with the appointment of a Transylvania German as new minister of minorities in the Rumanian cabinet of Premier Ion Gigurtu.

These sources said designation of Hans Otto Roth to this post was an effort to gain German support against Hungarian claims for the Rumanian province of Transylvania.

They emphasized even Rumania official figures show a German minority of only 740,000 in King Carol's kingdom, compared to a Hungarian minority of 1,426,000.

These sources said they did not understand fully the meaning of the Rumanian government statement that it would "further the expression of nationalistic aims" and that these aims would be carried out "gradually and methodically".

No Signs of Demobilization.

French Plane Manufacture 'Failed Miserably' Experts Say, Inefficiency Blamed on Politics

Consultants Who Came from France to Bilbao, Spain, Attribute Failure to 'Official Indecision and Government Inefficiency Due to Politics' —French Factories Described as Some of World's Best Equipped — Strikes, Constantly Changing Specifications Described

By WILLIAM J. HUMPHREYS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lisbon, Spain, July 5 (AP)—Technical consultants who came to Spain from France said today France's supreme defence effort after the start of war was in airplane manufacture —"and this failed miserably".

A half dozen consultants and engineering experts here awaiting transportation to the United States attributed that failure to "official indecision and government inefficiency due to politics". They described French factories as "some of the world's best equipped".

Americans said one large factory in southern France was ready in January to start turning out 250 engines a month but never produced one because of constantly changing specifications.

In another instance Americans said that after long study an American engine was approved for production but "insignificant" alterations were demanded which required such extensive changes in tool machinery that none was manufactured.

Widespread strikes were described as a factor in retarding the production of vital war materials.

The Americans estimated the best production record the French factories set during the fighting was 750 airplane engines a month, and 500 of these came from old, established plants; not the new ones built for the war rush job.

Neutral World Applauds Action of the Royal Navy

250 French Ships of All Sizes Fled to British Ports Where Their Crews Were Ready to Carry on War Despite Petain Government— Germany and Italy Irritated Over British Action

By GUY REQADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Most of the neutral world today applauded Britain's Royal Navy for its virtual destruction of axis-inclined segments of the Franch fleet, an action which assured at least that the strafed vessels cannot be used to further German and Italian ambitions to invade the United Kingdom.

In a stroke that recalled the Elizabethan days of Sir Francis Drake the navy, using one battle squadron, blasted the major portion of the potentially hostile French navy near Oran, Algeria, while at Alexandria another hesitant part was prevented from leaving port.

French officers and men were placed in a difficult position by the new Petain government which negotiated armistice terms with Germany in direct contravention of the former Reynaud administration's promise not to allow French ships to fall into enemy hands.

They could consider that Petain and his cabinet of extreme rightists represented France, although not supported by any parliament, or they could consider him a usurper and puppet of Germany. In the former case they were bound by conscience to obey Petain orders. In the latter they could feel free to fight with their British comrades.

Members Given Chance To Break With Society Before Action Taken

Toronto, July 5—(CP)— Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, said today a survey is to be made of Ontario Government services to determine how many employees are members of the Jehovah's Witnesses, declared an illegal organization by the Federal Government.

Those identifying themselves with the organization will be given an opportunity to break with it before any action is taken against them, Mr. Conant said.

One court official recently identified himself as a member of the organization when he wrote to the Attorney - General's Department giving that as his reason for refusing to say, "God Save the King", at the opening of court sessions.

Rumania, Once Close Friend of France, First Country in S. E. Europe to Switch Allegiance

GOV'T. REALISTIC

(By Wes Gallagher, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Bucharest, July 5—(AP)—Rumania, once a close friend of France, became today the first country in southeastern Europe to switch completely to the side of Germany and Italy.

The new government of pro-Nazi Premier Ion Gigurtu, named by King Carol yesterday in an apparent effort to save his country from being carved up by its neighbors, immediately pledged itself to follow the Axis powers.

The Gigurtu Government declared it not only was being realistic in adapting its foreign policy "to the system created by the Rome-Berlin Axis" but also would adhere to Nazi-Fascist ideology because of the convictions and "biological principles" of the cabinet members.

'DEFENCE AREA' IS EXTENDED

Public Banned from Entering South Coast County of Sussex and Part of Hampshire

London, July 5. — (CP) — The public today was banned by the home office from entering any part of the South Coast County of Sussex and a large part of the County of Hampshire, including the naval base of Portsmouth and the important shipping centre of Southampton.

The banned area also includes the Isle of Wight, opposite Portsmouth and Southampton, and a small part of the County of Dorset in which is situated the Portland naval base, raided yesterday by German bombers.

The Home Office order, which takes immediate effect prohibits visits to many popular seaside resorts on the Sussex coast.

The order thus extended the "defence area" of Britain, from which visitors are banned except on business of national importance, to include the entire east coast from Berwick-on-Tweed around the south coast as far west as Dorset, where several popular holiday resorts also are affected.

NELSON SAMMY PAYS PENALTY

Regina, July 5—(CP)—Nelson Sammy, 35-year-old White Bear Reserve Indian, was hanged today at Regina jail for the murder of Constable W. E. Rhodeniser, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, near Carlyle, Sask., in August, 1939.

Sammy was convicted first of manslaughter in the deaths of his wife and her parents on the reserve and sentenced to 20 years in Prince Albert Penitentiary. Later he was tried for the murder of Constable Rhodeniser, convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

Nazi-Controlled Brussels Radio Says French Liner Overdue, Missing

London, July 5—(CP)—The German-controlled Brussels radio in a broadcast heard here reported today that the 15,363-ton French liner Massilia, which left Bordeaux June 16 with former French Premier Edouard Daladier aboard, was overdue and missing.

The broadcast said that former French Minister of Education Delbos and former Minister of the Interior Mandel also were aboard the ship.

The report added that they left France intending to continue French resistance against Germany in conjunction with former Premier Reynaud, that the ship sought unsuccessfully to enter several ports and last was heard from "still at sea" several days ago.

The newspaper Petit Dauphinois at Grenoble, France, reported that General Nogues, resident-General of Morocco, prevented the Massilia from landing at Casablanca and that the liner later was stopped at sea after it had been "practically missing" for almost a week and ordered to return to a French port.

(No word of the ship came from other sources.)

Commander of French Force Undecided Whether to Comply With British Ultimatum for Co-operation or Fight Way Out

Some Parts of French Fleet Anchor in Scottish Waters Increasing the Total Seized at British Ports — Expected Ships Seized Will Join British Fleet for Action

Alexandria, July 5—(AP)—British sources here today described the situation of the French fleet at Alexandria as "in abeyance" and said:

"We do not know what will happen or when the French will make a decision. We only know that no French ship shall ever leave Alexandria to surrender to the enemy."

Naval sources emphasized the French are "deeply affected" by the fighting between French and British warships yesterday at Oran and Mers El-Kebir, but British officers declared they had the situation here "well in hand."

British naval circles expressed regret over the action taken against the French at Oran and the hope that no such incident would occur here.

Formal Advice Given Commanders

French commanders here have been advised formally by the British authorities that "they cannot leave the harbor to fall into the power of the German conquerors of France."

British officials said the admiralty had offered "fullest facilities to all French officers and men at Alexandria who wish to continue the war."

This was interpreted here to mean that the French automatically would receive pay equal to British seamen if they continue to fight. All French officers and crewmen remained aboard their vessels today.

British naval sources declined to say whether French Vice-Admiral Godfroy, commanding the units at Alexandria, had been given any definite time to make his decision.

It was understood the conditions were the same as those handed the French at Mers El-Kebir.

Usually well-informed sources, meantime, declared that the majority of the French officers and

Canada Seen as Greater World Power As Result of Her War Effort

A P Writer, John Lear, Describes Phenomenal Development in Canada's Navy

AIR, ARMY GROWTH

(By the Canadian Press)

A close-up view of Canada's war effort was presented this week to millions of United States newspaper readers by the Associated Press which sent a staff writer to Canada for a two-weeks' study of defence preparations. The AP man, John Lear, dealt in four articles with the War Threat Against Canada, Enlargement of the Royal Canadian Navy, The Air Training Program and The Mobilization of Industry.

American readers were told in detail of defence plans to guard Canada in case of German attack. Lear described the Dominion as "the richest territorial prize on the face of the globe today except for the United States." He added:

Canadian Hate for Hitler Govt.

"Like their neighbors in the United States, Canadians show their hate for Hitler's form of government. They are marshalling every resource of their land to stop him. If he should defeat England, they say, 'We'll carry on the fight from here."

Lear wrote that Canadian officials expect one of Hitler's next moves will be to send ships and submarines into this side of the Atlantic to cut off the convoys and

Nixon said in commenting on an address in the House of Commons by Conservative leader Hanson who discussed prohibition of sale of liquor throughout the Dominion as a war economy measure.

The Ontario cabinet has discussed the issue and determined that the present system of government control will be continued without interference, Mr. Nixon said. He added that "every indication from those in authority is that prohibition would not promote war efficiency."

NINE CARS ENTERED FROM OUTSIDE CITY

Of the 75 entries for the fifth annual Kinsmen Club Canadian championship Soap Box Derby, 9 are entries from outside of the Belleville district, Chairman Jim Fraser announced today. Billy Boulter, Donald Valleau and Douglas Salisbury are from Rossmore; Hilliery Farrell is coming all the way from Kingston to compete, while Arnold Eaves built his car in Corbyville. Two Trenton boys, Rex Glover and Ronnie Murphy are also entered, while Donald McGowan will represent Stirling.

PROPERTY DAMAGE IS CONSIDERABLE

Property damage of considerable extent resulted to two motor vehicles at the Station Street entrance to the Belleville C.N.R. station yards late yesterday afternoon. W. E. Taylor, 377 Bleecker Ave., told police he was proceeding north on Bleecker Ave., and was crossing Station Street to enter the Canadian National parking yards, when his automobile was struck broadside by a truck driven by F. J. White, Frankford. P. C. Wright investigated and was told by White that he did not see the northbound vehicle owing to a line-up of motor cars on the south side of Station Street. Property damage of $150.00 resulted to the vehicles implicated.

15 APPLICATIONS ARE CONSIDERED

Only 12 applications for old age pensions and three mothers' allowances requests were up before the Hastings County Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowance Board when they convened for their monthly meeting at the County buildings yesterday. This represents the fewest number of requests to be dealt with by the Hastings Board in some time stated county officials this morning.

Alfred Pobert, Tweed, was sentenced to serve from six to twelve months in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court held at Tweed yesterday. Pobert was charged with the theft of a bicycle on May 24th last. It was some considerable time after the committing of the offence that Pobert was arrested by Chief J. O. Hayes and brought before the court. He pleaded guilty as charged.

DOGS ARE FAMILIAR WITH CATCHER'S CAR

Dog-catcher Thomas Thorne has reasons to believe the dogs of Belleville are either acquainted with him or familiar with the coloring of his automobile.

"Yesterday afternoon I stopped at the corner of West Moira and Frank Streets and saw only one dog at large. Frankly I knew who owned the animal, but in a gesture just shouted—'Buddy, get on home', and believe it or not that dog made a bee-line for his master's residence", related Mr. Thorne today.

Incidentally Constable Thorne announced today there were less dogs running at large in Belleville today than ever before in the history of the community.

Stray dogs have been disposed of for the greater part, while owners of more valuable canines are securing their dogs for safety sake", remarked Mr. Thorne. Official statistics at the police station show there is a decrease in the number of dog licences sold this year, as in comparison with last year, however.

FR. GULCZYNSKI KILLED IN CAR NEAR MAYNOOTH

S. Puchnisk Seriously Injured Taken to Pembroke Hospital by Constable Palmateer

INQUEST ORDERED

Bancroft (Special)—Rev. Father W. J. Gulczynski of Maynooth was instantly killed on Thursday afternoon at McGregor's Hill, fifteen miles east of Maynooth, when the car in which he was riding accompanied by Mr. S. Puchnisk, was forced off the road to land on its top, over-turning several times after hitting a cow, which had been hidden from view over the brow of the hill.

The two men were returning from the funeral of Rev. Father Paul Yolkoski at Round Lake, when the accident happened. After breaking over the brow of the hill they discovered a herd of five cows blocking the road, one of which was killed by the impact with the car as it crashed into the herd. After hitting the cow the car went a distance of 45 feet, turning over several times before coming to rest in the ditch, facing the opposite direction from which they had been travelling.

Father Gulczynski's companion, S. Puchnisk was thrown clear of the car and was able to get to his feet after the accident but the man in the car was killed instantly, suffering a broken neck. The men were found by Mr. Alex Mantiffle, who lives near the scene of the accident and who summoned Dr. Sadler. Puchnisk was examined by Dr. Sadler and taken to Brady's post office where he was examined by Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft, who considered the man's injuries sufficient to warrant his being taken to the Pembroke Hospital.

Coroner O. W. Anderson ordered an inquest to be opened in Maynooth on Friday morning. Provincial Constable Palmateer of Bancroft investigated the accident.

CITY WELCOMES BRITISH CHILDREN INTO ITS MIDST

Two From Ongar in Essex County, England, Arrive to Stay With Aunt for the Duration

LIKE CANADA

Belleville welcomed the first of what may be many British evacuee children this morning in the persons of Misses Maureen and Shiela Camp of Essex County, England, who will be guests at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Fred Ashmore of Ponton Street for the duration of the war. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Camp of Ongar in Essex County. Mrs. Camp is a sister of Mrs. Ashmore.

The two little girls, aged 12 and three respectively, are typical of the many thousands of British children that will be coming to this country under the evacuation scheme proposed by British authorities in order that the British children may be afforded a safe refuge from the effects of possible German air raids over their homeland. They are bright darling little girls, with the fair hair and complexion of typical Britishers and will prove a joy in the home, where they will be guests until the war is over.

Relating their experiences while coming across the Atlantic, Maureen told The Ontario Intelligencer during an interview this morning that both she and her little sister had been affected with "mal de mer" or, in other words, they were both seasick for a short while. They also passed through fog for a whole day, when nearing the coast of Newfoundland, she said.

Maureen was particularly surprised she said, to learn that Canadian children get two full months holidays from school during the summer. "In England we only get four weeks," she said as she confided that she and her sister were going to "like it very much in Canada."

They had witnessed no air raids themselves, said Maureen, explaining that she and her sister had been in the country ever since the war had started, but her father had seen two German bombers attacking in the district, where their home was situated and had seen the devastating effects of the bombs as they exploded. Their father is an air raid warden at Ongar and is also an aircraftsman at a plane factory there.

LIGHTNING STRIKES HOME

Brockville, Ont., July 5—(CP)—Lightning struck the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKimm, Rockspring, 18 miles north of Brockville, yesterday, completely wrecked the kitchen where the owners were sitting, knocked down the chimney and broke all the windows in the house. The residents escaped with slight shock.

Another bolt struck a tree on the farm of Burton Perkins, near Rockspring, and killed a herd of 10 milch cows gathered under the tree.

ALL THEATRES UNITED FOR PATRIOTIC SHOWS

Toronto, July 5—(Special)—The nation-wide campaign of the film industry in the Dominion under the sponsorship of the Canadian Picture Pioneers to promote the sale of War Savings Stamps to aid the Federal Government in its prosecution of the war has become the greatest co-operative undertaking in the history of the motion picture business. It is expected that the drive will attain 100% proportions from coast to coast by the time that organization work is completed at the end of the current week — or well in advance of the special patriotic performances to be held in the theatres Monday evening, July 15, at 8:30 o'clock. In the Toronto district, for instance, 98% of all theatres became actively identified with the drive within a few hours after the first announcement regarding the plan. Already the War Savings Stamps of the Dominion Government have gone on sale in a number of cinemas for the national show, for which the theatre men have set aside the whole evening without one cent of profit for themselves.

Patrons are being charged two or more 25c war stamps for admission to the special performance, purchasers of the stamps at boxoffices being supplied with admission tickets of the complimentary type — which means the buyer retains possession of the stamps from the moment of purchase. The theatre entertainment is an inducement for the public to start saving the war stamps, with eventual dividends for the investors in Canada's future. To insure that every cent from the sale of the stamps will go to the Government, the theatre proprietors have contributed an assessment of two cents per seat to the committee to cover incidental expenses of the campaign, apart from donating the use of theatres for the occasion. Central headquarters of the Win the War Campaign have been an extremely busy place with as many as 35 workers engaged at one time but these have been loaned without salary expense by various theatre and film exchange companies, all of whom are co-operating to insure the success of the drive which is expected to prove greatest one-day campaign for any purpose ever staged in the Dominion, the objective being the sale of War Savings Stamps to the total value of $1,000,000 before nightfall on Monday, July 15.

Shoulder Shawls, Latest in Knitting Needs of Red Cross

Shoulder shawls, which make suitable summer knitting for people on vacation, are required by Canadian soldiers convalescing in hospitals in Britain, according to word received by the Canadian Red Cross Society. They should be about 30 inches square, plain knitting, bright colours and any weight soft wool.

"No huge quantity will be required", Mrs. Wallace Campbell, national chairman of the Women's War Work Committee, said yesterday, "We do not think it necessary for Red Cross branches and groups to stock wool for this particular purpose because it is probable that many people will contribute the shawls or the branches may be able to obtain odds and ends of wool locally."

The need of these shawls was made known through the Hospital Visitors' Committee one of the services provided overseas by the Canadian Red Cross Society for the comfort of Canadian troops. Members of this committee mostly Canadian women now resident in England are assigned to hospitals throughout the Old Country to look after the comfort of every Canadian soldier admitted. The Hospital Visitor reports on his needs to the Soldiers' Comforts Committee of the Canadian Red Cross in London and a parcel is despatched immediately. If the patient is unable to do so himself, the Visitor writes to his relatives in Canada, keeping them informed of his progress.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, July 5 (Special)—Assistant Provost Marshal Flying Officer Hammond of the Royal Canadian Air Force has been aiding the Trenton police with the airforce men, who have been causing the police some worry. The A.P.M. has a staff of 24 police, who aid in patrolling the streets and taking care of all airmen who wander from the straight-and-narrow path.

Some lucky softball fans will receive the sum of $7.00 tonight, when the draw is held during the game between the Canadian Doughnuts and the Miller Brothers. Draws are held at every game and are proving a great factor in attracting large crowds to the games.

Play Benefit Game

Jesse Baker, President of the Trenton Softball League, announced today that a benefit game would be held next week and the proceeds will be given to the Red Cross. The game is to be held on July 17, when the Canadian Doughnuts meet their ancient rivals the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The Airmen are leading in the Trenton softball league by a margin of one game with the Doughnuts following closely. Wooler and the McNair Juniors in third and fourth place are now hitting a winning stride and might within the near future draw closer to the leaders.

Standing in Trenton Softball League:

	Played	Won	Lost
R.C.A.F.	7	6	1
Doughnuts	7	5	2
Wooler	8	5	3
Miller Bros.	6	3	3

One Asks For Six Children

Trenton ladies are determined to do their part to aid the evacuees from England and many have signified their intentions of taking children. One lady has asked for no less than six children and will board these children for the duration of the war.

Trenton residents living in the east section of the town were disturbed and curious over the blare of the sirens at the Royal Canadian Air Force Station, last night. It was reported here that the airmen were given fire and emergency drills.

School Children Hold Lawn Social For Red Cross

A very successful lawn social was held by some pupils of Queen Victoria School on Thursday afternoon at the home of Barbara Diment, 101 Lingham Street. Jack Shaddock was very able Master of Ceremonies and a very delightful program was given by the children. Selections by several members of Queen Victoria School Band were enjoyed by all. During the afternoon Barbara raffled her car and the lucky winner was Mr. Kehoe, 119 Victoria Avenue. The grounds were gaily decorated for the occasion and strawberries, ice cream, cake and lemonade were served by the children who proved most capable in looking after their guests. Soft drinks, donated for the occasion, were sold. During the afternoon, those in charge were assisted by a number of their friends from other schools. The splendid sum of $24.28 was realized by the youthful workers and this sum will be contributed to the Red Cross Society.

BANDMASTERS COAST TO COAST WELCOMED IN CITY

Convention Opens in City Hall Today and Continues Until Sunday Night

MASSED BAND CONCERT

Belleville today welcomed delegates to the annual Canadian Bandmasters' Association convention, which opened in the auditorium of the City Hall. With headquarters at the Queens Hotel, Lieut. Fred Jobson and members of the Belleville Municipal Band welcomed to Belleville some of the leading bandmasters from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as well as guests of the United States musical world.

"Belleville has been signally honoured to be selected as the seat of the annual convention of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association, as several other larger cities were seeking the right to honour the Association and had requisitioned for this conclave," stated Lieut. Jobson as he pointed out that the convention would open today, continue Saturday and Sunday, when it would terminate with a mammoth band concert at Victoria Park. "In the event of adverse or inclement weather the concert will be held at the Capitol theatre," added Mr. Jobson as he concluded by saying that the entire concert will be conducted by guest conductors, including Professor Chadwick, in charge of music for the State of Illinois.

Request Performance

During the Canadian Bandmasters' convention in Belleville, the St. Michael's Band will play a request program for the delegates and their accompanying families in the City Hall auditorium on Saturday afternoon. Numerous requests were made for the St. Michael's band to appear, especially following their success at the Waterloo musical festival last week.

"Following this concert the visiting delegates and their families will be taken for a scenic drive around the Bay of Quinte, while Saturday night they will be the guests of the McCarthy theatre. On Sunday morning the visitors will be entertained with a boat trip on the beautiful Bay of Quinte as guests of the Belleville Municipal Band. Delegates from Halifax to Vancouver are expected to be present.

It was further announced that the proceeds from Sunday night's band concert, which will see an augmented band of some 80 pieces, will be given to the war charity work of the Minerva Chapter of the Eastern Star.

The program for Sunday night's guest-conductors' band concert will be as follows:

1. March—"Potenate."
2. Patriotic selection—"Festival of the Empire."
3. Trombone solo—"Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground" (Reg. Wardle).
4. Presentation of visiting Bandmasters.
5. Popular numbers (a) Woodpecker's Song. (b) At the Balalaika.
6. Suite—"Atlantis" (Safrenak).
7. Novelty—"Musical Switch" (Alford).
8. March—"The Middy" (Alford).
9. Intermezzo—"In a Monastry Garden" Kettelby.
10. Finale—"There'll Always be an England" (arranged by Reg. Hinchey).

ACCIDENTAL DEATH JURY'S VERDICT

Canadian National Railway Not Held Responsible or Negligent in Zeidman's Death

No blame was attached to the Canadian National Railway by the coroner's jury looking into the death of David Zeidman, Toronto newsie with the Canada News Company, at the adjourned inquest held before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson here last evening. The jury's verdict stated "that Zeidman came to his death as the result of injuries received at the Belleville C. N. R. depot on July 1st while performing his duties as an employee of the News Company and that the C. N. R. was in no way negligent."

Zeidman was awaiting the arrival of an incoming train and pushing a baggage wagon between tracks No. 1 and 2. In some manner the rear of the wagon was struck by the train, hurling Zeidman forward and causing fatal injuries.

Engineer Thomas Lynch and Fireman Percy Kerr testified they had seen Zeidman pushing his truck, loaded with soft drinks and magazines, along the station platform and both agreed the wagon was too close to the track on which the incoming train was proceeding. "I shouted to him from the cab, but it was too late, the engine struck the cart and knocked the man backwards," stated Engineer Lynch. Night Locomotive Foreman Leslie Culhane and Percy Kerr agreed with this testimony.

Dr. W. C. Morgan testified that death was caused by a fractured skull and severe scalp wound. Dr. F. R. Ross rendered first aid at the scene. Acting Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson conducted the investigation, while Sergeant Arthur Booth impanelled the coroner's jury.

New York, July 5.—(CP)—The Marquess of Lothian British Ambassador to the United States, last night telephoned Cecil M. Pickthall, British Commissioner-General at the New York World's Fair, to say he deplored the "shocking incident" in which two detectives were killed and five others injured in the explosion of a bomb found in the British pavilion at the Fair.

Lord LoLthian's statement:—

"His Britannic Majesty's Ambassador deplored this shocking incident and asks that an expression of his sincerest sympathy may be conveyed to the relatives of the killed and injured officers. Lord Lothian deeply appreciates the promptitude with which police dealt with the matter and deeply regrets that their devotion to duty should have had such tragic consequences".

Munitions Stocks In Lyon Explode, Heat is Blamed

Geneva, July 5.—(AP)— In a dispatch from Lyon Petit Dalphinois reported the explosion of large munitions stocks in the Rhone River Valley city yesterday. The paper said the "intense heat of the day" was the official explanation for the blast.

Another Lyon dispatch said German troops occupying the city now plan to remain there several thousand strong until July 9. Lyon is south of the line of occupation established by the German-French Armistice Commission.

Bulk of Britain's Press Supports Gov't Action To Control French Fleet

(By Harold Fair)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 5—(CP Cable)—The bulk of Britain's press today soberly supported the Government's stern measures to prevent the French fleet from falling to the dictators with the exception of The Daily Mirror which protested that this action should have been taken long ago.

There was no gloating in the newspapers over what had been done, but a general expression of sadness that the Petain Government's action should have forced the government to take the important step.

Cartoonists were less restrained than editorial writers. The Daily Herald's Whitelaw in a cartoon headed "Britannia waives the rules" showed Britannia seated at a table with "Free France" waving aloft on the prongs of her trident a chicken labelled "French Fleet" just removed from a platter which Premier Petain was preparing to hand to Adolf Hitler seated at a nearby table.

Strube in the Daily Express had a British tar aboard a battleship named "French Navy" hanging out an "under-new-management" placard while the Duce and Hitler stand on the dock waving a note reading: "Hand to the bearer, one French navy", signed Petain.

Little Pleasure to do Job

The Times said that "there can be little pleasure in contemplating this defeat of enemies whom we believe to be at heart our friends and who are fighting not for their country but for a point of honor which is rooted in the dishonor of their political chiefs. . . .

The paper said that Petain and his ministers in surrendering did not become neutral but changed sides and now are agents of the enemy, so that any action the British can take to prevent the execution of their orders has justification.

The Daily Mail regarded it as a "bitter thing" that Britain shou'd be compelled to fight the first full-scale naval action of this war against friends adding that "deeply though we deplore the necessity, the entire British Empire . . . completely support the government action".

The Mirror, protesting the long wait for news of "what used to be the French fleet", said "we know now after much torment of doubt that something has been done at least".

The Daily Express paid tribute to Prime Minister Churchill's leadership.

"Mr. Churchill has once more shown himself a rough, tough leader of our brave fighting men. He has shown that the England which was thought to be so old, staid, respectable, still has the smash, grab and fighting spirit of Drake, Raleigh, Marlborough."

FRENCH FLEET SAVED FROM HANDS OF GERMANS

Prime Minister Churchill and the British Cabinet who acted unanimously will be justified in the eyes of the world on the step which was taken in taking over the French navy to prevent its falling into the hands of the Germans. It has been the most difficult and saddest of duties to perform during the war, this consequence of the fall of France, leaving Britain to bear on her shoulders the full force of the enemy. Mr. Churchill explained it: "The least that could be expected was that the French Government, in abandoning conflict and leaving its whole weight to fall upon Great Britain and the British Empire, would have been careful not to inflict needless injury upon their faithful comrade in whose final victory the whole chance of French freedom lay and lies."

Never was a subject for decision so grim and sombre, Mr. Churchill said on Thursday.

But he and the cabinet have the satisfaction of knowing that the large part of the French fleet acquiesced in the decision and only at Oran did there appear any opposition to the British proposal that the flotilla there should be placed in control of the British so that it would not fall into the hands of the Germans,

The decision of the French Admiral Gensoul not to meet the British proposal of five alternatives led to the melancholy development of the brief fight at Oran.

Mr. Churchill has the knowledge that French sailors generally accepted the view that the fleet should not be allowed to pass into German control.

Britain has seen to it that in this act everything fair has been done. A message was delivered to the French admiral at Oran, "We are determined to fight to the end, and if we win, as we think we shall, we shall never forget that France was our ally and that our interests are the same as hers and that our common enemy is Germany.

"And we solemnly declare that we shall restore her territory to France. For this purpose we must make sure that the best ships of the French navy are not used against us by the common foe."

Alternatives were given to satisfy the French admiral, at Oran, even to the extent of agreeing to send the ships to the West Indies or the United States where they could remain safe until the end of the war, or to delivery to British ports. A good number of ships of the French navy had already gone to British harbors.

But the decision of the French admiral was not to accept any of the alternatives. This was, Mr. Churchill said, "no doubt in obedience to orders dictated from Wiesbaden where the Franco-German Commission is sitting.'"

The British Prime Minister praised the courage and heroism of the French sailors at Oran who took part with the characteristic courage of the French. He related how French sailors—800 or 900—expressed their desire to continue the war, and some have asked for British nationality. Those who did not wish to continue to fight would be repatriated to France. Several French submarines offered their services independently and have been accepted, Mr. Churchill said.

This indicates that France herself is in spirit with the British ally in the war to the end and could wish nothing better than that the French fleet should be safe from the clutches of the Germans. It must be a matter of deep satisfaction to the French nation to know that their fine warships are not to be used against the very principles for which France entered into the war and against their staunch ally.

The French navy is now beyond the reach of the Germans.

U-BOAT RUTHLESSNESS BRINGS ITS CONSEQUENCE

The U-boat at last has openly proved itself the enemy of the German and the Italian peoples. The ruthless and savage campaign which earned German submarines the name of the wolves of the sea has brought direct retribution for the other evening a nazi U-boat sent to the bottom of the ocean a liner. There were 1,500 interned aliens, Germans and Italians, and 500 guards and crew members aboard and there was a loss of about one thousand lives of whom eight hundred it is estimated were Germans and Italians.

Germans and Italians no doubt have lost their lives before through the ruthless barbarism of the Hun U-boat but at last before all the world the consequence of this is revealed in a striking scene of horror.

Brutality in striking at a liner has hit back hard in the face of the nazis.

The crime of German nazis will not go without punishment. In the ordinary sequence of events it was foredoomed that sooner or later the nazis would cause some such tragedy.

Nazis and fascists vented their curses on the U-boat which brought this tragedy. Disputes are reported between German and Italian survivors over the torpedoing.

Nazis cannot flout the laws of mankind and of God without paying a tremendous price, one out of all measure to the advantages they wrongly think they have or may obtain from ruthless sea warfare.

In the mention of this great marine disaster, unfortunately there has to be told the story of members of the crew and guards who lost their lives and of the gallant captain of the ship Arandora Star. Innocent have to suffer through the wrongs which the nazis have done to mankind.

It was similar unrestricted submarine warfare which rebounded against Germany in the last war and invited civilization into the war against the Huns of 1914-18.

The gangster method does not pay. In the long run it brings its punishment to the government that authorizes such acts.

"This begins to look more and more like the first step toward nationalization of the oil fields and industry."

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Fourth of July

New York, July 4.—Today, we in the United States celebrated the 164th anniversary of a revolutionary action which determined the tendency and set the pace for a development that endured uninterruptedly until the last war.

The American Revolution preceded the French, but drew from the brewing French movement many essential ideas. The author of the Declaration of Independence, which was also the first great declaration of human rights, drew inspiration from those French Encyclopedists whose writings preceded the liquidation of the ancient regime.

Whatever it may have been called — Parliamentary Government, democracy, political freedom, individualism—the ideas released in the American Revolution and the French spread throughout the earth and have dominated the thinking and the political behavior of the world down into the last two decades, when, for the first time since the Declaration of Independence, they are being almost universally challenged.

Old Ideas Survive.

Elsewhere in the world there was always a residue of ideas surviving from previous regimes. The Faubourg St. Honore never fully accepted the French democracy; the Junker class in Germany never accepted the Germanic versions of the eighteenth century credo, which found expression in the revolutions of 1848 and 1918, and, indeed, the whole German people never really underwent this experience of a society, primarily based on regard for the political expressions of human rights. In England, despite far-reaching political freedom, there has been until this day a strong residue of feudalism and feudal caste-consciousness.

Live by the Law.

But this country knows no other history. It was born with the Declaration and it lives in the Declaration. Without the conception of human rights, we, as a nation, make no sense whatsoever. Deprived of this conception we are cut loose from all our moorings; we are without a political literature and without a national poetry. Deprived of it we are like a man disillusioned of his only faith, therefore agnostic, rudderless, open to every wind that blows, open to every assault upon the integrity of his own soul. For we have conceived of human rights as being God-given. They are therefore part of our faith, in the most religious sense of the word.

Furthermore, we are a people who live by a book—by the law, written in our own way on tablets of stone. Not blood and soil can bind together the children of all races. In all Europe there is only one state similar to ours, and that is the Swiss, the people who call themselves "The Comradeship of the Oath"—the only Europeans who, regardless of differences of race, language and religion, are held together by an idea and under it have become one of the toughest, most prosperous and most civilized States in the world —a State that only brute force can, and probably will, destroy.

No Common Blood.

It is possible for a German to feel himself no less German under feudalism, capitalism, democracy, or Nazism. His Germanness is in his blood. It is possible for a Frenchman to be thoroughly French whether he is ruled by the commune, the Parliament, the reign of terror, Napoleon or the Action Francaise. For France is race, geography, landscape, language and food. So it is of all the races of Europe except the Swiss.

But to be an American means to believe in certain things. We have no common blood and no unique language. In our speech we are all Englishmen. We have, to be sure, geography. But without articles of common faith we are simply a congeries of various tribes living on a certain stretch of land.

Hence the American's instinctive and healthy conservatism about his institutions. Hence our numerous national festivals. Hence our familiarity with words written so long ago. For we know that when or if we can no longer quote Jefferson and Washington and Lincoln, if we no longer share the passion for human rights and human liberty that runs like a red thread through all our words and institutions, we shall no longer be Americans but merely colonials of England or Germany, or Italy or France or Russia—lost tribes, far from home.

No Freedom: No America.

Not yet have these concepts been challenged on this continent by any of our representative men. But day by day and hour by hour they are being destroyed throughout the rest of the world, leaving us isolated to defend them. Our national life depends upon our defending them—our independence and our reason for existence. Unless we can sing the word "freedom" we shall not sing in America.

These American ideals, which are not passing currents of air but the rock on which the nation rests, the Gibraltar of our independence, must constantly be reinterpreted, and from generation to generation restated to meet a developing and changing world. Our capacity to reinterpret them is the first necessity of our defense of them. We must listen to those who say a man is not free if he is afraid; a man is not free if he fears to lose his job, to starve, to be cast out of home, to be thwarted in his noblest aim—that of self-development—as a member of a developing community.

We must listen to those who say wealth is not free if it is withheld from creative activity, whether that wealth belabor or capital or resources.

Our first defense of freedom is to be united in the certainty of our freedom. The second is the creation of the actual material means of defending it. Whether the challenge comes or not to this soil we must act on the assumption that it will. We must not weaken ourselves by the hope or the expectation that it may not. We must listen to no one who tells us that he will guarantee our freedom.

Land Won by Machine.

Our freedom is guarded against the outside world by men and by machines. Let us thank God for our machines and for our possibility of proving machines to be the friends and not the enemies of man. Machines have made of this continent one nation. The American today knows his continent from the blue hills of Vermont to the purple mountains of Arizona, from the dark woods of Michigan to the moss-hung forests of Louisiana, from the salt-sprayed rocks of Maine to the bright beaches of the Pacific, because machines and roads have given him his country, as a whole.

Must Work for Man.

Today I read in the paper that the superior machines of Germany have killed or wounded 1,500,000 freedom-loving Frenchmen, while the heroism of French bodies caused casualties of only 156,000 to the entanked Germans. Our independence and our Bill of Rights, our books, our words, our freedom must be guarded by the robots, the soulless, the iron men which men of flesh and blood have created with their brains and hands.

If yesterday we worked machines for wages with which to buy life for ourselves as individuals and built them for our pleasure and our leisure, today we must work them for our common cause and build them to defend our common life.

Thus, we may restore in this world the prestige of the machine as the champion of the rights of man.

A Large Percentage of Mental Cases Are Cured

I have mentioned the fact before that I was born opposite a large mental institution which was surrounded with stone walls and the windows of which were strongly barred. Every inmate was considered crazy yet I never could understand how it was possible for the gateman who admitted wagons and cabs was a patient yet was allowed to be so near to freedom all the time.

A little later when I saw patients working in the large fields of the institution I wondered that they did not run away from or attack the guards in charge of them.

There are more mentally afflicted people today than at any other time in history, more patients in mental hospitals than in all other hospitals combined, yet the outlook for the cure of these mental cases grows brighter every day and the percentage who are able to return home and to their former occupations is larger than ever before.

The reason that more can now be done for mental cases is that the stigma of having a member of the family enter a mental hospital is rapidly disappearing as it is known that mental 'illness' is the same as physical illness.

Infection, shock, worry can cause Infection, shock, worry can cause mental symptoms just as it can cause stomach ulcer or heart disease. The fact also that mental ailments are recognized earlier than in former years means that treatment is given sooner and early treatment naturally brings better results.

Dr. Winifred Overholder, Superintendent St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Washington, in Scientific Monthly states that in 1933 for every 100 patients admitted to mental hospitals 46 were discharged, 39 of whom were considered cured or improved. Of those discharged 22 per cent had been in the mental hospital for two months or less; 55 per cent for less than six months; 74 per cent for less than one year; and 87 per cent for less than two years.

At the end of ten years it has been found that one-half of all the patients discharged are living in their communities.

The above information teaches us two things. First that a large percentage of mental patients recover, and second, that the earlier the treatment is given, the greater is the chance for cure.

Report French Cabinet to Sever Relations With U. K.

Geneva July 5. (AP)—The French Cabinet decided yesterday to break off diplomatic relations with Britain Le Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble said this morning in a special dispatch from Vichy, seat of the German controlled French government.

(The regular French Ambassador at London was Charles Corbin, but on June 26 he was reported to have resigned. The phrase "diplomatic representatives adhering to the Petain government" was used to distinguish the Petain government from the French National Committee set up in London by Maj.-Gen. Charles de Gaulle who on June 28 was recognized by the British government as leader of "all free Frenchmen".)

London, July 5—(CP)— London diplomatic circles said today the British government had no advance intimation of the French intention to break off relations with Great Britain.

The French Embassy said shortly before noon (6 a.m. E.S.T.) that it had no confirmation of the Petain government's alleged action.

"We are still carrying on" an Embassy official said.

Berlin, July 5.—(AP)—The German government said it was notified officially this morning by the French government at Vichy of severance of diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

Tourists Find Romance In California Mission

By TEMPLE MANNING

SAN FRANCISCO or Los Angeles or Santa Barbara, lovely though they be, are not California. Really to know this wonderful state, you must visit at least some of the missions strung like a necklace of precious gems from San Francisco to San Diego. They chose well did those good padres who came to do pioneer mission work in the New World. The sites are wonderful, the buildings beautiful, and of late, there has been much restoration work under government auspices and by various historical and religious organizations.

In San Francisco's Mission district on Dolores Street is the Mission Dolores, founded by the famous Father Junipero Sierra in 1776. Walls, painted in deep vegetable colors, are still bright and beautiful. The original leather thongs used by Indian workmen still tie the heavy wooden beams to the roof arches. By the church is a lovely little garden bright with flowers and this leads to an ancient graveyard where the first governor of California under Mexican rule, is buried. On display in the chapel with its golden altar are valuable Spanish relics unearthed in the mission orchard.

In Old Monterey

Down in Monterey is the Mission San Carlos Borromeo del Rio Carmelo. The old church has been restored and a new foundation supports the original five-foothick blocked walls cemented with lime made from abalone shells by Indian converts. As in the good padre's time, birds and squirrels find sanctuary amidst the lovely trees.

San Miguel Mission, in the heart of the almond orchard country, is flanked by rows of adobe quarters that open onto a courtyard with arched corridors. A wall shields the cloister garden filled with flowers. La Purisma Concepcion Mission at San Louis Obispo has been painstakingly reproduced and is well worth a visit for it garden. The church, while beautiful, is not so interesting as the interior of the Santa Barbara Mission, architecturally one of the finest in the state. Earthquakes and the centuries have taken their toll of the edifice but restoration has been most successful. Hundreds of Franciscan friars are buried in crypts set in the thick walls of the mission. In the chapel are paintings sent by Spain to its New World colonies and brought across old Mexico by pack horse.

Most beloved of all California missions is San Juan Capistrano, sacred to the swallows. Since Colonial Spanish days, thousands of swallows have made their home in the eaves and roof gutters of the sun-bleached adobe mission. Each October through the years, the birds have flown away to return each March to the day, just as was recorded by the padres of the mission in the long ago. San Juan Capistrano is some fifty miles south of Los Angeles and is well worth a visit. The return of the birds has been recorded by camera, by newsreel and radio. The birds are wise as are the many travelers who make it a rule to return time and time again to this and others of the original twenty-one old Spanish missions.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Partly by the consent of French officers and sailors, partly by vigorous action of the Royal Navy the fate of the powerful French fleet has been settled. It cannot fall into the hands of the enemy and important units will serve under British command.

Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons yesterday was the first really good news well-wishers of the Allied cause have heard for many weeks. It disposes completely of rumors, probably German inspired, of early peace negotiations based on a recognition of German leadership on the European continent.

Mr. Churchill's statement that Great Britain proposed to exercise command of the Mediterranean sea indicates the Royal Navy will have further battles to fight. The Italian navy which might have come to the support of the French ships which chose to fight at Oran remained away but sooner or later it must clash with the British if the Churchill declaration is made good.

The only alternative is for Italy to abandon hope of moving its ships on the Mediterranean and maintaining contact with its African territories, to keep them to their ports and bases.

The futile fight at Oran and its result detracts nothing from the reputation of French soldiers and sailors for valor. They fought in obedience to orders from the government of France. They were confronted with the conflict of loyalties which confronts all Frenchmen outside of the French homeland as a result of the armistice concluded with nazi Germany, to hold to the government of their country or to fight for the cause to which their country dedicated itself.

A STATEMENT ON FORD WAR WORK IN CANADA

This Company is in the war to the full limit of its resources. Until the British Empire is victorious, until the battle for freedom of nations and liberty of peoples is won, we have pledged all the vast manufacturing facilities of our Canadian and overseas affiliated companies to the service of the Empire.

We regard this to be our simple duty as a Canadian institution, one of the industrial resources of the Dominion. The 8,400 employees in our plants as well as our widespread dealer and service organization from coast to coast are Canadian. The Company's shareholders include a large proportion of Canadian investors. No one individual, family or company has a majority control of our shares.

For these reasons, aside from our deep feeling of loyalty to the Empire and its high purposes, it is fitting that Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited should give whole-hearted support to the national war effort.

From the very beginning this has been our course. Even before war was declared, in co-operation with officers of the Department of National Defence, we laid in our plant the groundwork of military production. Since conflict became a reality we have given war orders precedence over everything else. More than fifty per cent of our production is in vehicles for military use and this percentage is increasing rapidly.

We are now engaged in supplying approximately 35,000 motorized vehicles of many types, of which 10,000 are for the Canadian government and 25,000 for other Empire governments.

We are constructing at our own expense a $700,000 plant addition to provide facilities for the building of Universal machine gun carriers of which we have undertaken to deliver fifty a week to the Canadian government as soon as production can be started. This addition will also enable us to increase production of other types of military vehicles. Our affiliated companies with plants in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India and Malaya are similarly engaged in Empire service.

Beyond our manufacturing facilities we have been fortunately able to contribute skilled man-power. From our Canadian and overseas organization, engineers and men with special training in transport and other lines are rendering valuable service.

Major adjustments in our business have been necessary through loss of export trade and because of domestic taxation. We have made these adjustments cheerfully. Our one concern now is the successful prosecution of this war so that people of all nations may again be able to work in freedom and peace.

PRESIDENT
FORD MOTOR COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

Statement in Parliament by the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply

"The president of the Canadian Company has shown perhaps as keen a desire to assist in Canada's war effort as any citizen of this Dominion has done. His corporation since the outbreak of the war has done and is doing very important work for Canada's war effort, in the way of building motor transports and Universal carriers. The company has placed itself entirely in the hands of the government as to the terms of the contract which it has had.

"A contract, providing for a fixed price as low as we could find any basis for asking, was worked out; an overriding provision was inserted that the books of the company would be audited and if the stipulated price produced a profit more than a very low percentage indeed, that price would be scaled down accordingly. In other words, the work of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, its attitude toward the war, and its ability to assist in Canada's war effort, have been so far as I have been able to observe, beyond criticism."

Statement in Senate by Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government Leader in the Senate

"Ford Motor Company of Canada is doing its utmost to serve the interests of the country, the War Supply Board and the Government."

Statement in the Senate by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader in the Senate

"They (Ford dealers in Canada) are numbered in the hundreds. And the number of employees of these dealers is very large. The ramifications are tremendous. For all the purposes concerning us, the Company is a Canadian concern, and I can add to the assurance given by the honourable leader of the House my own feeling that there are no better Canadians than those at the head of the Ford Motor Company of Canada and throughout that Company's organization. They will assist us to the utmost in our war work."

Women's Auxiliary Motor Service

Early in the war the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, organized free training courses for women in the care and operation of motor vehicles for possible war service. 284 such classes have been conducted, with an enrollment of 7,343. The number who have completed the eight week course is 3,473, with 2,656 now under instruction and 1,214 enrolled in new classes about to start. All instruction and equipment has been furnished by Ford dealers and the Company without charge.

Types of Motorized Vehicles for Military Use Being Made by Ford Motor Company of Canada

The Company is engaged in manufacturing 35,000 motorized vehicles for Canadian and overseas governments. They include light two-wheel drive trucks, knows as 8-cwt., which are used for carrying light stores, personnel or wireless sets; 15-cwt. units, used to transport heavier loads, personnel, as anti-tank gun tractors, water tank carriers, etc.; 30-cwt. four-wheel drive, used as load carriers; three-ton, four and six wheels, for heavy loads, for workshops, for wrecking equipment, etc.; four-wheel drive gun tractors used to haul artillery, as well as ambulances and regular passenger cars and station wagons specially fitted and painted for army purposes. Present schedule of deliveries of these military vehicles constitutes more than 50 per cent of the Company's production. The plant is working day and night.

Children Enjoy Annual Outing Of Tweed United Church S. S.

Tweed—Tweed United Church Sunday School held its picnic on Sugar Island on Wednesday afternoon. The storm which threatened in the early afternoon, failed to break and the skies cleared resulting in perfect picnic weather. There was a large crowd of children and their parents, all of whom had a most enjoyable afternoon.

Swimming facilities at Sugar Island are excellent and the youngsters took full advantage of the opportunity provided for a dip. A program of sports was run off in an open space at the rear of the cottage. Mr. A. W. McGuire, Superintendent of the Sunday School was assisted by Rev. H. L. Morrison, T. C. Graham, Doug Connor and S. H. Connor.

The afternoon's fun was topped off with motor-boat rides for which the children are indebted to Mr. Elgie Drinkwater. Appreciation was also expressed to Mr. T. N. Beatty and Mr. F. B. Foster for use of cottage grounds on which to hold the picnic. Mr. W. S. Gordon, a former Sunday School Superintendent provided transportation for a large number of the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Badgley of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rice of Niagara Falls, N.Y. are holidaying on Sugar Island. On Wednesday morning Mr. Rice and Mr. Badgley caught a nice string of fish which included a six-pound pickerel, the second largest taken from Stoco Lake this season.

Allan Fisher, eleven year old Tweed youngster, is a very proud fellow these days. Fishing from Tom Breen's dock with a cheap fish line and a pole cut from a nearby thicket the youthful fisherman hooked and landed a 3 1-2 pound bass on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Eall Salisbury of Berkeley, California, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Salisbury and Jean of Stirling were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor on Wednesday.

Safety First Begins Right in Your Home

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Are you or Grandma, the children, or others of your household going to number among the 40,000 persons now alive who will be killed at home during the next twelve months—killed by accident? Will you or yours be one of the 170,000 permanently disabled, or one of the 5,500,000 temporarily crippled in this same span of time, by accident?

Maybe you say to yourself, it won't happen to me. You and I can be a little more sure that we and our household will keep alive and whole if we give some thought and care to home safety.

Floor, Stairs, Bath

Most home accidents occur from falls and burns. Polished floors are slippery unless when waxed they are rubbed down to a hard, dry finish. And those scatter rugs! Why put these perils at the head or foot of the stairs? They can be made safe elsewhere if anchored to the floor with non-skid materials to be had at any good house furnishing place.

To make life safer on your stairs have good strong railings one can grasp; also on porch and cellar stairs. Have railings, too, that you can grasp to help you enter and leave the bathtub securely; and to stand without slipping at the shower. Non-skid mats might also help.

When you must climb, don't use a chair or box; get a stepladder and be sure its legs are locked.

Beware Burns

Fat on the fire is not to be fooled with. Use a deep kettle and let the contents cool before straining it. And you know what happens when some drops of water fall into the frying fat. Look out for your hands, eyes and face! Be sure the baby isn't near.

And don't try to fight fat or oil fire with water. Sprinkle on a handful of salt, use a fire extinguisher, or call the fire department.

Keep the matches beyond the young child's reach. Train him not to touch matches. Spank him every time he does and make it hurt. In like manner, train him not to reach for things above him in the kitchen. Also train yourself not to leave hot liquid on the floor or in containers with handles extending beyond the edge of the stove or table.

Outside with Cleaning

Don't dry-clean in the house. Not wishing to electrocute yourself in the bathroom, don't use a curling iron and the like there. Be sure the button for turning on and off the light is solid against the wall—no chains or cords.

Keep all poisons such as iodine, rat exterminators insect powder and cleaning fluids out of the young child's reach; preferably out of the bathroom. All poisons should be in containers different from all things else, or with pins in corks or strings about tops.

Having trained your child effectively in the unambiguous meaning of NO, make clear to him the things he must never touch. Such training should help keep him alive, for his nervous system, properly trained, is more dependable than that of an adult.

Keeping Baby Cool When Mercury Soars

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Keep the baby in the coolest part of the house during hot weather. Unless the windows and porch are well screened, be sure to cover the baby's bed with a netting. Dress him only in a diaper and band, even dispensing with them during extreme heat.

Give the baby as much water as he will drink, being sure that the water has been boiled. Boiling all milk and water and cooking all the foods prevents severe diseases of the intestines. It is not wise to begin weaning the baby during very hot weather. If necessary, let the food preparation and schedule be under the doctor's direction, and strictly followed. Use no drugs except on the doctor's advice.

Don't tamper with the baby's feeding schedule. If the baby is bottle fed, be sure that the bottle, nipples, etc., are sterilized, kept clean and covered.

Keep Milk Cool

If no ice box or refrigerator is available, the bottles of milk may be placed in a large pan filled with cool water that is frequently changed.

Or place the milk, which has been boiled, in a fruit jar with the top tightly sealed and suspend it in a pail in the well above the water.

If the baby has had cow's milk and it is no longer available, use canned evaporated milk or dried milk instead.

Before using a can of evaporated milk, pour boiling water over the top, and in the same way sterilize the sharp instrument with which you make two holes in the top of the can. After the can has been opened the milk should be kept cool and used within 24 hours.

The milk should be diluted with boiled water, according to the directions on the can and then used as if fresh milk, adding sugar and more water according to your doctor's formula. In hot weather the entire mixture should be boiled.

Frequent Sponging

Keep the baby out of the sun during intense heat. Do not travel with him unless absolutely necessary. Be sure to carry boiled water in a bottle and offer them to the baby.

Give the baby frequent sponge baths if the weather is hot. For heat rash sponge frequently the parts affected or dab with bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) and water or powder with starch and boric-acid powder (2 parts of starch to 1 part of boric-acid.)

The baby should sleep alone. On very hot nights a diaper and lightweight band are sufficient clothing. As the temperature drops more covering will be necessary.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My baby 13 months of age will creep about the floor picking up small bits of lint, raveling or pins and put them into his mouth. When I find him chewing at something and try to take it from his mouth he will fight vigorously to prevent my intrusion. I have evidence that he has swallowed all sorts of small foreign articles.

A. A baby pen which may be homemade at little cost may help you to protect this baby. While he is on the floor some one should, if possible, watch him to protect him. When, however, you suspect he has something foreign in his mouth, go about it very calmly and gently to remove it. Make it a rule not to take things from his grasp while he resists. Be clever enough to get him to give it to you. Then pat and cuddle him and smile at him profusely. To put an attractive object in his empty hand may cause him to relax grasp of the other hand when you might be able to spirit away the wrong possession. Poise, time, and patience are good investments to this end.

When you "pep-up" tomato juice this way

KINGSTON, ONT.—From this city comes the news that tomato juice is made much more flavoursome by adding a little H. P. Sauce. Try this idea yourself and you will enjoy tomato juice with more zest than ever.

H. P. Sauce is a general favourite and has been used in cooking and on the table for many, many years. Being a thick, rich, fruity sort of sauce, H. P. has extraordinary flavouring power. It makes hot and cold dishes of every description taste much nicer. Use this English sauce for adding flavour to soups, stews, meat pies, gravies, macaroni, chops, steaks, cheese dishes and so on.

MUCH excitement and commotion of a sudden and drastic nature may be expected on this day judging by certain revolutionary aspects among inciting planetary forces. The strange, deep-rooted as well as the subtle and intriguing may materialize and to the definite progress and far-reaching benefit if properly manipulated.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year that may challenge all the strain, excitement and surprise of sudden and possibly unprecedented predicaments. Shrewd, keen and even ruthless response may be required decisively and profitably to cope with strange events.

A child born on this day may have a nature of many conflicting traits. While open and above board, aggressive and impetuous, yet it may possess deep wells of subtlety, shrewdness and craft.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Uses Falsehood As An Exit

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old and think the world of a boy of 20. We've been going together since last fall. And all at once he told me he was going to quit coming to see me because I am too good for him.

He said he liked me very much but didn't want to stand in my way and keep me from someone more worthy. My parents like him very much. Shall I try to hold him, or forget about him? I've never had a boy friend of whom I thought as much.

Unfortunate

When a boy tells a girl she's too good for him, he just wants to quit and make a graceful exit. The probable meaning of this excuse is that you are too good for him and that he's looking round or has already been captured by wilder game. At 16, you have plenty of time to make more worthwhile friends. And please let me say, without cynicism, that such humility as imagining any creature too good for us is beyond the pale of human nature.

Loves Her Despite Her Short-Comings

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I made up my mind that I would not go to see her graduate, after the way she has treated me. But at the last minute I weakened and fell more in love with her than ever, though I know she is a heartless liar.

She makes dates with me, then stands me up, says her mother, father, grandmother, or little sister are ill. I go to the movies alone and am likely to sit near the entire family, and discover she is off motoring with some middle-aged fellow of 30 or dancing at a gay night spot. When I borrow the family car and take her out motoring, she's always flirting with someone else, if we stop for gas, a "hot dog" or to dance. It makes no difference to her whether she's had an introduction or not.

I know I'm a fool. Will you confirm my diagnosis?

Susceptible

When a young man finds his affection entangled with this particular type of butterfly girl, and he sees through her as clearly as my correspondent does, what's the use of advising him. He knows better than anyone else that he's being played for a softy.

In this type of love affair, it is well for a young man to ask himself the following questions:

How much do I get out of it? I know the girl is insincere and incapable of any deep emotion. But if I drop her, I'll probably be more unhappy than if I go along with her and her prevarications concerning dates. Shall I dance to her piping? The answer is up to me and no one else.

Let Own Feelings Be Guide

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The last year of the four we have gone together, we became engaged. He's 35 and I am 30. But rumor has it that he has been sneaking out of the house of a questionable woman in the early morning hours, and that she has lent him sums of money. My family now are opposed to my seeing him, but I have been seeing him on the sly, and he tells me these rumors are untrue and wants to get married immediately.

I have lost a lot of love and respect for him, and don't know what to do.

Uncertain

It seems to me that if a woman loves a man enough to become engaged to him and expects to marry him, that she should not accept rumors about his behavior unless they're substantiated.

Your family evidently believe these charges, and you think enough of the man to disregard their wishes and see him on the sly. He suggests you marry him immediately. Is your faith in him strong enough to do this, though you tell me you have lost a lot of love and respect for him? How strongly are you influenced by gossip? And shouldn't you be more guided by your own feelings in this case?

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How Do You Get In and Out of a Car?

Did you ever study how you get into and out of a car? If you haven't, watch other women, and then turn honest eyes on yourself.

When you get into a car, are you graceful or awkward? Do you move agilely? Or, no matter what your age, do you move heavily as if your body were weighted down?

Here's how you should enter a car. First, look where you're going. Instantly decide where you are going to sit. Step on the running board with one foot. Bring the other foot up beside it. Now, enter the car sidewise. While you are putting your first foot inside the car, bend and drop the knee enough so that you can step gracefully into the car.

How do you get out of a car?

Backward? Please don't!

Do you rise, bend from the waist and then awkwardly grope your way out? You shouldn't.

Here's how you should do it. Move over to the edge of the seat. Put one foot out on the running board. Put the other foot beside it. Then put the first foot on the ground, and then the second foot. Step out sidewise, with as few jerky movements as possible.

Remember: Don't climb into a car. And don't back out of a car.

Informal Summer Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am planning to have a very informal wedding this summer, and I intend to wear a becoming street dress and hat. What should the bridegroom wear—a dark blue suit or a white suit?

2. Would it be too formal to have someone sing "Oh Promise Me", before the ceremony?

3. We are having a matron of honor and a best man. How should we go to the altar?

M. D.

1. If the costume you are to wear is your travelling costume, the bridegroom would best wear a dark blue suit. If your dress is white or a very light shade, he might suitably wear a white suit, or white flannel trousers and blue coat.

2. No, even at an informal wedding this would be appropriate if you wish.

3. The bridegroom and best man come from the vestry or some entrance at the front of the church. Then, down the aisle would come your matron of honor walking alone. And following her, you and your father, or whoever is to present you in marriage.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Feet

I had no idea there was such general interest among mothers in the subject of their children's feet until I wrote a couple of columns on the subject. Since then I have been bombarded with questions about phases of the subject I didn't touch. For example, one mother wants to know how often a child's shoes should be changed, another asks what is the best material for a shoe.

I'm not a foot specialist, but I'm sure you can't set down any rules for changing shoes on a child. I know the Dionne Quintuplets vary in the way they grow out of shoes. We keep regular check on their feet, and the day a shoe appears to be the least bit tight, we get other shoes for the Quin. Usually this occurs before the sole is worn through. Sometimes, by the way, resoling makes a shoe tighter and harder on a child's foot. It's a good idea for parents to have shoes stretched if they do have them resoled.

I am told by experts that children at certain ages will outgrow a pair of shoes in from four to eight weeks. I think that is accurate, for there have been times when the Quins had to get new ones as quickly as that.

Foot specialists seem to favor a soft leather, such as kid, for the uppers in children's shoes. This leather is pliable enough to allow the foot the necessary freedom. Another important point is that it permits the foot to "breathe." That is very important both with children and adults. If the shoe is too heavy, then the foot can't get ventilation. It gets hot and moisture accumulates. Under such circumstances germs thrive and the feet are susceptible to such diseases as "athlete's foot."

The soles should be flexible, so the foot can bend properly, and a leather heel, capped by rubber, is preferred. The cap absorbs shock as an active child jumps about hard floors and pavements, while the leather base reduces strain on heel and ankle.

The National Foot Health Council, an advisory bureau on children's foot defects, had provided this advice for mothers and fathers:

1. Watch growing feet. Replace shoes with a larger size as soon as needed.

2. Teach children to toe straight ahead when walking. Toeing out weakens the ankles and arches and ruins a graceful stride.

Discard stockings that crowd the toes. Stockings with pointed toes cause ingrown nails and large joints.

4. Bathe the feet daily.

5. Cut the toe nails straight across, not shorter than the flesh at the end of the toe.

6. Keep the heels of shoes straight. Wornover heels cause weak ankles and foot strain.

7. Buy shoes for comfort first. Never put tight shoes on a child. Select shoes with flexible leather soles and uppers.

8. Do not overtax feet during convalescence from an illness.

I think these rules are simple enough, and if you follow them, I think your child will grow up with feet that are healthy and trouble free.

If you suspect that there is something wrong with your child's feet, take him to a specialist. He will know what if anything the child has been doing or wearing to cause any deformity. He too, will be able to prescribe corrective or orthopedic shoes if they are needed.

DEATH PENALTY FOR TREACHERY UNDER NEW BILL

Prime Minister King Gives Notice of Introduction of Measure on Monday

WIDE POWERS GIVEN

Ottawa, July 5 (CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave notice in today's House votes and proceedings that on Monday he will introduce a bill in the Commons providing the death penalty for treachery and life imprisonment for acts to assist the enemy.

The measure will be called "the Treachery Act".

This action follows presentation to the Commons by the committee investigating the Defence of Canada Regulations of a report which recommended such penalties. The committee's chairman is Revenue Minister Ilsley.

Wide Powers Given Authorities.

A draft bill, presented with the committee report and on which the prime minister's bill will be based, gives wide powers to the authorities for suppression of intended acts against the interests of his Majesty's forces or for assisting the enemy.

Under the heading "death penalty for treachery", it is provided that notwithstanding other regulations any person who attempts or conspires with any other person to do an act which is likely "to give assistance to the naval, military or air operations of the enemy, to impede such operations of his Majesty's forces, or to endanger life shall be guilty and shall upon conviction suffer death."

With respect to acts alone, with intent to assist the enemy, the draft bill reads, "any person who does any act which is likely to assist the enemy or to prejudice public safety, the defence of Canada, or the efficient prosecution of the war he shall upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for life."

The draft bill provides that no person convicted of treachery shall be granted bail pending appeal.

Any peace officer may arrest without warrant any person whom he has reasonable grounds for suspecting of having committed or being about to commit any offence against the act.

If a justice of the peace is satisfied that an offence has been committed or is about to be committed he may issue a warrant for search of premises and search of all inmates.

Any enemy alien, defined as a person who possesses the nationality of a state at war with his Majesty, may upon direction of the justice minister be prosecuted for an offence against the act by courts martial and treated as though he were a member of a military force.

If anyone convicted of treachery is, in the view of the justice minister, a member of a military force whether of an enemy force or not, he may be shot rather than hanged.

The draft bill provides for expedition in the handling of the cases of persons charged with treachery.

Warrants for search of premises may be obtained from any commissioned officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who are for this purpose of the act appointed justices of the peace.

CHILEAN BUYERS SEEN IN DISTRICT

250 Cattle Already Purchased in Campbellford District to Make up Complement of 400

An epidemic of foot and mouth disease among far away Chilean cattle has forced the destruction of many cattle in the South American country and herd owners are endeavouring to replace their stock by purchases in Canada.

Over 250 head of cattle have been purchased in the Campbellford district by the South American buyers known as the Corporation de Fomento, of Santiago, Chile, and it is understood that their representatives are now turning their attention to herds east of Campbellford to make up the requirements of 400 cattle, with the final purchase possibly exceeding that number. Two hundred head have already been forwarded to New York for shipment to Santiago.

A prize bull owned by Norman W. McConkey of Douro was purchased by these buyers at a reported price of $1,000, while prices for females ranged from $125 and averaged $250.

BRITAIN PREPARED FOR ANY INVASION

Island Fortress Garrisoned by Largest Army in Britain's History

By SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 5—(CP Cable) — On the eve of what may be the attempted invasion of battle for the United Kingdom—those words of extreme warning are Prime Minister Churchill's—this island fortress is garrisoned by an army that is the largest in it long history, the most mobile and best trained for the job in prospect.

Should the Italo-German enemy succeed in hurdling the bristling naval and air defences and force a landing he would be struck swift, hard blows by an army fully imbued with the offensive spirit.

These statements came from an official high in Britain's military councils after the Prime Minister told the Parliament and people of the embattled "core of the Empire" that "we are moving through a period of extreme danger and splendid hope."

Across the English Channel— a span of only 22 miles at the narrowest point and 100 at the greatest—the dictators have poised powerful combat forces along the coasts of subjugated France, Belguim and Holland. To the north the same is true of the ragged coastlines of Denmark and Norway.

To meet this potent threat, the striking and defensive strength of the Empire's navy and air force is backed up by the ground fighters of the United Kingdom and the Dominions, strengthened by allies drawn from countries that have disappeared for the meantime at least under Hitler's heel.

MAJ.-GEN. CRERAR VICE CHIEF OF GENERAL STAFF

O. C. Headquarters in London Recalled to Canada for New Post

SERIES OF CHANGES

Ottawa, July 5—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, officer commanding Canadian military headquarters in London, has been recalled to Canada to assume the position of Vice Chief of the General Staff at National Defence headquarters.

He will thus be the principal assistant to the Chief of the General Staff, Maj.-Gen. T. V. Anderson and will take over the duties performed by Brigadier B. W. Browne who was recently appointed to the post of Deputy Chief of the General Staff.

General Crerar's appointment was one of a series of changes in high military staff posts announced last night by Hon. C. G. Power, Acting Minister of National Defence.

Succeeding General Crerar in London will be Brigadier, the Hon. Percival J. Montague, of Winnipeg.

Brigadier Browne, called to headquarters recently from the position of officer commanding military district No. 10 at Winnipeg becomes Adjutant-General at headquarters in Ottawa, replacing Maj.-Gen. H. F. H. Hertzberg who has been appointed Commandant of Royal Military College at Kingston.

Third Change in Leadership

This marks the third change in the headship of the college since the start of the war. General Crerar left the post to take over the organization and command of headquarters in London and was succeeded by Brigadier K. Stuart.

Brigadier Stuart was director of military operations and intelligence at headquarters in Ottawa prior to his appointment to the college and now returns to headquarters as director general of engineer services.

The post of director general of engineer services has been vacant since Brigadier E. J. C. Shmidlin assumed the duties of quartermaster general last April.

Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong, Deputy Adjutant-General at National Defence headquarters since early in the present war has been appointed officer commanding military district No. 3, Kingston.

He succeeds Brigadier H. E. Boak who will shortly go on leave pending retirement on completion of the maximum period of service.

WARPLANES WAR UPON U-BOATS

5 Nazi Submarines Were Attacked in 5 Days Last Month and Oil Patches Appeared on Surface

Lonon, July 5—(CCP)—An Air Ministry statement today said that five German submarines were attacked by British warplanes within five days last month and in each case oil patches were seen on the surface after the attacks—usually considered evidence that a submarine has been destroyed.

The text of the statement follows:—

"Five U-boats were attacked by aircraft of the coastal command within five days last month.

"The first U-boat was sighted in the North Sea one early morning after bombs struck her starboard beam while the submarine was still submerging. Two dark round patches of oil appeared on the water. Aircraft circled overhead for three hours but nothing more was seen of the U-boat.

Australian Crew Gets One

"On another occasion an Australian crew was on patrol in a Sunderland flying boat when they saw a U-boat a mile away.

"'It was cruising on the surface and saw us about the time we spotted it,' the captain of the Sunderland said.

"'The U-boat dived but we could see it silhouetted beneath the surface and we dropped six bombs close to the port bow. A mass of oil and bubbles appeared. The bubbles must have been about two feet across. More bubbles came up a few minutes later and the oil patches got bigger as we circled around.'"

Sighted 3 Miles Away

"The third U-boat was sighted from three miles away and was bombed while the conning tower was still five feet out of the water. Bombs fell directly ahead of the conning tower.

"The fourth enemy submarine was attacked two days later. A direct hit was scored on it just as it was breaking the surface.

"Our aircraft dived and two bombs struck the submarine on the port and starboard beam. Two oil patches 15 feet in diameter appeared on the surface after two minutes.

"In the fifth case bombs began to fall a few seconds after the U-boat submerged. The pilot could still see the periscope. Immediately after the crash dive the submarine altered its course in an effort to dodge but the pilot saw the manoeuvre in time and his salvo of bombs fell across the U-boat's bows a few feet ahead."

FRENCH WARSHIPS ARRIVING SINCE JUNE 19 IN U.K.

Streets of British Naval Ports Still Filled With French Seamen Who Will 'Carry On' War Against Germans

London, July 5 (CP)— French warships have been arriving in British ports since June 19, two days after the French government announced it was seeking an armistice.

Today, streets of British naval ports still are filled with French seamen who have elected to fight on—most of them unmarried men, many of whom are anxious for British citizenship promised by Prime Minister Churchill.

Thousands of others, primarily married men anxious for the safety of their wives and families, came to Britain with their ships and are in camps awaiting reparation.

The first French arrival was crowded with sailors—far more than were needed to man the ship. They had been collected from various French ports.

Boarding of Vessels

Warships seized in Britain include vessels that fled Cherbourg before the Nazis took that French port and came to Portsmouth. They now are at secret anchorages with British parties aboard.

It has been disclosed that at one of the two big southern naval basis where vessels were seized, boarding parties were led by the Commander-in-Chief of the port.

Shortly after midnight Wednesday, fleet naval pinnaces, manned by armed boarding parties, slipped away from docks in one big British port. Aboard each boat was an interpreter.

French Find British in Control

The pinnaces slid quietly alongside a battleship, destroyers, submarines and other French craft and the boarding parties, each led by an officer, clambered up ladders in the darkness.

The French awoke to find the British navy in control. The watches aboard French ships were taken completely by surprise.

Each boarding officer went to the French captain's cabin where the interpreter explained the situation and said the crews would be put ashore immediately.

Most of the French officers accepted the situation calmly.

The only bloodshed was aboard the submarine Surcouf where an officer misunderstood the interpreter. The boarding officer was wounded and two British seamen fatally shot the French officer. One British seaman was killed, two officers and another seaman were injured before the trouble ended.

Mr. Churchill's Outline

Prime Minister Churchill gave the outline of this story yesterday when he told the House of Commons that early July 3 "We took the greater part of the French fleet under our control or else called upon them with an adequate force to comply with our requirements."

Many officers were said to have wept as they left their ships, many others also to have stood up in the pinnaces taking them ashore and saluted, still others to have been resentful or openly defiant.

Later in a dramatic scene, a French-speaking British officer told the assembled French officers and men that they had their choice between signing on to serve in the British navy or being repatriated.

Every Man of Crew Volunteers

Two hundred immediately said they wanted to stay and, it was said today, the number of Frenchmen deciding to fight on has proved "much higher than at first expected."

The captain of one French submarine announced that every man in his crew had volunteered to fight for Britain.

Squadron Leader Max Aitken Awarded D.F.C.

Son and Heir of Lord Beaverbrook Honored for Dash and Gallantry

London, July 5.—(CP Cable)—Squadron-Leader Max Aitken of the Auxiliary Air Force, son and heir of Lord Beaverbrook, Minister for Aircraft production, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it was announced today.

The Air Ministry in its formal announcement paid tribute to Aitken's dash and gallantry.

The citation read:—

"In May whilst leading a section of aircraft on patrol over Brussels this officer attacked one of 12 Heinkel III's which was finally seen to be losing height with one of its wings on fire and with black smoke pouring from the other. Next day when leading his section on another patrol a large number of Heinkel III and Junkers 87 aircraft escorted by Messerschmitt 110's were sighted. Squadron-Leader Aitken attacked and succeeded in destroying one Heinkel and one Junkers aircraft. During a night in June in difficult circumstances he destroyed yet another enemy aircraft. He has displayed great dash and gallantry".

Max Aitken was born in Montreal in 1910 and was married last year to Cynthia Monteith. Before the war he joined the 601 fighter squadron of the Auxiliary Air Force—the so-called "week-end fliers" who have performed heroically since the all-out warfare began in May.

BOMB EXPLOSION AT WORLD'S FAIR IS INVESTIGATED

All Known Radicals in Metropolitan Area Are Rounded Up by Police

2 OFFICERS KILLED

New York, July 5 (AP)—All known radicals in the Metropolitan Area were rounded up today as police made an unprecedented effort to track down those responsible for a bomb explosion which killed two police detectives and injured five other persons at the World's Fair.

Stirred into drastic action by New York City's third bombing in two weeks, Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine ordered his entire department to concentrate on the case.

Protesting agitators were hauled down from soap boxes in Columbus Circle, the "Red Rendesvous", and rushed unceremoniously to police headquarters. Others were seized in downtown haunts; still others were routed from bed.

Mayor Fiorello Laguardia declared, "there will be a most thorough investigation, and there won't be any let-up."

The bomb, a flame-thrower and disguised as a portable radio, was apparently intended to destroy the British pavilion. Put on the alert by a mysterious telephone call Tuesday that "the place is going to be blown up," a pavilion employee noticed the small bag in the fan room yesterday afternoon, took it to a deserted spot about 150 yards from the Polish Pavilion and notified authorities.

An hour and a half later, the bomb exploded as members of the bomb squad pryed cautiously into the bag.

Debris Covers 50-Foot Radius

The blast was so terrific that hats, strips of clothing and fragments of bodies were hurled through the air over a 50-foot radius. It dug a hole five feet wide and four feet deep, broke windows in the Polish pavilion, stripped a maple tree of its leaves and tore up a section of heavy wire fence.

Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, telephoned from Washington that "His Britannic Majesty's ambassador deplores this shocking incident and asks that an expression of his most sincere sympathy may be conveyed to the relatives of the killed and injured."

The explosion occurred just two weeks after bombs went off in a German commercial service office only a floor below the German consul-general's office and outside the building that houses The Daily Worker, Communist newspaper.

Those killed yesterday were Detectives Joseph L. Lynch, 33, and Ferdinand A. Socha, 35, close friends. Socha was supposed to be off duty yesterday, but Lynch telephoned and asked for his aid "on a job at the fair grounds." Less than an hour later, both were dead.

FOE PLANES TRY TO HIT WARSHIPS

Are Driven to Sea by Bursts of Anti-Aircraft Fire From Ships and Shore Batteries at Alexandria

Alexandria, July 5.—(AP)—Raiding airplanes dropped a large number of bombs in an effort to hit warships in Alexandria Harbor today, but were driven to sea by terrific bursts of anti-aircraft fire from both warship and coastal defence batteries. Both British and French warships lay in the harbor.

Thursday's Raids

Alexandria, July 5—(AP)—Italian planes showered bombs over Alexandria yesterday in two attacks on British and French warships at anchor here and killed 15 persons and wounded seven.

The Bomber squadron swept over the western harbor from the Dodecanese Islands and dropped nearly forty bombs, most of which fell harmlessly into the sea.

Several, however, struck a customs building and the Mahmoudieh Canal in Alexandria. One bomb fell ten miles west of Alexandria. Anti-aircraft fire shook the entire port area.

Natives Killed in Palace Gardens

The raids came about the time it was disclosed in London that Britain had refused permission to French warships to leave Alexandria and return to home ports in compliance with the French-German armistice.

Twelve natives were killed by several bombs which fell in the Gardens of Egyptian King Farouk's Montala Palace here. Farouk was absent from Alexandria at the time.

No French sailors appeared on the Alexandria streets last night. All apparently had been ordered to remain aboard their ships, awaiting further developments.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

AT THE McCARTHY

"North Sea Patrol"

The first convincing and tremendously exciting drama of British naval activities in the North Sea and its adjacent waters is now on view at the McCarthy Theatre, under the thrilling title, "North Sea Patrol." This mighty production will "get you" from its opening scene, for there you will see and hear the pronouncement that "if our ultimatum is not answered within twenty-four hours . . . it is war."

Of course, we know the outcome. War is at hand, and Britain delivers her first blow with the powerful forces of her great navy. Commander Clive Stanton (Geoffrey Toone) receives sealed orders to proceed into immediate action. But, before he is able to carry them out, he falls into a trap, laid by spies sent by the enemy to learn the measures planned by the navy.

The most thrilling scenes in "North Sea Patrol," are those taken on the high seas. Destroyers in action, cruisers bent on effecting a blockade, anti-aircraft guns blazing away at enemy planes, an attack on a disguised merchant ship that tries desperately and futily to run the floating gauntlet . . . all these scenes and many more provide the most breath-taking entertainment. Actually, the navy is the star of this superlative picture but Geoffrey Toone does such a magnificent job of acting that he, too, must be given praise. Outstanding supporting players are Judy Kelly, Clifford Evans and John Wood.

For up-to-the-minute headline news of war activities on the high seas . . . for thrills and tense, forthright drama . . . see "North Sea Patrol."

"Love, Honor and Oh-Baby"

Also now showing on the McCarthy Theatre screen is "Love, Honor and Oh-Baby," a splendid co-feature laugh-loaded comedy, starring Wallace Ford, Mona Barrie, Donald Woods and Warren Hymer. The closing chapter of "The Shadow" and a sports reel—an interesting subject on fishing, is also presented.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hell Divers"

The lusty romance and thrilling adventure of "Hell Divers" the roaring epic starring Clark Gable and Wallace Beery, once more flame across the screen at the Capitol theatre. Startling at its first release, it is even more important and valuable to the public now at the crisis of the war. For this reason, popular demand has brought it back. It is not a war picture, but shows the inside machinery that runs the air-force and the navy. The amazing areial photography, done in the epic manner, has never been excelled. The crashing of two aeroplanes into each other in midair has never been photographed before or since. In addition to Gable and Beery, the cast includes Cliff Edwards, Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, Marie Prevost and Dorothy Jordon.

As well as this fine picture, we offer you a ring-side seat at the historic Louis-Godoy fight, and a fast-moving western "West of Carson City" with Johnny Mack Brown and Bob Baker. A news reel and the serial complete the program.

AT THE BELLE

"LILLIAN RUSSELL"

Blonde and lovely Alice Faye portrays the first and greatest of America's glamor girls in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Lillian Russell", the 20th Century-Fox film which comes next to the Belle Theatre and features Don Ameche and Henry Fonda with her.

The colorful life and loves of the striking American beauty are revived in all their splendor and magnificence in "Lillian Russell", with the sparkling dashing days of America's most fabulous era as a background.

Lillian Russell was famous for her marvelous voice as well as her splendid acting and great beauty, and Alice Faye sings many of the songs Lillian popularized. Among these are "After The Ball Is Over", "Rosie, You Are My Posie," "My Evening Star," "The Band Played On" ("Strawberry Blond") and many others.

Don Ameche has the role of Lillian's composer-husband, who struggled to author her greatest success. It is Ameche's third composer role and advance reports indicate his acting again is outstanding as it was in "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Swanee River."

Henry Fonda is cast as Alexander Moore, the newspaperman who fell in love with the gorgeous Lillian when they were both young, but failed to tell her about it. Fresh from his triumph in "The Grapes of Wrath" Fonda is said to give another stirring portrayal in a highly dramatic role.

The great Lillian Russell numbered among her admirers such famed persons as Diamond Jim Brady, the financier, and Jesse Lewisohn, the copper king, played respectively by Edward Arnold and Warren William.

The man who "discovered" Lillian was the Ziegfeld of that fabulous era, Tony Pastor. He is portrayed on the screen by Leo Carrillo, who was an intimate acquaintance of Pastor. Additional realism is lent by Irving Cummings, to whom Darryl F. Zanuck assigned the direction of the picture. Cummings was Miss Russell's last leading man, knew many of the central characters in "Lillian Russell."

Other roles are played by Helen Westley, Dorothy Peterson, Ernest Truex, Nigel Bruce, Lynn Bari, Claude Allister, Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, Jr. Una O'Connor and Joseph Cawthorn. William Anthony McGuire wrote the screen play for "Lillian Russell."

The popular Belle newsreel and a funny color cartoon "Hound and the Hare", precede the feature attraction.

"Saturday's Children"

Belle audiences laughed and were entranced in turn when they saw the first Belleville showing of Warner Bros. picture "Saturday's Children", starring John Garfield and Anne Shirley. For seldom has comedy been more successfully harmonized with a down-to-earth story than in "Saturday's Children."

Thirty minutes of refreshingly different entertainment is revealed in "Calvacade of Academy Awards" presented on the same program with Dave Apollon and his orchestra.

Shelters For U.S. Now

Mr. Harold Brooks, president of a Quincy, Mass., firm, is shown demonstrating his firm's latest innovation—an air raid bombproof shelter. The shelter above is six feet square and will hold a family of six persons. It is made of armor plate steel and is set on a concrete base six inches thick. Mr. Brooks explains that a direct hit from a bomb will wreck the shelter but anything other than a direct hit cannot pierce its steel sides. It is believed these are to be first shelters on the market in the United States and are an improved design of British type.

Brooklyn Dodgers and Indians Unscathed at Top of Majors After July 4 Battling Over Largest Turnout in Detroit's History Sees Tigers Split With Cleveland Club

DODGERS WIN TWO

Giants Shoved Five Games Off the Pace by Double Defeat by Brooklyn

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a safe and sane fourth of July in the major leagues.

All the prospective fireworks fizzled out, leaving Brooklyn Dodgers and Cleveland Indians unscathed at the top of the National and American Leagues and eager to prove the truth of that old saying about the Independence Day leaders winning the pennants.

All they have to do now is stay where they are.

The largest baseball turnout in Detroit's history, 57,633, filled Briggs Stadium yesterday to whoop and groan as the Indians and Tigers divided a doubleheader.

Tommy Bridges pitched the Tigers temporarily into first place in the first game with a 5-3 triumph on five hits. Rudy York helped him with a two-run homer off Lefty Al Smith, who had won nine and lost one up until that time. But in the second game the Indians squeezed out a thrilling 2-1 victory in 11 innings to regain the lead. Until the ninth this was a southpaw struggle between Al Milnar and rookie Hal Newhouser. Cleveland collected an unearned run off the freshman in the fourth on an error and a double by Ben Chapman, who had homered in the first game. Then the Tigers loaded the bases and got the tying run in the ninth. In the 11th two singles sandwiched around a sacrifice scored the winning run.

Romped Like Champions

Brooklyn Dodgers romped like champions over New York Giants 5-1 and 6-1 in a double feature for 54,306 fans at the Polo Grounds.

This gave Brooklyn a sweep of the series with New York and shoved the Giants five games behind the lead.

The champion Cincinnati Reds refused to yield any ground, however. Bucky Walters stepped to the mound in the first game against Pittsburgh Pirates and ripped off his 11th victory 9-1. Then Gene (Junior) Thompson put on a three-hit show that submerged the Pirates 3-1.

The other National League doubleheaders were divided. Chicago Cubs stopped the Cardinals 4-3 in the first game. Clyde Shoun evened the score for St. Louis with a five-hit 5-2 success in the afterpiece.

Joe Marty's pinch single with the bases loaded and the score tied in the ninth inning gave the Phillies a 4-3 verdict over Boston, but the Bees battled back in the second game to win 5-4.

New York Yankees paraded back into the American League pennant picture again by blasting out a double victory over Boston Red Sox 12-4 and 7-3. They now are a game and a half behind the third place Red Sox and 5 1-2 behind Cleveland.

The spurt of St. Louis Browns was shut off at Chicago where the White Sox took two games 7-3 and 8-5.

Washington Senators worked their way out of the American League cellar by beating Philadelphia Athletics twice, 5-1 and 9-5.

The total attendance in the majors for the day was 214,743.

PAT COMISKEY COMING HEAVY SAYS AL WEILL

Improved Greatly in Past Eight Months and Easily Won Prelim Bout

HAS NIFTY LEFT

New York, July 5—(AP) — Pat Comiskey, the tall, blond puncher from Paterson, N.J., still appears to be the only heavyweight in the United States who might, in time, give Joe Louis a real fight for his title.

Comiskey has improved tremendously in the last eight months, since his meteoric rise was slowed temporarily by the cagey veteran, Steve Dudas, and he looks now as though he will go on to challenge for the crown.

Al Weill, who manages Lou Ambers, Arturo Godoy and about 40 others, is one of the latest to climb on the Comiskey bandwagon. "When I seen him the other night I couldn't hardly believe my eyes," Al Volunteered. "The kid's got a nifty left now to go with that right of his."

Pat always could knock them bowlegged with his right. He packed a real knockout in that fist. But he had no left at all the first time he fought Dudas, and the veteran made a monkey of him at times.

He looked almost a finished fighter the other night against Bob Sikes of Arkansas, on the Galento-Baer card. It took him only a little over two minutes to knock Sikes down three times and render him helpless, but in the short time it lasted Comiskey made an undeniable impression.

Canadian Champ Will be Crowned At Kid Kar Derby

President Jeff Marvell, of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, announced today that officially the Kinsmen Club Soap Box Derby winner would this year be recognized by the International Racing Committee as the Canadian champion. To this year's winner, as in the past, goes the right for the Belleville winner to compete in the World Soap Box Derby championship at Akron, Ohio, next month and also the chance to win a four-year college course with all expenses paid.

To the winner of the fifth annual Kinsmen Club Soap Box Derby, to be raced on Derby Hill, Belleville, on July 9th, will also go the Coyle Trophy, emblematic to the Canadian Soap Box championship and in addition a gold medal. Silver and bronze medals will go to runners-up, as well as other valuable prizes. White sweatshirts with insignias, as donated by the General Motors (Chevrolet Division), will be given to each contestant in the Belleville race next Tuesday, as well as crash helmets and other articles of proud value to the youthful drivers.

Prior to the race on Tuesday a parade of all the youthful contestants will be held throughout the downtown area to King George School, where the racing cars will be serviced prior to the big race for the Canadian Soap Box Derby championship down Derby Hill.

New York, July 5.—(AP)—They sued Signor Galento for his share of the Baer fight, but Tony outsmarted 'em. He sold $13,000 worth of pasteboards at his orange pub and is holding on to the dough—just about his share less managers' cuts. . . .Those Browns are getting so tough they're even piching Master Feller against them. . . .Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who led the list of winning race hoss owners in 1935, is batting zero so far this year. He hasn't won a two-year-old or a stake event.

Sing hey the Merry Dodgers
And Sing hey the Indian tribe,
They're likely first place lodgers—
It's a fact you can not hide;
For song and story has it, and it isn't just a gag—
The team that leads on July Fourth is sure to win the flag.

Max Baer's horoscope said he was due for an upset in July and a palmist told him the same thing . . . . Walter Hagen has offered to bet $1,000 the U.S. Ryder Cup team beats Squire Gene Sarazen's all-stars in their Red Cross match at Detroit July 16-17. If he wins, Hagen will give the dough to the Red Cross.

Add Vanderbilt: He was at the Polo grounds yesterday, while Larry MacPhail, president of the Dodgers, spent the afternoon at the race track. . . .El Goofy Gomez, who used to toss a knuckly ball in the Pacific Coast League, used it for the first time in the majors while beating Washington the other day. . . . .When Jackie Hayes (who almost lost his eyesight) returns to the White Sox line-up, he'll wear a special helmet as protection while batting.

ROCHESTER WINGS LEADING PARADE BY NINE GAMES

Club Sweeps Doubleheader From Toronto Leafs on the July 4th Holiday

GIANTS SECOND

Jersey City Wins Pair from Bears and Orioles Hand Chiefs Double Setback.

(By The Associated Press)

If Major League baseball's traditional belief, about the club which is leading its league on July fourth winning the pennant, holds true elsewhere, it looks as if Rochester Red Wings, International League pacesetters, are in.

Wings are out in front today by nine full games and aren't worried much about whether the saying applies to their circuit or not.

Yesterday Rochester swept a doubleheader with Toronto Maple Leafs, 9-1, 4-2. Herschel Lyons pitched four-hit ball in the opener for his 11th victory of the year and Hank Gornicki Limited the Leafs to six hits in the nightcap.

The twin killing was the fourth the Wings have made in the last six days.

Jersey City climbed back into second place displacing Newark Bears by downing Bears 4-2 and 7-5, after losing 13 out of their last 17 games, and the Baltimore, Orioles handed the Syracuse Chiefs a double set-back, 4-3 and 4-0, behind the brilliant hurling of Tom Hughes and Dick Midkiff. The Montreal Royals and Buffalo Bisons split, Buffalo winning the first game 6-2 and Montreal taking the second 3-2.

A home run in the eighth inning by Del Young, with one on, broke a tie and clinched the opener for Jersey City, giving Johnny Wittig his sixth victory. The Little Giants combed four Newark flingers for 11 hits in the afterpiece.

Tommy Hughes turned in a five-hit performance to give Baltimore the first game with the Chiefs. Midkiff hurled two-hit ball in the seven inning second game and hit a homer to help his own cause.

Hal White scored his sixth consecutive mound triumph in turning back the Royals in the abbreviated twilight game at Buffalo. Steve Rachunck fanned 11 Bisons in the second game but was deprived of a shut out when Ollie Carnegie slammed his ninth homer with one on in the eighth.

DETROIT'S SPURT HAS 'EM TALKING

Tigers' Spirit and Good Hitting Brings Team High Rating With Experts

Detroit, July 5 (CP)—Next to the collapse of the world champion New York Yankees, the surprise of an astonishing early American League season has been the unexpected rise of Detroit, a team condemned to second division status by the experts in March.

In baseball circles today they are asking "What happened to the Tigers?" and some neutral observers profess to rate Detroit more highly than the Boston Red Sox or Cleveland Indians, clubs with whom they are involved in a "National League" pennant fight.

The Tigers have begun to hit and rival managers face the new threat of a team that combines batting and pitching skill.

If Detroit cracks up now it will undoubtedly be for mechanical or physical reasons. The team has the competitive temperment and the experience to prevent any disorganization through nervousness or strain.

There were times last season when observers hinted the Tigers lacked fire, but no one has made this accusation this year. The new spirit can be traced to Dick Bartell, a National league castoff shortstop.

Dick, who was troubled by poor health last season, is himself again, and has teamed up well with the veteran Charley Gehringer at second base.

Greenberg, by sheer hard work, has become a capable outfielder.

It's a long pull to October and the World Series and Detroit, short on infield reserves, may not make the grade but on the early returns the club looks as good as any.

No Brook, No Line But, 28 Bass

Port Arthur, Tex., July 5 (CP)—The prize fish story this season is the one about the four boys who caught 28 bass without hooks, line or bait. If they weren't Boy Scouts, nobody would believe them.

Scoutmaster Clem Wall vouches for the story. He says the boys were hunting frogs at summer camp near here and pulled their boat up a small stream feeding the creek.

It swung backwards and across the stream, cornering a sizeable school of bass in the shallow water. The fish strove desperately to get back to the stream, jumping over and into the boat and up on the bank.

"It doesn't sound right," said the boys, "but about all we did was defend ourselves."

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Bucky Walters and Gene Thompson, Reds: Former scored 11th triumph of season with seven-hit pitching and two hits of his own in first game against Pirates while latter spaced three hits in second game.

Between the Lines

No matter how much hot air one is accused of slinging, there's always a limit to everything. Kinsmen Court Miller says he's been accused of shooting plenty of hot air before but today he's in a quandry and actually stumped. It seems "Kin. Court" is in charge of the balloon department for the Kinsmen Soap Box Derby next Tuesday and he was handed ten gross of balloons to inflate the best way possible. "Now let me tell you blowing up 1440 balloons is no small time huff-puff no matter how much hot air comes and goes and I'm beginning to get suspicious," said Kinsmen Miller today. Yes, it seems they're going to have balloons and all the circus trimmings for the fifth annual Kinsmen Club Soap Box Derby race here next Tuesday. Derby Manager "Boiler" Lloyd announced today the race had attracted the largest entry since its inception and there would be at least 33 heats during the Canadian championship, the Belleville Kinsmen Soap Box Derby being recognized as the only championship race of its kind in Canada this year.

Walter Gerow, Jr., who first saw the light of day in Belleville and for many years was the bat boy for the old Belleville Nationals, (won't you bring back those wonderful days), is today attracting considerable attention in the senior Inter-city baseball loop. Young Walt is fielding sensationally, hitting at the .375 clip and considered one of the two best initial sackers in the Inter-City loop, while first basing for Peterboro'. Young Walt commenced his diamond career in the old C.O.B.L. with Napanee while still a juvenile and has equally excelled in hockey and baseball. Just what the future holds for Walt Gerow is hard to tell now, and it is a toss up whether his prospects are better for professional hockey or professional ball but he will likely turn pro in the puck sport as he has an offer from Lester Patrick to join the New York Rangers' chain when training starts next fall.

Do you remember when Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, died in Paris of pernicious anemia two years ago, at the age of 39? Her playing career reached its climax in 1920, when she carried off all the gold medals at the Antwerp Olympic Games. She faded rapidly from the sports spotlight when she turned professional in 1926 and when Jack Guest of Don Rowing Club, Toronto, sculled his way to Canada's third victory in the Diamond Sculls event 10 years ago today? Lou Scholes won the race for the Dominion in 1904, and Joe Wright, Jr., in 1928.

In a desperate effort to complete the Belleville Softball loop schedule in time to engage in a city and O.A.S.A. playdowns, Secretary Harry Knott again revised the league schedule to take care of the games it has been necessary to postpone owing to inclement weather, etc. The revision was published yesterday. In the meantime, however, it might be a good idea if the "mushballers" procured suitable iron pegs onto which they could secure the bags at Coleman Flats. It does look rather silly to see players sliding in one direction and the bags in another whenever there's a play at a bag. There is no excuse for loose bags and their appearance alone minimizes the effect of the game from the spectators' viewpoint.

See where Jo-Boy Samain, who joined the Air Force some time ago, won his first army boxing bout in Toronto this week. Jo-Boy K.O.'d his opponent in the second round of a scheduled four-round scrap. Young Samain boxed as a novice on several local cards here.

Old Jupiter Pluvius bided his time and just let the softball lassies get started before a deluge of rain fell from out the skies last night and swamped the diamond, girls and umpires. Result — no game. Tonight at the Collegiate the Vikings and Mets clash in one of the most important struggles of the schedule, as both are trying to overtake the league leading Big-Z nine. Also we find Picton playing at the Flats versus Corbys, while the Uptown kids journey to Point Anne to round out the week's softball schedule. After last night the girls have three postponed games, while the Senior Men's League revised their schedule to take care of their multiple of postonements.

The sight of a major league baseballer wearing glasses on the field isn't as rare as it once was. Outfielders Mel Ott of the New York Giants and Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates are the latest to don the window panes. They bring the American and National league lens-wearers' total to seven.

Another Pirate ace, Pitcher Danny McFayden, has been wearing specs — and winning games—for years. Pitchers Walter Beck of the Phillies and Bill Dietrich of the Chicago White Sox are others.

Two newcomers this year are Dominic DiMaggio, the Boston Red Sox's high-priced rookie fly-chaser, and Russ Peters, Cleveland's reserve infielder.

If major league tradition repeats, it's Cleveland and Brooklyn in the world series next October. There's a baseball saying that predicts the major leagues leading their respective loops on July 4th will invariably clash in the world series. However, the race is so close this year that most anything may happen before Labor Day. Yesterday Cleveland and Detroit split, while the Yankees beat the Red Sox twice, hitting eight home runs in the two games. In the National League the Reds and Dodgers dominate with the Giants still in the picture, so don't count too strongly on the old baseball superstition of that July 4th business.

SPORT SPICE—The Cincinnati Reds equalled the modern league record of winning four successive double bills yesterday. . . What's this—Lou Nova calls Tony Galento "a worm." Could it be that the fight business is copying some of the rasslin' ballyhoo? Nova beat Baer but lost to Galento, could that be the answer? . . . There will be no Dominion soccer finals played this year on account of the war conditions. Supervisor Bill Bowerman says increased numbers of kiddies are attending the daily programs at the two Belleville playgrounds. . . . Parents are urged and advised to send their children to the city playgrounds if for no other reason than safety.

Tom Bridges, Tigers: Five-hit pitching won first game against Indians.

Babe Phelps and Vito Tamulis, Dodgers: Former batted in three runs with two homers to take Giants in opener and latter allowed only three hits in nightcap.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost. MARMORA

LIGHTNING HITS MARMORA HOME

Mrs. Boyd Struck With Mortar, Splinters and Bricks Knocked from Ceiling by Bolt

Marmora (Special)—The residence of S. C. Boyd was struck by lightning shortly after 5 p.m. on Thursday during an electric storm. Apparently the lightning contacted the electric light meter in the kitchen for the current to pass through that room into the back kitchen, thence to be conducted along the clothes line outdoors. At the time Mrs. Boyd was in the living room and a flame of fire which quickly spent itself entered the room simultaneously with the flash that passed through the kitchen. Mr. Boyd, entering the back kitchen at the time, was struck in the forehead with a mixture of splinters, mortar and brick which inflicted a slight bruise there.

"The report seemed to me as though I was feeling a charge from a double barrelled shotgun," said Mr. Boyd. "It looked like black smoke and gun packing which passed by my face. It is remarkable that I was able to stay on my feet with so sudden a happening as this was."

Damage done included breaking of the glass of the meter and the chipping of brick by the back kitchen door with door casing slightly dislodged.

IN MEMORIAM

BENSON — In loving memory of a loving husband and father, John Benson, who passed away July 5, 1939.

We remember all his ways.
All the little things he did each day.
All the cheerfulness he brought,
And all his kindly little thoughts.

Now all we have are memories,
Memories so fond and dear,
And in our hearts we hold them sincere,
To cherish and keep from year to year.

POLICE COURT

Mrs. Fanny Switzer, of this city, was sentenced to not less than six months, with a further indeterminate period of six months in Mercer Reformatory for women when she appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler for sentence today.

Mrs. Switzer was charged in a previous court with an offence, while acting Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson urged the maximum sentence today as he referred to the accused as "a repeater."

Everett McDonald, Trenton, pleaded guilty to a charge of taking a motor car without the owner's consent. Charles A. Payne, K.C., appeared on behalf of the 22-year-old accused and assured the court this was the lad's first offence. "He took the car along with an employee of the persons owning the vehicle and they were enroute to a dance when arrested for speeding. My client also is charged with speeding at Trenton," pointed out Mr. Payne. A fine of $5.00 and costs, amounting to $21.75 in all, was imposed.

Enlarged for Week

Charles L. Smith, Station P.O., appeared on a charge of reckless driving, which arose out of the death of three-year-old Doris Howard. At the request of Jacob Goodman, Smith's counsel, the case was enlarged for a week. Mr. Goodman requested the court release Smith's automobile in order that it might be disposed of.

Crown Attorney Robertson objected, holding that the vehicle was part of the evidence in the case against Smith. After a short discussion, Mr. Goodman admitted there was blood on the Smith car and the magistrate then sanctioned the release of the vehicle, which is to be sold.

A 74-year-old man and two transients, Edward Trusdale and Thomas Bailey were all given fourteen days after being convicted of intoxication. A juvenile case, held in camera, concluded today's proceedings.

LIVERPOOL — (CP) — Conscientious objectors should be deprived of increases in pay and promotions by their firms for the duration of the war, a Liverpool alderman has suggested.

Verdun, Que., July 4—(CP)— A drive to enlist volunteers willing to help protect the civilian population of this municipality near Montreal from the threats of air raids, sabotage or other war emergencies was launched today. A group of prominent citizens, acting under Mayor Edward Wilson, as a sub-committee of the Quebec Civic Protection Committee, has completed plans for the protection scheme which will go into effect as soon as volunteers enlist with the committee. TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 5—(CP)— Slightly stronger note was shown on Toronto Exchange today. Industrials, golds and western oils had higher prices while base metals lagged. Trading showed 54,000 shares changed hands.

Fractional gains were posted by Walkers Common, Ford A, Brazilian and Imperial Oil. Bell Telephone weakened a point to a new low for five years at 134.

The market was stronger for Central Patricia, Pickle Crow and Upper Canada. Metals traded mainly in broken lots.

Royalite and Home Oil ruled higher and Calgary-Edmonton was unchanged at 1.25.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, July 5—(AP)— Stock generally tilted moderately upward today after the fourth of July recess.

It was another slow-going session, however, and early gains of fractions to a point or more were chipped down after mid-day.

Many traders elected to extend their holiday to Monday and attendance in boardrooms was sparse. At the same time, brokers said, sentiment seemed to have improved due to the apparent stiffening of the British war spirit and broadening hopes domestic rearmament would soon spurt industry.

Among supported stocks were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Westinghouse, N. Y., Shipbuilding, American Smelting, North American and Great Northern.

Most Canadian issues were inactive. International Nickel and Walkers gained fractions. In the bond market Canada 4s were unquoted.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, July 5—(CP)—Dressedweight were up 15 cents at Chatham and liveweight up 10 cents at Chatham in bacon-hog markets reporting today. Other markets were unchanged.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.60, Hull $10.70, Stratford $10.50 plus transportation.

Chatham $10.75.

Liveweight: Chatham $7.85.

Calves held steady for the week at $9 to $9.50 for choice vealers with common downward to $6. Grassers sold at $5 to $5.50 and western stock calves at $7 to $7.50.

Hogs were firm, selling mostly at $8.40 off-trucks for bacons and $11.10 dressedweight and rail grading. Buying was heavy for Montreal accounts.

Good ewes and wethers sold at $11.50 to $12 cwt on the lamb market with bucks at a discount of $1 cwt. Culls brought $8 to $10 cwt. Sheep were unchanged at $2 to $5 cwt according to quality.

News of the Produce Markets

Toronto, July 5—Another modest advance occurred in graded eggs on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Demand improved for cheese, but prices held unchanged, while butter turned over in fair volume at steady to firm quotations.

Arrivals of fresh receipts were barely sufficient to satisfy the continued good demand on the egg market. Top grades firmed 1-2c per dozen in the graded section as the retail division maintained previous levels.

Although not as active as Wednesday, buying held a fair pace on the butter market, and efforts were made to obtain higher prices. No. 1 Ontario creamery solids sold throughout the session at the previous rate of 21 1-2 cents per pound, with the odd lot of 40 score butter reported sold at 21 3-4c. Western offerings traded generally at 22 1-4 cents, but one car went through on a basis of 22 1-2 cents per pound. Prints to the retail trade moved at the unchanged prices of 23 to 23 1-2 cents.

TROUBLE-DOGGED STEAMER LEAVES

Ill-Luck Has Marked Her Career Since March 21st When She Sank in Baltimore Harbor

Baltimore, July 5 (AP) — Laden with a strangely marked cargo and headed for an undisclosed destination, the trouble-dogged steamship Panamanian moved toward the open sea today after squelching a fire in her hold which flared four hours from port—the latest link in a long chain of ill luck.

The boat left in her wake libel charges exceeding $646,000, 54 Filipino seamen sent ashore at the last moment, and a record of misfortune that started when she sank in Baltimore harbor March 21.

Boxed cargo marked with such names as "John," "James," "Alice" and "Berlin", apparently words from a code, made up part of the 15,000 tons the huge freighter carried.

Crew of 80

Aboard was a crew of 80, nearly twice that of a standard-size freighter. The Filipinos' removal, shortly before the departure, was ordered by the Neutrality Act forbidding American citizens from sailing on a foreign vessel for a war zone port.

Arnold Bernstein, of New York, German refugee and one-time Atlantic shipping magnate who chartered the vessel, announced March 19 he intended to inaugurate direct freight service between Baltimore and the British Isles. Whether the Panamanian was headed for England this trip was not known.

The libel claims ranged from $287 asked by two discharged deck engineers to $200,000 filed by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Corporation of New York for salvage charges when the ship sank in March.

She was permitted to sail when satisfactory bond was posted for these and other claims, which included suits of an English tobacco company, a railroad and stevedore and deck operating companies.

Signs Increase 'F. D. R.' to Accept Third Term 'Draft'

Washington, July 5 —(AP)—With the presidential election exactly four months off, Democratic leaders were hustling preparations today for their party's July 15 convention amid increasing indications that President Roosevelt would break tradition and accept a third term "draft."

Republicans, too, were thinking of casting an old custom aside as their 1940 standard bearer, Wendell L. Willkie, considered plans in New York for a three-man strategy board in lieu of a single campaign director.

Talk of a Democratic ticket headed by President Roosevelt and State Secretary Cordell Hull continued to overshadow speculation by a few party members that the chief executive might turn down the nomination at the last minute.

Should the President decide not to seek a third term, leaders are fairly well agreed he will endorse Hull.

French Communique

Geneva, July 5 (AP)—A French Admiralty Communique published in the Press of territory administered by the Bordeaux government said today that the French battleship Bretagne was blown up, and the battleships Dunkerque and Provence and the flotilla leader Mogador set on fire during the battle with the British fleet yesterday at Mers El-Kebir.

The communique, agreed generally with the facts given the House of Commons yesterday by Prime Minister Churchill.

"Vice-Admiral Gensoul replied (to the British ultimatum) there could not be a question of the French fleet joining the British fleet or being scuttled and that he would meet force with force", the communique asserted.

"Gensoul added that the first fire from the British fleet would have the practical effect of putting the entire French fleet against Britain—a consequence which he knew Britain did not desire".

France, the communique declared, "indeed would never have considered delivering to any power a fleet which had not been conquered".

Official French assurances of this, it said, had been given both to Mr. Churchill and A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the British Admiralty.

"The French Admiralty has the painful feeling that the misfortunes of France left English rulers unmoved, they thinking only of becoming masters of the French fleet which must remain French or perish", the communique continued.

"The French navy did not in any case, deserve to be stabbed in the back in the order of Churchill, who, last winter, implored the French admiralty to lend its principal forces to protect Canadian ships because the British Admiralty's forces had no longer the necessary means".

TENSION GROWS IN BALKAN STATES

Fear is Expressed That Moscow is Planning New Demands on Rumania

Budapest, July 5—(AP)—Reports that new Soviet troops and mechanized equipment have arrived in Bessarabia, the province ceded to Russia by Rumania, sharpened tension in the Balkans today and led to the belief that Moscow is planning new demands on Rumania.

In Sofia, Bulgaria, circles close to the Soviet said Russia was taking an increasingly stern stand toward political developments and internal disorders in Rumania, where pro-axis Premier Ion Gigurtu formed a new government yesterday.

Moscow was said to be particularly disturbed over reports that 300 workmen were killed in a recent military action against demonstrations at Galati in Rumania.

RUMANIA'S CHOICE

One interpretation was that if the minorities wished to return to their mother countries this would be arranged in due time.

With mobilization completed, there were indications Hungary has no intention of demobilizing in the near future the army which now is massed on the Rumanian frontier.

The government disclosed it was preparing to use some of the soldiers to aid in the harvest which begins in about two weeks. Plans also have been made to requisition labor for this purpose.

Because of the likelihood of a grain shortage, the government made effective today new regulations requiring producers to report wheat and corn surpluses. These will be bought and stored by a government agency.

The fact that the ban on sale of liquors was lifted last night and that a number of passenger trains and buses were put back in service showed full mobilization had been carried out.

STRONG

seamen want to fight on with Great Britain against Italy and Germany.

London, July 5—(CP)—The Royal Navy swept the seas today to bring French warships under its control—peacefully if possible but in fights to death if necessary.

Britain was ready for action especially at Alexandria, key eastern Mediterranean port, where a strong British battle fleet lay poised covering a formidable French force whose commander apparently was undecided whether to comply with a British ultimatim for cooperation.

(The Petain Government of France has ordered the French warships at Alexandria to fight their way home through the British lines. Hitler gave permission for the scuttling of the ships if necessary to avoid capture by Britain).

Although the ultimatum was delivered as long ago as Wednesday, everything was "outwardly calm" in the harbor of Alexandria today, dispatches said.

More French warships—in addition to those taken over by the Royal Navy in a spectacular coup Wednesday—were reported to have anchored in Scottish waters, increasing the size of the fleet seized.

Prime Minister Churchill told Parliament yesterday that "the greater part" of the French fleet had been put under British control. The Daily Herald said nearly 250 French warships had fallen into British hands.

It was considered certain that the ships whose crews volunteered to fight with Britain would join the British fleet for active service. Churchill disclosed that some 800 to 900 French officers and seamen already had so volunteered.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, in a broadcast last night said that the actions announced by Mr. Churchill yesterday represented only "the first steps" to make sure that the enemy did not get possession of French warships.

What Britain is ready to do was shown plainly at Oran, Algeria, where the French commander resisted the British terms. The biggest naval battle of the war developed on the spot.

Britain felt confident that the French ships at Alexandria would not fall to Germany or Italy.

Mr. Churchill told parliament that the French force, including an undisclosed number of battleships, four cruisers and a number of smaller ships, had been "informed that they cannot be permitted to leave harbor and thus fall within the power of the German conquerors of France."

"Measures have now been taken," he said, "to ensure that those ships, which are commanded by a very gallant Admiral, shall be sunk or other wise made to comply with our wishes."

Churchill said "a strong British battle fleet" was lying ready to enforce the British terms

Strange Situation

The situation of the British and French warships at Alexandria was strange. Strong forces of both fleets were rushed there together many weeks ago to take up a joint protection of Allied interests in this vital corner of the world near the entrance to the Suez Canal.

Then came the Petain armistice, providing that all French warships return home. Next, after days of uncertainty, came the British ultimatum.

Thusday morning, while the French admiral was debating what to do about the British order, both the British and French ships were attacked by Italian warplanes and they fired together at the attackers:

Britain welcomed the seizure of the French ships. The News Chronicle's naval expert, Hector Bywater, said that "Our own fleet has been heavily reinforced in every type of ship."

"I speak from personal knowledge," he continued, "when I say that the modern French navy is, as regards material, second to none in excellence of design and workmanship."

German air raiding of the British Isles continued. One lone raider flew across the southeast coast after daylight, but was pursued and shot down before any bombs were dropped.

There were attacks during the night but the government announced its reports indicated damage was "very slight," and that there were no casualties.

During these raids planes dropped incendiary bombs in northeast England, causing a series of small fires on the moorlands. Bombs were dropped on open ground without damage to southwest England.

These attacks followed a daring daylight raid yesterday by 20 or more German planes against the big British naval base at Portland. A naval auxiliary vessel, a tug and a lighter were destroyed.

sun and the bo-father", "the cook and the cookees" and ended with "we children on our way to wonderful Canada thank you very, very much indeed for being so nice to us."

The British peerage was well represented in the list of childish signatures attached. It contained the scribble and dabs of Davina and Simon Bowes-Lyon, who call the queen "Aunt Elizabeth". Some of the children who were too young had their names recorded by nurses, others made attempts which were unintelligible. All of them were precise on one point . . . their ages. For instance "John Tremblay 7¾". Some neglected to sign their surnames and others proudly wrote their full signature like, "Richard Hugh Seabohm Rattray James Adamson 13¼".

As soon as the baggage had been unloaded they charged down the gang-plank into the arms of their new friends.

One tired young Scot, complete with kilt and sporran, roused himself as his young pink-cheeked sister dumped a final suitcase at his feet with "Come now Malcolm, the kind gentleman's waiting to take us," and here she paused and looked wistful and then concluded, "—home." Both children linked their arms in their news parent's and walked toward a taxi.

NEUTRAL WORLD

Roughly 250 French ships of all sizes fled to British ports where their crews were ready to carry on the war despite the Petain government's agreement that they should be placed under German supervision.

How useful the French units would prove to Britain was not altogether clear, largely because their ordnance is of different calibre from that of the Royal Navy. However, it was considered satisfactory that a great number of the vessels were small mine sweepers and the like which can be used without alteration.

In time, of course, British factories can be tooled to turn out ammunition for French guns, so that eventually, if the British government wishes, the larger vessels may become a valuable asset in prosecution of the war.

Germans and Italians Unhappy.

About the only people unhappy over the incident of Wednesday were the Germans and Italians who bleated that it was a stab in the back and suggested that the attack was made before the French could raise steam and while they were without power to turn their gun-turrets.

Henry Fonda, Alice Faye and Don Ameche in the screen's biggest musical spectacle, "Lillian Russell," next at the Belle Theatre.

CAROL'S POSITION

A Cabinet communique issued after its first meeting last night indicated the government's social ideology would include anti-semitism.

The program as outlined in the communique included:

1. "Honest adaptation of the systems created by the Rome-Berlin Axis."
2. Maintenance of good relations with Rumania's neighbors, with the aim of keeping peace in southeastern Europe.
3. Strengthening of national defences.
4. Recognition of labor as the basis of government and assurance that "adequate compensation will be given for work and production."
5. Support of minorities in expression of their nationalistic aims.

Amid unconfirmed reports of new Soviet demands for control of vital bridges across the Prut and Danube Rivers, where they form the new Russian-Rumanian border, Carol's position under the new setup remained unclear.

Yields Much of His Power

It was obvious he was yielding much of his power to the 54-year-old Gigurtu, successor to Georges Tatarescu, and that Gigurtu, as premier and head of the country's totalitarian party, was in a position similar to that of Mussolini in Italy and that of Hitler in Germany during the lifetime of President Von Hindenburg.

Some iron guardists still are agitating for Carol's abdication because of the cession of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia.

(Diplomatic dispatches to Sofia, Bulgaria, said Carol was considering abdication in favor of his son, 18-year-old Prince Mihai.)

The immediate problem confronting the government is to restore internal order and try to settle the territorial claims of Hungary, which wants Transylvania and Bulgaria, which wants southern Dobruja.

CANADA

blockade the British Isles. He found that every precaution has been taken against this possibility and cited the sending of Canadian soldiers to Newfoundland and Iceland and the patrol of the Atlantic coast by planes, ships and men.

Phenomenal Growth of Canadian Navy

The Associated Press writer was impressed by the speed with which the Royal Canadian Navy was increased in 12 months from a fleet of 15 ships to one comprising more than 100 ships, including big armed merchant cruisers. Ninety more are being built.

Canada's determination, he wrote, is not to let the burden of her first line of defence fall either on the United States protection guaranteed by Monroe Doctrine or on the British fleet. In fact, the Dominion had already reversed the usual procedure and sent warships to English waters to defend the Motherland—the first time in history that had been done.

He went on:—

"By far the most gruelling and hazardous job in the convoy which herds as many as 50 or 60 supply boats at a time from Canada to England. The nerve strain on this assignment is terrific; there is constant danger of submarine and air attack, and communication among the caravan is too dangerous to risk."

"Credit for the speed of the transportation belongs chiefly to Rear Admiral Percy Nelles, Canadian Naval Chief. He had all his defences laid out on paper in advance, and he executed them smoothly and quickly."

Naval Expansion Program

Lear wrote that the naval expansion program is a long-range one, contemplating the possibility—"an unbelievable possibility among Canadians"—that the British Home Fleet might be forced to retire to these waters.

Lear found that Canada is girding for air war on Hitler's terms.

"All the strength that can be mustered is going into it, on the theory that whoever controls the air wins the victory," he wrote.

No matter what side wins the war, the Associated Press writer declared "one thing seems almost certain: Canada will be more important as a world power."

"If Hitler should succeed in his threat to overrun the British Isles, this Dominion would become the new capital of the British Commonwealth of Nations", he said.

"If England should gain the upper hand, the seat of Empire would most likely remain where it is but there are all sorts of indications that Canada has embarked on the path to greater influence as a result of her war effort."

PARIS IS VASTLY CHANGED FROM A YEAR AGO

Two-Thirds of Population Scattered Over France and German Troops Are in Occupation

CURFEW AT 10

(By Robert Okin)

(Associated Press' Staff Writer)

Paris, July 2.—(Delayed-via Berlin)—(AP)— Paris has settled into the kind of life it probably will live until a permanent peace treaty is signed.

Since war swept through it, this now-lustreless jewel of cities is vastly changed from the gay and brilliant centre of world pleasure which visitors knew only a year ago.

Its buildings, cafes, parks and monuments still are here, but two thirds of its population is scattered over France and the German troops are in occupation.

Paris' police force has been divided into three sections, each headed by a German colonel.

German soldiers and officers may be seen everywhere, taking a tourist's interest in the city.

During the day, German planes drone constantly overhead and detachments of German troops march through the streets.

In the little cafes the German soldiers sing lustily.

Some of the German officers have brought their families to Paris, and a cinema has been installed for the army, showing German films.

French cinemas are open, but they have only old French films.

For Parisians the most onerous regulation is the closing of cafes at 9.30 p.m. and curfew at 10.

Shortly after 9 p.m. these gorgeous summer nights the boulevards are deserted.

The blackout is still in force.

There have been heavy purchases of tobacco, beer, liquor and chocolate by Germans.

As refugees pour back into the city the question of a food shortage is threatening.

Hampered by Transportation

The food supply so far has been hampered by lack of transport. Restaurants with their own automobiles can supply menus with chicken and fish but private homes find meat, potatoes, eggs, cheese and milk difficult to get.

Plenty of other vegetables, salad ingredients, wine, bread and tinned foods are available at prices advanced in spite of regulations to the contrary.

Shops dealing in postcards, souvenirs, maps of Paris and certain luxury shops, particularly those selling silk stockings, have been well patronized by the German soldier "tourists".

The soldiers had so little trouble finding girl friends that the newspaper Paris-Soir wrote that a distinction should be made between the "simple, dignified women of Paris and certain nonchalant promenaders on the boulevards, who have quickly reappeared".

Only Two French Papers

Paris once had more than a dozen daily papers. Only two remain of those—Paris-Soir and Le Matin. Two new papers have appeared, however. One of them, La France Au Travail, has an anti-semitic policy and already has suggested that all Jews in France should be shipped to some distant land.

Anti-English articles have appeared in all papers. The only foreign news permitted is from propaganda agency, and from the D.N.B., the German news and German radio.

The banks are still closed.

Nearly all governmental buildings are occupied by German forces.

German soldiers dynamited the statute of General Charles Mangin, detested in Germany. General Mangin led the great counter-offensive of 1918 against the German right flank. He advocated a buffer state in the Rhine between Germany and France.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ryan of Trenton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Downs on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Telford and Wilma, also Mrs. Smith of Bridgenorth, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver.

Mrs. Fred McKeown underwent an operation in Belleville Hospital last week.

Some of the farmers have been busy trying to cure their hay; as yet very little has been stored in the barns.

Mrs. Charles Vance opened her home for an afternoon tea on Thursday in aid of the Red Cross for her polling division.

Mr. Will Downs of Winnipeg, Man., spent last week at the home of his brother, Mr. John Downs and Mrs. Downs.

Mrs. Bert Wright with her children left Wednesday evening for their home at Sudbury after an extended visit with Rawdon relatives and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison.

Mrs. Andrew Hay Honored by W.M.S.

On Wednesday, June 26th, the Women's Missionary Society sponsored a birthday party for Mrs. Andrew Hay, formerly, Miss Mary Hubble, at her home, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon. Mrs. Hay was eighty-three years of age on March 26th, but at that time she was visiting her grandson and other relatives in Belleville. So plans were made to hold this event during the summer. Exactly three months later the party was held with seventeen in attendance. During the day the ladies completed a pretty quilt for Mrs. Hay which she had pieced and at noon a sumptuous dinner was served with a tiered birthday cake as centrepiece. Mrs. Allan Bailey assisted Mrs. Hay with the cake ceremony. The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. John Holmes and Mrs. Arthur Phillips and these ladies are to be complimented on the success of the affair. Mrs. Holmes had the honour of baking the cake for the occasion. The visiting committee canvassed the members of the W.M.S. and the older ladies of the community and these were invited to attend but unfortunately some who had especially planned to be in attendance had to cancel their plans at the last minute because of illness in their immediate families.

Following the dinner a program was enjoyed with Mrs. Percy MacMullen, president of the W.M.S., in charge and she spoke briefly, extending birthday felicitations All joined in a round of community singing. Mrs. John Reid sang an old-fashioned number, "When All are Gathered in the Old Home," with harp accompaniment. Mrs. Frank Jeffs read an appropriate poem, "Getting Old."

Impromptu speeches on various subjects proved an item of merriment which brought forth peals of laughter. These included: A Well-remembered Sleigh Ride, Mrs. Roy Thrasher; Bustles and Hoop Skirts, Mrs. Allan Bailey; How I Popped the Question, Rev. Beckel; My First Beau, Mrs. Ross Hoard; Mud, Mrs. Cyrus Summers; Twins, Mrs. Don Campbell; When I Had My Hair in Pig Tails, Mrs. Frank Jeffs; Getting Meals, Mrs. Will Hubble; My First Car Ride, Mrs. Ed. McKeown; My First Long Dress, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; My Wedding Dress, Mrs. John Reid.

Mrs. Frank Smith read an appropriate address of appreciation to Mrs. Hay and among other things it read: "To only a few is given the privilege of travelling down the long vista of eighty-three years, and still retaining the youthful and courageous outlook on life which is yours."

Mrs. John Holmes presented Mrs. Hay with a lovely eiderdown kimona in a nasturtium shade with matching bedroom slippers, also a coverall apron.

Rev. J. E. Beckel spoke briefly, voicing his sentiments on this happy occasion as another of the elderly women of Mount Pleasant was being honored.

Mrs. Allan Bailey, honorary president of the W.M.S., spoke on behalf of that organization and Mrs. John Reid spoke on behalf of the older women of the community who had contributed to the gifts.

To all of this Mrs. Hay gratefully thanked her friends and said she would surely treasure in her heart the memory of this happy occasion with old and new friends.

Mrs. Hay was born at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hubble. After her marriage she went to Cordova to reside and about twenty-five years ago the family moved to her old community. Her husband passed to the Great Beyond ten years ago.

The program closed with the rendition of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Mrs. Hay was also the recipient of two bouquets of flowers, one being a lovely vase of peonies, the gift of her grandson, Mr. Lester Hay, who has a beautiful display of perennial flowers throughout the summer months.

Two of her granddaughters, Misses Helen Hay and Gladys Hay and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Hay, attended the birthday party.

MOVEMENT REPORTED TO REPLACE HAAKON GOV'T

France's Mediterranean Naval Bases Not Disarmed

Norwegians Feel Easier Conditions Might Be Result

Oslo Correspondent of Stockholm Newspaper Says Leading Norwegians Convinced Country Cannot Go on Indefinitely on Present Basis

MEANS NAZI RULE

Restrictions on Railway Transport Facilities to Norway from Sweden Have Been Withdrawn by the Government

(By Thomas F. Hawkins, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Stockholm, July 6 — (AP)—A movement was reported under way in Norway today to form some sort of permanent government under German occupation to replace the regime of King Haakon VII, now a refugee in England.

The Oslo correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Myheter reported "that a large group of leading Norwegians are convinced that the country cannot go on indefinitely on the present basis with responsible heads of the government in exile and civil functions in the hands of a temporary administrative council.

The Norwegians were represented as feeling that "easier conditions" might result if a new and permanent government were organized to work with the German military. Spokesmen were said to have pointed to the situation in Denmark, which they said "is not disturbed under German occupation."

The Danish government offered no resistance to the German invasion April 9 and has continued to administer domestic affairs approximately as usual.

Restrictions Lifted

The reports from Oslo assumed added importance in view of a Swedish announcement yesterday that restrictions on railway transport facilities to Norway had been lifted because Sweden feels that the end of the war there means a return to more normal times.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet carried a semi-official statement that lifting the restrictions would permit German soldiers in Norway to travel through Sweden to Germany and return, but would not permit transportation of Nazi reinforcement.

The Dagens Nyheter gave a similar interpretation to the new transit regulations and said that German soldiers would be permitted to travel in uniform but without arms.

(King Haakon and Crown Prince Olaf fled early in June to England, where on June 10 the Monarch issued a proclamation announcing abandonment of the struggle in Norway.

(The proclamation said, however, that the government would continue to function as "the government for the whole Norwegian people" and to "maintain Norway's independent life in such a way that none of the rights due a free nation shall be frustrated".)

No Ontario Aid After July 22 For Relief of Families of Two

Reduction in Relief Costs Shown in Past Five Months is One Third

LABOR IN DEMAND

Toronto, July 6 (CP)—Because of improved employment conditions the Ontario government has decided to discontinue contributing towards the relief of families of two. The ruling becomes effective July 22.

In a joint announcement yesterday, Acting Premier H. C. Nixon and Welfare Minister Eric Cross said that "this province does not propose to support anyone in idleness while this (improved) condition prevails in a time of national emergency."

The ruling affects families of two, consisting of husband and wife; a widower with one dependent child, or the employable head of a family with one dependent. The announcement said all municipalities will be advised of the change within a few days.

Industrial Activity Increases

The government decision resulted from increased industrial activity and a scarcity of farm labor in the province. There was a drop of 33 per cent in the provincial relief load for the first five months of the year and the great demand for farm labor was seen by the welfare department as an opportunity for work unequalled in the history of the province.

Reduction in relief costs of the 40 municipalities (except Toronto) which account for 80 per cent of the province's relief load averaged 32.7 per cent for the first five months of the year, in comparison with the same period a year ago. Total expenditure dropped $1,890,188 to $3,888,996. In Toronto relief costs fell 19.3 per cent, or $645,537.

Figures For Municipalities

Welland reported a decrease of 71.3 per cent in relief expenditures and Sault Ste. Marie was down 56.7 per cent.

May expenditures in the 40 municipalities were down by 22 percent. Windsor dropped 22.6 per cent, Kingston and Hamilton more than 40 per cent and London 31 per cent.

Hospitality Showered on Refugees, Mothers From Old Land Declare

Toronto, July 6 (CP)—There will be heavy hearts and endless anxiety for those left behind but Canada's war guests have found the overwhelming hospitality and the beauty of the Dominion an invaluable aid in helping them to bear their burdens.

Mothers who came to Toronto from the British Isles during the last few days all bear testimony to the kindliness of the Canadian people.

Mrs. Colin McRae, who came to Toronto from Southport, Eng., with her two-year-old son, Duncan, expressed the thoughts of all mothers when she said: "The hospitality shown us since arriving in Canada is marvellous and I've never seen anything like it."

Her husband is a doctor and remained in England.

Mrs. W. Haynes of London, who arrived in Toronto yesterday, with her son, David, eight months, and daughter, Sally, four, said "it's certainly good to be here."

Youngest of the more than 400 children who have arrived in Toronto was six-weeks-old Christopher Scott, who was carried in a wicker basket by his mother, Mrs. Jas. Scott, of Oxford. Mrs. Scott is the wife of a doctor. She will stay with her sister-in-law, Miss Olive Scott, and already is most enthusiastic about the open-heartedness of the Canadians.

Filled with praise of Canadians and the manner in which travel arrangements from England and Canada were handled was Mrs. Bartle Bull, wife of a British Member of Parliament. Mrs. Bull and her two children are staying with her husband's father, William Perkins Bull, K.C.

Lighted City Like Fairyland

"It looks like fairyland in Toronto with lights twinkling, and no window blinds down," said Mrs. I. Robinson of Coventry, who came here with her small daughter to the home of an aunt. "No more blackouts," she added.

BRITISH SEEKING FUGITIVE UNITS OF FRENCH NAVY

Government Begins Effort to Steer French Merchant Ships Into British Ports

APPEAL BROADCAST

London, July 6 (CP)—British warships pressed their search today for the last fugitive units of the French navy while the government began efforts to steer French merchant ships into British ports.

The French eastern Mediterranean fleet remained bottled up in Alexandria harbor and its fate was held "in abeyance," British sources in Alexandria said, expressing belief the French officers and men there were loyal to the Allied cause.

Just how many French warships still were outside the British dragnet was undetermined.

An appeal to seamen of the French mercantile fleet to bring their ships to British ports was broadcast over the British Broadcasting Corporation radio by M. Becu, secretary of the International Association of Officers of the Mercantile Marine.

Could Repair Wrong

They were told that by responding to the appeal they would "repair a wrong done to your beautiful country" in the Petain government's capitulation to Germany.

"It is only by a complete victory of British and Allied forces that your country can be restored to the French," Becu declared.

Action Taken by Gov't. To Defend French Fleet Against British Attacks

Grenoble, France, July 6—(AP)—The newspaper Petit Dauphinois said today the French Naval Ministry had announced from Vichy that it had notified Germany and Italy that France's Mediterranean naval bases would not be disarmed for the present in order to defend the remainder of the French fleet against attack.

The announcement, the newspaper declared, referred to the main French bases at Toulon, Bizerte, Ajaccio, Oran and Mers El Kebir, which were to have been disarmed under the armistice agreement.

The newspaper said the Foreign Office had issued a special communique declaring that the bases would remain armed until further notice as a result of the British attack on the French fleet at Mers El Kebir and the subsequent rupture in French-British diplomatic relations.

Another communique, the paper said, declared that Germany is "in complete agreement" with the idea, the decision on which was left to Italy along with all other matters pertaining to the Mediterranean.

Battle Cruiser at Toulon

Geneva, July 6—(AP)— The newspaper Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble said today that the 26,500-ton French battle cruiser Strasbourg, five 7,000-ton cruisers of the Georges Leygues class and a number of destroyers, gunboats and submarines have arrived at the French naval base of Toulon.

The dispatch, under a Toulon date line, said the Strasbourg was damaged only slightly.

The vessels which arrived at Toulon were presumed to be those which escaped with the Strasbourg from the British fleet at Oran and Mers El-Kebir, Algeria, in Wednesday's great battle.

(Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in his report to the House of Commons on the British action, said a ship of the Strasbourg class "was pursued by aircraft of the fleet air arm and hit by at least one torpedo. She will, at any rate, be out of action for many months to come.")

The Petit Dauphinois dispatch quoted naval authorities at Toulon as denying British Admiralty reports that the French seaplane carrier Commandant Teste was at Mers El-Kebir when the British attacked. They said the ship was safe "in some French port."

222 WOMEN TAKE VARIOUS COURSES

Preserving of Food, Care of Evacuee Children, Ambulance Driving Are Taught

Guelph, Ont., July 6 (CP).—More than 200 Ontario women between the ages of 18 and 50 and drawn from a variety of pursuits are gathered at the Ontario Agricultural College here to learn methods of helping in Canada's war effort. The registration stood at 222 today but others are expected next week.

Most of the women are enrolled in domestic courses designed to prepare them to use and preserve food under a war economy and to care for the training of evacuee children. Others are taking the course in ambulance driving.

The course in nutrition and food utilization is provided by special permission of the Ontario government under plans laid by officials of the Agricultural College, the Red Cross, and the Canadian Medical Association with assistance of the Canadian Life Insurance Companies' Association.

Many Classifications.

Represented in the various courses are married women, college graduates, nurses, farm women, office girls, musicians, girls fresh from school and professional women.

Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the college, has laid special emphasis on the value of training in the use of food. He said the homes of Canada must be enlightened as far as possible in the economic use of food in war time.

The course in ambulance driving, with a registration of 42, covers more than mere driving. Even if those taking the nine-day course are never called on to take an active part in war service they will have a thorough knowledge of machinery. College officials say the training will help women motorists and farm women.

The women are being taught more than motor mechanics, however. As part of their training for driving ambulances they are receiving a course in drills, the use of gas masks, first aid, what to do in case of air raids and how to meet the need of getting a broken down vehicle off the road.

TO ESTABLISH CLEARING HOUSE

Bucharest, Rumania, July 6 (AP)—The establishment of a clearing house here to determine the fate of lost war pilots was announced today by the International Aeronautic Federation. All countries will send information as to foreign flyers falling on their soil. Princess Martha Bibescu, Rumanian novelist, will be in charge of the bureau.

NAZIS MAKE DIN AS HITLER COMES

Berlin Crowds Throw Flowers on Streets Where His Car Passes but No Bouquets Are Allowed

Berlin, July 6 (AP)—Hitler arrived at Anhalter station at 2:58 p.m. (8:58 a.m. EDT) today.

Gauleiters (Nazi district leaders) and all available Admirals and high army officers stood along a red carpet beside Hitler's train. Youth organizations in the station raised a din with bugle and drum corps and shouting.

Crowds stood in the hot sun while the Nazis staged a big show with brass bands on every street corner as Hitler drove to the resplendent chancellery.

Flowers were thrown on the streets where Hitler's car passed, but by order of the Gestapo the populace was not permitted to throw bouquets at Hitler.

Hitler stood in his open car, saluting and smiling.

A few minutes after he arrived at the chancellery, Hitler appeared on the balcony. The crowd sang the Nazi war song "We Are Sailing Against England."

Soldiers wounded in Hitler's wars were given places under the balcony.

The call-up of the 1909 class—men 30 years old—was announced June 22.

CARRIES PATRIOTIC APPEAL

Montreal — The chain letter is back in Montreal, but this time it carries a patriotic appeal. It is being used to stimulate the sale of war savings stamps. There are four names on each chain letter, and the recipient is asked to purchase a 25-cent war savings stamp and send it to the person whose name is at the top of the list. From there on the chain letter works the same way as all chain letters.

Rome, July 6.—(AP)—The Italian Cabinet approved today an appropriation of 265,000,000 lire ($13,250,000) for the improvement of naval bases.

The Cabinet, meeting with Premier Mussolini, also approved a series of minor wartime measures which included provisions for reimbursing private citizens with government bonds for war damages.

War Pensions for injured civilians also were authorized.

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani was appointed Governor-General of Libya by decree. He previously had replaced former Governor and Air Marshal Italo Balbo, killed in a plane crash recently, as commander of the Libyan troops.

NAZIS CHALLENGE MONROE DOCTRINE SAYS PITTMAN

Secretary Cordell Hull States United States Will Uphold Doctrine

"BASIC POLICY"

Washington, July 6—(AP)— A charge that Germany is laying the foundation for a challenge to the Monroe Doctrine came today from Senator Key Pittman (Dem-Nevada) following State Secretary Cordell Hull's declaration that the United States would uphold the doctrine.

Aroused by a German note rejecting the United States interpretation of the policy as "untenable," Pittman and other Senators seconded Hull in his assertion that it remains a "basic policy" of this government to prevent "aggression" in the Western Hemisphere.

Well-informed circles viewed the Secretary's statement as one of a series of apparently coordinated administration efforts to reassure other American Republics in advance of the Pan-American Conference in Havana.

Must Refrain From Criticism

Other developments regarded in the same light included:—

1. A State Department notice to the German Embassy that German officials in this country must refrain from public criticism of the government.

2. President Roosevelt's depreciation of compromise and appeasement sentiment and his contrast of American and "totalitarian" methods.

'We Are Now For Total War' Declares Beaverbrook's Standard

London, July 6—(CP)—British naval action to take over the French fleet today allayed apprehension among British Socialists and Liberals that Neville Chamberlain's Tory faction in the government might try to revert to an appeasement policy if Hitler put out peace feelers.

Prime Minister Churchill's declaration Thursday that "there is no thought of negotiation" appeared to have silenced the guns of Chamberlain's critics who have been demanding his resignation as president of the council because of his Munich background.

There persisted, however, an undercurrent of feeling that he should be ousted.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard, opposing any suggestion of appeasement, declared editorially:

"We have a leader who understands the true spirit of England. That spirit dictates that we would prefer to see London and all our cities laid in ruins before accepting the rule and whim of the Nazis.

"We are now for total war. The Nazi moloch has not met this mettle before."

The Weekly News Review recalled Mr. Chamberlain's appeasement record but said:

"Whatever the ex-prime minister may have been in 1938 he is now 101 per cent anti-Hitler, according to his friends."

"Chamberlain," the magazine declared, "takes no small share of the government responsibility. Prime Minister Churchill thinks highly of Neville Chamberlain's organizing ability. Their minds run alike."

Two-Hour Battle Is Waged Off Island of Crete

Frondeur of 1,378 Tons en Route to French Port in Execution of Terms of Armistice With Germany and Italy

GUNBOAT TORPEDOED

Rigault De Genouilly Sunk by Unidentified Submarine Off Algiers on Friday Afternoon Carried Complement of 136 Men

Grenoble, July 6.—(AP)— The French Navy Ministry announced today that the 1,378-ton French destroyer Frondeur was attacked and sunk by two British cruisers after a two-hour battle off the Island of Crete in the Mediterranean.

According to a dispatch from Vichy, seat of the French government, in today's issue of the newspaper Petit Dauphinois, the Frondeur was en route to a French port in execution of the terms of the Armistice with Germany and Italy when it met the British warships.

The British vessels opened fire upon refusal of the Frenchmen to surrender, the navy ministry communique said.

A Havas News Agency dispatch from Vichy quoted the French department of Marine as announcing the torpedoing of the French gunboat Rigault de Genouilly off Algiers yesterday afternoon by an unidentified submarine.

(Jane's fighting ships lists the Rigault de Genouilly as a vessel of 1,969 tons, built in 1932. She carried a normal complement of 136 men.)

Army Officers Gave Lifebelts to Internees Going Down With Ship

London, July 6—(CP Cable) — Army officers in charge of the military guard aboard the torpedoed Arandora Star gave up their lifebelts to others, lined up on the bridge—"as if they were waiting for a bus" one survivor said—and went down with the ship.

This was the story told by survivors arriving in London last night as they described the tragic scenes aboard the ship, sunk by a U-boat with loss of almost 1,000 lives while taking German and Italian internees to Canada.

They said the officers joined the captain and other officers on the bridge and stood stiffly there while the ship sank.

Off-setting the hysteria and cowardice shown by some of the aliens aboard was the behavior of one German internee who dived from a boat into the sea 20 times and rescued a man every time. One Italian internee bailed continuously for five hours.

Private Rose of Birmingham said the liner's chief officer gave him his lifebelt. "He saved my life," he said.

WIFE OF EDITOR JAILED

London, July 6—(CP)—Mrs. G. Newham wife of the editor of the famous British weekly journal "Truth" is being detained in Holloway prison under the defence regulations, it was announced yesterday. She was a member of Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists.

Compulsory Military Training For All University Students

20,000 to 25,000 Students Will Commence Training in the Next Term

SPORTS CANCELLED

Ottawa, July 6—(CP)— Canada moved quickly to bring her young men under arms and under plans formulated at a meeting of Defence Department officials and university heads some 20,000 to 25,000 male students will start compulsory military training next term.

This is the number of students which, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, may be affected by decisions taken last night. To this total may be added an unknown number of graduates who may attend special classes at the universities in the evenings.

Thus universities will co-operate with the government in applying the Mobilization Act to train men for home service.

To give every male student of Canadian universities military training the regular Canadian Officers Training Corps will continue to function, probably on a stepped-up basis, and a new organization will be formed to train the majority of students.

Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the University of Toronto, made known the decision after yesterday's daylong meeting. He termed it a "tremendously important scheme."

In attendance were representatives of McGill University, McMaster, Dalhousie, Bishop's College, Queen's University, University of Western Ontario, University of Alberta, University of Montreal, and National Research Council in addition to Defence officers.

DISPATCH RIDER NOW OUT OF HOSPITAL

Douglas Smith, of this city and who is with the C.A.S.F., was injured in a motorcycle accident in England some time ago. Today, however, his mother, Mrs. Marjory Smith of Shannonville, received a cablegram assuring her that her son was recuperating and had been dismissed from hospital.

Young Smith enlisted as a motorcycle dispatch rider and sustained injuries while on duty some time ago. The cablegram received by his mother today read as follows:

"Dearest Mother, out of hospital Tuesday. Am well; getting along fine, please don't worry." Doug.

Friends of dispatchrider Smith will be pleased to learn that his injuries were not of a serious nature.

INDIAN ARROWS FOUND IN HOUSE

While wiring their home for electricity, the Sykes brothers, Roy and Lorne of East Lake, Prince Edward County, discovered while tearing up the floor in their attic, two arrows, believed to have belonged to Indians, who bagged their game by the archer method.

The arrows were made of light wood and the feathers which had evidently been eaten off by mice or moths had been fastened along the arrow with paste and wound with gut. At the end of the arrows, there was a pointed piece of steel 4 1-2 inches long, which had a keen edge on both sides. The arrows were very neatly made and were much admired by those interested in archery.

FRACTURES LEG IN FALL FROM SLIDE

Falling from off a slide at the East Belleville playgrounds yesterday afternoon, 7-year-old Lawrence Muir, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Muir, 257 Bleecker Ave., sustained a broken left leg. The lad was playing at the time, when he suddenly toppled from off the top of the playground slide and fell to the ground. Playground supervisors rendered first aid and later the little lad was removed to the Belleville General Hospital, where the fracture was reduced by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

Kinsmen Appoint Ontario War Committee

At a special War Emergency meeting held under the chairmanship of National Vice-President Galbraith, of Windsor, Kinsmen Clubs of the province met in an all-day session in Toronto on Thursday, June 27th. The Presidents of thirty Ontario and Montreal, Kinsmen Clubs, together with the Governors and their Executives of Districts One and Six, discussed proposals and adopted a programme of War Services under the administration and organization of a centralized War Services Committee.

Kinsmen in earlier District Conventions had asked the Federal Government to request all Service Clubs in Canada to unify their War Service activities under one fully representative Dominion Service Club War Board. Pending the possible setting up of such a Board with the resultant unity of action by the estimated 25,000 Service Clubs membership in Canada, the Kinsmen have now brought their own Clubs of the Province under one War Service chairmanship. This move in no way affects the normal service programmes of the individual Clubs or the government of the Districts or Clubs. Its one purpose and responsibility will be that of Kinsmen War Service work only. It is anticipated that all Kinsmen Clubs throughout Canada and Newfoundland will shortly place their membership and their War Service activities under the direction of this new Committee.

H. A. Rogers, Founder of the Association of Kinsmen Clubs of Canada and Newfoundland has been chosen to head this new War Services Committee. Mr. Rogers, a veteran of the last Great War, has been given what is virtually a "blank cheque for the organization, administration, action and decision on the War Service programmes of all Kinsmen Clubs in Ontario and Montreal. Mr. Rogers will name his own Committee within the next few days and all present Kinsmen War activities will then be co-ordinated and additional War Service programmes organized.

This same War Emergency meeting approved the decision of the National Executive to cancel the usual National convention scheduled for early August. The meeting also approved the Dominion-wide Kinsmen "Lick Hitler" Stamp selling money raising campaign recently inaugurated under the War Charities Act by the Kinsmen Club of Halifax, A. D. Crews, Past National President of the Kinsmen, was appointed head of a Win-the-War Propaganda Committe.

WORK COMMENCED ON NEW AIRPORT

Government surveyors started work early Friday morning on the airdrome site at Mountain View and work will be rushed to completion immediately so that the McFarland Construction Co. can begin work at once on the field, according to a news item in the Picton Times.

The "go ahead" signal was given district surveyors on Thursday and the men rushed to the Mountain View site yesterday morning with a staff of extra help to rush the preparatory surveys to completion that will allow the construction gang to start working in a few days.

Part of the construction equipment is already on the scene and the remaining machinery is being now taken to the site. The airdrome site will be rushed to completion as was previously announced, and it is expected that the work will be finished by the middle of October. Tentative plans for the laying of the runways, the construction of several barracks and hangars for the housing of aeroplanes and men call for the reported expenditure of well over $1,000,000.

New Speed Record Set

Stanford Hartshorn Jr., Gardiner Mass., set a new speed record at the Soap Box Derby finals at Akron, Ohio, last year although he placed third in the final competition. The young driver set a new course record of 28.66 seconds for the 1,200 foot race in his first heat.

WINNER GOES TO AKRON

The winner of Tuesday's race is to compete with American champions at the International Races in Akron, Ohio, this summer, and come what may it is assured that the local lad who wins the race on Derby Hill will give good account of himself at the International races. The ability of Belleville boys to design fast cars and drive them over the finish line like champions has already been demonstrated, not only in this city, but in other Canadian cities and at Akron.

Those who throng the sides of Derby Hill on Tuesday may expect to experience plenty of thrills as these speedy little racers hurtle down the grade, to come up smiling, win or lose. It's good clean sport with a big kick in it even for the losers. So, racin' fans, we'll be seein' you on Tuesday at Derby Hill.

INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATED IN CITY

The Fourth of July, the anniversary of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence 164 years ago was celebrated in Belleville Thursday by visiting Americans in a mild manner.

A slight increase in the numbers of American licences on motor cars was evident on the city streets, as the glorious "fourth" marks the beginning of the annual influx of tourists from across the border.

One large American cabin cruiser was seen tied up at the government dock last evening with the touring party indulging in celebration on board the sleek trim craft.

LOCAL RACE MEDAL

Typical of the home-town medals which will be given to the first three prize winners in both Class A and Class B, is this handsome Soap Box Derby medal, a symbol of victory. First place in each class wins a gold medal; second, silver, and third, bronze. A striking red, white and blue ribbon supports the medallion, which hangs from a bar of similar material, on which the class and prize are lettered.

The President's Message

To the Citizens of Belleville:

Once again we are about to present the fourth annual Soap Box Derby on Derby Hill in Belleville, Ont. This year we are pleased to be able to say that this Derby is the largest that we have yet attempted.

The proceeds derived from this venture are used in the operation and continuance of the 'Kinsmen's Eye Clinic Fund' which is maintained as a service to provide needy eye glasses for those school children in Belleville and vicinity whose parents find themselves unable to obtain the glasses required.

Each year our Eye Clinic Fund has required more financial assistance than the year previous. We now find ourselves in 1940 not only with a heavier demand for Eye Clinic work but with an extra demand on service club work in connection with War activities.

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville are pleased to be able to say that they are extending the utmost in effort to assist and co-operate in the manner of financial support to all War enterprises within their own scope.

As president of the Belleville Kinsmen Club I therefore bespeak your full support of our fourth annual Soap Box Derby on Tuesday July 9th and hope that the public of the City of Belleville and vicinity will enjoy the race again this year as much as they have done in the past.

Yours very truly,
Belleville Kinsmen Club,
A. G. Marvell, President.

Y., set a new speed record at the All-American Soap Box Derby finals in Akron, O., last year, in the course of his repeated trips down the hill which led him into the finals, where he emerged as victor. THE DERBY SPIRIT

Meet The Kinsmen

In today's issue the Belleville Kinsmen Club endeavour to relate to the readers as many of the facts of the fifth annual Ontario Intelligencer "Soap Box Derby", auspices of the Kinsmen of Belleville, as possible. These "Soap Box Derbies" were first introduced in the United States under the direction of the General Motors Division of the General Motors and have grown until they now draw entries for the International Soap Box Derby event at Akron, Ohio, from every part of the globe.

The Belleville Kinsmen Club, a service club devoted to the welfare of under-privileged children and whose work is specialized in the promotion of better sight for kiddies, was the first to introduce these Soap Box Derbies into Canada. This year's race, to be held July 9th, will be the fifth annual event and to the winner will be awarded the Coyle Trophy, emblematic to the Canadian Soap Box Derby championship.

The Belleville Kinsmen were the first to grasp the possibilities of the Soap Box Derby in helping Canada's youth to be self-reliant, courageous and prideful of their achievements in the building and constructing of their "kid kars", as the non-motor equipped racing machines are sometimes termed. As the result of four previously successful Soap Box Derbies sponsored by The Ontario Intelligencer under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville, this year's local race on Derby Hill in Belleville was again awarded the honour of being for the Canadian Soap Box Derby championship for the fifth consecutive time.

The winner of the All-Canadian Soap Box Derby at Belleville Tuesday, July 9th, will be taken to Akron, Ohio, all expenses paid, to compete in the World Soap Box Derby championship, which includes a four-year college education, all expenses paid, and for which the Belleville winner is eligible in 1940. Proceeds from the Belleville Derby will be divided between the Kinsmen Eye Clinic and war purpose charities, President Jeff Marvell stated today.

Remember Derby Hill, North Front Street, Belleville, Tuesday, July 9th at 6:15 p.m. for the Belleville Kinsmen All-Canada Championship Soap Box Derby sponsored by The Ontario Intelligencer.

RACE WILL BE BROADCAST

THE WINNER'S GOAL

ALL AMERICAN and INTERNATIONAL SOAP BOX
AMERICA'S LEADING NEWSPAPERS and CHEVROLET MOTOR DIVISION

One of the closest finals finishes in the history of the All-American Soap Box Derby was this one in 1939, when Clifford Hardesty, White Plains, N.Y., barely nosed out Harold Armstrong, Kansas City, Kans. Shown wielding the checkered flag at the finish line is Harry Hartz, old-time race star. Young Hardesty later triumphed in the International race, defeating the Canadian and Panama champions. More than 100,000 race fans saw the "world's greatest amateur racing event," co-sponsored by Chevrolet and the nation's leading newspapers.

ROUTE OF PARADE

The thrills and excitement that are crowded into one evening when the Belleville Kinsmen Club Soap Box Derby, sponsored by the Ontario-Intelligencer, will send the winner to compete for the International championship at Akron, Ohio, will commence with a gala parade of the youthful drivers all bedecked in their racing finery on Tuesday afternoon prior to the great race.

Each driver will receive a racing helmet, white driver's sweater and other accessories, all of which will be displayed to the public in a mammoth parade which will herald the big day these youthful builders and racers have awaited many months.

The route of the parade, which will commence at 5.30 p. m., begins at Riggs Garage on Pinnacle St., thence south to East Bridge and then west to Front St., along Front St., to the upper bridge and then along North Front St., to King George School, where their car creations will be serviced for the big race.

The Kinsmen Club are providing refreshments for the drivers at King George School and the citizens are urged to line the route of parade and encourage the youth of Belleville in their efforts.

Equipment Donated

The General Motors, Chevrolet Division, donated each driver of the Kinsmen Soap Box Derby with smart white sweaters, sweat shirt style, together with white crash helmets emblazoned with the ensignia of the famous derby.

Professional Equipment Used

All the latest approved devices for accurate checking of race winners are employed by the judges and the officials at the All American Soap Box Derby finals. Electric timing equipment and the photo-finish, most recent racetrack innovation, are installed on the judges, bridge, which spans the track at the finish line.

Many Trophies Awarded

In addition to the four year college scholarship awarded to the national champion there are many other prizes for Soap Box Derby winners. Not only the winners of first, second and third places, but the builder of the best designed car, with best designed brakes, and best upholstered cars are rewarded.

BRITAIN STANDS ON GUARD

Britain stands ready for the shock if and when Hitler tries to deliver it against the island fortress of freedom. Massed within her coasts is the greatest army she has ever had, outside is the defence of the greatest navy in world history. In the hearts of the men and the women within and without the citadel of liberty burns the flame of patriotic fervor which is the answer to the nazis' greed.

It is the Britisher's home, this fortress. There John Bull stands with sleeves rolled up to meet that mad invader, Hitler, should he dare to send a slave of his into Britain, and to send him writhing home far beyond the Rhine. This is the same John Bull who performed an unpleasant duty because it was the only course that was fair to Britain and to France and the world that loves freedom and hates Hitlerism that the French navy should not pass into the hands of the Hun. Within his homeland he will be as determined as his forbears have been and defend it with all his might and confidence of victory.

Germany has not frightened the people of Britain. They know what a blitzkrieg has meant but they will answer if and when Hitler tries to invade the country and later when the drive on Germany begins. German bombers have been increasing their visits to Britain of late and have for all their blasting with bombs done little damage. But the British veterans of the gigantic battle of Flanders and her other heroic defenders stand ready to deal with the Hun before he can set foot on Britain. In the words of Mr. Churchill it is not to be supposed that the enemy can land more men by air or from over the sea than can be destroyed or captured by the defenders. The waves are still the great moats around the great stronghold of Britain.

The Hun has had to bring screaming sirens to add to the noise of air raids, but he will find hearts of oak steady under trial, facing him.

The heroes of Dunkerque want another chance to face the detestable Hun. Hitler cannot break the iron-spirit and the hearts of oak of the people of Britain. It is these latter who will in the long run break the ruthless heart of Hitler and his company.

To try to land in Britain in the face of the defences which the island possesses may seem too gigantic and too costly even for the rashness of Hitler and his generals who would sacrifice any number of German lives to cow Britain if they could. It is said he may resort to bombing and though himself blockaded, attempt a blockade of Britain and her ports. But Britain is ready. Any attempt to blockade the British people would prove costly to the forces of the enemy, Hitler has to meet a people who are capable of the utmost resistance which will, they are confident, break the foe and bring to mankind the victory that liberty requires to restore peace to the world.

WELCOME, BANDMASTERS!

Belleville welcomes the Canadian Bandmasters' Association, now in session here.

Bands have a place in the world of mankind and nothing can take their place. In the human heart is the love for music and band music is of a class that everyone likes to hear. It has a wide range of appeal for bands of musicians have been known since the earliest days of civilization. Band music has a quality that inspires the heart, and imagination, lightens the task, as many an incident in war has shown. Band music lifts whole nations to the greatest sacrifices for the good and the true.

Bandmasters are rightly held in high honor. They are privileged to direct the music that all the people love. Without them the world would be far less advanced, much sadder and far less hopeful.

All classes of music and all groups of musicians play their part in the development of the community and a nation, they help to build up the soul of the nation and among these, bands and bandsmen and bandmasters occupy a very high place.

In these war days everyone realizes what martial music means. That is the privilege of bandsmen to furnish the people.

Citizens of Belleville have shown through all the years a deep love for bands and band music for this city has had many bands which have brought distinction to the city. The people warmly welcome these leaders who perform a community and a national service. Belleville citizens realize how indebted they have been to the fine inspiration of the leadership and the music of their band organizations and so greet with characteristic hospitality these fine men who are directing no unimportant part of the national task of building up a free and inspired nation.

THE DEATH OF MARSHAL BALBO

Those who seven years ago saw the silvery air fleet of Air Marshal Balbo of Italy sail over the city of Belleville for Chicago, little dreamed that in 1940 Balbo would die in a blazing pyre of his own plane in Cyrenaica. But that is what happened.

In the meantime events have proceeded through many a turn. Balbo after his fame-making flight to the New World came back home like a conqueror but becoming, it is believed, too prominent, was sent to Libya as governor on the edge of the desert. Balbo who was one of the four great figures in fascism was outspoken and perhaps was too much so for his own convenience. Then came the Axis. Balbo was idolized by the Italian people. He had opposed the nazi power over Italy and did not like Germany, rather suspected and feared her.

The other day his plane fell. Italy issued a report that he had died with nine others in his plane, several of whom were non-combatants, in a battle with British airmen over Tobruk. This was denied by the British Foreign Office who stated that no British planes were engaged or even flying over that area. This is clear, his plane was not in battle.

The question is what killed Balbo? Did his plane just crash? Who knows? Probably the exact facts will never become known.

BEN TURPIN

Old Ben Turpin is dead, after making millions laugh with his somersaults which always landed him on his face or head.

A whole quarter of a century of work in movies is finished and he will be missed. One by one the old stars of the screen fade out and not least among them was the little man with the funny face.

Toledo Offers Charm As Well as Industry

By TEMPLE MANNING

TRAVELER, if perchance you find yourself in the direction of, or in the vicinity of Toledo, pause awhile. Don't drive on with the thought that here is just another industrial town, with nothing to show but plants and factories and railroad sidings. For Toledo is set in some of the loveliest, gently rolling scenery to be found anywhere. It has an art museum second to none, a marvelous zoological park, lovely parks, and its industrial plants offer plenty to see as well. Drive down the Maunee valley through a land of unexcelled beauty to Lake Erie and modern Toledo. You'll be glad you did.

The banks of the Maunee, once a fierce battleground, are a mecca these days for the artist, the sportsman, and the tourist. Where once were fought the encounters of 1812 there are now two beautiful parks; Fallen Timbers and Fort Meigs. If one drives to Toledo from the eastern seaboard, he will be delighted with the fishing boats and wharves of the seafaring villages between Lorain and Toledo on Lake Erie. Whitefish, perch, blue pike, and in some places black bass comprise a swell menu for the gentle angler!

Tourists will delight in Put-in-bay and the surrounding islands, and rejoice in a glimpse of the beautiful water-lilies which, like a glowing carpet, cover the mouths of rivers and streams emptying into Lake Erie.

First to the Museum

In Toledo itself, the first visit is generally to the Museum of Art, a museum that boasts an annual attendance larger than the city's population. And no wonder, for it is one of the world's most beautiful museum buildings, with an exterior that is a worthy introduction to the feast of beauty within.

Toledo's zoo is something to see, for besides a marvelous animal collection, and the largest fresh water aquarium in the world, there is a museum of science, a garden center and a big outdoor amphitheater where summer opera is given. The tenants at the zoo are a pampered lot, for there is a special ventilating system for the animal houses and skylights of special glass to provide the proper quota of ultra-violet. Plans are afoot to build great animal pits in settings akin to American and African plains.

Toledo boasts a beautiful residential section to the west of the city, in gently rolling country crisscrossed by the Ottawa River. Nearby is the landscaped campus of the University of Toledo, pride of the city. But there's an education, too, in the great industrial plants. In the great plants that have made this city America's glass capital, one may see plate glass turned out in a continuous ribbon, and all sorts of glass objects turned out both by hand and machine. There is a great automobile factory, a plant where most of the nation's scales are built, and an atomizer and glass plant set in beautiful lawns and flowered gardens.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Warm Weather Diet

When warm weather arrives, you may decide that a change in diet is necessary because you appear to have less appetite for the rich foods—meat, butter, eggs—eaten during the cold weather. These foods were then necessary to maintain heat aside from their energy giving qualities. Before omitting these foods from your summer diet, you should remember that meat, butter, and eggs, should continue to be eaten because of their body building and infection resisting elements. They should, however, be reduced in amount during the warm weather.

The foods you should eat in large quantities during the summer are fruits and vegetables and fortunately they are in such abundance that they are reasonably priced.

If you are a calorie counter and count or measure the number of calories you eat each day you can safely cut down about 500 calories from your winter to your summer diet.

As meat, eggs, fish, and butter may "look" too heavy for warm weather, and salads and juicy fruits appear and are more appetizing, you may be tempted to live entirely on fruits and salads during the warm weather. This is a mistake and you will find yourself "tired", because the salads and fruit are so bulky they have filled your stomach and satisfied your appetite and yet not enough calories and not enough meat, eggs, or fish for rebuilding tissue have been eaten.

You have been rightly advised that you need more fruit and leafy vegetables in warm weather than in cold weather, but you are advised also that you should eat "some" meat, fish, or eggs at least once a day.

A couple of summer menus which give an all round diet are:

Breakfast—Fruit with milk or cream; a boiled egg and 2 slices of bacon (or two eggs); bread or roll, tea or coffee.

Luncheon—Celery or lettuce soup; canned or fresh fish; cabbage or lettuce salad; berry cake or pudding; iced tea or coffee.

Dinner:—Roast beef or chicken, or fish; potatoes; leafy vegetable, corn or peas; berries.

Breakfast: —Cereal with milk or cream; toast and bacon or bacon and one egg; roll, fruit; tea or coffee.

Luncheon: — Cream or chicken soup; cottage cheese or cold tongue; salad (lettuce, celery, cucumbers); fresh fruit; wafers or soda biscuits, tea or coffee.

Dinner:—Fowl, fish, or meat; potatoes, lettuce and tomato salad; peas or corn or asparagus or squash; berries and cream or iced fruit.

The Navy's Larder

On a stretch of Thames-side where Henry VIII. built some of England's earliest battleships, and where later Mr. Pepys spent much of his time, the vast job of victualling the Royal Navy goes on.

A hundred years ago the Royal Victoria Dockyard was more than just a "larder". The Navy, in those days, brewed its own beer, baked its own biscuits, slaughtered its own cattle and made its own mustard! It also made oatmeal and chocolate.

The Mustard Mill has gone, and Brewer's Yard is only a name. But the Chocolate Mill still works hard for three months every Winter. In an old timbered building, where once Queen Elizabeth's ships stood on the stocks, there is all the machinery for making chocolate. Trinidad cocoa beans, arrowroot and white sugar are blended together to make huge seven pound slabs of dark chocolate, about an inch thick.

The ship's cook makes quick work of these slabs. He breaks them up into small blocks and boils them until his tub is like a witch's cauldron.

But the Navy can't have anything too sweet. Sugar is always passed round with a cup of cocoa. "And if you refuse, a sailor just looks at you", said an old Commander recalling his experiences.

Victualling the Royal Navy of 1940 is a very different matter from the provisioning of Nelson's fleet. In those days salt pork was the staple diet, and the cheese was so hard we are told that "Seamen in the King's ships made buttons for their jackets and 'trowses' with it!"

No sailor today would thank you for salt pork. In addition to the fresh meat supplied by the Government, the Royal Victualling Yard supplies an enormous quantity of preserved meat, such as the well-known bully beef.

Barrels, casks and cases for the Navy's food and drink are all made in the Yard. The Master Cooper sees that these are all of the best. Seamen's mess traps and clothing are also supplied from this vast victualling store, and all kinds of repairs are done there.

But one thing the Royal Victualling Yard no longer sends to the Navy. Ditty Boxes have gone. The old tin or wooden box that held the key to every sailor's secrets, has been replaced by a modern attache case.—Post of London Monthly.

Farmers Have Task

In the light of recent changes in the war situation, the role of the farmer in Canada has become increasingly important in the struggle of the British Empire against dictators. With famine threatening many parts of Europe, after farm lands have been abandoned and millions of people are locked in battle, it will be one of Canada's duties to see to it that the English may eat even though nearly all of them over there are concentrating on actual fighting. Farmers here have been advised to proceed with their work as in former years, but to bear in mind that some time in the near future there will be a world wide scarcity of farm products regardless of the ups and downs of the warring nations. — Oshawa Times.

READY-MADE SOLDIERS

Few commanding officers are fortunate enough to have whole platoons delivered into their units ready trained. Yet, because of the practical patriotism of a group of miners at Glen Afton in Northern Ontario, the Algonquin Regiment has had just such a stroke of good fortune. These men, soon after the war began, started regular drilling under the direction of those among their number who were veterans of the last war, whittling dummy rifles out of timbers in order that they might practise the manual of arms.

They are now drilling with real rifles. They have been taken into the regiment as a platoon, and they are a trained platoon, fit, qualified soldiers at the moment they enlisted.—Windsor Daily Star.

AT THE CROSSROADS

There is something happening in Rumania, a disruption of some kind the finale of which is unpredictable. "Uneasy lies the head which wears a Crown" doesn't half express what King Carol is up against. Those Members of Parliament from Bessarabia and Bucovina were only able to get out of those provinces salvaging the shirts and shoes they were wearing at the time. King Carol gave them no notice of the surrender to Russia, and anger, chaos and the spirit of revolt are fairly seething in Bucharest.

Despite unctuous statements out of Berlin and Rome, there is evidence, more and more of it each passing day, that Stalin is refusing to wear the Axis collar. King Carol, in panic and hysteria, has been appealing to Hitler and Mussolini for salvation, and this does not help placate Moscow. The Balkans are a veritable buzz-saw right now with fear, prejudice, hate, rapacity, predominant. If a slaughter gets under way in the Near East, with crops destroyed, and possibly oil wells sabotaged, it is difficult to see how Britain will be injured. —St. Catharines Standard.

Rules France for Hitler

General Joachim von Steulpnagel, shown here, was named by Hitler as head of the commission appointed to supervise fulfillment of the French-German armistice terms. From headquarters at Wiesbaden, Germany, he will govern conquered France—Wiesbaden was headquarters of the French army of occupation in the Rhineland after the world war.

CHANGE IS VACATION

July is the month of vacations and every mental worker, office employee, professional man and clerk should take an annual vacation. The body and mind needs the change and the relaxation for absence of occupation is not rest. We need a period to do something different even if we call that a vacation. A vacation means freedom from the usual job. We live in a routine, most of us and it is weekly routine, in which we look forward to the annual respite in the summer. We plan and pack for it and seek a change of scene, a change of pace, a change of people and above all a change of habit. Monotony is the thing that tires mental workers more than actual work. — Brandon Daily Sun.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

While preparations go forward for the defence of Great Britain against an invasion the seizure of the French fleet opens up the possibility of a battle of the Mediterranean being fought before or simultaneously with the battle of Britain.

The British fleet is still powerful in the Mediterranean and as long as this is so Italy is unlikely to send its powerful fleet to aid the Germans in an invasion of Britain. The absence of important clashes between the British and the Italian fleets so far has not been explained.

It may have been due, however, to uncertainty as to the future of the French fleet and now that that is ended there may be more action. Since the start of the present war the German high command has shown a marked preference for concentrating on one job at a time, rather than carrying on two or more different operations. A question therefore arises as to whether the invasion of Britain may not be postponed until Italy with whatever help Germany can give in the way of submarines and aircraft attempts to gain control of the Mediterranean. Such control, of course, would probably carry with it access to the economic resources of Africa and the Near East, including important sources of oil and food. On the other hand a successful invasion of Britain would accomplish the same purpose for it would bring an end to resistance in the Mediterranean area.

The British government probably has a shrewd idea of the course to be followed by the enemy and is preparing for action in both the home and Mediterranean areas.

For Better Radio Service

A new system of radio news dissemination, on a unified co-operative basis embracing the various news services now supplying the broadcasting stations, is in course of preparation and a general policy in this matter is being evolved. Mr. Walter S. Thompson, a man of wide experience and sound judgment in the newspaper and publicity field, has been detailed to investigate the whole question and to make recommendations as soon as possible. In due course the Department of Transport will announce regulations designed, as the Minister, Hon. C. D. Howe says, to "mean satisfaction for listeners."

Admittedly — almost one might say notoriously — the present varied and sometimes conflicting arrangements for news broadcasting in Canada stand in need of revision. In addition to various radio news periods over United States stations, Canadian stations themselves carry bulletins by The Canadian Press, the British United Press, and such organizations as Trans-Radio News and International News Service, as well as numerous individual "newscasts." The result has been confusing rather than comprehensive and the plethora of "news" reports over the air has all but turned radio into a veritable nerve-racking bogey for a great many citizens. Therefore, when a plan is devised whereby, at stated daily intervals, listeners may tune in their sets to an official broadcast of up-to-the-minute news, expertly collated, fully authentic, and free of baseless rumor and frightening speculation, the Canadian public and the radio stations themselves will be singularly well served.

Beware of Rackets

BEFORE YOU INVEST, INVESTIGATE.

"Before you Invest — Investigate", has been one of the slogans of Better Business Bureaux for years. Observance of it has prevented many an unscrupulous crook from stealing the hard-earned savings of thousands of people. During War time, when every dime and dollar counts for so much in helping to Win the War, these cowardly crooks, hiding behind the cloak of patriotism, prey upon the sentimentalities of their victims like a pack of hungry jackals. Every deceitful, dishonest and cruel method of extracting money that can be devised in the ugly minds of these swindlers is practiced on an unsuspecting public.

Reliable information in the hands of The Toronto Better Business Bureau discloses that in these crucial days the epidemic of free-for-all swindling has reached extraordinary proportions. Rackets by mail and rackets by personal canvass — rackets by individuals, and rackets by innocent organizations who have fallen for the glib talk of profits for patriotic purposes, have so multiplied that hardly a day passes that the Better Business Bureau does not receive a number of calls from people who have been cruelly deceived, who have paid their good money for utterly worthless purposes.

The Police of Canada, including all its branches, are always ready to help, and have cooperated courteously and effectively with the Toronto Better Business Bureau. The Bureau, as well as the Police, stand ready to protect the people of Canada from sharpers.

The cooperation of the public is urgently needed to uproot the widespread operations of questionable persons and gangs. Promptness in reporting incidents will check dangerous practices, safeguard others, and bring the culprits to justice. The most elementary advice is to avoid financial or any other dealings with strangers. To be brief "Before You Invest — Investigate".

Kinsmen Soap Box Derby, Tuesday, July 9th

Derby Day at Akron, Ohio, Presents Busy Scene With Boys Having The Place of Honor

Headquarters For Contestants at Mayflower Hotel And Everything is Free

BEAUTIFUL TRACK

Derby Day in Akron Ohio., where the international finals to decide the championships of all Soap Box Derbys are held, certainly presents the busy holiday appearance—for that day it is Boys' Town Boys' Day,—a day to instill in grownups the spirit of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, and the fervent wish to be a boy again, just for the night, or for the day, or as long as the glorious feeling could last.

Headquarters at Akron for the boys from all over the world, who come to try for stellar honors is the big Mayflower Hotel, which is taken over from the lobby to the roof for accommodation of the racing boys, their newspaper escorts, such parents as make the journey, and the many officials who are required to handle the program. The boys will arrive early in August and their cars will go on display in the auditorium of the big department store near the hotel. On the afternoon before the race the visiting champions will have a chance to try out their cars on the splendid hill, which the city has prepared and built especially for this event. None of them will ever have driven the course before as this year's rules specify that no city champion may compete two consecutive years.

Racing Strip Detailed

The hill is worth a detailed description for it is the only one of its kind anywhere. It is built of concrete and the raceway measured 1,183 feet from start to finish line and is 30 feet in width. From its greatest inclination near the starting line, it levels out gently toward the finish line, while the joints between the concrete slabs are ground smooth to eliminate bumps. There are ample gutters on each side of raceway to carry off a cloudburst if necessary, and the banks of the cut through which the course runs will accommodate huge throngs of spectators.

At the top of the hill is a large paved area, where the entrees are lined up for their heats. The service pits, for greasing and last-minute adjustments, adjoin this area. At this finish line, there is a bridge to accommodate the judges, newly constructed double decked bridge to accommodate the judges, news-reel men, radio announcers and commentators and the Derby Technical Committee. The very latest equipment for electrical timing and the photo-finish, the most recent race-track innovation, is used.

Accommodate 30,000

Grandstand and bleacher seats accommodate 25,000 to 30,000 persons and standing room along the edge of the course will handle several times as many more. Acres of parking space are available on the adjacent airport Press stands, with complete wire services, are provided for the newspaper correspondents and various wire and photo representatives. The finals are broadcasted over the air on major national networks with nationally famous announcers furnishing the running commentary. Following the race which decides the All-American championship there will be staged the International Derby, in which boys from other countries will compete with the American winner for the International trophy.

The police of Akron and nearby counties will join with the Ohio State Police in setting up and maintaining special traffic routing to and from the scene, a job which they have handled so expedously in other years to win the compliments of the throngs attending the races.

Numerous Trophies

In addition to the scholarship award mentioned, there are numerous other trophies designed to appeal to the boys. Not only the winners of the first, second and third places, but the builder of the best-designed car, the builder of the car with the best-designed brakes and the car with the best upholstering are recognized. All champions qualifying for the Akron finals by winning their local races receive lesser awards.

Checking of the entries for observance of the rules governing weight, dimensions and design is rigidly carried out as this is essential to safety as well as fairness. Ever since the Derby organized this check has been carried out by the Technical Committee, consisting of men well known in the technical publications world. These men do not simply supervise the job; they take their coats off and do it.

SHE'S HAPPY NOW

This little lady was one of the British children who arrived in Canada in the first shipload to reach the Dominion from Britain—and this is her method of conveyance. She is six-months-old Margaret Ward of Hertfordshire.

Racing Cars Limited to 250 Pounds in Weight Including Car Driver

This season will see a further step in the evolution of the Soap Box Derby car. Some of the cars, which will appear on Derby Hill on Tuesday will demonstrate an amazing amount of ingenuity on the part of their youthful builders, not only in their mechanical features but in appearance as well. While undoubtedly a great amount of copying will be noticed on the part of youthful entrants who are entering the race for the first time and who will endeavour to place on his car the features he sees on the car of his experienced opponents there will also be evident much originality in design.

All cars, in accordance with Derby rules, will be limited to a maximum of 250 pounds—with driver. Other rules determine the wheelbase, length of axle and other specifications, so that no boy can have a car so far superior to others that he will have an unfair advantage and spoil the keen competition of the race.

AGE LIMITS 11-15

The Soap Box Derby is a coaster wagon race for boys whose ages fall between 11 and 15, inclusive, on the day of their home-town race. Chevrolet Motor Division maintains supervision over the general program, and leading newspapers co-operate by holding local races and sending winners to the national finals in Akron, Ohio.

CITY IS CRADLE OF SOAP BOX RACE

Belleville Kinsmen Club Held First Race of its Kind in Canada and has Continued Feature

Belleville is recognized as the cradle of Soap Box Derby racing in Canada, the Belleville Kinsmen Club's annual Soap Box Derby being the first of its kind to be held in the Dominion. In 1936 the local Kinsmen fostered their first race, then known as the Kinsmen's "Kid Kar" Derby to be raced on Derby Hill (North Front St.)

The tree-shaded incline down North Front St. is still "Derby Hill" in the Kinsmen's language and on July 9th (Tuesday next) the fifth annual Belleville Kinsmen Club "Soap Box" Derby will be held in Belleville.

For the protection of the 5,000 patrons who are expected to witness the fifth consecutive running of the Canadian "Soapbox Derby" this year several miles of snow fences will form a barricade, which will not only line the race track, but afford protection to the thousands in the event of accident.

The electric starting device, that was instituted last year in the Canadian "Derby" finals here, will again be used at the top of the starting ramp. This electric starting device is the zenith of Derby accomplishments and equal in standard to that used at the International and world Soapbox Derby championship at Akron, Ohio.

The initial "Kid Kar" Derby ever held in Canada was staged down Derby Hill in Belleville by the local Kinsmen Club just four years ago. Today other cities across the Dominion including Montreal Ottawa, Toronto and other smaller centres have taken on the thrills of Soap Box Derbies and the advancement of child ingenuity, but the Belleville Kinsmen's annual Soap Box Derby remains the feature event of its kind in the Dominion and it is the Belleville champion, who is recognized in Akron in the big International Soap Box Derby championship.

It is axiomatic that true competition breeds better sportsmanship, and in no better manner is this exemplified than by the success of past Kinsmen Club "Soap Box Derbies".

BRAKING AREA PAVED

Construction of a paved braking strip beyond the finish line at Derby Downs, official national finals site for the All-American Soap Box Derby, will be completed prior to the 1940 race, set for August 11.

This was divided into two parts first, the Christian approach to India which is both promising and perplexing and second the missionary approach to the West showing we must all have the true missionary spirit before we can help others.

The meeting concluded with prayer and singing of Hymn 86.

Are You Always Hubby Tolerant?

By HELEN FOLLETT

"Brushing makes the hair happy."

We're always hearing somebody tell about the need of looking beautiful so as to retain a husband's love. Though we're strong for cultivating good looks, it is our humble opinion that acting pretty means more to a man than his beloved's curly hair and rouged lips.

If you are a married woman, let us ask you some questions. When the papa upsets the ash tray do you bawl him out, or quietly clean up the mess on the rug? Haven't you ever upset an ash tray? When he comes home late for dinner, how do you act? The wise woman waits just so long, sits down and eats with gusto and zest, receives the laggard pleasantly. That plan works better in the long run.

Hold That Man!

Most men are pretty pesky in one way or another, but women are not angels either. A nagging woman is no fun to live with. In time she gets the nagger's face looks like an old, dried up lemon. Then her husband casts eyes at sirens or packs up and runs away from home.

For a woman's own sake she should try to keep serene upon all occasions.

Buy hair brushes of high grade bristles, not for looks. Good brushes that stand up under hard use cannot be found on bargain counters; one has to pay a good price for them. But they're worth it. Brushing makes the hair happy, puts on the gloss, removes surface dust, and should be the daily practice of every beauty seeker.

REV. A. M. LAVERTY INDUCTED INTO STIRLING CHARGE

Service Conducted by Rev. J. E. Beckel, Secretary of Belleville Presbyterial

RECEPTION HELD

Stirling, July 6 (Special)—Before a large congregation and in the presence of several members of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada Rev. Alexander Marshall Laverty, B.A.B.D. was duly inducted as minister of the Stirling and Carmel pastoral charge and both Rev. and Mrs. Laverty received socially by those present at a reception held later in the church parlours.

The impressive service was ably conducted by Rev. James E. Beckel, Secretary of Belleville Presbytery and also Secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference. In accordance with customary church law he was assisted by two other members of the church court Rev. H. C. Morrison of Tweed and Rev. W. P. Fletcher of Marmora. Observing the procedure for such occasions as set forth by the United Church court the service was characterized by a fitting spirit of solemnity and dignity as the new minister and congregation were formally charged with their newly assumed responsibility. With Mr. G. L. Clute presiding at the organ the service began with a quiet organ prelude, Doxology, Invocation, prayer and appropriately selected hymns. Scriptural passages were read from 1st Peter 5 1-4 and John 21 15-17. The charge to the minister was presented in an address by Rev. H. C. Morrison of Tweed and the address to the congregation presented by Rev. W. P. Fletcher of Marmora, who stated, "The duty of every church member is to give of his best in co-operation with the minister for the furthering of God's work." Assist him by removing from him all care of trivial matters."

The vows of induction as presented by Rev. Beckel were acknowledged individually by the new minister who at the conclusion of the ceremony ascended to the pulpit and received the right hand of fellowship from the associates of the presbytery. The remaining portion of the service and the benediction was directed and pronounced by Rev. Laverty.

Reception Held Later.

Directly after the service the congregation withdrew to the Sunday school where Rev. and Mrs. Laverty were received socially by friends from both churches of the St. Paul's Stirling and the sister church at Carmel. Mr. C. F. Linn acted as chairman for this function and brief addresses of welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Laverty were delivered by Mr. Lewis Bird and E. J. Pyear of Carmel. Messrs. H. E. Hulin and H. C. Martin of Stirling. Rev. Morrison and Rev. Beckel also spoke briefly. The new minister in his first official address expressed his appreciation of the evident portrayal of support already displayed and hoped that individual members of both the churches and he, himself, would be partners in the work of the kingdom. All great revivals are based upon a spiritual rekindling in the home. Let us have an unified desire for advancement and achievement in things Christian." A musical contribution in the form of a baritone solo by William Reynolds was very much enjoyed and the function closed with the singing of the National Anthem. The ladies of both churches then assisted in serving luncheon and a social period enjoyed.

Native of Toronto.

Rev. Alexander Marshall Laverty is a native of Toronto as is Mrs. Laverty. He received his early academic training in Harvard Collegiate, graduated in arts from the University of Toronto and in Theology also at Victoria College, University of Toronto. For two years he was assistant minister at Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, and came to Stirling from Knox United Church, Manitowaning, Manitoulin Island. During this next four weeks he will be in charge of the union services for his own church, St. Paul's United Church, and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling with morning services alternating in the churches mentioned each Sunday.

Sour Lemons, Sweet Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

"A cut lemon will turn the trick."

Every housewife — why doesn't somebody think up a prettier name for them?—who is beauty bent should keep lemons at hand. It is surprising how many uses they can be put to.

Now that the preserving season is here, hands are likely to be stained with fruit juices. A cut lemon will turn the trick. Rub the pulp into the flesh, plunge the finger nails into it and swish them around. Finger nails come white in a jiffy.

A lemon rinse makes the hair alive and glisteny. Add the strained juice of two lemons to a pint of water, pour it over the head after the shampoo. Rinse it away with the bath spray. Excellent for the girl who bawls and laments about oil hair that slaps itself down close to the scalp and sticks there.

Out Freckles!

As lemons help to condition oily hair, so do they remove oily films from the skin. After the facial tubbing at night, rinse the soap away, dry gently, apply lemon juice with pledgets of cotton. If freckles are lodged on the impertinent nose they'll be inclined to move on.

When the complexion is sallow it is advisable to take a glass of cold water every morning to which the juice of half a lemon and a pinch of salt have been added. Acts favorably on the liver and intestinal tract.

Girls who can't control their lipsticks, but slosh the red glow on any old way, would do well to buy themselves a lipstick brush. Costs almost nothing and it is about the only way that one can spread the rosy cream into the lip puckers.

The brush makes a clear-cut outline. Work from the white skin inward. Keep the lips stretched as smooth as you can when making the application. Finish with a friction with the fingers. Don't use the pigment so far under the inner surface that the teeth will pick it up. Red speckled teeth are a common sight. Terrible!

If He's A Smoothie!

He Can Shave a Chin and Save a Home

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

A shave a day might keep divorce away. Protruding whiskers, like protruding petticoats, are hazardous to family happiness.

Whether a man will kiss his wife daily or not, he can't afford to be a porcupine. He should remember that she has to look at him occasionally, and if there are children they should be considered. A certain little girl of two told her father she didn't want to kiss him any more because of the "slivers on his face." That's an awful price to pay for laziness.

One good way for a man and wife to keep alive their mutual affection is for each to strive to exercise the nice amenities of their earlier sweetheart days. All too many married couples, after the glow of the honeymoon has dimmed, will let themselves lower to the level of the commonplace; and in this respect the man is probably worse than the woman. All of us husbands need constantly to discipline ourselves to exercise at home proper personal neatness and the social graces. If only we could hold ourselves strictly to good manners toward our loved ones.

Sprucer-Upper

When in any or all these matters we grow slovenly, we bespeak our laxity in regard for the other's personality, and this in turn renders us less tolerant of the other and more ready to be disagreeable.

Once I was an unexpected guest in a certain lovely home, arriving before the father did. Soon I heard footsteps in the kitchen, then on the back stairs. The mother explained that it was her husband. "You see, because of his work, his hands and clothes are soiled when he comes home, and he never wants me or the children to greet him until he has shaved, bathed and put on fresh clothes."

Later he arrived looking tip-top, having prepared not for company but for the family; for he did not know a guest was present until I met him. The mother was attractively, but simply, attired too.

How fine if all fathers, even those from offices, were as eager to look well on meeting the family; and if mothers likewise always looked their best, if possible, to welcome the husband.

Cheap Enough

Soap and water are very cheap. Almost anyone can afford a daily bath, shower, shine, toothbrush exercise and fresh garments. Such essentials to human happiness need to be denied no one who really cares. The major investment is a little effort at self-discipline. I believe these matters count. Don't you?

Now it might be difficult for a wife to reform a husband who has grown slovenly. Her best way, however, is to express warmly affectionate approval when he does "spruce up"—a good time for her to exercise her feminine charms on him. Looking forward, she might be able to bring up her son to exercise great self-discipline in these matters.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Would you spank a young child for climbing up in a high chair at the table?

A. No. While spanking might easily correct this problem, the danger is that pain might connect up with eating and, therefore cause new problems. Better rule out spanking from eating and toilet problems. Buy or make a strong harness to hold the child in the high chair.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 7

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is an adverse one, excepting for sentimental or emotional factors of romantic character. This may be sudden and surprising but accompanied by some measure of disaffection, disappointment or entanglements concerning messages or letters.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year of some delays, disappointments and frustrations, with anxiety in their financial or credit status. Offsetting this, there is augury for promotion.

A child born on this day should be alert, talented and fairly ambitious with originality and some form of unusual ingenuity.

For Monday, July 8

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for very active conditions in the social, domestic, artistic or affectional relations. In the latter, there may arise a surprising situation, probably sensational.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting situations with opportunity for lucrative connections with large groups, political or fraternal, but with emotional or romantic experiences, sensational or irregular.

A child born on this day may be shrewd, subtle and versatile, but erratic, impulsive and unconventional. It will be good hearted and sociable as well as romantic.

ALWAYS THERE when you are tired of other frocks is the soft-printed chiffon dinner dress. A beauty is in silk chiffon with a big white and shocking pink tropical flower print. Short puffed sleeves and a low oval neckline add interest to this pretty frock.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Social Error

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is a person who receives an invitation to a wedding reception also welcome to attend the wedding ceremony? Last year a friend of mine sent me an invitation to her reception. I have known her many years, and we have been very good neighbors.

When I received an invitation only to the rectpion I was puzzled. I asked several friends and they all seemed agreed that if one received a wedding invitation, that meant the wedding ceremony alone; but that if one recieved an invitation to the reception, one was welcome to both. As it was the ceremony, itself I wished to attend, I went, and then went to the reception.

I sent this friend an especially lovely wedding gift. It seems to me that even if I did commit a social error, it should, in all decency be overlooked. However, everything she does seems to indicate that she is avoiding me. Doesn't it look rather pointed that I have not been forgiven for my social error?

Jane

Unfortunately your friends gave you a very bad lead when they gave you their advice. The fact is that when we receive an invitation we must take it for granted that we are invited only to the occasion stated in the invitation. We have no right to interpret the invitation according to our wishes.

However, it does seem pitiful that this comparatively small "social error" should have to mean that the friendship is not being continued. Since such a pleasant friendship has existed, I wonder if something couldn't be done about it.

Would you consider writing her and telling her that you would like to see her? I am inclined to think that you have harbored something in your mind that may not be in hers.

Gift to Graduate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to send a gift to a young lady who is being graduated, even though an announcement has not been received?

C. O.

Yes, it is correct to send a gift to a graduate. In other words, it depends on your wish, not on the fact that a graduation invitation was not received.

Customarily, only invitations are sent for the graduation exercises and the number of these invitations is limited.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Overwhelmed by Feminine Mystery

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been engaged for two years to a lovely girl and we have set the date for three months from now. However, I feel as if I'm marrying a stranger. Are all women mysterious, incomprehensible, secret—or is it only my luck?

Dozens of my married men friends have said. "My wife is a fine woman, but she's a mystery to me!" Are all girls riddles, and is that the reason the ancient Egyptians put a woman's head on the Sphynx—the unsolved riddle of the world?

John

Don't worry! The good Lord in his wisdom, knowing the fickleness and changeableness of human nature, evolved a plan to keep men and women together. The plan is—a never-satisfied curiosity.

While you're puzzling over the mystery of this girl, who will be your wife in two months, she's probably confiding to her best girl friend: "I admire John, but I just can't understand him."

x x x

Who Makes Up First?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I went with a young man eight months. Thought a great deal of him and he did of me. In fact, he wanted to marry me, but I didn't care for him in that way. I considered that we were just friends.

One day we had a quarrel and it ended in my saying that I didn't want to see him again. Now I'm sorry, and although I have gone out with other men, I still think of him. He tells my friends that he still thinks the world of me. I know his disposition and, if I call him, he will think I'm forward. He really should be the one to beg my forgiveness.

I'm sorry and want to be his best friend. He is 23 and I am 21. He hasn't gone with any one since we quit. I don't think he will ever call me, but I know he is as unhappy as I am. Please tell me what to do; I will abide by your decision.

Just Hoping

Why not be generous and call the young man on the phone, although you say he "should be the one to beg forgiveness" But don't we all think the other one should eat the humble pie in our disagreements? As you both seem unhappy over this affair, a better plan is to make up.

Suffers from Self-Consciousness

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This isn't a love problem; it's far worse, for me anyway. I'm troubled with self-consciousness. I'm in my third year at high school. I read a lot, know quite a bit of French, play piano, and have a pretty good voice. I like all kinds of sports, both indoor and outdoor, but can never go anywhere because my father gives me the dickens if I do. So to avoid all trouble, I stay at home, although I do long for good times.

I thought I might join the Y.W.C.A. and enter some of their clubs; do you think this will help? Please tell me what I can do to overcome this self-consciousness.

Bewildered

The only reason you feel this way is because you're so delightfully young and haven't had enough wordly contacts to wear away a certain amount of shyness.

I think it would be a grand idea to join the Y. W. You'll meet other nice girls, engage in activities with them, and gradually overcome your handicap.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Nose Bleeds

In a column on this subject a few weeks ago, I apparently didn't go far enough into the subject of how to relieve them, for I have had letters of inquiry concerning the best thing to do for this common occurrence in childhood.

The best home remedy I know of is for the victim to raise his arms above his head in a stretching motion and at the same time have something cold applied to the back of his neck. Either of these remedies by itself is usually enough to stop a mild nose bleed. Together, they work effectively in most cases.

The cold application may also be effective behind the ears. If you lack good cold water, or ice, a door key, or a similar piece of metal will often do the trick. The cold applied to the back of the neck or head causes a reflex contraction of the artery.

The raising of the arms above the head also tends to contract the blood vessels in the head and neck. This method may even cause the patient to have a feeling of faintness, but don't worry about that. It is quite natural.

Another home remedy that is frequently used I do not recommend. That is for the patient to lie on his back. Of course, that seems to stop the bleeding. I know it stops it as far as you can see for the blood doesn't gush out the nostrils any more. But that doesn't mean that it has stopped, for altogether likely the nose is still bleeding, and the blood is merely running back through the nose into the throat and down into the stomach. The only influence this method can have in stopping a nosebleed is that it acts as a sedative to the heart. It doesn't pump as fast.

If the methods I described above don't put a stop to the flow of blood after a few minutes, then you had better call a doctor. When he comes, he may use various methods of stopping the flow, the most common treatment is the application of a mild solution of adrenalin. If all other measures fail, the nostril can be plugged on the inside and one the outside, so that any blood that flows into it, can't get out. As soon as the nostril fills, the pressure will stop the blood from flowing. Since nosebleeds rarely occur in both nostrils at once, the breathing isn't interfered with.

Frequently, nosebleeds can be stopped by means of a mild purgative. Occasionally, the bleeding is a symptom of chlorosis or anemia, and other measures must be used. If the nose bleeds recur frequently, then by all means call in your doctor.

FASHION FLASHES

A STARRING ROLE in the summer fashion scene is taken by silk shantung, that coolest of fabrics. Some women are buying suits in black shantung and also in that heavenly oyster beige that is so becoming. The jacket of the light suit teams up beautifully with other frocks, especially prints.

IT ISN'T SMART to go hatless these days and it is unnecessary, what with all those lovely turbans. Going like the proverbial hot cakes are turbans made of authentic fish net held by spools of bamboo.

FOR THE BEACH one girl has found a coat that is different. It is a loose, casual jacket of white candlewick with wide, loose sleeves, big patch pockets and edgings of red and blue rickrack braid.

THERE'S A CHANGE in playsuits. The newest versions consist of a straight, loose jacket with big pockets and short sleeves worn with a tailored shirt and pleated-to-the-knee shorts. Nice when done in striped chambray.

Kinsmen Soap Box Derby, Tuesday, July 9th

Full Program of Entertainment Afforded Racers in Akron

Local Champions Have Big Time at National Finals; Here's The Program

"What will my boy do in Akron?" is a question nearly every parent asks when his youngster has won the home town Soap Box Derby and is looking forward to one of boyhood's greatest thrills—participation in the All-American and International Soap Box Derby finals, which this year will be held in the Ohio City on August 11.

During his two days at the Derby capital as a guest of Chevrolet Motor Division, the home-town champion will do many things—all of them real sport. First, of course, he must arrive, and if he does so by train or plane, he'll know he's in Derby City the moment his conveyance stops. For at station or airport there will be an official Soap Box Derby bus to meet him. These Chevrolet buses, the traveling field offices of the Derby, visit many of the home towns during the summer, and converge on Akron for the big event.

When the "champ" arrives at the huge hotel that is taken over from basement to roof to serve as Derby headquarters, he registers as a matter of course. At that time he receives his official street garb, a complete race driver's outfit—official Derby jersey and red, white and blue Derby cap, which bears on it the number of the squad to which the champ is assigned. If he is named a squad leader—captain of a band of Derbyists from many different cities—his cap bears a rosette with squad number.

"Welcome, Champ"

Next the youngster registers in the hotel, where clerk and bellboy alike greet him with "Welcome, Champ!" He is then shown to his room, which he will share with a rival racer during the two exciting days.

Friday preceding the race, the champ is allowed to make his own program to some extent, and Derby officials cooperate in outlining plans and programs. Friday evening, however, sees all the champions meeting together for the first time, to learn about their schedules for the next two days. An entertainment designed especially for boys is scheduled at that time. "Lights out" at ten o'clock.

Next morning comes another group meeting with the champions given instruction concerning Derby Downs, and tips on the best way to handle their cars in the race. After luncheon, buses take the boys to the track itself, where each boy drives his own car down in a safety run, to acquaint him with the course.

The Saturday evening program varies from year to year. Sometimes the boys go to a Scout camp, where they have an outdoor meal and an evening frolic. Other years they have attended ball games, seen movies, or been honor guests at other events.

Special Race Garb

Race morning after breakfast, champs are encouraged to attend church or Sunday school with buses waiting at their disposal. After luncheon, the boys don their silk racing jackets and repair to the track. At an official drivers' meeting, the youthful contenders receive final instructions and are issued the safety helmets and goggles which are their souvenirs of the race itself.

Prior to the race itself, the boys are the highlight of a big parade, when they march the length of Derby Downs between packed grandstands and bleachers. Each boy carries a silk flag bearing the official Derby emblem and the name of the town he represents. Once these colorful preliminaries are over, comes the big event, and the thrills of the afternoon are just about enough for any boy.

When the race is run and the winner has been acclaimed, all the drivers return to their hotel, where they change to their Derby street dress. Then buses whisk them to Akron's vast Armory for the Champions' Banquet, where prizes and awards are distributed.

And even here, at the final event of the two crowded days, no single champion is forgotten, for at every driver's place is his official driver's diploma and a handsome Soap Box Derby wrist watch, a gift from Chevrolet.

GETS THREE YEARS

Former racing news czar Moses Annenberg is pictured outside the Chicago courtroom where he was sentenced to a term of three years in prison for income tax evasions. The millionaire publisher is free pending hearing of an appeal for suspension of the sentence. He has already agreed to pay $8,000,000 in back payments and fines to settle his monetary disputes with the U.S. government.

SOAP BOX DERBY IS COASTER RACE

Idea Behind Competition is Creativeness And Ingenuity For Boys

The Soap Box Derby is a coaster wagon race for boys between the ages of nine and fifteen years. The principle behind the ideals of Soap Box Derbies is youthful creativeness and ingenuity on the part of the teen-aged builder in an effort to cultivate the individual ideas and constructive measures of the individual.

Last year at the International and All-American Soap Box Derby finals in Akron, Ohio, an estimated crowd of upwards to 150,000 persons witnessed the race with contestants taking part from practically every state in the U.S.A., Honolulu, South Africa and Belleville's Canadian champion, Ernie Young.

Derby Downs at Akron where the world Soap Box Derby is raced boasts of an asphalt ribbon, 1,800 feet long and 30 feet wide, the actual racing distance being 1,200 feet, with an eight per cent grade and individual racing lanes ten feet wide, one for each of the three cars in each race.

No detail of design of the Soap Box Derby racing cars is more important, than weight distribution. Tests made by various types of coaster-wagon racers show, that the ideal is to have each of the four wheels supporting the same weight when the driver is in his seat.

Another feature of the Kinsmen Club Soap Box Derby is the fact that no class "A" winner may compete in the Canadian finals on "Derby Hill" in Belleville after having once won the big event, thus giving unsuccessful drivers a chance to share in the honours. This year's Kinsmen Soap Box Derby, sponsored by The Ontario Intelligencer, will be held in Belleville on the evening of July 9th with 75 racing entries already having been registered.

'Polio' May Enter By Alimentary Canal, Studies Indicate

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Baltimore, July 5 (AP).—Evidence that infantile paralysis invades the human body through more than one "door" was reported today by two Johns Hopkins Medical School doctors.

The virus disease, in monkeys and man, leaves a pattern of inflamed tissue along nerve tracts forming its path in the brain to the spinal cord, where it produces paralysis.

This "pattern" indicates by what portal or "door" the disease entered. Discovery of the portals is an important step toward preventing the disease.

The general assumption has been that infantile paralysis — poliomyelitis — was contracted only through the olfactory nerve or "nerve of smell" in the nose.

But these studies indicate it can readily start somewhere in the alimentary tract between the mouth and intestines.

The technique was developed by Dr. Howard A. Howe and Dr. David Bodian, experimenting on chimpanzees—which get poliomyelitis by contagion, like human beings. Virus used was obtained from diseased patients.

"The evidence so far from human cases and the high incidence of poliomyelitis after tonsillectomy favors the alimentary portal in man," they reported, but "the olfactory portal is still a possibility."

DRIVERS OF CARS WELL PROTECTED

Rules Safeguard Against Accident and Inspectors See Cars Are Well Constructed

In the state of Michigan last year special licence plates patterned after the regular automobile licence plate of the state were struck and issued to contestants in the annual Soap Box Derby contest at Akron, Ohio.

Thus is the Soap Box Derby given official recognition by the State in which the idea originated. And officials of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville in charge of Belleville's fifth annual Soap Box Derby, who have carried this Derby on to increasingly greater success over the years and who have put this newest sports on the map in Canada, are positive that in time different sections of this country will emulate the plan adopted by the State of Michigan, marking by distinctive lettering their own particular champions.

It's a new sport, a clean and thrilling competitive sport in which the youth of Belleville and the surrounding district are compelled to play the game and win through sheer ability and genius. There's a freshness and individuality to this new game of motorless racing down steep grades under the guidance of rules which guard carefully the safety of those who compete.

It's not just four wheels and a soap box in which the youth of Belleville will ride down Derby Hill (North Front Street) on the evening of July 9th, but a creation of wood, metal and rubber built in their own design. Upon their skill of construction their genius of design and the ideas which they have put into their own particular vehicle, will depend the winner.

Picton

Picton, July 5—Cherry Valley hall, decorated with flags, flowers, maple leaves and red, white and blue paper, was filled to capacity Wednesday evening when an unusually successful strawberry and ice cream social was held. Proceeds amounted to $60 and were for Athol War Emergency Committee.

A fish pond was quickly sold out and a sale of articles added to the funds. Tickets had been sold on a box of chocolates and little Miss Warren of Montreal drew the lucky ticket held by Helen Duetta, Picton. Reeve Earl Brummell donated 50 boxes of berries and Ross Parliament another 50 boxes, the latter being sold when not used. Carter Bros., A. M. Powers, C.D.S., Selrite Store, J. A. Maher, Picton, donated articles; Wm. Wrigley Co., gave 300 sticks gum; Crothers Co., Kingston, box of chocolates; Phil Dodds contributed the advertising, leaving only the ice cream to be paid for. Thanks was given all these.

The program, presided over by Phil Dodds, included piano accordeon and violin duet, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Case, Picton; comic songs, Jack Clark, Black Creek; vocal duet, Mary and Jean Bell; vocal solo, Mrs. A. Case; vocal duet Ruby and Alice Wiggins; vocal duets, Seymour Warren of Montreal and Mrs. Case; selections by Cherry Valley orchestra; piano duet, Mrs. E. Foster and Mary Wharmby; vocal solos, "Keep on Hoping" and "Smilin' Through" by Mr. Warren; community singing of patriotic songs led by Mrs. A. Beckwith with Mrs. Foster at the piano.

The program was exceptionally fine. Bountiful refreshments were served with the National Anthem bringing to a close a most enjoyable and profitable evening.

Prince Edward County people have been very generous in responding to the apepal for homes for British children being brought to Canada. Ralph Hubbs, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society stated that over one hundred homes have already offered but stressed the fact that many more are necessary.

Mr. Hubbs plans to attend a meeting of Children's Aid Societies in Toronto on Monday when details are to be worked out.

Mr. Hubbs points out that all applications for children are to be made to the C. A. Society, but those who wish to bring children of relatives overseas should then contact British immigration authorities.

Mr. Hubbs further pointed out that these children are spoken of as refugees. This is incorrect and they should be referred to as "British Child Guests."

An inspection of homes is being carried out as rapidly as time and staff permit.

Picton's tax rate was struck by the town council at 35 mills for the year, this being an increase of three mills over last year. This does no include the mill rebate which the government allows. In presenting the estimates, Deputy Reeve Ralph Warren pointed out that the county rate was one and a quarter mills higher that local expenditures are increased and the town's assessment has been lowered.

Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon reported that relief costs were dwindling. Costs for the past month amounted to $363 with 58 persons being assisted compared with costs of $647 last June and 110 on the rolls.

A contract was let to the MacFarlane Construction Co. for the building of roadway on Paul Street from Main to King Streets. The cost is to be $1750.

Deputy Reeve Ralph Warren threatened to resign as a result of not finding a seconder for his motion that relief recipients be disfranchised. Several members vigorously opposed the suggestion, Councillor Moore stating "that's the way Hitler does it", which aroused Warren's ire and caused him to offer to resign. Mayor McKibbon refused to let the matter be considered.

Several townships had made plans to go ahead and organize home guards as a result of a suggestion at the last meeting of County Council. At the meeting of the Town Council Mayor McKibbon announced that they had been advised this was a county matter and that the county and not the municipalities would have to take the necessary steps. It is expected that Warden James Rutter will call a meeting for this purpose soon.

Two Toronto girls, Shirley Green, 16, and Mildred Vanwart, 19, were apprehended by Picton police here Thursday. They had escaped from a Toronto institution and the Green girl was wanted as a material witness in a criminal case in that city. The local police heard a description of them on the radio and 12 hours later located them.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Sandy is a Lady"

Yes, it's true, Sandy IS a lady. After having to play little boy parts in three pictures, she now comes into her own and plays a girl. And she has finally reached stardom too. All of which adds to the fun in store for you when Sandy is a lady comes to the Capitol screen Come and bring the whole family and prepare to laugh as you have never laughed before. Baby Sandy manages to get into more trouble than six ordinary kiddies. This time she does everything from associating with a bomb, to spending a jolly afternoon wandering about the framework of a half-finished skyscraper. Such a combination of thrills and laughter will keep you screaming from beginning to end. But why shouldn't you with such looney funsters as Mischa Auer, Edgar Kennedy, Eugene Pallette, and Billy Gilbert. And as if that were not enough, those little tornadoes of "The Underpup" are in again, singing and sinning as only they can. Romance is supplied by Tom Brown and Nan Grey. If you miss this riot of fun, don't blame me.

On the same programme, we offer you "Inspector Hornleigh", the eccentric, but brilliant Scotland Yard sleuth who will baffle and thrill you.

"Hell Divers" and "West of Carson City", now playing with the Louis-Godoy fight pictures.

France's New Leaders Forced to Co-operate With Ravaging Nation

New York, July 6.—(CP) — The New York Times said today that France's new leaders "seem to be forced to co-operate at every turn with the nation that ravaged their soil and spread untold misery among their people".

Commenting editorially upon the reported rupture of relations between Great Britain and the Petain government of France, The Times said the French government complied with every German demand, "even to the repatriation of 400 captured German aviators who are now free to drop their loads of death upon England".

It added:—

"These are not the decisions of a free people. They are the actions of puppets, obedient to every pull of the string in Berlin or in Rome. Every weapon of German propaganda will now be used to widen the French rift with England. The French people will be forbidden to read Mr. Churchill's account of the battle at Oran; they will be told only that hundreds of brave French sailors were killed by the British. It is even possible that Pierre Laval and Adolf Hitler will push France through the motions of declaring war against Britain, and of stationing a French division along the channel as a symbol of the new partnership between France and Germany.

"Confronted with the tragic spectacle of a great nation wronging itself under duress, Americans who love France will not give up hope for her redemption. They will continue to believe, with Mr. Churchill that 'a generation of Frenchmen will arise who will clear the national honor'."

The New York Daily News, frequently critical in its editorial policy of Great Britain and Prime Minister Churchill, went "all out" in applauding Britain's action in seizing or destroying the bulk of the French fleet.

It termed the episode a "tremendous British victory", affirmed that the Royal Navy "has proved itself once again the best in Europe if not in the world", and got three distinct laughs out of the action and the resultant bleets in Rome and Berlin.

"We should think this sea victory would have a deterring effect on Hitler as he makes plans for his much announced invasion of England", said the news.

"Of that, of course, we can't be sure. But of one thing we are sure: that this British victory is a great thing for the United States, too."

Ontario Prime Minister Endorses Movie Campaign

Toronto, July 6.—(Special)—Although he is seriously ill in hospital, Hon. M. F. Hepburn, Prime Minister of Ontario, has extended his personal and official endorsement to the Win the War Campaign of the Motion Picture Industry to encourage the sale of War Savings Stamps the holding of a free show in all theatres Monday, July 15, at 8.30 p.m. The admission requirement for the patriotic shows is the purchase of two or more 25c war stamps which remain the property of the patron until redeemed by the Dominion Government plus interest.

The statement of approval by Premier Hepburn is as follows:

"As Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario I have been happy to learn of the enthusiastic effort being put forward by the motion picture industry of Canada toward the successful prosecution of the war through the promotion of the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates in the theatres of Canada.

"I extend every good wish for the successful conclusion of the campaign so generously offered by the motion picture industry".

Helping War Savings Sale By Dominion-wide Theatre Party

Some idea can now be obtained of the impetus which will be given to the sale of war savings certificates and war savings stamps by the Dominion-wide theatre party to be held about the middle of July in which all the theatres of the country will participate. Not only is it certain that this project will result in the immediate sale of thousands of dollars worth of war savings stamps, but the cumulative effect of the event will go on long after it has taken place, so that the objective of one million dollars is likely to be greatly exceeded.

Contrary to the general opinion hitherto held, the general public will not pay their admission to the entertainment in war savings stamps. The purchase at the theatre of two or more stamps (depending on the scale of prices in each theatre co-operating) will be the sole requirement of admission. But the purchaser will keep the stamps which will be attached to a sheet which contains spaces for a total of sixteen, and having started a sheet, naturally the incentive will be to complete the sheet and obtain a $5 war saving certificate.

As there are 650,000 theatre seats in Canada, an attendance of three-quarters of that capacity will mean that almost 500,000 Canadians will have paid the first instalment on a war saving certificate, and most of them, no doubt, will go on to fill the sheet. If all do, it will mean that the final result will be the sale of two million dollars in stamps. If only half of them persevere to the end, the campaign's objective of one million dollars will have been achieved. The actual sum paid out for stamps at the doors of the theatres unquestionably will exceed a quarter of a million dollars. This in itself will be a most satisfactory and encouraging outcome of one evening's enterprise.

The theatres of Canada are doing a fine piece of patriotic work. They are providing the houses, the equipment, the staff and a valuable part of their program time to the cause. All the public is asked to do is to co-operate by purchasing two or three or four war savings stamps—which they will keep—and they will actually see a special show for nothing.

On Monday, July 15, there should not be an empty theatre seat in Canada. — Evening Times-Globe, Saint John, N.B.

AT THE BELLE

"Lillian Russell"

Alice Faye sings her way into the hearts of millions of new fans with her portrayal of "Lillian Russell", 20th Century Fox picture, which features Don Ameche and Henry Fonda with her at the Belle Theatre. The talented blonde actress revives songs which were popularized by the glamorous Lillian Russell, among them being "After the Ball is Over", "The Band Played on" (Strawberry Blond"), "My Evening Star", "Rosie, You are my Posie", "He goes to Church on Sunday" and "Here We are a Jolly Pair".

There are many perennial favorites in the film which are sung, chief of which are: "Comin' Through the Rye", "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Brighten the Corner Where you are".

Don Ameche sings two new songs in "Lillian Russell". These numbers, "Adored One", by Alfred Newman and Mack Gordon, and "Blue Love Bird", by Gus Kahn and Bronislau Kaper, were written especially for "Lillian Russell", and are appropriately styled for the picture.

Featured players in the brilliant cast include Edward Arnold (as Diamond Jim Brady), Warren William, Leo Carrillo and many others.

The popular Belle Newsreel will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"You're Not So Tough"

In a sitting that might well appeal to theatre-goers throughout the entire Belleville and Bay of Quinte District where the troubles and tribulations of small boys are of human interest, the Canadian premier showing of "You're Not so Tough" will open at the McCarthy theatre next week.

"You're Not so Tough" is a story composed of equal parts of "Dead End" and "Grapes of Wrath" featuring the popularity of the Dead End Kids. Although this picture has not been released in the United States as yet and the first Canadian showing of "You're Not so Tough" will be seen at the McCarthy theatre, advance notices reveal that the picture is one of these down to earth films that is bound to appeal to the patrons who reside in the smaller cities, where there is a feeling of human interest in everyday life.

Featuring in the lead role is Rosina Galli, who accepted the challenge to portray a difficult role before the cameras as she accepts on her farm the responsibilities of mothering the Dead End Kids in "You're Not so Tough." Her kindly and knowing ways bring the best out of a bunch of small town kids who have commenced life on the wrong path. In the climax, however, these boys prove their true American free-born spirit and put an end to an attempt to intimidate American workers. The entire picture is filled with human interest, heart throbs and will appeal to the theatre-goers of this entire community.

The McCarthy theatre also graciously announces another Ontario premier showing of the picture "Wagons Westward," starring Richard Dix. This premier showing will commence next and is a saga of the old west being the first time the picture has ever been seen in Ontario. Actually the picture was not reviewed by the Ontario Board of Censors until this week and Manager Vince Freeman only received official permission to announce the showing of "Wagons Westward" recently.

Kinsmen Soap Box Derby, Tuesday, July 9th

Automatic Electric Starting Device Used on 'Derby Hill'

Cars Cannot Collide Going Off The Ramp and Exact Time of Each Heat Can Be Kept

3 CARS IN HEAT

Used for the first time in Canada at the fourth running of the Candian Soap Box Derby races last year the automatic electric starting device introduced by the Kinsmen Club for the last year's Soap Box Derby races will again be used in the fifth running of these annual events on Derby Hill (North Front St.) Belleville Tuesday evening July 9th.

The starting device employed by the Belleville Kinsmen is an automatic electric three-lane device that assures a quick, separate start for each car in each heat. The electric starting device has three ramps, each equipped with side copings to prevent the cars from leaving the ramp at the start and also to minimize any chances of collision at the starting point.

As in previous years the races will be held in heats of three cars each. Each starting car will be placed to the top of the electric ramp, with the front wheels of the cars resting against a shoe, which tends to hold the cars in place and directly in line at the starting point. When the official starter's flag is dropped signifying "they're off", an electric switch button is pushed and the shoes drop from position, thus allowing the cars on the ramp a free-wheeling dash down the electric-control ramp onto the race lanes of Derby Hill and the excitement of another "Kid Kar Derby" is on.

Simultaneously with the starter's signal, a light is flashed at the finishing line where the judges are placed and the intricate timing devices set into operation, as each heat is timed in order to ascertain the relative speed at which the boy-made machines travel over the Derby Hill course.

Announce Winners

The patrons to Derby Hill will be kept in constant touch with the events and results of all races and heats by a specially erected public address system. After every heat the name of the winning driver and his elapsed time will be given over the loud speakers to acquaint the public with the happenings of the big annual Kinsmen Club "Soap Box Derby" results for the Canadian "Kid Kar Derby" Championship. The very latest in modern and electric devices will be employed during the fifth annual Soap Box Derby races in Belleville on July 9th., thereby assuring safety and the maximum amount of speed and thrills at the same time. Tuesday is "Derby Day" in Belleville.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop started to reach in his humidor for a cigar, saying. Is something berning, what the dooce is that peculiar smell?

It's insense, ma said, and pop said, Well where the mischiff is it coming from? Have some Chinese moved in next door?

It's right here in this room in the corner and it's a little experiment on my part ma said, and pop said, If you're trying to convert me to Confucianism I'm a willing subject, maybe it's just what the world needs and nobody has thought of it.

Did you ever stop to consider that men would lose all intrist in tobacco if they couldn't see and smell the smoke? ma said, and pop said, I'll go so far as to admit that there is no more pleasing site to the eye and no more caressing fragrance to the nose than the tender blue tendrils of smoke curling with timid grace from the end of a good Havanna.

Exactly, ma said. In other words, if your sense of site and your sense of smell are sattisfied by the really pleasant smoke from berning incense you wont feel any necessity for smoking, to the great benefit of your health and the sattisfaction of your pocketbook, she said, and pop said, By gollies maybe you've got something there.

Why Willyum, do you mean you'll really try it without a struggle? ma said, and pop said, Absilutely, with one little change. It's got to be the fragrance of liver and onions instead of incense. Liver and onions every day for dinner till I'm cured of cigars, he said.

Now Willyum, such a gassly thought, you know how the odor of liver and onions clings to the entire house, ma said, and pop said Of course, that's the whole point, when do we start?

The result being ma gave up the idea and pop agreed to take her to the movies to get out of the smell of incense.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Damage by lightning! How much damage is done by lightning when material objects are struck depends upon the material. In general, objects of high conducting power are injured least, and those of low conducting power most. There are two ways in which metals are damaged: first, by being melted if the charge or current actually enters the metal; and second, by being broken, bent or torn from their attachments. Objects which are poor conductor and these include trees, are damaged by an explosive effect brought about, it is believed, by the contained moisture being turned into steam, by a decomposition forming gases, or by internal electrical repulsive effects.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, July 6 (Special) — The Miller Bros. softball team won a surprising game here last night by defeating the Canadian Doughnuts by a score of 12 to 10, to move from fourth place into second place. The win not only placed the Doughnuts into second place but created a tie for third place between the Wooler team and the Doughnuts.

The surprising part of the game was that two of the Doughnuts collected two homers apiece while the opposing players were unable to count extra base hits, Fox and Ellis each counted homers in the second and fourth frames but on every occasion the bases were empty.

The Miller Bros. were slow to start and trailed their opponents for seven innings. In the seventh they collected five runs to come from behind and then added another in the eighth for good measure, while holding the Doughnuts scoreless in the last three frames.

Fox started on the mound for the Doughnuts and gave up eight hits, striking out five. He was replaced in the sixth by Burtt, who gave up seven hits. Hunter replaced Istead on the mound for the Miller Bros. in the sixth and turned in a smart performance all the remainder of the game.

Millers	211 020 51x—	12	15

The lineups:

Millers: Anderson, Niddery, Emerson, Long, Cain, Istead, Hunter, Drake, Lohnes.

Given Two Years.

Babe Dunford, of Purdy, Ont., who has so many aliases that police are at a loss to keep track of them, was sentenced to two years less one day, determinate, and two years less one day indeterminate, in the Mercer Reformatory, by Magistrate E. J. Butler, in police court, here yesterday.

Dunford pleaded guilty to ten charges of fraud, and uttering forged documents, namely cheques. The first charge was that she did commit forgery by signing the name of Mrs. H. Sweetman and did cash the cheque at a Schoniker's butcher shop. The cheque was for $16.00.

Magistrate Butler passed the sentence of two years determinate, less one day, and two years indeterminate less one day, on this charge and gave the same sentence on each of the other nine charges, placed before the court. The accused pleaded guilty to each charge as it was presented.

During the past two years the accused has been sentenced on 35 charges of forgery and fraud. The above sentence will not commence until the expiration of a sentence of nine months determinate and three months indeterminate handed down in the Cobourg police court last week.

Two of the charges presented yesterday were from Belleville, two from Huntsville, one from Newmarket and one from Picton.

Given Suspended Sentence.

Missing from Trenton for nearly a year, Fred Chaunard was hailed into police court yesterday to answer a charge of chicken stealing. Chief William Bain noticed the accused man, now a private in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, walking on Dundas street yesterday morning.

Chaunard was caught in the act of stealing chickens owned by Mrs. Catherine Pickering, Trenton, on Aug. 12. He appeared in court and was released on $15.00 bail to appear the following week but failed to reappear.

The accused man pleaded guilty to the charge before Magistrate E. J. Butler, who placed him on three months suspended sentence and ordered to pay the costs of the court.

Fined For Crowding.

Miller Cameron, Perth, was fined $5.00 and costs yesterday on a charge of crowding on the highway. It was alleged that Cameron did not allow Vincent McEvoy, Campbellford, to pass on July 1. A similar charge laid against McEvoy was dismissed by the magistrate.

Trenton Market.

Large quantities of flowers and new vegetables lent the Trenton market a colorful appearance this morning as prices dropped to a new low.

Beets, carrots, radishes, onions and lettuce still sold for 5 cents the bunch but the bunches were noticeably larger than last week. Shelled peas sold for 20 cents the pint and large new cabbages were offered at two for 25 cents. New potatoes were 45 to 55 cents the peck according to their size.

Eggs sold at 25 cents for grade "A" selects and 23 cents for mediums.

Large quantities of strawberries and gooseberries were sold for 10 cents a box or three for 25 cents.

WRECKED HOMES, SCATTERED TOYS, ARE HITLER'S TRADEMARK

"Somewhere in England" this picture was made after the all-clear signal had been sounded to announce that German bombers had been driven off. Workmen start in to clear up the debris of a village left in the wake of the raid. Eleven killed and scores injured was the toll, according to the British information ministry's report, but seven Nazi bombers were brought down. At RIGHT an English policeman crawls through the window of a wrecked home. In this room two little children died, and as a monument to the wanton fury of a Hitler they leave behind their broken dolls and scattered toys.

Capital Closeups

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Writer)

Ottawa, July 6 (CP).—The mobilization bill was enacted by parliament with comparatively little debate but it's the big question again on Parliament Hill as members review it all in private discussions.

There is no particular criticism heard apart from the demand by many that prompt action be taken.

The Liberal caucus presumably has reviewed the measure and the general opinion is that the first group of men will be called in about six weeks or two months, either for important industrial work or for home defence with the armed forces. It might not necessarily be the army, for the navy and the air force may need recruits for special duties.

Mobilization details are being completed quite apart from national registration which will likely be inaugurated after the first group is mobilized.

One suggestion is that there will be no exemptions for military service because of family responsibilities. Men engaged in essential work likely will not be called even for training in camps if it interferes with their work. These persons, however, will have to train in militia units several hours a week if they can arrange their work.

WAR NOTES: Army men here are watching development in the United States of the new armored corps of two divisions. . . . It is like the powerful German Panzer unit with mighty striking power. . . . Once the Canadian army gets a few more divisions ready for action some new experiments in mechanization are to be tried. . . . In militia circles here there is continual talk of new plans to meet problems of the new war. . . . They would break radically from the old traditions.

Officers in naval headquarters have donned their new white summer uniforms. . . . They are the smartest looking in this city of uniformed men.

Air Vice-Marshal W. A. Bishop will tour the west soon to tell the Prairie folk about the air training plan. . . . Bands will be heard in the streets of many Canadian cities soon, as the army drums up recruiting for the non-permanent active militia.

Speaker Glen's chief headache is trying to prevent members reading speeches. . . . He calls them to order frequently. . . . Conservative leader Hanson carefully read his entire budget speech. . . . He enjoys the same privilege, however, as the prime minister.

When this war is over, some spy thrillers will be told. . . . Work of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will make fiction look amateurish. . . . Business in the parliament library has fallen off this session as far as light fiction and the like is concerned. . . . Members just haven't the heart to indulge in popular reading.

Canada's foreign affairs experts will watch the Pan-American Union Conference in Havana closely when it meets the end of this month. . . . The dominion won't be officially represented because Canada is not a member. . . . President Roosevelt's plan for a huge trade cartel interests officials here not a little. . . . And the defence plan is another important matter.

Bombing raids over Britain won't budge Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett from his Surrey home. . . . He writes staunch, encouraging words to his friends in Canada. . . . Daily he goes to London to aid in war work such as the Red Cross.

FRENCH FLEET

London, July 6 (CP).—The portion of the French fleet in Alexandria Harbor is comparatively small, a usually reliable source said.

The disposition of the French fleet at the beginning of the week was reported approximately this:

One third in British ports.
One third at Oran.
One sixth at Casablanca.
One sixth at Alexandria.

Two units of the French Navy now are in Scottish waters, it was said.

Other authoritative circles in London said that some French vessels under construction in northern France were towed to Britain with skilled workmen aboard.

Sawfly Attacks Young Spruce Trees In Tweed Village

Tweed—The Vacation Bible School held in the United Church is proving a real success and is a great boon to children and parents. The school opened on Monday, July 1st with an enrolment of 46 despite the fact that the opening day was a holiday. On Tuesday an attendance of 66 was recorded and prospects are favorable for reaching the one hundred mark as children of ages 4 to 12 are eligible to attend.

The larvae of the sawfly have been found on spruce trees within the confines of the village of Tweed. Apparently only the tender new growth is attacked by the grub and the branches are denuded of their needles. It is not established whether it is the spruce sawfly which has done a great deal of damage in the province of Quebec and in certain sections of the Province of Ontario. The local Forestry Branch is forwarding a specimen to the Department of Entomology at Ottawa for identification. Local residents are recommended to inspect their spruce trees closely and to destroy any larvae of this insect pest.

Mr. W. H. Crosbie, District Forester in charge of Tweed Forestry District was out of town on Tuesday on a visit of inspection through the district.

Despite a general belief to the contrary, rainfall for the month of June was only 65 per cent of the average precipitation for June according to Forestry Department figures. During June 1940 the total amount of rainfall recorded on the seventeen days during which rain fell was 1.95 inches as against the twelve year average of 2.80 inches. The temperature registered was about average for the month. The average maximum and minimum were 74 degrees and 52 degrees respectively. The highest temperature of 89 degrees was recorded on June 4th and the lowest, 40 degrees on the night of June 22nd.

Durable Durochers Outlast Boston Bees in Marathon and Win in The 20th Frame 6-2

College Spirit in Team Demonstrates Itself in a Dozen Ways

REDS KEEP PACE

Yankees Blasted in Night Performance by the Athletics 6-3

By BILL WHITE
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The old college try is paying dividends in Brooklyn this year.

The durable Durochers are no supermen, so how else can you explain yesterday's 6-2 triumph over Boston Bees in that 20-inning marathon?

They should have been fairly frazzled from their three-game series at the Polo Grounds and they should have been practically paralyzed after nineteen gruelling innings up Boston way—yet they had enough left to stage a four-run outburst and win that one in the 20th.

Watch the Dodgers and you'll see the College spirit manifest itself in a dozen ways. And they don't pound each other on the back just for exercise. So maybe it was just a wild desire to win that carried them through the longest game—elapsed time—ever played in the majors to their sixth straight triumph.

Extra-inning games are getting to be a habit with the two clubs. They played, back in 1920, the longest ever—a 26-inning 1-1 tie. Last year they fought through 23 innings to a 2-2 deadlock.

Play 5 Hours 19 Minutes.

Newell Kimball got credit for the victory and Joe Sullivan had to accept his eighth defeat of the season. The Dodgers got 12 hits to 14 for the Bees as a total of 37 players toiled for five hours and 19 minutes before a gleeful "bargain day" assemblage of 3,881.

Still staying within easy reaching distance of the Dodgers—and winning 'em in more routine fashion—are Cincinnati Reds. They disposed of Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4.

Home runs won for Chicago Cubs, who blasted St. Louis Cards by 11-5. Glen Russell hit one with the bases full, Augie Galan did it with two on and Billy Nicholson with one aboard.

The Giants, behind the seven-hit hurling of Cliff Melton, made up in some measure for their drab showing against the Dodgers with a 17-hit 15-2 victory over the helpless Phils. The Athletics gave the home town an even break for the day, however, blasting the Yankees 6-3.

Boston Red Sox put the brakes on their downhill slide with a home run-sparked 9-4 triumph over the Senators. Jimmy Foxx got his 20th and Ted Williams his 11th in the pay-off blows.

'The White Sox cut loose with a 13-hit attack to turn back the St. Louis Browns 10-8 in a free slugging affair.

BEARS RECAPTURE SECOND PLACE BEATING GIANTS

League Leading Rochester Squad Bows to Maple Leafs by 7-4 Count

ORIOLES WIN

Increase Lead Over Montreal to Game and a Half

(By the Associated Press)

There's no denying the old saying: "You can't hit what you can't see," and nobody should know it better than Red Howell, Baltimore outfielder and leading hitter of the International League.

Red has been breaking pitchers' hearts with his stickwork for a long time, but lately his eyes have been causing him trouble and Tommy Thomas, Baltimore manager, has had him warming the bench to give those valuable batting orbs a rest.

But having a slugger like Red on the bench can have its advantages at times. This was shown last night when Howell went in to pinch hit in the 11th inning and sparked a rally that gave the Birds a 7-6 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Johnny Bottarini, Syracuse catcher, hammered a homer in the ninth inning to tie the score at five-all and Goody Rosen hit another to put the Chiefs ahead in the top of the 11th. Then, with two out, Thomas called on Howell to hit for Elmer Burkart. He came through with a base-hit, Art Graham tripled and Eddie Collins singled Graham home with his fourth hit of the game.

In winning their fourth straight victory, the Orioles increased their lead over the fifth-place Montreal Royals to a game and a half.. Royals and Buffalo Bisons were idle.

Newark Bears recaptured second place from Jersey City by beating the Little Giants 4-2.

The league-leading Rochester Red Wings dropped a 7-4 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs although they outhit the Canadians 12-7. The Leafs bunched six of their hits behind three walks off Charlie Brumbeloe and an error to score five runs in the first four innings and Gene Lillard's one-hit relief hurling for five frames came too late.

CONNIE HARRIS SCORES SHUTOUT OVER PICTON TEAM

Score is 14-0 and Losers Only Threaten in One Frame and Lose Chance by Poor Baserunning.

JUNIORS DEFEATED

Cementmen of Point Anne in Second Place by 10-6 Win at Home

The Point Anne "cementmen" strengthened their hold on second position in the Belleville Softball League by defeating the Juniors 10-6 at Ox Point last evening, while the Corby's moved into sole possession of third place when they swamped the Picton aggregation to the tune of 14-0 at Coleman Flats. The Shell Oilers are now soundly entrenched in first position and need only one more victory to clinch first honors while the Juniors are now holding down the fourth place with the Picton lads having yet to win their first game.

Extra Base Hits.

Pounding out an avalanche of extra base hits throughout the middle innings behind the five-hit hurling of Connie Harris, the Corby's A.C. had no difficulty in taking the Picton "Dominions" at the Flats last evening as they blanked the Prince Edward team by a 14-0 score.

Harris was only in difficulty in one inning, the seventh, as the visitors loaded the bases by virtue of two hits and a walk, but failed to score as careless base running ruined their chances of averting a shutout. In hanging up his first shutout of the season Harris not only limited the visitors to five safeties, but sent eight batters back to the bench via the strikeout route. Tuttle started on the mound for the losers but gave way to Minaker starting the sixth, after Corby's had scored eight runs in the disastrous fifth. In his relief role, Minaker held the winners to three hits and one run as he struck out five.

Two Circuit Clouts.

J. Barriage and Kiser hit for the circuit for the winners, with C. Barriage and Kiser conking out triples. Minaker was the only batter to find Harris' slants with any consistency as he collected a brace of singles. Fielding features were provided by Van Horne in left for the losers, with J. Barriage starring for the winners.

Luffman Too Good.

Scoring early and often the Point Anne "Cementmen" downed the Uptown Juniors 10 to 6 at the Cement Village last night. The homesters welcomed Steve Hook's slants with a vengeance, scoring one in the first and four in the second, and cinched the game with a three-run rally in the sixth.

Ding Luffman hurled strong ball for the cementmen and was only in trouble in the seventh when two walks and a brace of hits gave Red Townsend's kids three of their six runs. Luffman whiffed thirteen Uptown batters and limited them to eight hits. Whitehead, Scott, Gaulin and Green paced the winners, while Whiting and Mansfield got two hits each for the losers.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 6—(AP)—Week's wash: That crack on the skull has temporarily impaired Bill Jurges' hearing. . . . Club officials estimate $20,000 worth of golf balls were lost in the metropolitan area July 4 and that the caddies were enriched by at least $40,000. . . . Leo Durocher, the toast of Flatbush, has been chosen to christen the new cruiser, Brooklyn. . . . Pitcher Johnny Gee (the tallest guy we ever see) has entered Syracuse U's summer school.

Today's guest star:

Art Cartier, Chatham (Ont.) Daily News: "It's good to see Detroit Tigers at the top of the American League today. . . . Boston and Cleveland held the top spots so long it began to look as though the standing was arranged in alphabetical order."

Funniest sign in the Polo grounds Thursday was a huge banner reading: "All Brooklyn fans welcome." . . . The Brooklyn rooters returned the hospitality by unloosing a volley of fire crackers that almost blasted poor Mel Ott out of right field.

Buck Newsom: "You are wrong when you say I'm going like another feller. . . . I'm going like two other fellers."

Jim Twiss Wins Junior Golf Title

Toronto, July 6.—(CP)— Husky Jim Twiss, 18-year-old star of the Mississauga Golf Club, yesterday won the Ontario Junior Championship. The tourney was played over the winner's home course and attracted a large field.

In second place, and three strokes behind Twiss, were Don Varey of Brantford and Bob Spence of Toronto Summit who both carded 154.

Twiss's winning total of 151 was made up of a 73 count in the morning round and a 78 in the afternoon session.

It took eight holes to decide a playoff between Varey and Spence for recognition as runner-up. After being all even for seven holes Varey took the eighth with a par four, while Spence needed five, and the Brantforder gained the honors.

Ray Grieve of Islington, firing at his fourth junior title, finished with 157. Chuck Hamilton of Mississauga was next in the field with 76-82—158.

In the 19-year-old group Jack Forbes of Brantford carded a 85-89 for a 174 total. G. Chambers, Lindsay, with 167; Bruce Forbes, Brantford, 163; H. Cutting, Peterborough 167; Ian Lord, Petrolia, 176 and Fred Marks, Stratford, 170 completed in the 18 and 17-year-old section. Billy Fisher, Thornhill, won the title last year.

VIKINGS HOLD TOP POSITION BY DEFEATING METS

Lum Carson's Squad Rallies in Final Frames to Score 14-13 Win

TIDY TUSSLE

Errors in Outer Garden Spoiled Game to Some Extent — Both Infields Played Well

Coming from behind the Vikings eked out a 14 to 13 win over the Metros in their scheduled Ladies' Mercantile League game at the collegiate last evening. In winning the Vikings climbed back into the league leadership, disposing the Big-Z nine from the top rung of the ladder.

Although the Metros soundly outhit the victorious Vikings, Coach Lum Carson's lassies took full advantage of the miscues committed by the losers and scored an even half dozen unearned runs. The Mets booted the pellet around badly and many Viking singles rolled for extra bases, all of which added to the scoring. The Mets took a decided lead scoring five in the initial frame and three in the third. After notching three in the first two frames, however, the Vikings scored four runs in the third and fourth respectively to take the lead, which they never relinquished. Neither team scored over one run in any frame from the fourth on.

Two Home Runs.

Both Rita Rabbie and Jean Muir went the route, but the former was touched for sixteen safeties, including a homer by Edith Cook and a triple by Price. Tufts of the Mets led the hitters of the night with four bingles in six tries. Mary Wright hit for the circuit in the fifth for the Vikings, while Fleming blasted a triple and Woodcock a double all to help the winners. Pat Alexander held her pitcher up superbly and although several fine fielding chances were accepted with Rita Rabbie retiring the side single handed in the fifth and Norma Maker handling eight chances without a bobble, generally speaking there were too many errors in the outer garden. The K-nines and Vikings meet at the armouries on Monday instead of Tuesday next week.

Did you know that — President Shaughnessy of the International loop, is trying to speed up his ball games by limiting the bench managers from trotting out to the pitchers' mound more than once an inning.... That the 1941 "All-Star" major league game may be played in Detroit, while Brooklyn is angling for the 1942 fixture .... And that this year's All-Star fixture will be played in St. Louis on Tuesday next and to commemorate the occasion the St. Louis 'Sporting News,' the only all-baseball publication in the world, has issued a special souvenir edition? .... That the Voodoo failed by two miles to lower Pops Cooper's world 225 class speed boat racing honours at Picton last Tuesday morning in a trial run?.... That Freddie Lindstrom, former big leaguer, is now serving as chief instructor at a free baseball school in Chicago? .... That the Shell "Oilers" are planning a benefit softball game for next Thursday night, all proceeds to go to the purchase of sports equipment for the 34th battery.

It's the player who can think fastest that always comes out on top, regardless as to the type of sport played. As an example, during a Montreal at Jersey City game recently Woody Jensen bunted perfectly for the Little Giants on an attempted squeeze play, the runner from third scoring and Jensen reaching first. In the meantime the Royals' infield gathered about the slowly-rolling ball hoping it would roll foul. When it seemed certain that the ball would settle on fair territory, third baseman Bert Haas of the Royals, undaunted and with his face within inches of the ball, blew the spheriod over the chalk line a fraction of an inch into foul territory, where it settled for a foul ball. That, friends, is classed as ingenuity and reminds us of the day the late "Shiner" Johnson kicked a ball, that appeared to be rolling in towards fair territory. When he kicked it the ball was just outside the foul line when first touched. "Shiner" kicked it into the diamond to save it rolling in for a fair hit, but the moment he touched it the ball was a foul hit, exactly what Shiner wanted. The Oshawa nine screamed loud and long, but without avail. That's more ingenuity, and Shiner was filled with it.

Point Anne and Corbys A.C. fortified their positions in the Senior softball loop by beating the Uptowns and Picton respectively last night. At Coleman Flats the Corbys unleashed a barrage of extra base hits to dispose of Picton 14 to 0 and if the local softball moguls are anxious to get at their play-offs, why not discard Picton and finish out their local schedule, as the Prince Edward County nine is apparently too weak to even cope with the local juniors. Down at Ox Point it was too much 'Ding' Luffman as the Cementmen showed little respect for Steve Hook's slants to win 10 to 6. Now we find the Shell 'Oilers' leading the softball parade, with Point Anne second, Corbys third, the Uptowns next while Picton languishes in the cellar without a resemblance of a win thus far this year. Monday night the boys will be back at Coleman Flats with the Juniors and Corbys battling for third position.

The pitchers were to be pitied at the Collegiate last night, when the Vikings vaulted back into the leadership of the girls' softball loop by nosing out the Metros 14 to 13. This more especially goes for Jean Muir, who limited the Vikings to ten hits (a good mound effort thanks to Pat Alexander), but Jean's team mates literally tossed the match away. The Mets welcomed Rita Rabbie's deliveries for 16 safe hits, including a triple and Edith Cook's homer, but then couldn't win. Actually Coach Carson's nine took full advantage of the Mets' miscues, which is an important phase of the game and frequently results in victory, as was the case last night. Mary Wright hit the only other circuit blow of the night, but Tufts, of the Mets, was the big swatsmith with four hits in six tries. The Vikings are now leading Chuck Barnett's Big-Z team in a dogfight for first place. Tuesday night's game at the Armouries has been advanced to Monday owing to the Kinsmen's Soap Box Derby.

Reminiscing at a luncheon in Philadelphia last week, Rabbit Maranville, former major league infielder, revealed how he happened to enlist in the Navy during the first World War. "After the season closed in Boston, another guy and I went out to celebrate," related Maranville. "By morning we'd begun to run low on ideas and the thought occurred to us to join the colors. So we went to the Charlestown Navy Yard and joined a long line at the recruiting window. When the sun came up, I began to get a little shaky, and I said to my buddy, 'I'm dying—let's duck and grab a quickie.' Just then a big guy who knew me grabs us and leads us up to the head of the line for the examination. I woke up the next day and my arm was sore, along with my head, and I thought 'What the hell have I done now?' It's the only time in my life I ever got in a jam by not taking a drink."

Some keen bowling was enjoyed at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club last evening in a club tournament. The beauty of the bowling fraternity is their ability to welcome new members into the novice class. Games Chairman Cliff Argue has arranged trebles in which at least one novice bowler must be included on each team. Thus the new members feel they are part of the club and part of the game, not isolated as is the case in other sports and recreations in the matter of beginners. Another fine innovation is the giving of war savings stamps as weekly prizes. It may not appear to be much, but over the period of a full season a goodly sum can be realized to the benefit of the country and the bowler. Last night's club winners were—Chas. McGuire, Herb Middleton, Fred Harper, Charlie Hyde, Ernie Vanner, John Shaw, E. Rutherford, Clarence Clapp, Miss K. Lent, Mrs. T. Thompson, Harry Hales and another youth known as Kid Kar Colling, the baby bowler of the club.

SPORT SPICE—There will be no more senior Intercollegiate sports for the duration of the war it was announced today. . . . This means the abandoning of football, hockey, etc., by Queens, Varsity, McGill and Western, all of which comes as somewhat of a shock, as we understand Queens was about to spring a real rugby football surprise this fall. . . . Inter-mural sports will be played but for the greater part the sports stadiums will become drill and parade grounds, as military training will be introduced instead of sports. . . Trust those Daffy Dodgers to be in on everything and snatch the headlines.. . . . Yesterday the Brooklyns scored four runs in the 20th inning to beat the Boston Bees 6-2 in the longest game of the year. . . . Whenever lengthy extra inning games are played, trust the Dodgers to be on hand.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, July 6 (CP)—Slightly more weakness than strength was shown by the Toronto stock market today and trading volume touched record low for recent years. Fewer than 50,000 shares changed hands in the session.

In the industrials the utilities and steels boarded a preponderance of minor losses while the foods and senior oils held steady. Adjustments were mainly in small fractions. The market was down 3 points to 142 for Consumers Gas, Bell Telephone dropped a point to 134 and Canadian Canners A weakened a point to 17. Silverwoods pfd. eased off a half point. On the up side appeared Loblaw A, Westons and Canners B.

The golds spotted minor gains for Wright Hargreaves, Lake Shore, Broulan, Moneta, Macassa, Sylvanite, Naybob and East Malartic, while Canadian Malartic and McWatters were down slightly.

A loss of 5 cents to 1.75 for Falconbridge for a broken lot was about the only change in the base metal list. Smelters and Noranda held firm with only odd lots trading.

Secretary Hull Against Running For Vice President

Washington, July 6 (AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull was described by close friends today as cool to the idea of running for Vice-President of the United States on a Democratic ticket headed by President Roosevelt.

These persons said they had been advised that Hull would turn down the second place nomination if he were consulted in advance of the balloting at the Democratic convention. They added, however, that he probably would accept if the convention "drafted" him.

High sources said earlier this week that Mr. Roosevelt has decided to accept a third term nomination and wants the 68-year-old Hull as his running mate.

Friends of Vice-President John Garner, a contender for the presidential nomination who also has been mentioned for second place, said he was "not interested" in another term in his present office.

Toronto-Montreal Produce Market

Toronto, July 6. — The Toronto open produce market improved in tone this week. Eggs continued to feature dealings, showing advances ranging to 2 cents per dozen. Prices edged up for butter, and cheese held in better trading.

Seasonal decrease in receipts and maintained consumption due to the cool weather caused the advance on the egg market. The week's arrivals of top grades were barely sufficient to cover demand.

Offerings moved more readily after a quiet opening on the butter market during the week, although the slight upward curve in prices restricted yesterday's business. The market on the top grade Ontario product closed Friday at 21½c to 21¾c per pound, with very little available at the lower figure and buyers not inclined to pay the higher rate. Sentiment was improved this week by the figures of the nine cities which indicated a better statistical position for the Canadian butter industry. Late last evening, however, a correction from Ottawa revealed that total holdings in the nine cities were only 132,000 pounds lower than a year ago as of July 1, and not 889,000 pounds as previously shown. Current supplies of fresh make are now expected to follow the seasonal decline in production, which has just about passed the peak for this year.

Believe French At Alexandria May Accept Demands

Alexandria, July 6 (AP)—British sources here expressed belief today that the French fleet at Alexandria shortly will accept British demands regarding disposition of the French warships.

British officials, it is understood, have given Vice-Admiral Godfroy, commanding the units at Alexandria, additional time to make his decision.

Informed sources said the French commanders are unable to order their ships to leave the port because they have been informed no vessel will be permitted to depart, for fear it may afll into German or Italian hands.

These sources, however, declined to predict what future action might develop.

It is understood the terms laid down to the French units here are the same as those handed the French at Mers-El-Keiber—fighting with the Royal navy, turning the ships over, or ensuring that the ships will not fall into German possession.

BUDGET ADOPTED

Final approval of the budget came after two amendments advanced from the left were defeated. A New Democracy proposal that credit and currency be issued by the Bank of Canada for war financing, until maximum production was reached, was supported by 17 C.C.F. and N.D. members.

Only 17 Supported Amendment

The C.C.F.'s amendment urging 100 per cent taxation of excess profits, instead of 75 per cent as proposed in the budget, was supported not only by these 17 members but also by the 28 Conservatives present. When that was defeated, however, the Conservatives endorsed the budget as it was.

The Commons will now proceed to implement the various tax proposals included in the budget by considering separate resolutions on each. The new taxation will produce an estimated $280,000,000 additional revenue, to bring total revenue up near $800,000,000. Expenditures exceeding $1,100,000,000 are envisioned during the year.

This budget was both first and last for Hon. J. L. Ralston. Shortly after the House adjourned, he dropped the finance portfolio and was sworn in as Minister of National Defence, succeeding the late Hon. Norman Rogers.

Ilsley May Succeed Ralston

Col. Ralston's successor as Finance Minister—expected to be Revenue Minister J. L. Ilsley—will be announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the House of Commons Monday. At that time the Prime Minister will also make "such other statements as to cabinet matters as may be appropriate to make at the time."

The retiring Finance Minister drew a round of applause as he rose to record his vote for the budget.

At the opening yesterday, the Prime Minister made a brief statement concerning the British fleet's difficulties in keeping the French fleet from German or Italian hands. Action of the British fleet could not be regarded as "directed against France; rather was it action against ships that already, for all practical purposes, were German and Italian instruments of war.

"If the Bordeaux Government acted under the compulsion of the conqueror, the British navy acted equally under the compulsion of its great responsibility for the preservation of the liberties of the world."

Contradicted Report

Mr. King flatly contradicted a report published in one French-language daily that mobilization of the first two military classes would begin Monday. It would begin when the Defence Department was ready to handle that work, he said.

Karl Homuth (Con. Waterloo South) declared in the debate patronage was "rampant" and Mark Senn (Con. Haldimand) said the Dufferin Construction Company building an airport at Dunnville, Ont., would employ only those with a card from the local Liberal organization.

Conservative Leader Hanson said he had an instance in which patronage controlled the rental of space in Fredericton by the National Defence Department. He said he would give particulars to the government.

COMPULSORY

Training in the new university organization will be along the lines taken by the non-permanent active militia in training privates.

For the duration of the war all intercollegiate sports will be cancelled, enabling all students to devote all possible time to preparing themselves for military service.

As needed they may be called for active duty in Canada on the same basis as men drafted for training in the non-permanent active militia under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Just when and how the act will operate otherwise in the calling up of manpower has yet to be announced but the matter is receiving constant attention by government and defence department officials.

It has been suggested there will be no exemptions for family reasons, the service consisting of part time work and merely for home defence. Indications are it will consist of a month in camp for draftees and training during the year in the evenings as militia men.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons the call for men would be made when the Defence Department was ready to make it and some time back Hon. C. G. Power, as acting defence minister, said every able bodied man up to the age of 45 would have not only the opportunity but the obligation to serve in the militia.

Not Interfere With War Industries

However, the mobilization law will not be permitted to interfere with essential war industries. Men engaged in such work may be excused from camp training and take part-time training during the year.

It is expected many thousands of Canadians will receive training this summer, either as voluntary N.P.A.M. recruits or draftees. Canadian Active Service Force men will receive first call on training camp space, then volunteer militia men and then draftees.

First call for men between the ages of 20 and 27 or 30 may go out sometime in August depending on availability of camp space, it is said here.

The decision of the university heads and the defence department officials is the first announced step towards implementing the compulsory sections of the mobilization bill.

The C.O.T.C. has been organized in most universities for many years and has provided many men with qualifications for commissions in the Canadian Active Service Force.

Many universities also will provide C.O.T.C. courses for graduates, the classes being given in evenings and including lectures, drill and perhaps small arms firing instruction.

ITALIAN CABINET

In the meantime Count Ciano and a delegation of his foreign ministry aides sped to Berlin today for a conference with German officials, possibly concerning a diplomatic move in the Balkans.

Although some quarters felt that the meeting might discuss an axis war move, perhaps a joint German-Italian attack on Britain, Foreign observers assumed the object was diplomatic because Mussolini sent foreign ministry officials with Ciano rather than military officers.

An official announcement, issued more than 12 hours after Ciano's departure, said the visit was on invitation of the German government.

(In Berlin, the Government announced that Ciano would arrive tomorrow for a visit of several days, but German spokesmen said they were unable to discuss the purpose of the invitation.)

NAZI CHALLENGE

Congressional reaction followed the same line. Denying any German implication that the United States is meddling in Europe, Pittman told reporters that such a charge "may have been made as a justification for a future violation of the Monroe Doctrine."

Endorsing Hull's "sturdy declaration", Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Michigan) added, however, that he believed the doctrine also meant the United States should "stay out of Europe".

German Note Received.

Hull disclosed at his daily press conference yesterday the receipt of a German note in reply to this country's statement to the Reich June 18 that it would not "recognize" nor "acquiesce" in any transfers of hemisphere territory from one non-American nation to another.

Hard behind that statement came Hull's notice to the German embassy, growing out of an interview quoting Baron Edgar von Spiegel, German Consul General at New Orleans, as saying Germany would not forget United States aid to her enemies.

While acknowledging that von Spiegel apparently did not know he was speaking for publication, the department reminded the embassy that foreign diplomats cannot "properly" discuss this country's policies and still remain here.

President Roosevelt's references to democratic government were made at his press conference in Hyde Park yesterday. He declared that the democratic freedoms are essential corollaries to peace and expressed regret that some Americans seem to favor a corporate state.

BRITISH SEEKING

There was no comment in official circles on word from the French island of Martinique, in the West Indies, that British cruisers had been seen near the island.

(In Fort de France, Martinique, the French admiralty asserted no question existed regarding control of any French planes there.)

Declined Comment

(In Washington, Secretary of State Cordell Hull declined comment on reports in diplomatic quarters that British warships had moved into the vicinity of Martinque to pounce upon any ships emerging.)

Britain's fortress of Gibraltar, western key to the Mediterranean, underwent its first aerial attack yesterday. Several bombs were dropped during three raids but most of them fell into the sea.

(A Madrid broadcast heard here asserted it had been "established" that the raiding planes were French, presumably intent on avenging the British naval attack on French warships at Mers El-Kebir, Algeria, Thursday, and possibly flown by German crews.)

(In Algeciras, Spain, across the Strait of Gibraltar, it was said that three British cruisers, damaged off Mers El-Kebir, had landed the bodies of 30 British seamen killed in the action, and that a French armed vessel had escaped from Gibraltar.)

Raiders Renew Raids

As Britain cleared a 12,000 square mile area in the southern coast for a defensive "No Man's Land", German warplanes renewed their daily forays.

A communique of the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security reported one minor casualty and damage to some houses when German aircraft dropped bombs in a town on the south coast this morning.

The communique said one German plane was shot down and reported "no damage or casualties" in a raid last night, asserting the raiders "only penetrated a few miles in one direction in the northeast" after crossing the coast.

Later it was announced that another German plane was shot down in the sea by R.A.F. fighters after it dropped three bombs on a southeast coast town.

BANDMASTERS ENTERTAINED AT COUNTRY CLUB

Ald. McLean Haig as Acting Mayor Welcomed Visitors to the City

TOASTS PROPOSED

Entertaining the visiting bandmasters who are in the city to attend the Dominion Bandmasters' Association Convention, the Belleville Municipal Band members were the hosts to a delightful dinner party staged at the Country Club last evening. About thirty-five visiting bandmasters were in attendance, many of whom expressed their appreciation of the welcome afforded them as delegates to the convention.

In giving the civic welcome to the visitors, Ald. MacLean Haig, acting Mayor, spoke of Belleville, as a musical centre and of the wonderful work which the Belleville Municipal Band was doing in regards to the advancement of band work in the city. He spoke of the credit the old Belleville Kilties Band had brought to Bellevile under the management of Mr. T. P. J. Power.

Mr. Leo Riggs proposed the toast to the Bandmaster's Association, speaking of the days when he first started in the band under his father, the late W. B. Riggs, and attributed his start in a musical career to his band experience in Belleville.

Responding to the above toast, Mr. Robert Moore of Aurora, gave an outline of how band experience helps young men to build up their musical knowledge so as to enable them to take their place in musical service to their community. He spoke of how music had helped to form character, both in the playing and in the reading of the lives of the great masters. He advised all musicians to study music so as to be able to met the public and to aid in training others.

Toast to Band

The toast to the Municipal Band was made by Lieut. J. Andrews Wiggins of Toronto, Sec. of the Dominion Bandmasters' Association. Mr. Wiggins said that he had a good many friends in Belleville and stated how proud he was to know that the work which he had done in starting local public school band, had made such rapid strides. He had realized his life's ambition he said in seeing the boys' bands attaining their rightful place. What would a city, town or village do, he asked, without a band? Every small community should have band, he concluded.

In responding to the above toast, Mr. Walter Aselstine, president of the Belleville Municipal Band, stated how proud he was to be the head of the Belleville Band. He had started in band work back in 1902, he said, and had been a regular bandsman since then. He felt that perhaps the people in the older days thought more of their bands than they do today. If the people today would rally and support their band by attending the concerts which their band staged, music would mean more to them and the playing of the band would also improve.

The Belleville Municipal Band has contributed approximately $700 to the different war service organizations since the war started, Mr. Aselstine stated, and he challenged any of the visiting bandmasters to equal what the local organization had accomplished. The board has pledged itself to lend every effort to further the money war chest, he said. In closing he told the visiting bandsmen that the Belleville Municipal Band had been in constant service since 1877.

Delighted With City.

Capt. Goulet of the 65th Regiment of Montreal spoke of how delighted he was with the city of Belleville and he hoped that circumstances would enable him to spend his holidays in this district. Speaking of band work he said that the lack of atendance at band concerts was not the fault with the musicians but merely because the people did not care to take the effort to attend.

Mr. Harry Mcorman, chairman of the Board of Band Trustees, referred to the band as an organization and gave his listeners an incite into the workings of the Band Tax Law. He expressed his appreciation of the stimulant which the Bandmasters' Association has been to the local band.

Bandmaster Fred Jobson thanked the City Council and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for the assistance they had rendered toward making the convention possible and also to many others who had given their time and efforts toward this end. Approximately 75 persons were present at the dinner.

Police Blotter

Crime has hit a new low level in Belleville during the past week, not a single serious offence having come before the attention of the city law-enforcing agencies.

Constables Arnott and Ellis investigated a motor accident at the intersection of John and Dundas Sts. last evening and returned to the police station with Borden Byrnes of Plainfield, who was detained for questioning after a rear end motor crash.

John Wilson, 111 Chatham St., told police he had stopped on John St. to observe the stop sign when Byrnes' car collided with the rear of his car, as the second vehicle was following in the wake.

Ted Smith, 340 Burnham St., reported his bicycle had been stolen from its parking position near the Post Office. Later the police recovered the bike abadoned on East Bridge St., apparently taken by a joyrider.

Complaints that a man was singing, shouting and generally disturbing the peace led to the apprehension and detention of Peter Lewis of this city, late last night. Lewis was released on his own bail, however.

Three men procured food at the Guild Restaurant sometime after 3.00 a.m. today and left the premises without paying for the meals. The trio ran to a nearby coupe and escaped before the restaurant attendants could stop them. Constables Arnott and Taylor patrolled the city in search of the men without traces of their whereabouts resulting.

Only three transients sought shelter at the police station last night.

Winnipeg Exchange May Close After End of Crop Year

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 6—(CP)— The Dominion Government will defer for about 10 days its decision whether the Winnipeg Grain Exchange will remain open after the end of the crop year, July 31, an authoritative source told The Canadian Press today.

On June 1, Trade Minister MacKinnon announced, following wide fluctuations in world wheat quotations which had necessitated pegging of prices, that the Exchange would remain open at least until the end of the crop year.

(At that time futures quotations on the Winnipeg market were pegged at 71 3-8 cents for July wheat and 73 5-8 for October. Since then cash prices too have been pegged).

Since Mr. MacKinnon's announcement, Members of Parliament and grain growers have been pressing the Minister to say what is going to happen after July 31.

The government also promised to appoint an advisory board to assist the Canadian Wheat Board in handling the wheat situation and this week the Minister was asked when he proposed to announce the personnel of that advisory board.

The War This Week

Cable Editor)

Elimination of the possibility of the French fleet joining the enemy continued upheaval in the Balkans and Nazi air raids on the British Isles, increasing in boldness each day, were the principal events of the 44th week of the war.

Boarding parties of British tars took over a third of the French navy in British ports. Another third was put out of action in the Mediterranean by a British battle force, while the remaining units were closely guarded at Alexandria and Casablanca or hunted at sea.

Rumania's Changes

Rumania was given a Nazi-type government in the hope of attracting German support to keep out Hunary and Bulgaria following the Red Army's occupation of northern Bucovina and Bessarabia. Moscow was said to have made further demands.

The biggest of the daily German raids was directed at Portland naval base, where 20 bombers sank three small naval vessels. England, Scotland and Wales were visited during the week and several score civilians were killed or wounded.

German U-boats were active in attacking British shipping, but hit a blow at themselves in sinking the Canada-bound liner Arandora Star which had some 2,000 German and Italian prisoners aboard. About half of them lost their lives.

Britain's Melancholy Task

Prime Minister Churchill's statement on the action against the French fleet spoke of the "melancholy" task the Royal Navy had been obliged to carry out.

The German and Italian governments expressed anger at losing the French vessels and the Petain government sent a "stern" protest to London.

In East Africa and on the Egypt-Libya border there was small scale fighting between British and Italian forces. The Italians raided Alexandria and Malta without causing damage to the British fleet. Britain announced she would not allow the enemy to occupy French-mandated Syria.

Channel Islands

The Germans occupied the Channel Islands, which previously had been demilitarized. Part of the population and all prize cattle had been removed.

Glancing back 25 years: Two liners and four other British ships were torpedoed in the week of June 30-July 6, 1915. On the western front the Allied and German armies engaged in trench warfare. In the east the Russians fell back toward Warsaw.

Intercollegiate Calendar of Sports Completely Abandoned For Duration of The War

Ottawa, July 6—(CP)—A decision of Canadian university heads and the Defence Department, predicated on the new war training plan left the calendar of intercollegiate sport competition bare today.

Such a move had been under consideration for some time but it was definitely decided to abandon intercollegiate sports activity last night at a university-National Defence Department conference here.

The news came as part of an announcement that all male students in Canadian universities would receive compulsory training in soldiery. Intercollegiate sports were abandoned for the duration of the war to give students more time to devote to training.

It means no more autumn football feuding, no more winter hockey, basketball and other activities normally on the intercollegiate schedule.

Generally it means Canada's campus playing fields will become drill grounds except for intra-mural sports which will continue as part of physical training.

Details Not Known

Details of the concellation of the intercollegiate sports schedules will not be made known until the plan for compulsory training has been completely worked out. It was understood, however, the cancellation applied to all sports events.

Dr. A. S. Lumb, director of the Department of Physical Education at McGill University, said the move was merely part of the universities' efforts to do all in their power "to help the country pursue the war to the utmost."

He said universities would now map out individual programs for intra-mural sports so that all students could take part without losing men from military training.

Wilbur (Wib))Nixon, athletic coach of the University of Ottawa said "it means we will devote more time to C.O.T.C. work at which we've been busy already." He added sports at Ottawa University would follow the intra-mural pattern.

As the universities turn from their major sporting events to the job of producing officers and men for the armed services the public perhaps will be mostly concerned with wiping out of the senior intercollegiate football schedule.

Heretofore this has brought together each autumn teams from the Universities of Toronto, McGill, Queen's and Western.

To Ask Farmers About Hog Raising Plans

In times such as we are experiencing at the present time there is a strong desire on the part of all loyal citizens to assist in any way possible. There are many ways that assistance may be given and some contribution that may seem very insignificant at present may assume great proportions in the future.

In August the Bacon Board will be required to forecast the Canadian bacon production for the next year. This week many farmers across Canada will be asked for information regarding their hog raising plans for the next year, and it will be on the basis of the information received that the Bacon Board will make their plans for the next contract with the British Ministry of Food.

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of July 5, 1940, are as follows:

All War Industries Will Come Under Former Head of Steel Section of Board

NAME CONTROLLERS

Ottawa, July 6—(CP)—Progress in organizing the industrial resources of the nation to more effective war effort was reported today with the announcement of the appointment of Hugh D. Scully as Chairman of the War Industries Control Board.

Mr. Scully is head of the steel section of the board. Other controllers are H. R. McMillan, timber; G. C. Bateman, mines and metals; and G. R. Cottrelle, oil.

Announcing the appointment of Mr. Scully, Customs Commissioner in the National Revenue Department, to the chair following the first meeting of the board, Mr. Howe said: "The function of the new board is to co-ordinate with the mobilization of individual industries to war needs."

A. W. Merriman of the National Revenue Department has been appointed secretary of the board.

The Department of Munitions and Supply has taken these three forward steps in the matter of procuring commodities essential to the prosecution of the war, officials said:

1. Controllers have been appointed to basic industries and the board is now co-ordinating their efforts.

2 Several companies owned by the government have been created.

3. The department has organized an economic section to deal with the wider aspects of the problem of supply.

The works of the War Industries Control Board, having wide powers extending to confiscation, includes not only the co-ordination of the efforts of individual controllers but also co-operation with the Foreign Exchange Control Board and other governmental agencies.

Companies set up by the government such as the Citadel Merchandising Company, engaged in finding machine tools, are charged with the work of maintaining supplies of important or essential materials. Another company recently formed is the Federal Aircraft limited which is developing and expediting the airplane construction program.

Nazi Accuses Dutch Of 'Unlawful Attitude' To Hun Occupation

Speed-up of Empire Air Plan Praised by Australian Press

Sydney, July 6 — (CP-Cable)—Australian newspapers yesterday praised Canada's decision to speed up the Empire Air Training scheme as much as possible.

Air force men here strongly advocate a similar speed-up here but a shortage of aircraft and the difficulty of obtaining planes from the United States present a serious obstacle.

The government is consulting Britain on the subject and some officials are urging that if Canada could train a larger number of Australian recruits they should be sent to Canada as rapidly as possible, even if entirely untrained.

The cabinet is reviewing its military plans in the light of the new developments in Europe and the Far East. John Curtin, Labor leader, is demanding an early secret session of parliament.

The board refused him permission to return to his native country. Stegerer, who enlisted in February and was honorably discharged after injuries made it impossible for him to continue, said he believed his case might have set a precedent for hundreds of other Americans who gave oaths of allegiance to King George VI when they joined the C.A.S.F.

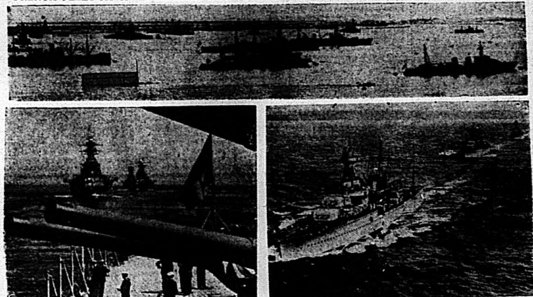
FRENCH FLEET AT ALEXANDRIA NOW UNDER BRITISH GUNS AS SEQUEL TO ORAN BATTLE



The photo at TOP was made as units of the British and French fleets lay under anchor in the harbor of Alexandria, Egypt, ready to challenge Italian or German moves in the Mediterranean. They were allies then—but now the French warships in the harbor are virtually under guard of a battle squadron of British ships. In announcing details of the battle of Oran in which strong French units were damaged or sunk to prevent them from surrendering to Germany and Italy, Prime Minister Churchill stated that the French commander at Alexandria was faced with a similar ultimatum demanding co-operation with Britain. He also stated that French naval units would be taken over by Britain wherever they are located. A number of cruisers, destroyers and submarines of the French fleet are unaccounted for at present, and at RIGHT three French men-of-war are shown during a recent cruise. They are the cruisers Georges Leygues (leading) and her sister ships, the Montcalm and the Gloire. At LEFT, a view of heavy British warships of the Mediterranean fleet is shown. Several of Britain's most powerful vessels participated in the Oran engagement.

PREMIER MAY RESIGN

This Action Would Leave Way Open for an Iron Guard Gov't, Sympathetic to the Reich to be Formed

Bucharest, July 8—(AP)— The collapse of Premier Ion Gigurtu's five-day-old pro-German cabinet appeared possible late today following the resignation of four Iron Guard members.

Iron Guardists said the Ministers resigned because the party wishes to have a cabinet composed solely of the Iron Guard.

Gigurtu either may fill the vacant posts with other Right Extremists or, more likely, himself resign, leaving the way open for an Iron Guard government.

The way was believed open by an "understanding" the Iron Guard—Rumanian Nazis—was reported to have reached with Juliu Maniu, leader of the powerful peasant party.

Circles close to the Guard's leadership said that if 'a real Iron Guard government is set up' the party could on the support of Maniu. The party now holds only four of the 18 posts in the Gigurtu government.

Some Iron Guardists described the present regime as "an interim government".

The program on which both the Iron Guard and Maniu were said to have agreed was described as follows:

1. Division of the Jewish population into categories so restrictions could be introduced "without disrupting Rumania's economic life." Exemptions from anti-Semitic re-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meterologist

Atmosphere and vision! If air were absolutely quiet there would be no scintillation or twinkling of stars or planets. But atmosphere is never quite in that condition. There are always uneven layers of air always in motion as wind and in addition there are up and down currents all of which produce twinkling of stars at night or a quivering of distant objects during the day. On warm summer days this quivering or shimmering is often markedly noticed, particularly in looking through the atmosphere over a heated surface, as a paved road. This condition is often called "optical haze", because the haze is not due to dust particles but to the air having different densities through which one is looking.

Aircraft Production Double of Year Ago

London, July 8—(CP)— Lord Beaverbrook, Minister for Aircraft Production, announced yesterday that British aircraft production in June more than doubled the total in the same month last year.

His statement said increased quantities of aircraft and engines were purchased in the United States in recent weeks. The total value of aircraft orders amounts to more than $1,000,000,000, he said.

Admitting he is an "optimistic man," Lord Beaverbrook said American aircraft arriving in Britain represent a "considerable contribution to our air fleet and, if the seas remain as free to us as they are today, shipments of aircraft reaching us from America will soon give us an additional output in Cairo, Egypt, July 8—(AP)—Nine civilians were killed and one wounded in an Italian air raid over Malta yesterday which was intercepted by British fighters, the headquarters communique of the Royal Air Force announced today.

The text of the statement:

"During an air raid at Malta yesterday our fighters intercepted the enemy and shot down one of their aircraft.

"Nine civilians were killed and one wounded in the course of the raid.

"The previous night the enemy carried out another raid. Only slight damage was done. One civilian was injured. One enemy aircraft was reported brought down by anti-aircraft fire."

Huge Atom Smasher To Project Matter 25,000 Miles Second

Philadelphia, July 8—(AP)— A giant "atom smasher" capable of projecting particles of matter with a velocity of 25,000 miles a second, will be built at the University of Pennsylvania for cancer research and treatment.

The cyclotron, which will weigh 250 tons and cost $200,000 is the gift of William Henry Donner, retired Pennsylvania steelmaster, whose son, Joseph, died of cancer in 1929.

For therapeutic work, the energy of the machine will be equivalent to that of about 200 pounds of radium.

Richard Greene and Other Actors To Answer Britain's Call

Hollywood, July 8 (AP).—Britain has called home its motion picture actors between the ages of 18 and 31. Other British subjects in the film colony temporarily will aid their homeland in other ways.

Handsome Richard Greene said he would go to England as soon as possible. His studio has several picture assignments in view for him, with the first scheduled to start in about a month.

Like most of the other British actors, here, Greene volunteered his services several months ago but was instructed to remain in Hollywood until further notice.

Other younger actors affected by the call included Richard Ainley, Hughie Green and Robert Coote. Past 31 in age are such figures as Laurence Olivier, Cary Grant, Ray Milland, Errol Flynn, Louis Hayward, Brian Aherne and Herbert Marshall.

Grant is donatinfg $150,000, his salary from his new film, "Philadelphia Story". to British war charity. Charles Laughton for some time has earmarked all of his radio earnings for war relief and Red Cross. Ronald Colman and others have made similar gifts.

A committee working under Dame May Whitty and Boris Karloff has arranged to bring to California sixty children from the British Actors' Orphanage in England. A special film appeal by Anna Neagle already has raised $100,000 for the Red Cross. Gracie Fields soon will head a group of British celebrities on a tour of Canada in quest of $500,000 for war relief.

David Niven, English reserve officer, joined his regiment last October and is in England. The American-born Robert Montgomery recently returned from ambulance service in France.

And Basil Rathbone, who himself won decorations in the last war, has sent his 23-year-old son, Rodion, off to Toronto to offer his services.

'Inch by Inch We Shall Win Europe Back From Darkness'

Michael Huxley at Washington Predicts World Without Conquerors or Ruling Race

FREE PEOPLES' AID

Rochester, N.Y., July 8 (AP)—Europe will emerge "from darkness," although "the German appetite for domination is insatiable and will not stop short of an attempt to bring the whole world under its sway," Michael Huxley, first secretary of the British Embassy in Washington, told the Quadrennial Convention of the Polish Falcons Alliance of America yesterday.

"Inch by inch with the support of the remaining free peoples, we shall win Europe back from darkness; and we shall build there a system in which there will be no conquerors, no ruling race; but one in which the advance of western civilization may be resumed more securely than ever before," he said.

SWASTIKA PULLED DOWN

Vichy, France, July 8—(AP)— A Havas News Agency report says Edouard Herriot, as Mayor of Lyon, and Pierre Cardinal Gerlier were present today when German troops pulled down the swastika, signifying the end of the city's occupation.

French motorized units moved in to carry on "police work" previously superintended by German forces, it was added.

(Herriot previously had been reported in England.)

King Haakon Refuses Demand of Pro-Nazis That He Abdicate

London, July 8—(CP)—King Haakon of Norway rejected today a demand by the German-dominated Norwegian administration in Oslo that he abdicate.

The King has been in England since his country was forced to capitulate to Germany when all British forces were required to meet the German drive into France.

The Oslo administration was reported negotiating for a new pro-German regime without the King.

The King is to broadcast a statement from Buckingham Palace at 9 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT.)

(The broadcast will be carried by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation on its national network.)

FRANCE'S SLOGAN MAY BE CHANGED

Liberty, Equality, Fraternity May be Replaced by Labor, Family ,Fatherland, in New Constitution

Grenoble, France, July 8—(AP)—France's slogan "Liberte, egalite, fraternite" (liberty, equality, fraternity) may be replaced in the new "constitution" being drafted by Premier Henri Petain's totalitarian government by the words "travail, famille, patrie" (labor, family, fatherland.)

A dispatch from Vichy seat of the government, to the newspaper Le Petit Dauphinous today said Vice-

HERALD CARTOONS PETAIN AND ATTACKS EX-PREMIER LAVAL

London, July 8 (CP)—The Daily Herald in a cartoon today pictured Premier Henri Petain as a sour old man forcing a weeping Marianne—France—at shotgun point to a sign: "Divorce from the British."

In its leading editorial the newspaper denounced Vice-Premier Pierre Laval as "France's petty Fuehrer." It asserted that "behind the senile, pathetic relic Petain stands the real organizer of treachery — the mean-spirited, perfidious trickster, Laval."

2 AMBASSADORS DISCUSS DEMANDS AGAINST TURKEY

Alexei Terentiev and Franz Von Papen Hold One-Hour Conference at Istanbul

ITALY RELUCTANT

Istanbul, July 8—(AP)— Russian Ambassador Alexei Terentiev was reported en route to Moscow today aboard the Black Sea steamer Svanecia following a one-hour conference here with Franz von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey.

Informed sources said the two Ambassadors had discussed demands which Russia is expected to make upon Turkey shortly.

In Turkish political circles a note from Russia setting forth these demands was expected some time after Terentiev reaches Moscow.

Speculation concerned the possibility Russia might ask for concessions in the Dardanelles, fortified straits guarding the entrance to the Black Sea, or in the Kars region of the Caucasus, which Russia lost in the World War.

Foreign diplomats say they understand Germany, Italy and Russia are working closely together in deciding what attitude should be taken toward Turkey, which last fall signed a mutual assistance pact with Britain and France.

Many of these expressed belief that Germany was fully supporting Russian demands for an extension of Russian interests in this area.

Diplomatic circles expressed belief that Italy, although reluctant to see Russia approach the Mediterranean, would likewise have to support Moscow.

Turkey, meanwhile, continued intensive military preparations to meet any eventuality.

CLOSING OF PORTS HELP TO JAPAN

Would Aid Country to Successfully Conclude War With China Says Spokesman

Tokyo, July 8—(AP)—Closing of French Indo-China and British Burma to Chinese exports as well as imports would be "a desirable step" from the Japanese viewpoint to hasten successful conclusion of the war with China, Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, said today.

Suma expressed this opinion in comment on radio reports from Indo-China that demands already had been presented to French and British authorities to shut off the Chinese export trade.

He added, however, that he could not say negotiations in this direction actually had begun.

Japan has been seeking recently to stop the flow of munitions into China through both Indo-China and Burma by representations to French and British authorities.

Asked whether similar representations might be made to Soviet Russia, a large Chinese source of

Riotous Disorders Accompany Mexico's Presidential Elections

Between 50 and 100 Killed and Widespread Irregularities Reported

AMERICANS WOUNDED

By BEN F. MEYER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Mexico City, July 8—(AP)—Riotous disorders which accompanied Mexico's presidential elections yesterday were estimated today to have taken between 50 and 100 lives and reports of widespread irregularities threatened to complicate the task of determining the outcome of the voting.

An unofficial count showed at least 30 persons dead in Mexico City alone, while scores—perhaps hundreds—were reported wounded during pitched battles which surged through the streets of the capital.

Some reports from the Provinces indicated that the total injured might be in the thousands.

Among the casualties in the capital were two American students — Edward J. Mallen, Jr., of Franni, Wyoming, who was reported near death with a pistol wound in the stomach, and Leonard Durso, 18, of Union City, N.J., who was gravely wounded by a rifle bullet.

Both General Manuel Avila Camacho, Administration candidate, and his Independent rival General Juan Andreu Almazan, issued statements claiming overwhelming victory.

The actual canvass of returns, however, will not be made until Thursday and the official result will not be announced by Congress until September.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT

No Hostilities Against Britain Planned by France Says French Spokesman at Vichy

By Charles S. Foltz, Jr.,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Geneva, July 8.—(AP)—Reports from France during the past few days were interpreted today to indicate that by Wednesday or Thursday parliament, meeting at Vichy, will give the government of Premier Petain powers almost as absolute as those wielded by the heads of the totalitarian states which defeated France.

Travellers from portions of the country unoccupied by German troops described the French public and many of its republican leaders as "dazed by defeat" and scarcely interested in the proceedings at Vichy.

A dispatch from Vichy said the French press described the new constitution to be drafted for France as "corporative" a term Fascists apply to the Italian government, and quoted Vice-Premier Pierre Laval as declaring it would be permanent rather than temporary.

Petain Impressed By France

Reports by persons present at government meetings at Bordeaux and Vichy describe Petain who was France's first ambassador to the Spanish Nationalist government, as "tremendously impressed" by General Franco's plans for Spain.

"Extensive Damage" Caused to Planes on Ground at Eschwege — Britain Claims 112 Machines Brought Down Since Air Raids on Britain Began

London, July 8 (CP). — Britain maintained the upper hand over Nazi air raiders today as her own fliers returned blow for blow.

Several persons were believed to have been killed and some damage was causd in towns of northeast, southeast and southwest England as the Germans continued the air forays from which Britain has had but one day of respite since June 18.

Royal Air Force planes brought down two of the German raiders. One of the forays, on a southwest town, was made by a "gliding" bomber which flew several miles with its engines shut off and arrived over the town unheard.

New information added an entire family of five to the toll of dead in a western England town last night. All were killed by one bomb. Four other families, taking shelter indoors, were buried under their caved in homes when bombs fell in a residential area.

TWO-HOUR PARLEY BY HITLER, CIANO

Meeting Presumably Intended to Co-ordinate Rome-Berlin Policies

Berlin, July 8 (AP).—Hitler and Italian Foreign Minister Ciano conferred two hours here yesterday in deepest secrecy and plan to meet again Wednesday for another talk, presumably intended to coordinate the Rome-Berlin policies.

Official circles were uncommunicative concerning the topics which Hitler and Ciano discussed yesterday in the fuehrer's chancellery but it was believed generally recent events in southeastern Europe held an important place, but the fact Ciano lacked military advisers was taken to indicate that they dealt primarily with diplomatic problems.

Ciano arrived in Berlin by train shortly before noon yesterday and was met at Anhalter station by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian Ambassador Dino Alfieri.

Both accompanied him to his conference an hour later with Hitler. Hans-Georgviktor Mackensen, German Ambassador to Rome, also was present.

Hitler Horde's Must 'Smarten Up' If They Intend to Invade Britain

London, July 8—(CP)— Hitler hordes bent on an air invasion of Britain will have to be smarter and tougher than the Nazis who tried to take certain British airports in France. The Tommies repulsed every threat.

In operations south of the Somme, says the story released by the Ministry of Information, it was obvious to the high command that attacks by parachutists and possibly by air-borne troops would be made on certain large airports in the heart of the British Expeditionary Force's line of communications at Rouen. The British were ready.

British fighter airplanes were kept "at the ready" and troops were placed to deal with any landings. Infantry and machine-gun action was co-ordinated and the anti-aircraft artillery had their guns laid directly over the airports where enemy airplanes might be expected to appear.

Early one morning in the first week of June about 60 German bombers, escorted by 12 fighters, appeared over the airdrome. Heavy anti-aircraft fire dispersed the leading formations and they were attacked by British fighters who shot down a dozen enemy planes. The formation turned back and further attacks during the day were repulsed.

The defending force at one airport was drawn from the personnel of a divisional headquarters and included cooks, drivers and storemen armed with their rifles and a few Lewis and Bren guns. During the biggest attack one day by 30 machines, two or three German planes were shot down by small arms and light automatic fire.

Proudest man in the crowd was a Corporal named O'Neill from the Cameronians who was in charge of the divisional headquarters' cookhouse. With a Lewis gun he shot down a German plane which fell in flames not far from his post.

The Nazis made no further efforts to land but confined themselves to bombing from great heights.

40 Nazi Planes Bagged In Past Fortnight

London, July 8—(CP)—The Times in an editorial on the air war said today the Air Ministry reckoned that "40 German airplanes have been brought down in the past fortnight and that some 2,500 in all have been destroyed by British forces alone since the war began."

"The weekend has been particularly rich in daring examples of the varied and ubiquitous duties which our airmen are daily performing," The Times said.

"It was calculated on Friday that 74 Italian airplanes had been destroyed, mostly in air fights, since Italy entered war. In addition 30 had been heavily damaged and probably are out of commission."

German and Italian War Machine Disrupted from Narvik to Ethiopia

MEDITERRANEAN NEXT?

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 8—(CP Cable) — Britain has finally started to get tough about German plans to invade this country.

Maintaining the initiative seized when French warships at Oran were destroyed to prevent Hitler and Mussolini from using them, Britain during the week-end inflicted further damage on the German and Italian war machines scattered over a vast area from Narvik in Northern Norway to Ethiopia in East Africa.

Whether Hitler will attempt the invasion either now or at some future date is a matter of pure guesswork, but there are military observers in this country who believe it may not come immediately.

JAPANESE FILE STRONG PROTEST

Gendarmes Arrested in Shanghai Defence Zone Badly Treated is Claim

Shanghai, July 8—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman accused United States marines in the Shanghai defence area today of "a grave insult to the Japanese army" in their treatment of fifteen Japanese plain-clothes gendarmes arrested in the zone yesterday.

The spokesman asserted the gendarmes were humiliated, clubbed and otherwise maltreated.

"Japanese military authorities," he said, "will file a strong protest with American authorities over this case."

The spokesman denied any apology had been tendered the American authorities, although it was reported yesterday the gendarmes were released only after apology by their commander to Col. Dewitt Peck, United States marine commander in the Shanghai area.

The gendarmes, who were armed, were arrested after they were discovered in the zone in violation of the agreement whereby they are not to enter it without consent of military authorities.

ONLY FEW FAMILIES AFFECTED BY RULING

Only a very few local families will be affected by the recent decision of the Ontario Government to discontinue contributions towards the relief of families of two according to city relief officials at the city hall this morning. The new ruling affects all families of two, consisting of husband and wife; a widower with one dependent child, or the employable head of a family with one dependent.

"Almost all of the employables coming under this listing are off the relief rolls now", stated Miss Lynch Supt., of the Welfare Dept., as she said that number of families on relief in Belleville had shown a steady decrease with improved industrial conditions prevailing. As yet the local office had received no official notification that families of two will be struck off the relief rolls, but Miss Lynch said that she expected word to this effect in the near future although the ruling will not come into effect until July 22nd.

GRENVILLE TIES UP AT LOCAL GOV'T. DOCK

The buoy tender "Grenville" of the Dominion Department of Transport, was a visitor to the Belleville harbour over the week-end calling at the local dock in the performance of her regular duties of tending the buoys and navigation aids on her route from Couteau Landing on the St. Lawrence to a point near Sarnia and on Lake Huron.

The "Grenville" now presents a somewhat different appearance than she did early in the Spring when she went through the bay putting out the buoys. Then, in the rush of the season she gave one the impression of an old rusty tramp steamer, but now she is spic and span in a new coat of paint from bow to stern. The hull has been newly painted, while the superstructure likewise presents a swanky appearance in its new coat of shining white.

PADDLER UPSETS CROSSING THE BAY

Caught in the swift current that flows through the bay bridge, a canoe capsized and the paddler had to be rescued from the waters of the bay early today. George Ostrom, Jr., accompanied by two Rossmore youths, put out from the south shore and finally managed to secure the over-turned craft.

The young man was attempting to paddle a canoe across the bay, but when the craft experienced the current beneath the bay bridge it capsized. He could swim sufficiently to cling to the over-turned craft, but he was fully clothed at the time and due to his frantic efforts to attempt the recovery of articles floating from the canoe, the unexpected bather welcomed his rescuers.

After towing the canoe ashore and righting it, the paddler entered the craft and paddled back into the Belleville harbour, none the worse for his wetting.

Discount on Wednesday Morning Sales During Half-Holiday Season Given in Form of War-Savings Stamps

Plan is Adopted by Belleville Retail Merchants' Association to Help Sale of War-Savings Stamps and so Aid Canada in Her War Effort

At a recent meeting of the Retail Merchants Association of Belleville and later by the executive of the association, it was unanimously approved that the association adopt a plan as a body in the contribution to help Canada win the war.

Commencing Wednesday, July 10, and every Wednesday morning thereafter, (for the duration of the Wednesday half-holiday) there will be what is known as War Stamp Day.

The plan is to offer a discount on purchases made during Wednesday morning, discount limited to ten per cent. This discount will be given customers in the form of War Savings Stamps. Each $2.50 unit sale entitling purchaser to a 25c war stamp.

This plan has received the approval of the Dominion War Savings Committee.

Due to the fact that an exact plan cannot be adapted to every type of business it is left to the initiative of each individual merchant to adopt any plan suitable that will tie in with the above idea.

Merchants who are cooperating and participating are providing themselves with a supply of War Savings Stamps to meet the demands of customers.

Stores displaying the red banner and streamers are backing this plan to help Canada win the war.

GUEST LEADERS AT BAND CONCERT

Victoria Park Crowded and Belleville Band Gave Excellent Performance

Culminating a three-day convention of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association in Belleville, guest conductors of bands from all parts of the Dominion swung their baton before the Belleville Municipal Band in a war charity band concert at Victoria Park Sunday evening. The park was crowded with an appreciative audience of upwards to 2,000 people, while the Belleville Municipal Band excelled itself to the last member in response to the continued applause, that greeted the visiting guest conductors and the band in its exceptionally fine musical entertainment. Collection was received and given to the war charity effort of the Minerva Chapter of the O. E. S.

The opening selection, a march, Potentate, was conducted by Lieut. J. Andrew Wiggar of Toronto and Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association. Lieut. Fred Jobson, conductor of the Belleville Municipal Band, acted as master of ceremonies for the program and introduced each guest conductor as he appeared to take up the baton, each number presented being conducted by a different director.

Local Leader Conducts

Bandmaster Sid Chamberlain, of the Chatham Kiltie Band, directed a patriotic selection, "Festival of the Empire" while Lieut. Jobson led, at the request of his associates, during the rendering of "Massa's in the cold, cold ground," a southern air that saw Reg Wardle of the local band in the role of trombone soloist. This selection received much ovation. Two popular numbers "Woodpecker's Song" and "At the Balalaika" delighted the younger set with Lieut. J. Lomas of Brockville directing, while Lieut. Jackson of Montreal assumed the baton for the rendering of the suite "Atlantis."

One of the best received numbers was a novelty number "Musical Switch" conducted by Robert Chapple, of the Toronto Fire Department Band. Well loved and old favorite tunes were blended in a medley that brought much appreciative applause. The march "Middy" was conducted by Mr. Sheppard of Waterloo, while Captain Goulet, of the 65th Regiment, Quebec, directed the intermezzo "In a Monastry Garden" by Kettelby.

The evening's finale saw Reg. Hinchey, well known Belleville composer, assume the spotlight as conductor for the presentation of "There'll always be an England", under his own arrangement for band presentation. The playing of "Till we meet again" and the National Anthem, the program concluded.

Lieut. Jobson publicly announced last night that the Belleville Municipal Band had been instrumental in the raising of some $700.00 for war charity purposes since last September.

Life Underwriters Given Big Job

The employees of Canada's larger industries have been able for some time to purchase War Savings Stamps and Certificates on the convenient pay-roll deduction plan. Many thousands throughout the country have already taken advantage of this opportunity to help Canada's war effort, and at the same time save money for the future.

The smaller industries have not been able to give their employees the same opportunity simply because no record of the smaller businesses was available either in Ottawa or in the Provincial capitals and the War Savings Committee has been unable to forward the necessary material to put the payroll deduction plan into operation.

Life Underwriters, from coast to coast, have been asked by the War Savings Committee at Ottawa to make a survey of all employers in Canada whose names are not already on file at Ottawa. They have also been asked to call personally on as many of these employers as possible, and also to make personal calls on employers requiring further information when requested to do so by the War Savings Committee at Ottawa.

This work is being done by Life Underwriters, including those assisting in the work in this district, without cost to the War Savings Committee as part of their donation toward Canada's war effort. No salaries or commissions or remuneration of any kind is being paid which means that every dollar received through the sale of War Savings Certificates will be available for war purposes.

The Life Underwriter even pays his own travelling expenses, and a courteous reception is requested for him if he should call on you in connection with this work. He is glad to give his time in this way to help the employers and people of Canada in making their contribution toward Canada's war effort.

SHINING WINDOWS

SHINING WINDOWS

INSTALMENT 1.

Joyce Ballard had forgotten a sort of half-engagement to stop in at her father's office late in the afternoon A thousand things more important to her had put it out of her mind. She had felt brisk and business-like and well satisfied with life as she walked home under the trees, but quite suddenly as she entered the house everything seemed to go flat, and she was depressed and jaded. It was dusk now, and she felt that she had wasted the whole day, and the day before it, and that she would waste tomorrow. What had it all been but time-killing—Margaret's luncheon, and walking to the library afterward with Eileen, and then quite gayly, while having a sundae at Marchand's, deciding to walk all the way home? What of it? Why and about what had she felt so gay and confident today? Nothing had happened.

She hated the big handsome hall of her father's house in this grim dusk. Fanny, the housemaid, having let her in, was proceeding to the orderly lighting of lights. Joyce went upstairs in a flood of light, Fanny demurely following, to snap up more lights on the bedroom floor.

Felicity was home; the sound of scales being fleetly, accurately practiced came from behind her closed door. Dora was home; she was calling, "Edna, Edna!" in a plaintive tone. In fact she was in sight; she stood in her half-open doorway shaking her curled head in gentle impatience as she waited.

"I can't find my brown coat!" she said pathetically.

"I'll bet you a nickel it went to the cleaner's, Do," Joyca suggested. Dora looked stricken.

"Oh, dear, I'll bet it did!" she muttered distractedly. "Joyce, is your white one clean?"

"You couldn't wear a white coat this weather," the younger sister said. "It's getting awfully cold. Where are you going, anyway?"

"Oh, nowhere! I wish somebody could do something in this house without having the whole family in on it," Dort said in a fluttered voice. "Dev Patterson has to go out to the country club to get some golf clubs or something and he asked me to go with him. I'll be back in half an hour. But I've a run in my stocking, and now my coat's at the cleaner's . . ."

"Listen, do you both have to yell at the top of your lungs out here in the hall?" Felicity said composedly at her door.

"Lissy, lend Dodo your sports coat," Joyce said.

"I haven't worn it myself yet. I'm not even sure I'm going to keep it."

"Well, then I'll just telephone Dev that I can't go!" Dora said in instant despair.

"Is he home?"

"He got home last week."

"Oh, for pity's sake . . ." Lissy sounded pleased, as Joyce had felt herself pleased at this bit of news. Devereaux Patterson was a name with which to conjure. "Meet him?" she asked.

"He was down to see Sonny off. He said he had to go out to the golf club for something and he'd get his car and stop for me."

"Here take it, let's see how it looks on you!" Lissy, perfectly willing to be generous now that there was some purpose in it, had produced the coat; Dora was buttoned into it in three seconds and had run downstairs. Joyce dawdled into her sister's room. "It's terribly nice, her meeting Dev," Felicity said.

"Luck."

"He's about—let's see, he's about twenty-five," Lissy observed.

"Well, that's all right," Joyce said and both girls laughed.

"Wouldn't it be swell if Dev Patterson actually fell in love with Dora?" Joyce presently resumed more seriously. "Why shouldn't he? She's pretty."

"Yes, she's pretty," Lissy agreed thoughtfully. "But just the same—" she added, and paused. "I don't believe she's the type that would appeal to a man like Dev," she added. "I know him, you know; I was in high with him. Dodo's so mild."

Joyce was aware of this. Lissy had had wonderful breaks in her school days, Joyce and Dora thought. All sorts of interesting boys had been in school with her. Joyce and Dora had gone to a private school, Miss Percival's. All the exclusive girls in San Francisco had been going there when their high school days had come along. But in Lissy's day nice girls and boys went to Lowell High, and consequently Lissy knew most of the eligible men of the moment.

"Dora," Felicity said reluctantly, "has no appeal."

"Boys like her," Joyce said feebly. This kind of talk made her feel depressed. With Lissy twenty-four, and Dora not attractive to men, the family stock seemed at a standstill.

"What boys?" Felicity asked. "No," she went on, as Joyce was silent, "Dora's pretty, and goodness knows she's as sweet as she can be—I wish I had her disposition—but she tried too hard to get the men to like her. You can't do that. Whatever you do you can't do that. That drives them wild!"

As Felicity had an authentic if unexciting admirer in the person of one Archie Ross, Joyce was respectfully receptive of whatever she said of men. Lissy had had another man friend too, Terman Parko. Terman had not been thrilling either, but the undoubted seriousness of the two men had made its impression, and Joyce, who was nineteen, felt that Lissy was a woman of considerable experience. Lissy often said that she would not marry either Terman or Archie if he were the last man in the world; Joyce admired her independence. She felt that she herself would marry the first man who asked her, let him be whom he would.

After a while she left Lissy's room and wandered idly to that of her mother. Mrs. Ballard had just come in from a club meeting; it had been hostess day, with tea and sandwiches and cake, and she immediately confessed to having eaten injudiciously.

"You and I ought to go on the chops and pineapple diet, Joycie, and take off ten pounds apiece."

"I ought to take off forty," Joyce said with a yawn.

"Nonsense, darling. But like myself and Aunt Rose you have to think of it. Lissy and Dora are so lucky! But you've stopped eating in the afternoons, haven't you?"

"Eileen and I said we would. And then today after Margaret's luncheon, which was one solid calorie," Joyce said with a guilty little-girl grin, "we walked down to Marchand's and had marshmallow-chocolate sundae. So then as a penance I walked home. It was lovely with all the leaf fires burning!"

"Oh, it's lovely now." Mrs. Ballard was not so tall as Joyce; she was plump and soft and easily made breathless. "I wish we could get daddy to walk home. It isn't more than a mile and a half; it would do him a world of good! I never would have come to St. Francis Wood if I'd thought he was going to give up his nice morning and afternoon walks. When we lived on Baker street he always . . . where's Dora? Is Lissy home?"

Joyce, and indeed every one who knew her, was accustomed to Sarah Ballard's easy flight from one topic to another. The daughter gave her bit of news.

"She ran into Deveraux Patterson at the station today—they were both seeing Sunny Urner off, and he took her out to the golf club."

"Oh, that's nice. He's a delightful fellow; I used to know his mother well," Sarah Ballard said thoughtfully. "Dora and Deveraux Patterson, eh? How nice, daddy," she said gayly to the gray-headed man who at this instant entered the room, "what do you think of your second daughter going out with Dev Patterson?"

"Who," said William Ballard, sitting down heavily in a chair, his hands hanging, his shoulders fallen forward wearily, his tired eyes on his wife, "is Dev Patterson?"

"One of the Hastings Pattersons, Will."

"Oo-oo-oo," the man murmured, pursing his lips to the soft little whistle. "That's funny. I went to see Judson Patterson at the bank today."

He got up, moving as if his limbs were stiff, and went to his dressing-room. Joyce's mother began to talk to the cat, that lay watchful but relaxed on the couch. Joyce herself went to her own room, moving in a dream in which the Patterson-Ballard nuptials were solemnized, the bride's younger sister acting as maid of honor, and wearing apricot silk organdie with a frilled saucer hat. Well, but then what would Lissy do? Lissy was so horribly sensitive, she would be deeply hurt to have Joyce maid of honor.

What fun a big wedding would be! Joyce laughed aloud, dragging a wet comb through the thick mat of her chestnut hair. The hair had reddish lights in it, and the round brown eyes that looked back at Joyce from the mirror had red lights in them too. All the Ballards had round brown eyes, but the other girls and Ben had black hair. She was pleased that her coloring was different; she was like Grandma Fellows, who had been a beauty and a toast.

Joyce was just ready when the dinner bell rang.

Tonight Lissy and Joyce and their father and mother descended the stairs together, and took their places at the well-set table. While the soup was being served Dora came racing in, apologetic for not having changed her clothes, but breathless over her adventure.

"What'd you do, Dodo?"

"Oh, nothing, only it was lots of fun."

"Is he nice?"

"He's an idiot," Dora said, seizing a roll, buttering it, beginning to eat, "but he's terribly nice."

"Make a date?" Lissy asked practically.

"He's going to telephone." Dora smiled fondly at some pleasant thought; her mother's eyes were bright with interest and satisfaction.

"How'd your little speech go over, mother?"

"Oh, well enough," Mrs. Ballard said, satisfied reminiscence in her eyes.

"Which means you were a knockout," Lissy said indulgently. "What fun you girls have throwing bouquets at each other!"

"Throwing bouquets nothing!" the mother said with spirit. "We're in a really serious campaign now, we're in a nation-wide movement. Twenty of us pledge a hundred dollars; either give it or earn it some way . . ."

The conversation ambled on pleasantly, half-heartedly.

"I'll go to a movie with you, Dodo," Joyce presently said, as the talk wandered to evening plans.

"I think Archie's coming," Lissy observed. "We'll probably do something."

Fanny went steadily about the table with French dressing, cream cheese, gooseberry conserve, crackers. Dad hated this way of serving salad; he sat in grim endurance waiting to get started on his lettuce.

"Now, daddy . . ." Mrs. Ballard soothed him sympathetically. Joyce was conscious of a sudden savage wish that dad would either make up his mind to have things done mother's way or talk her into doing them his way. After all, what difference did it make!

The candles burned on sedately in the handsome old-fashioned room. Joyce and Dora asked Fanny for the morning paper; what shows were at the picture houses? They rustled the sheets of it.

'Mother want to go to a picture?"

"I think I'll stay home with daddy tonight."

"How about money, dad?" Dora asked. "I got my hat yesterday; it was cheap as dirt, but it took my last cent."

"Here you are." The man tossed five dollars across the table.

"I'll divide what's left with Joyce," she promised.

"I had to pledge a hundred dollars to that peace thing today," Mrs. Ballard lamented. "Of course there's no hurry about it. We have until January first. It's a national thing. We're going to have I don't know who—all in a series of lectures. We have to send some one to Washington to the conference."

"Would they send you, mother?"

"Well, they spoke of it. But I don't know who'd run things here." Mrs. Ballard's mouth curved in an excited smile she tried to control.

"They asked you! What fun!" Joyce said. "Take me, mother. Take me along as secretary. I've studied the touch system; I can keep books."

Where is
THE FAMILY MAN?
Uncle Jim Knows!

"Nonsense!" the mother said happily. "I've no idea whom they'll choose."

"Joyce," said her father unexpectedly, "how d'you mean you can typewrite and keep books?"

"I had it the last year at Miss Percival's, dad," the girl said, surprised at his interest.

"But you couldn't go into an office and take a job?"

"Well, no, I suppose not. I wouldn't want to, anyway. Joan Cate did on account of her father committing suicide," Joyce said pouring cream on huckleberry pie. "But she hates it."

William Ballard relapsed into indifference again. "He's thinking of business," his wife thought anxiously. "I wish men wouldn't be so silly! I don't know what gets into them. William made eighty thousand dollars—or was it eight hundred thousand dollars? — in one week, once. I don't see why he shouldn't invent something else. A control on a petroleum refiner. What could be simpler than that? It certainly didn't look like anything. And yet they paid eighty—I'm sure it was eighty thousand dollars for the patent."

Benjamin was not dining with his parents tonight; he came downstairs just as dinner was finishing, looking extremely handsome in evening dress. He drew a chair up beside his mother.

"Where is it tonight, Benny?" the mother asked.

"I don't honestly know, mom," Ben said, his dark face one friendly open smile. He always answered with this phrase; it was the easiest way. "I don't know," was honest inasmuch as none of the gang's plans were ever very definite, and it kept mom and dad from fussing. "By the way, I've got to use something for money tonight, dad," he went on lightly. "If you'll advance me ten I'll drag it out until the first."

"I think I'll have to be a beggar too," Mrs. Ballard said. "That is, if you have twenty dollars with you, dad. Joyce and Dora started that German course—Fraulein called this morning. It's thirteen eighty-five, I believe—there were some exercise books or something."

"I haven't any more money with me," William Ballard said. "I can write her a cheque."

"Do that, then. I'm overdrawn, I believe. If you do go to the Star,

THE DUTCH ATTITUDE TO NAZIS

The German commander of The Netherlands has referred to the "unloyal attitude" of the Dutch people toward the nazi occupation.

Is this German stupidity that cannot appreciate why anyone could hate tyranny and especially Hitler tyranny?

Why should not The Netherlanders be anti-nazi? Can they hide their hatred of the breakers of treaties and despoilers of their fair and prosperous land?

The Dutch are not yet in the position of the slaves of Hitler, the Germans themselves. No German it is clear, not even the commander of The Netherlands, dare think for himself, dare utter a word that has not the mark of Hitler, Goering and Goebbels upon it.

'ITALIAN FLEET PRUDENTLY KEPT OUT OF THE WAY'

Right Honorable Winston Churchill the other day used a phrase with a fine touch of sarcasm. He spoke of the Italian warships discreetly keeping away from the scene of the battle at Oran.

The Royal Navy would welcome nothing more than to have Il Duce's ships come sailing out to meet it. The Royal Navy would give a fine account of itself against the Italian sailors.

The Italian sea-dogs will have a busy time if they prudently keep avoiding the British navy for ultimately they will have to come out if they are going to try to serve some useful purpose. Even the "prudent" Italian navy has to do something to satisfy Italy.

Mr. Churchill's words always so happy are particularly happy in this phrase. It is often said that a picture is much more potent than words in conveying an impression but the British Prime Minister is a master in the use of good sound English and he uses it with a brilliance which gives words veritable wings. His phrases grip more than cartoon or picture can.

"The Italian fleet prudently kept out of the way."

This will be one of the sentences that will linger after the war is over and the Germans and Italians are crushed and will find a place in the great sayings of the British race.

NAPOLEON AND HITLER

Conditions today bear some similarity to what they were in 1805 when Britain stood the last European fortress of freedom against Napoleon. The French Corsican dictator had overrun a great part of Europe and had before him one land that would not be conquered. It was Albion or England. He did not try invasion. And though he fought afterwards for ten years and marched and countermarched over Europe, he at last fell and went to lifelong banishment. England was in at the fight at Waterloo where Napoleon's last stand was made.

Hitler today has his hands full of overrun states, policed by German soldiers and the hated Gestapo, the most degraded police system of modern history. The states lie to east, south, west and north of the land of the Huns and exercise of control must keep nazi leaders busy. It is nearly two years since the despicable enemy began the outrageous treatment of Czecho-Slovakia and yet the Czechs hate Germany with the hate that does not die. They will strike when the time comes for they have faith that the great tyrant will fall.

Now Hitler, though so busy, seems to feel that he must strike at Britain. He will be uneasy until he strikes and there is every confidence in Britain that he will be uneasy when he has struck because his real test is ever ahead of him. He must remember Napoleon, who gathered a fleet of boats on the Channel to invade England. Napoleon's fleet never started. He had his flat-bottomed boats all ready on the coast of France and then spread rumors of trouble in the West Indies. He did not deceive the British admiral, Lord Nelson, for Nelson caught up at Trafalgar with the Napoleonic navy and there crushed it. Napoleon did not use the flat-bottoms for he had no navy to support him.

War has travelled a long way from those days for there are bombers and there are all kinds of scientific devices that Napoleon and Nelson never heard of, but many of the underlying facts are the same—the difficulty of invasion when the defenders are prepared and are fighting for their hearths.

At this moment it looks as if there might be a discordant element in the destinies for Hitler, for Russia, the land of enigma, has moved into the Balkans and the situation is such as must irritate the Germans who would like to play a hand in the Danube Basin territory. But he cannot allow himself to take an active part for he has a great problem in the west—undefeated Britain, which defies him and his might.

Napoleon failed and Britain believes and is confident that Hitler will fail. From that will probably begin the resurgence out of Hunnish darkness in which free states have been clouded, of the subjugated nations, who will welcome the waning of Hitler's star.

What would not Hitler have given for the French navy if he could have got it! Fortunately many of the French saw the light as it was and saw that only through standing by Britain could they help to bring about the restoration of liberty to the gallant French nation. Hitler would no doubt give everything to have kept some of the ships he lost in the Norwegian campaign. What he needs is a navy but besides that he would need sailors of the calibre of British and such a type he can never make out of Germans. It is the British Navy, it is the British land forces, it is the Royal Air Force and it is the manhood and womanhood of Britain that is standing united against the aggressor Hun. Over them he cannot triumph. Hitler has gone along the route of conquest by aggression, by broken pledges, by surprise, by mechanism and by the detested "fifth column" as well as by his army but he has to face a Britain that is ready.

He knows this task is his greatest and that all his future depends on success to hold the states he has overrun. But in Britain the world has the champion of liberty that fights to the end and that end is victory.

VAST POWERS

They said Petain, when discussing France's post-war problems with his aides, frequently used examples from the Spanish reconstruction after the civil war, almost always adding:

"But we must see his (Franco's) power."

It is said that since Petain took office the extremely active semi-Fascist Croix-de-Feu organization of Col. Francois de la Rocque has gained great new strength among army, navy and air force officers.

Big Majority Forecast

Leopold Blond, who before the war was one of the outstanding writers for the Provincial Press, said in a dispatch from Vichy to Le Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble that the government's proposals were assured of a big majority Wednesday or Thursday.

According to Blond the only opposition at last Friday's sessions was that of a deputy named Margaine, who said he "refused to base the French constitution on that of totalitarian regimes."

"Xavier Vallat on the other hand," wrote Blond, "lent his support to the government proposal."

Vallat's Attitude

Vallat, known before last September as leader of one of the minor groups in the extreme right of the Chamber of Deputies, was quoted as saying:

"I renounce one of my ideas but the essential thing today is constitution of a great single National and Social party. The German victory has been the work of German schoolmasters and the rebirth of France must be the work of French schoolmasters."

No Hostilities Against Britain Says Spokesman

A French spokesman in Vichy was quoted as saying France planned no hostilities against Britain, despite their diplomatic break.

A dispatch from Grenoble, however, said the Navy Minister had announced two rearmed French air squadrons had joined German-Italian forces in raids on Gibraltar.

(Reuters News Agency carried a Havas story from Vichy that well-informed quarters reported the Petain government had warned British warships and planes they would miles of the French coast.

(From Aruba, Netherlands West Indies, came word that the 2,400-ton French auxiliary cruiser Esterel had taken aboard shore troops and equipment and sailed from Aruba in an attempt to break through British patrols and French Martinbe attacked if they came within 20 ique.)

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Xray Treatment of Goitre

I write often about goitre—overgrowth of the thyroid gland—because there are so many early cases that can be helped by rest and iodine who otherwise may develop the severe symptoms—rapid heart beat, nervousness sleeplessness, loss of weight—and finally require operation to save their lives.

When the case has reached the advanced stage, most physicians advise operation because it immediately removes the cause of the symptoms— the overactive thyroid gland—and the patient gets almost immediate results—a normal heart rate, ability to sleep, considerable loss of his nervousness, and his weight gradually increases.

What about the patient who has had the condition for such a long time that the physician fears the shock of operation may be fatal? Also what of the patient who greatly fears operation for which no thinking person is likely to blame him?

It is in these cases—fear of shock and fear of operation—that Xray treatment has been of so much help.

Dr. G. E. Pfahler, Philadelphia, in the magazine Radiology, states that overgrowth of the thyroid gland, or where the thyroid gland is overactive, even if not enlarged can be treated by removal of part of the gland or can be controlled by Xray treatment which gradually reduces the activity of the cells of the thyroid gland and causes a wasting away of this excess gland substance. Even where there is no enlargement of the gland, the activity of the gland is reduced.

However, the Xrays must not be used in all cases even if it is considered safer than surgery. The Xrays should not be used, (1) if patient is in crisis (condition of danger), or (2) is suffering from pressure symptoms, or (3) if the goitre is the simple, not the poisonous, type.

One great advantage of the Xray treatment is that if given early the patient need not stop work. Improvement is noted within from four to eight weeks after Xray treatment is started. Small doses are used and there is no danger of skin injury.

The thought then is that early treatment by rest and iodine, or by Xrays, may make surgical treatment unnecessary.

Hay Fever and Its Causes

Thousands of Canadian citizens might look forward to the coming of Summer with more joy than they do, if citizens residing near vacant lots would see to it that ragweed and other pollen bearing weeds thereon were destroyed before they had a chance to ripen.

Pointing to the fact that one person in every 100 in Canada and the United States suffers from hay fever, according to an expert estimate, Dr. Gordon Bates, general director of the Health League of Canada, urged today that greater efforts be made to cope with this irritating plague, which annually makes the Summer months a time of wretchedness for so many.

Because of its buoyancy, ragweed pollen is one of the chief distributors of hay fever, says Dr. Bates, and a wholesale destruction of such plants in and around the city would do much to make the air breathable for chronic sufferers.

However, ragweed is not the only hay-fever producer. Some exceptionally sensitive noses will succumb to an attack after a visit to a flour mill or merely as the result of close proximity to a bouquet of flowers.

These, fortunately are exceptions, but many people are affected by the pollens of birch, willow, maple, aspens, poplars and other trees, and it is as well to find out to which of those one is allergic.

The Health League points out that scientific methods now are available by means of which any hay-fever patient may learn positively which pollen or dust it is that affects him. Vaccines then can prevent his falling victim when his particular foe appears.

Hay-fever, in itself, is not a serious disease, but it may pave the way to sinusitis and other painful maladies. Dr. Bates explains in urging those who are subject to it to take early steps to avoid its recurrence.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Humane Hints For Summer

Each summer thousands of dogs, cats and other animals accompany their masters on motor vacations. In general, such creatures are well-treated, but sometimes inadvertently they are made to suffer.

One of the greatest hazards they have to face is the heat of the warm car. Sometimes they are left locked in an automobile for quite a length of time. If this sort of thing is done a window of the car should be left partly open to assure plenty of fresh air. Tightly-closed cars get like ovens in hot summer weather and animals suffer acutely when imprisoned therein. Most animals are accustomed to fresh air, they roam where they choose. It is not natural for them to be inclosed in a stuffy place.

Traveling sometimes puts the physical machine of animals out of order just as it does that of human beings. It pays to watch the health of pets closely on trips. Different water and different food often cause digestive upsets. In severe cases a good veterinary surgeon should by all means be consulted. Usually such an expert can quickly restore the ailing creature to health.

Another thing the motorist should do is watch out for animals and birds in the road. The danger is particularly grave in game preserves and other forested areas. Deer sometimes congregate at bends in highways and cannot be seen except from a short distance. Slow driving not only enables the tourist to see more of the country but is much safer for wild and domestic life. Many animals are killed each year by speeding autos. Sheep and cattle some times are found on western roads. This is permitted by range law. It pays to drive slowly and keep alert at all times. — By Henry H. Graham in "Our Dumb Animals."

Nature Did it First

Man's Instruments and Methods of Warfare Represented in the Seas.

The old adage, "There's nothing new under the sun," is well illustrated by the fact that in the seas are many creatures that have long used the instruments and methods of warfare which modern man regards as his own peculiar creations. For instance, smoke-screens, barbed-wire entanglements, bayonets, torpedoes, bombs, poisoned stilettos, camouflage, and even anti-aircraft guns have all been represented in the seas (in underlying principles, at any rate) for millions of years—long before man had begun to fabricate his first weapons from flint and stone, before he had even begun to exist.

Smoke-screens, which modern armies put up by means of tanks on land and warships at sea, are used by various sea-creatures, and most widely-known precursor of the idea being the cuttle-fish. When disturbed it emits a black fluid which provides a smoke-screen under cover of which it escapes from its enemies.

Barbed-wire entanglements, with which modern armies protect their trenches, are also employed in the sea—by the cotton-fish, a large, purplish-black beche-de-mer of the Pacific. When disturbed it invariably saves itself with "barbed-wire entanglements," a mass of whitish material, like tangled threads of cotton, ejected from the mouth. This mass is an assemblage of thin tubes from the creature's internal organs; the tubes are sticky; they swell out into a tangled, floating skein upon contact with the water, and the attacker (fish, crab, or lobster) invariably becomes enmeshed within the threads to be rendered helpless for a time. Meanwhile, the cotton-fish makes good its escape and goes into hiding to regrow the whole of its internals in proper functioning order.

Anti-aircraft guns have been evolved by modern armies to deal with enemies in the sky. On the same principle, but to obtain food, the archer-fish shoots spurts of water to bring down flies and other insect prey, indulging in flying shots with most accurate results.

The sea also has its bomb-thrower—a giant deep-sea prawn of the Pacific. When attacked by an enemy it releases a "bomb," a spot of substance from a gland near the head, and on touching the water this bursts into a strong white light, which so blinds the enemy that the prawn is able to escape.

No man-made bayonet could be better constructed or more effectual than the powerful, spear-like sword of the marlin swordfish. Its long, hard-bone "bayonet" is a formidable weapon that has been known to penetrate the hull of a ship to a depth of 27 inches, passing through two inches of metal and nine inches of solid wood. Only at about the beginning of this century did man develop the streamlined modern torpedo, imitating the body of the swordfish. It is Nature's finest example of streamlining—a perfect torpedo, attaining a speed that no man has yet been able to compute, but which must exceed 100 miles per hour.

Camouflage also plans an important part in modern warfare. Gun emplacements and aeroplane hangars are covered with branches, etc, so as to be indistinguishable from the air, while battleships are painted in such a manner that it is difficult to tell in which direction they are going. Similarly many sea-creatures dress themselves so as to be in complete harmony with their surroundings, and thus deceive their enemies.

otluths The old man went down

Portable electric batteries, other articles essential in the conduct of war, are also represented in the sea, where there are several electric fish, which not only grow their own "batteries," but are able to recharge them is some mysterious manner.

The well-known hermit crab also literally presents the extraordinary spectacle of a heavily-armed soldier with a sentry-box upon its back, while the seas also contain several experts in the infernal employment of poisoned stiletto—fish equipped with poisonous spines.

Last, but not least, is the seagull. Modern aeroplanes are generally built with retractable carriage, drawing up the wheels when flying, to reduce air resistance. Seagulls, however, have always retracted their feet on precisely the same principle — another example of Nature beating man.—Ewen K. Patterson in "Our Dumb Animals."

Film Star Salaries

The death of cross-eyed Ben Turpin is reported from Hollywood, and it is recalled that at one time he received $150,000 a year for the exercise of his peculiar talent in the silent movies. He had what it takes in the way of box office appeal, and that seems to be sufficient explanation of certain spectacular salaries paid head-liners in the films today.

A story from Washington discloses that 19 of the 25 highest salaries paid in the United States in 1938 went to movie stars and executives. Louis B. Mayer, head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, topped the list at $688,369. The information appears in a treasury list and takes no account of dividends or income other than salary, bonuses and fees.

Two business executives are second and third, and then comes the leading actress, Claudette Colbert, paid $426,944; Bing Crosby, popular crooner, $410,000; Irene Dunne, $405,222. Eugene R. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, gets in next followed by Charles Boyer, Wallace Beery, Cary Grant, and Hunt Stromberg, film producer. Shirley Temple and Joan Crawford are grouped with William Knudsen president of General Motors Corporation, just above the $300,000 mark.

It is always cause for comment that film performers, however talented, should be able to draw down emoluments greater than big business executives and far greater than the President of the United States, but it is due to the keen competition among film concerns for the services of individuals who can entice theatre patrons. Once established in popular esteem, an actor can demand fabulous remuneration so long as the vogue lasts—usually only a few years. The public taste is apt to change quickly, and film producers must make hay while the sun shines. All the skill of press agents will not make or break a reputation as long as the great army of film fans count an evening with a favorite screen star well spent. — Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Merchants Contribute To East Indies' Defence

Batavia, Netherland East Indies, July 8—(AP) — Hundreds of air raid trenches were being dug here today as it was disclosed business concerns have contributed 8,500,000 guilders as a preliminary contribution to establish civic guards in 10 cities throughout The Netherlands East Indies.

(Since the German conquest of The Netherlands foreign exchange markets have not dealt in the guilder. Before the occupation, however, it was valued at between 53 and 54 cents.

Among the other precautions, mine fields have been laid in territorial waters.

Because of the resulting danger, shipping has been forbidden to use the Borneo oil harbors of Tarakan and Balik Papan without permission.

Soldier Would Sell His Ancient Firearms

Unusual it is for a soldier to want to sell his guns, but Private Bill Higson's guns are unusual. Not that army revolver which the Essex Tank private has strapped to his waist — there is nothing unusual about it and, of course, it is not for sale.

But the young soldier has a collection of old military curios, and he also has a young wife and two tiny children. His pay as a private in the Tank regiment is considerably less than his previous earnings as a billing clerk with the Ford Motor Company, so William has decided to sell his collection to raise extra funds.

Over 100 years old, a muzzle loading fowling piece with brass butt plate and trigger guard is one of his prized possessions. But Private Higson himself fancies most a Brown Bess flint-lock musket made in England about 1776. Also a muzzle loader, the ramrod is with it, and a bayonet made by Salter and Sons of England, who have been in the business since they made bows and arrows for Harold at Hastings.

This Brown Bess is the same type of musket used in the film "Drums Along the Mohawk," according to its owner, who vouches for its antiquity.

Another interesting curio is a native dagger confiscated by British military police in Aden, British Somaliland. Fashioned out of bits of scrap, the crude dagger still bears hammer marks and bloodstains.

The back part of a French dragoon guard's curass, a solid steel vest which covered the body from hip to shoulders, is another curio which Private Higson is willing to "hock."

Quartered at the St. Luke road barracks, Private Higson's home address is 244 Ford boulevard. — Windsor Daily Star.

Portrait of a Puffin

(From The London Listener)

The puffin is a fellow about as big as a pigeon who wears an expensive white waistcoat and a black-tailed coat. He has a brown collar round his neck and a black skull cap. His cheeks are lavender grey, his intelligent brown eyes are rimmed with a vermilion ring and have a bright blue spot above and below. He sports a grotesque and vividly-colored beak, blue at the base and crossed with lines of yellow, vermilion and white.

He stands very upright on a pair of orange-colored legs and walks about as though the whole world belonged to him. Indeed it does, his world does, for you see he is so wise that he attends only to his own business and never attempts to interfere in that of anyone else. He's a deep sea fisherman really and spends most of the year far out at sea, sleeping on the water and getting his living below the surface. He has no use for dry land at all except for nesting purposes, but oddly enough when he does come ashore for that purpose he must needs go to the trouble of digging a burrow under ground.

His mate lays her single egg in a chamber at the end of that tunnel and their youngster spends the first few weeks of its life buried away down there. One day when the parent puffins decide that the youngster is old enough to look after itself they just go away and don't came back. The youngster is puzzled for a time, of course, and finally creeps out of the burrow. The hunger pains grow very bad indeed, but he can't get anyone to feed him so he makes his way down to the sea.

Mind you, he has never even seen the world outside the burrow in which he was born until that day, yet the moment he reaches the sea he plunges in and begins swimming and diving and catching fish as though he had been practising for months.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The weekend visit of Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister and a group of assistants to Berlin may have important consequences on the next moves of the Axis powers. The visit may be largely concerned with the Balkan problem arising out of Russia's sharp treatment of Rumania and Bulgarian and Hungarian threats against that harassed kingdom.

The fact that the Italian party consisted of officials of the foreign ministry and does not include military officials indicates discussion of plans for new offensive action are not the main purpose of the conference which results from a German invitation.

Besides the Balkan problem Germany and Italy have still some diplomatic questions to adjust concerning the position of defeated France and French colonies and the position of Spain and Portugal, the only two countries in western Europe not yet wholly under their domination.

The stern action taken by the Royal Navy to keep French ships out of German and Italian hands carries with it notice that Great Britain will not surrender the control of the Mediterranean Sea without a fight. Thus, the totalitarian Allies are not yet in a position to launch the threatened battle for Great Britain without fear of distraction on their vital southern and eastern frontiers.

Jamieson, became the bride of Mr. Millard Fillmore Reed, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Reed of Kingston. The ceremony was performed by the rector of the church, Rev. G. G. Wright.

Canterbury bells and baby's breath adorned the chancel of the church for the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Wesley Jamieson, Toronto, entered the church as wedding music was played by Mr. George Maybee, organist. She looked charming in her floor length gown of white double net, in bolero effect, with heart shaped hat and short veil. She carried a bridal bouquet of roses and baby's breath.

Miss Hazel Reid was bridesmaid and wore powder blue double net with bolero jacket and tiny matching hat. Her bouquet was a nosegay of roses.

Mr. Jack Bradford was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Christ Church parish house beautifully decorated with roses, delphiniums, and peonies, where supper was served to the large number of guests. Mrs. Jamieson, mother of the bride, wearing navy blue with white accessories and corsage of roses, and Mrs. Mills, Kingston, aunt of the groom, attired in black georgette, matching accessories and corsage of roses, received with the bridal couple.

Can't be Stern and Beautiful

By HELEN FOLLETT

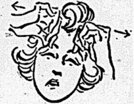
Pulling the chin in toward the throat is a habit that brings beauty griefs. The stern, relentless woman does it to terrify the victims of her displeasure. Teeth clicked together like a bear trap, shoulders squared—let's run away from her!

A cross line appears below her chin, a fold of flesh appears, soon the chin goes tandem. There will be necklace furrows in the neck; it is next to impossible to be rid of them.

Dragging down the lip ends drapes the human map with mourning. Women who feel sorry for themselves indulge in that habit. Facial tissues do a sag, lines form from lip ends downward over the chin. Women who are gay and happy never have that trouble. Laughter keeps the muscles of the face strong and resilient. It also makes for the sweet, compelling personality which makes a stronger appeal to the heart than external qualities of beauty.

Mind Facial Manners

It is necessary, in the pursuit of pulchritude, to mind one's facial manners. Lifting the eyebrows should not be done. Puts railroad tracks across the forehead. Squinting etches in turkey tracks. So it goes. The thing to do is to make one's face behave and to massage the skin surface nightly with a heavy cream, friction with ice once a day.



"Lifting the eyebrows should not be done."

Do you know that stockings too short can cause almost as much trouble as shoes that are too full of feet.

There should be at least an extra inch so the toes will not be confined. A small stocking forces the toes into a huddle, produces ingrowing nails, interferes with circulation.

Girls whose fatted calves worry the daylights out of them should select dark colored hose; the cult of the skinny shanks should wear light tones. The right color helps a lot.

If feet are inclined to perspire, rinse the stockings in borax water but do not iron.

"Wrong Number" Calls For As Much Courtesy As Face-to-face Conversation

Most of us are pretty grim when our telephone rings and we find it's the wrong number for the person calling; most of us are just as unmannerly when we receive the wrong number.

What we say and do in these cases shows fairly accurately what kind of people we are. If we were face to face with the person on the other end of the wire, the chances are that we'd be polite. But in our disturbance over being called for the wrong number, we're apt to be witheringly impolite. The truth is we're cowards; we dare to be rude just because we don't know the person.

How do you behave when you answer the telephone and the person calling has the wrong number? Do you lose your temper and slam down the receiver? Or do you growl "What number do you want?" in a tone obviously intended to annihilate the hapless intruder?

It would be just as easy to be a bit human to another person. Neither the operator nor the person dialing set out to make a mistake. Hold everything, even your temper, and say, with a bit of decent understanding in your voice, "I'm sorry, but you have the wrong number. This is Main 7-1234." Your kind tone will probably be rewarded with a "Please excuse me. I'm so sorry to have bothered you."

Too many people, given the wrong number, make those who answer the telephone feel guilty of having deliberately given the wrong number. No apology for disturbing us. Indeed sometimes they make us feel that we are concealing or fibbing about the whereabouts of the "Miss Jones" they ask to speak to!

Don't make a mountain out of this molehill of the wrong number. Take it in your courteous stride.

Garden Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be a guest at a formal afternoon garden wedding and reception to be held next month. It will be an elaborate wedding, and I am in a quandary whether to wear an ankle-length dinner dress or a fancy afternoon dress.

Gloria

For this afternoon garden wedding you will be correctly dressed if you wear either a simple or somewhat dressy afternoon dress, street-length.

Foreign Conflict Speeds Up Marriage Here

The war in Europe is speeding up engagements. Couples who have dilly-dallied through a four or five-year understanding are now naming the wedding day. Wars have a way of giving that now-or-never feeling.

There have always been two schools of thought about the long and short engagement. The prudent have a way of saying that if a couple have been engaged for two or three years, they're apt to know each other's peculiarities, eccentricities, hobbies, aversions and all those things which make for disagreement.

But it is almost a universal experience that no matter how well people are acquainted, a pair of strangers confront each other after marriage. Getting married does something to the situation, and a married couple must become acquainted all over again.

Many apparently insuperable difficulties keep a couple peeping longingly at the altar through a side door, instead of marching up the main aisle, that one can hardly blame them if they take advantage of the argument that dictators are ready to invade our lately threatened frontiers, and get married at last.

These long-drawn-out engagements usually hinge on responsibilities at home—old parents to be supported, younger brothers and sisters to be educated, debts to be paid off and dozens of other things. And while the affianced scrimp to meet these obligations, romance only too often flies out of the window.

So, if you decide to let obligations go hang and elect to marry quickly, better do it because you think the time has come to take your vows, and don't make the excuse that you may be called off to fight in a few weeks' time.

While you may fall in love at first sight, do not hand out the war being fought as an excuse for your hasty marriage, because it may start other youngsters marrying on the spur of the moment. Nothing is truer than the old proverb of marrying in haste and repenting at leisure.

And happiness of marriage is the result of congeniality and general friendship on the part of husband and wife. Even though your heart may be wrung at what is happening on the other side of the Atlantic, don't think you'll better the situation by hasty marriage.

"Women who experiment with hair dye are likely to be pouring troubles on their heads."

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hair dyeing is no child's play, let me tell you, Mrs. Whitetop. Women who experiment are likely to be pouring troubles on their heads. Not that the work cannot be done successfully; it can; but there's a lot to know about the proper selection and correct application of coloring agents.

To acquire the natural effect requires the right medium, one that is an exact match for the virgin growth. Specialists who give these treatments usually make a test, so the cash customer will not be disappointed when her head comes out of the dye pot. As the shafts are lighter at the ends than at the roots, the shade to be matched is midway between these points.

It stands to reason that as a woman hasn't eyes in the back of her head she won't be able to make an even application. Some coloring agents must be applied quickly. That's not easy.

If a dye has been used and results are not satisfactory it is taking a terrible chance to use another dye. No telling what chemical actions will take place, what the color will be.

In the long run it will prove more satisfactory to have the presto-change act performed by a capable operator who specializes in hair dyeing. He will be able to choose the right medium, will know exactly how to apply it.

Do you know that onions, tomatoes, carrots and lettuce are beauty foods? They supply elements that the complexion needs in its business of making its owner presentable.

Too heavy a meat intake is likely to make the skin florid. An excess of pastries lead to blackheads and pustules that follow in their wake.

Milk is highly recommended to cultivate the peaches and cream facial coating because it contains nearly all the food elements that are necessary for energy and well

Remember the Teacher Who Set Kind Example?

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

I believe it would do us parents good to recall some teachers of our children or of our childhood we have admired, to note some of the splendid things they have done and observe some of the lovable traits they possess.

All of us have known that teacher whom the little child almost worshipped in the early years at school; who was quoted and referred to as the final authority in many matters arising in the family conversation. We easily could be wrong, but that teacher, never. Some of us may even have entertained faint jealous feelings of the teacher who had so completely captivated the confidence and affections of our child.

Deep Respect

Also that teacher we know, to whom the older children, even high school students, refer always with great respect, whose sympathetic understanding attitude, whose constant efforts at being fair and just, whose kindliness, whose honesty, whose humility, whose human interest in each pupil as a sacred personality, are on many occasions described by our children or their playmates.

We know that teacher whose speech, movement and appearance bespeak culture and refinement. We like to meet her and be in her presence. We count our children fortunate to be in the classroom with such a teacher. It is the quiet, sweet-voiced teacher who is most calming to us and our children. We wish we might imitate her well-managed voice, and we wish that all other teachers were, in this respect, like her.

We parents know teachers who make us feel assured that they are personally interested in each of their pupils as an individual different from all others. Our children know that such teachers have a very high regard for their personality. How our children strive to do well for these teachers.

Masters of Selves

Teachers we know, moreover, who are perfect masters of themselves, who are completely self-controlled, no matter what happens; whose composure is so nearly perfect and so contagious that our children acquire poise in their presence. Too bad there is not some way to have such teachers properly rewarded. Yet they do reap a rich reward in the joyousness they afford their pupils and the wholesome atmosphere for mental health they help create for their school children.

Some of the teachers stand out also in our minds as powerful at imbuing our children with high ideals, with the wish to live good lives and to grow always as good citizens.

Yes, there are some bad teachers; but why not keep our eyes on the good ones with the hope that our children might have more like them?

Solving Parent Prbolems

Q. My eleven-year-old daughter sometimes sulks. Should she be punished then?

A. No; be not the least annoyed at her sulking. Act as if you did not notice it. Talk of things in her presence so interesting to her she cannot resist entering the conversation. If possible, touch upon some of her achievements and successes.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Summer Camp

An indignant mother has just written me to flay me for having a kind word to say for summer camps. She has a boy who tried two summer camps for successive summers, and they are nothing short of barbaric, she told me. Johnny didn't get proper food, the older boys were so rough with him, and he was always hurting himself.

In the course of her letter to me, she discovered that the boy is an only child. And reading between the lines of the letter, I feel sorry for the lad. It looks as if he will never get a chance to get out and be himself and act as boys should. She didn't say in the letter, but I'll wager she didn't leave her boy in either camp for more than a week. I suppose she went to see him when he's been in camp only a day or so and he hadn't recovered from his homesickness and first brush with the discipline of other than a loving parent. Besides, he sounds to me like a pretty spoiled boy.

I don't think parents who send their boys and girls to summer camps need worry much. If the children weren't getting enough to eat, or if there weren't comforts, or if the older boys were permitted to be rough with them, or if supervision wasn't careful enough to cut injuries in camp to a minimum, the camp would soon lose its clientele. In nearly all states, there is close official supervision of children's camps by health authorities. And my indignant correspondent apparently presumes that none of the other parents of children in the camps her boy attended cared what happened to their children. As a matter of fact, it has been my observation that the reputable camps look after their boys and girls with a great deal more consideration than many of the children get in their own homes.

This mother seems to forget, or doesn't realize, that some, over-indulged children naturally complain, at home or away from home, about anything and everything, particularly if their parents have willing ears for complaints. Let a boy be tied to his mother's apron strings for 10 years, the apple of her doting eye, and he'll certainly complain and try to get back to her apron strings the first time he isn't the centre of attention. But after a while, if he has to, he'll get used to the change, and after a summer in camp he'll probaly love his new found sense of self-reliance.

If your child seems different, if he is one of those occasional cases that apparently can't become adjusted to living away from parents at any time, then there is all the more reason for sending him to a summer camp where there are camp leaders experienced in handling just such cases. They know only too well that plenty of boys away from parents for the first time are miserable. They will give your boy special attention, although he probably won't recognize it as such. Usually such men find a cure for what's wrong with your boy.

One important reason that camps can have such a big influence on boys and girls in a comparatively short time is that it is their basic policy to treat them as individuals, as persons, rather than as mere "babies" or children. To most youngsters this is something entirely new. It wins their confidence and builds their self confidence. And camps have councillors who make a practise of having heart to heart talks with boys and girls and advising them on matters that many parents either ignore entirely or touch upon too lightly.

I speak now from intimate personal experience, for I sent my motherless boy to camp for the first time one summer not so long ago. When he came back, I was amazed at the change in him. He had a new outlook on life, was like a new person. When I talked to him, I realised how much the camp leaders and councillors had had to do with this.

350 BOYS, GIRLS REACH NEW YORK

Number of Famous People Aboard Samaria as Passengers to United States

New York, July 8—(AP)— Three hundred and fifty British refugee children arrived unexpectedly on the British liner Samaria today—18 hours after the first contingent of 71 reached New York on the Scythia—as volunteer workers speeded up a nationwide child refugee aid campaign.

Most of the newcomers were with parents or guardians and most had residences arranged. They ranged from babies to 'teen age, the average being about eight. Most of them had experienced air raid alarms but none was found who had been in an actual bombing.

The Samaria left Liverpool, with about 800 passengers, June 30, only 30 miles ahead of the Arandora Star, the British internment ship which was torpedoed. A destroyer and a seaplane escorting the Samaria out to sea wheeled unexpectedly away to go to the aid of the Arandora Star.

On the Samaria were Mrs. Ann Doyly-Hughes, widow of the captain of the torpedoed British aircraft carrier Glorious, and her two children, Bridget, 17, and Janet, 13. They are going to live with the captain's brother, Richard Doyly-Hughes, in Becker, Mo.

French Playwright Loses Everything

Also among the Samaria passengers was Henri Bernstein, the French playwright who has fought several duels with critics, and who is an outspoken anti-Nazi.

"I lost everything in France," he said.

Another passenger was Baron Alphonse Rothschild, of the Viennese branch of the banking family, whose brother Louis ransomed himself from the German secret police after the Austrian annexation. The Baron, his wife and two young daughters, and two sons of his cousin, Baron Montefiore Rothschild, were bound for Canada.

National Committee is Formed

Formation of "The National Child Refugee Committee", to organise local committees over the country and co-ordinate the activities of various groups already active, was announced shortly before the ship's arrival.

The children, ranging in age from a few weeks to 12, were among about 1,000 passengers on the Cunard-White Star liner. They followed 71 youngsters who arrived yesterday on the British liner Scythia.

The National Child Refugee Committee, under the leadership of Marshal Field and the honorary chairmanship of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was formed as an extension of the United States committee for the care of European children.

Public Barred From Pier

The Cunard-White Star line barred from the pier before the Samaria docked all except persons with special passes. There was no explanation of the new restrictions.

Well-dressed and well-fed, 70 youngsters disembarked from the armed Cunard-White Star liner Scythia yesterday.

Almost all were accompanied by parents or attendants and were voluntary evacuees. The mass migration of some 20,000 refugee children to Canada and the United States is yet to come. The Scythia landed 80 of its young passengers at Halifax, N.S.

Comment on the war was summed up by 14-year-old Peter Schorr, who remarked:

"The English want the Germans to come over so they can have a showdown. I was sorry I had to leave. I wanted to see the show."

Rome-Berlin Axis Not Counting on Help Of France in War

Berlin, July 8 (CP).—Robert Ley, leader of the Nazi labor front, wrote today in the Berlin newspaper Der Angriff that France, as an "aging decrepit" must definitely yield European continental hegemony to the "youthful, virile" Germany. "France now and for all time must recognize Germany's leadership in Europe." Ley wrote.

Dienst Aus Deutschland, propaganda agency, said France must pay for a "policy which brought France into her present position".

Other German sources, described as authoritative, told The Associated Press that the Rome-Berlin axis is not "counting on" assistance from France in ensuing phases of the war and that Hitler's "permission" to the French fleet to resist surrender to the Royal Navy was merely "an act of chivalry".

WARNED TO GUARD UNIFORMS

MAY CALL OLDER MEN

London, July 8—(CP)—The Star says a Royal Proclamation authorizing the calling of men from the ages of 31 to 41 for military service may be necessary soon if the present flow of manpower to the armed forces is maintained. All remaining men subject to the present Conscription Act would be affected by such a proclamation. So far men between 20 and 31 have been registered.

BRITAIN'S NERVES REMAIN STEADY

But Germans Are Reported Suffering from Loss of Sleep and Strain from British Air Raids

By GUY RHOADES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Britain and her enemies continue to pound at the home fronts with their aircraft, and apparently the Royal Air Force is doing the best job.

The German pilots are finding it extremely hazardous to approach Britain's anti-aircraft defences and judging from the number of persons killed in the raids they are not particularly effective when they do break through.

The extent of the material damage, of course, is not disclosed by authorities, but the number of civilian casualties so far has not been impressive, especially considering the fact that the Germans make little effort to spare civilians.

Industrial Production and Raids.

Chief effect of such raids — they have occurred dail ynow for almost three weeks—is to interrupt industrial production and disrupt normal life. There is no sign that they have had any damaging effect on Britain's collective nerves, although stories from Berlin indicate British raids on military objectives in the Ruhr and Rhine valleys have had a seriously demoralizing effect there.

Preston Grover, an Associated Press correspondent, wrote from Berlin last night that the population shows the effects of broken sleep and strain in raids by the Royal Air Force that occur nightly at roughly the same time, shortly after midnight.

Business generally has been disrupted in the affected areas, Grover's informants told him.

Initiative With British

Initiative in what many believe is the buildup to an attempted invasion of Britan seems to lie on the side of the defenders.

The Royal Air Force and fleet air arm not only have bombed Germany by day and night, but have also laid magnetic mines in such profusion around the Norwegian coast that no safe passage exists.

The two services have kept close and constant watch on German-held territory which might be used as a jumping-off place for an attempted invasion. They have bombed communications and other facilities at such places.

British Patrols Active

In this way they hope to make it impossible for Germany to get invading troops launched. Their patrols are so active that any German move on the channel coast probably would be spotted immediately, bringing upon it the concentrated fury of large numbers of aircraft.

Under these circumstances the Germans are likely to find it extremely difficult—perhaps even impossible—to get ground troops across the channel, at any rate in effective numbers.

It is considered possible they may content themselves with their bombing operations in an effort to effect any aerial blockade around the United Kingdom and to harass the nerves of its population.

British Nerves Should Improve.

But British nerves should improve rather than deteriorate as thousands of the nation's children are sent to havens abroad, 20,000 of them to Canada and thousands more to the United States.

An adult can stand a great deal more when he or she is not faced with the prospect of seeing children killed or hurt.

FORESEES PETAIN CHIEF OF STATE

Censored Press of Unoccupied France Speaks of Petain Gov't. as 'Only Transitory'

Geneva July 8.—(AP)—The censored press of unoccupied France carried reports today that Marshal Henri Petains government is "only transitory" and will make way for a new regime with Petain as "Chief of State".

A dispatch from Vichy to Le Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble forecast the resignation of President Albert Lebrun and his replacement by Petain who, it said would "only accept the title of executive power".

A triumvirate of Pierre Laval, now vice-Premier, Gen. Maxime Weygand and Adrien Marquet, former Minister of Labor and Mayor of Bordeaux, would dominate the Government under Petain's titular direction, this report said.

Petain's present ministry, it added, "seems to be making a last concession to dying rights" by an elaborate legislative procedure carried out by a picked group of senators and deputies at Vichy'

These plans, the writer emphasized, are only forecasts but the fact that they were permitted to appear in the strictly controlled press indicated that they may be based on known plans of the Vichy regime.

Has Not Been Advised That Diplomatic Relations With Britain Have Been Severed

The correspondent pointed out that French Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin, announced the severance last Thursday night, and commented:

"It is difficult to understand this delay in informing the embassy in London. Though there may be a delay in telegraphic communication this does not amount on the average to more than 24 hours."

A source close to the foreign office said diplomatic relations still exist "at this moment," but indicated that this situation might be changed at any time.

SEES ONLY HOPE FOR FREE FRANCE IN BRITISH WIN

Ottawa Says Free Frenchmen Are in British Army —Visitor Refers to Possible Fate of Former Premier Paul Reynaud

Ottawa, July 8—(CP)—The only chance for a free France is in a British victory, Captain Henri de Kerillis, representing General de Gaulle who is chairman of the French National Committee, said today in an interview.

Captain de Kerillis is here to confer with Canadian government officials on matters relating to co-operation with the De Gaulle committee. Later he will go to Washington.

"General Petain," he said, "is not a traitor. He did not know when he capitulated that he would go to war with England, tomorrow with the United States and the next day with Russia. He did not know that when one is in the hands of the Germans one cannot stop."

Free Frenchmen

Frenchmen who are now fighting with General de Gaulle, he said, are not British agents or in the pay of Great Britain. They were fighting because the only chance of France was in the triumph of the British Empire.

He considered it possible that 40,000,000 Frenchmen might be German dominated, when all the important and intellectual men of France should be killed or put in concentration camps. The Germans, he said, would destroy 500,000 Frenchmen, kill them or make them prisoners.

Believes Reynaud Dead

Captain de Kerrillis himself had a narrow escape from Bordeaux where he had been associated with Paul Reynaud. He said they had been pursued by the Gestapo. As to the fate of the former Premier, he had no definite information but assumed he was dead. He believed the "automobile accident" in which Reynaud was reported to have lost his life, was actually an assassination in his own home.

Petain, Captain De Kerillis said, could have no support among the population of France. "Two million men," he said, "are prisoners of the Germans. Families, women and children are scattered and destroyed. Who in France supports Petain?"

With reference to the Oran naval fight, Captain De Kerillis noted as significant the fact that while a French battleship was destroyed there was no mention of damage to British destroyers. "The man who was responsible for putting French officers in the position of those in command of our ships was a criminal."

De Gaulle's Position

General De Gaulle's committee, he said, was in a position to assist the British greatly. "We have ships and sailors. Our men are serving in the British forces. My son-in-law is in the British Air Force. It is very important that General De Gaulle, as he does ever day on the radio, should explain to the French that they must not become Germans, not to work in the factories, not to make war against Great Britain, Canada and in the long run against the United States."

"Petain is against our word, against our interests if he accepts German domination. He is against the tradition and spirit of his own Verdun."

Captain a Former Editor

Captain De Kerillis is former editor of L'Epoque, a Paris newspaper and a member of the French Chamber of Deputies.

A spare, dark Frenchman, he escaped from the "fantastic tragedy" of Bordeaux wearing the rosette of an officer of the Legion of Honor in his buttonhole.

Dynamite Everett's Romance Now Off

Omaha, Neb., July 8—(AP) — "Dynamite Pete" Everett's romance with Mrs. Myrtle Mason, 41, who wanted to live in his hermit's dugout, is off.

"It's all off, and that's all there is to it," she said. "The law won't let him keep a woman in a cave."

The 80-year-old hermit, who planned to meet Mrs. Mason for the first time Sunday after a correspondence romance, wrote that health authorities told him his dugout home on Pawnee Creek near South Bend, Neb., is no fit place for a bride.

WAR BRIEFS

Ottawa, July 8—(CP)—Henri de Kerillis, French newspaper publisher and a member of the Chamber of Deputies at the time of capitulation, was in Ottawa today for talks with Canadian government officials on behalf of the De Gaulle Committee in London. Advisory Committee For Volunteer Guards Formed in Province

Toronto, July 8.— (CP)—Formation of an advisory committee to direct operations of volunteer guards throughout the province was agreed upon today at a conference which was attended by 300 civic officials from all parts of Ontario today.

The conference was called by Attorney-General Gordon Conant and those in attendance were in agreement that Ontario should be armed through the medium of volunteer civil guards. An advisory committee of seven members will be selected by the head of the Provincial Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer.

One Provincial police officer in each county will act as liaison officer between Central headquarters and local guard units. Mr. Conant said a system of optional standardized training and equipment will be laid down.

"This will move toward meeting emergency and will protect the lives and property of our people", the Attorney-General said.

Potential Fifth Column 'Threatens Ireland' Says Well-Informed Source

Belfast July 8.—(CP)— A potential Fifth Column "threatens Ireland", a highly placed Northern Ireland source declared today. He said it existed in extremists of the outlawed Irish Republican army "who always opposed the government in authority" and in Germans and Italians still residing in Eire.

Calling the menace the same as "the danger which conquered Norway" the spokesman declared:—

"Ireland must not prove the Achilles' heel in the defence of the United Kingdom. We will hold on no matter what Germans land".

Northern Ireland he said, was well-equipped with men under arms and ready "to help the British army when its sets forth on its duty to protect our part of the British Empire".

The solution, he said, is for Eire to request British military aid.

"Until Eire seeks and secures military co-operation of the Imperial government", he added, "Eire will leave herself open to attack by Germany.

"Eire does not possess military strength to repeal German invasion. She has a small army but is defenceless in the air and on the sea.

"Any plan for the defence of Ireland, north and south must form part of a wider plan for the defence of Great Britain, Northern Ireland and Eire".

Dodgers, Cleveland Deposed As League Leaders by Reds And Tigers in Games Sunday

For Next Three Days the Both Major Leagues Will Have Holiday

DODGERS BEAT TWICE

Drop Games of 1-0 and 2-1 to Lowly Boston Bees While Indians Kick Away Game in 9th

By BILL WHITE

Associated Press Sports Writer

While big league baseball shines its shoes and goes "society" out in St. Louis for the all-star game, a pleasing three-day hush settles over the swirling fights for first place in both leagues.

The next three days will give Cincinnati Reds and Detroit Tigers time to get a deep breath after reaching the top and it will give Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers ample time to review yesterday's shortcomings that cost them the league leads.

The Reds, no strangers to the top rung, climbed there by dint of a 4-3 "gift" from Chicago Cubs and the Dodgers' double defeat. The Reds scored the winning run in the eighth on a walk, a single, Billy Herman's error that filled the bases and Morrie Arnovich's walk to ruin Bill Lee's fine bid for his seventh victory.

Meanwhile, in Boston, the Brooks cheered by 1,000 loyal home folk, bowed in a pair of heartbreakers, 1-0 and 2-1. Whit Wyatt lost a four hitter in the first game when Johnny Cooney singled home Eddie Miller. Then the Bees got away to a lead in the second game and hung on stubbornly to win 2-1.

Kicked Away Lead

In the American League Cleveland Indians kicked away the American League lead with a ninth-inning blow up, in their game with the White Sox, coupled with Detroit's well-earned victory over the Browns.

Young Bobby Feller and old Ted Lyons pitched superbly for eight innings and then the Sox took full advantage of a wild streak and scored two runs without making a hit, to win 3-1.

The Tigers climbed to the top of the league and all over their St. Louis "cousins", 5-2. The victory, 10th for Detroit in 12 games with the Brownies was achieved largely through Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe's five-hit pitching performance.

The other National League change in standings saw Pittsburgh Pirates erase a five-game losing streak by sweeping a four-game series with the Cards. They won yesterday by 7-6 and 4-1, to capture fifth place.

The third place New York Giants split with the Phillies, winning the first game 6-4 with a four-run first inning outburst, but losing the second 4-2.

Yanks Win And Lose

The other games in the American League saw the Yankees beat the Athletics 6-3 in spite of homers by Bill Lillard and Frankie Hayes, and then lose the second game to Nelson Potter's six-hit pitching, 10-5.

Ol' Mose Grove pulled himself through to one more winning effort for Boston in his amazing career, this one over Washington by 7-1, but the slipping Red Sox couldn't solve Rene Monteagudo's slants in the afterpiece and bowed 7-4.

In Saturday's games in the National League, Tot Pressnell shut out the Bees 2-0 to stretch Brooklyn's winning streak to seven games. The Phils, behind the six-hit pitching of Kirby Higbe, whipped the Giants 8-2. Big Paul Derringer turned in the best mound performance in either league for the day by allowing only one hit—a double by Stan Hack in the sixth inning—to whitewash the Cubs 4-0. The Pirates swept a doubleheader from the Cards 15-8 and 4-3.

American League

In the American League the Tigers took two from St. Louis Browns 11-2 and 2-0. Louis (Buck) Newsom won his 12th straight game in the opener and rookie hurler Johnny Gorsica gave five hits to take the nightcap. The Tribe trounced the White Sox 7-3 although outhit 11-8. Frank Hayes' ground rule double in the 10th inning scored Bennie McCoy's with the winning run as the A's defeated the Yankees 8-7. A four-run rally in the ninth with two out gave the Bosox a 5-3 victory over the last-place Senators.

Mildred "Babe" Didrickson, the one-woman track and field team of past Olympics and now the wife of wrestler George Zaharias, cut one more notch in her sport career when she won the U.S. western ladies' open against a crack field. Eight years ago the Babe didn't know which end of a golf club to hold but she vowed she would master the sport just as she matered every other form of athletic endeavor. She did. Not many men players can outshoot the Babe now.

33,000 EXPECTED AT ALL-STAR GAME

St. Louis Cardinals Will be Hosts to Galaxy of Playing Talent

St. Louis, July 8.—(AP)— They are playing the eighth rendition of the major league all-star baseball game in sportsman's park tomorrow but it's the first time the heroes will tangle on a diamond equally familiar to both sides.

Back in 1933 the game was started in the Chicago White Sox Park as the answer to the fans' prayer and a sportswriter's dream. Fittingly enough, the dream player of all-time, Babe Ruth, smashed a home run to give the American Leaguers the first of their five victories.

Since then the leagues have alternated as hosts. Now it is the turn of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Circuit to spread the festive board before an expected 33,000 customers.

And in recent years the Cardinals have shared sportsman's park with their fellow townsmen, the Browns of the American League.

Which all means that the wind currents and shadows tormenting the American Leaguers in their regularly scheduled games with the Browns have been studied by the Nationals in their topovers with the Cards—that the sun spots disturbing the fielders in the senior loop have been scanned by their rivals.

With the terrain so familiar, bettors today argued that the American League contingent was a 5-2 favorite on its pitching and batting prowess. A pencil and paper champ discovered the Nationals have won in the even numbered years after first crashing through in 1936, but they still trail five games to two for the series.

NEWARK BEARS A FEARED TEAM IN INT. LEAGUE

Getting Plenty of Hurling and Hitting and Kampouris is Home-Run King

HAS 18 HOMERS

Buffalo Bisons Whip Rochester Twice and Leafs Bow Twice to Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

There are a lot of reasons why the other International League Clubs fear Newark Bears—perhaps even more than they fear Rochester's League leaders.

The whole lineup is hitting these days; the pitchers are working well, most of them turning in two or three good performances for each time they get their ears knocked off. Besides for the first time in the club's history, the Bears have a contender for the home run crown.

Alex Kampouris, castoff major league second baseman, is the man who is threatening to carry off the four-ply hitting crown. His 18 homers so far leave him a trifle short of the league-leading pace of Baltimore's Bill Nagel, but Alex makes his hits count.

He did it yesterday, for example, when the Bears whipped Baltimore Orioles twice.

Kampouris made only four hits all day but he blasted a homer with two aboard in the 12th inning of the opener to break up a painfully long game and win it 10-7 for Newark. He contributed another four-bagger to the Bears' 9-2 second victory, but it didn't count for so much, as Steve Peek limited the Orioles to two hits while Bud Metheny, Tom Padden and Tommy Holmes also hit homers. The opener lasted more than 3 hours and saw 31 players in action—nine of the pitchers. There were four equally divided homers before Kampouris' deciding blast.

It was a big help to Newark, too, that Buffalo's Bisons knocked over Rochester twice, 7-5 and 7-4, and Syracuse Chiefs took the measure of Jersey City, 3-1 and 6-0. Montreal Royals walloped Toronto Leafs twice, 6-0 and 5-3, thereby moving into fourth place a half game ahead of Baltimore and dropping Toronto to the cellar behind Syracuse.

Bill Crouch gave Montreal its share of the day's good pitching by holding the Leafs to two hits in the first contest. He knocked in four runs himself with a double and single. George Staller's homer featured the Royals' winning rally in the nightcap.

In Saturday's games Tommy Holmes' ninth-inning homer gave the Bears a 3-2 triumph over the Little Giants. The Orioles batted out an 8-6 win over Syracuse. The veteran Mike Ryba gave eight hits as the Red Wings whipped Toronto 4-3. In a night game Montreal's eccentric southpaw hurler, Lee Grissom mastered the Bisons 5-3 with a five-hit pitching performance.

Harold Bailey, Secretary of the O.R.F.U., announced over the week end that the senior provincial football loop would carry on next fall despite the war and that all profits derived in the senior series would be turned over to the Red Cross Society.

"Sports can aid the war effort in more ways than one," Bailey said, in commenting on a decision reached by Canadian university heads and National Defence Department officials whereby all intercollegiate sports have been cancelled for the duration of the war.

"We intend to give the profits from our senior series to the Red Cross, and we believe that by carrying on we will be further aiding the war effort," Bailey added. "People must have some relaxation. They don't want to sit at home thinking about the war all the time," he concluded.

It may be news and information to many, including this corner, but Belleville is one of the pioneer centres of lawn bowling in Canada. According to statisticians the first lawn bowling ever recorded proved that Belleville, Toronto and a small centre in western Ontario were the first places to ever play the game, made famous by Admiral Drake, in Canada. That was in the middle 50's of the last century. Belleville has always been an ardent lawn bowling centre. Post war years proved this when the local club tournaments were the mecca of lawn bowlers from all parts of the province. However, in the present day and age we have district bowling only and Games Chairman Cliff Argue has lined up a sterling card for the Provincial District men's doubles to be played here on Wednesday. The features are the Robertson and Herb Fish trophies, but the list of prizes far surpasses capital trophies. Lawn bowlers from Kingston, Peterboro, Madoc, Cobourg and intermediate points will compete in this tournament which should provide an afternoon and evening's entertainment for the bowlers as well as the sport-loving public.

All too frequently amateur athletes hit the downward trail before they reach 30 years of age. By the time they've reached the three decade age they begin to think of hanging up their spiked shoes, skates or cleats. Actually they should be at their peak along about 30. Take for instance such big league stars as Charley Root, aged 41; Lefty Grove, Ted Lyons, Gabby Hartnett and Syl Johnson, all 40; Johnny Cooney at 39, Clint Brown at 37, Al Simmons, 37, also Earl Averill, same age, Charley Ruffing a year younger—but the Yank veteran is still the best all-around flinger in the American loop; Sam West and Pepper Martin at 36; and others—what about these? And it is surprising the number of N.H.L. aces in their late 30s, too. Guess it's a case of a guy being as young as he feels, if he keeps in condition.

Do you remember when Joe Wright, Jr., of Toronto, won the Diamond Sculls at the Royal Henley Regatta 12 years ago today, finishing one length ahead of R. T. Lee of Oxford? Jack Guest, also of Toronto, won the event in 1930 and Bobby Pearce, Australian-born sculler of Hamilton, Ont., pulled to victory in 1931.

Last spring there were rumors to the effect that Postmaster General James A. Farley of the U.S.A. would head a group to purchase the New York Yankees, lock, stock and barrel. The rumor bobbed up again over the week-end, when Farley's name was linked with that of Governor Cox of Ohio, as the principal backer in the purchase of the Yankee syndicate. It is estimated that around $4,000,000 will be paid to the estate of the late Col. Rupert for his holdings. Ed. Barrow, former Toronto manager and now head business executive of the Bronx Bombers, will be retained as vice-president, if the Farley-Cox deal is completed.

SPORT SPICE—There is a possibility that some 600 refugee horses may be brought over the ocean from the British Isles. . . If so they'll be available to race on Canadian tracks. . . .Week-end baseball results see the Tigers back on top of the American League, while the Reds took over the top slot in the National as the result of the Cubs presenting them with a 4-3 victory, as the Bees stopped the Dodgers. Oshawa won and the Petes dropped by the wayside Saturday, so we find the Motor City crew leading the Inter-city senior ball loop today. . . . The Kinsmen guarantee 38 initial heats in their fifth running of the Soap Box Derby Tuesday and this does not include the elimination heats which should be 12 more and you haven't came near the semi-finals yet.

'LEAVE IT TO HISTORY'

Winston Churchill says he will "leave it to history" to decide whether any other course was open to Britain in her hour of peril. And impartial history will render the verdict that no other course was open. A fleet in Petain's hands would have been a fleet in Hitler's hands. To seize that fleet, or sink such ships as resisted, was a mere act of self-preservation on Britain's part. Britain took it reluctantly but thoroughly, for she now has most of France's capital ships, numerous cruisers, destroyers, submarines (including the world's largest) and scores of auxiliary vessels. And as the tricolor is hauled down and the White Ensign run up over each of these, the Nazis are set just that much farther back on their iron heels. — Windsor Daily Star.

British hearts will be touched by the offer of Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell to take 500 English children and contribute $250,000 a year to their support. Wealth could scarcely be spent for a nobler cause.—Hamilton Spectator.

Little Benny's Note Book

By Lee Pape

Pop was smoking to himself in the living room and ma walked in with a hat on, saying, Willyum, I don't have to keep this hat if I dont want to, so I want your candid undivided opinion about it.

How much was it? pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum, that angle of the question is neither here nor there. A person might think it was perfectly immaterial to you how I look as long as there was no expense involved for land sakes, she said.

Not at all, quite the contrary, pop said. It's quite a remarkable hat, that's what I think, he said, and ma said, Well dont be so vague, a thing can be remarkable in either a loundatory or an unsympathetic sense, so how do you mean when you employ the word?

I mean it strikes me as a hat with a lot of dash to it, and yet naturelly too much dash would put it on the conspicious side, what I mean is, a successful hat must have a ballanced dash, so that's the matter we've got to decide, pop said. What did you say they're asking for it? he said, and ma said, I didn't say, as you are perfectly well aware. What I want to know is, do you like the hat as a pure and simple hat with the element of money left out? she said.

My deer it's ravishing, it has the combined charm of the four seasons and the combined mystery of the 7 wonders, I couldn't like it any more if it cost a million dollers, pop said, and ma said, Well that's more like what I wanted to hear. Maud Hews wants to give it to me. She had it made for her and finds she cant put it at a single becoming angle, she said.

Yee gods what a relief I mean first impressions can always be depended on, it's even more becoming than I thought, pop said.

And he got in back of the sporting page looking like somebody feeling better instead of worse.

Prompt Action Saves Italian

Toronto, July 8—(CP)—Prompt action by a policeman in civilian clothes saved Italian-born Seleste Della-Zotta from possible injury at the hands of an incensed crowd at an ex-servicemen's gathering Sunday. Spectators said Della-Zotta yelled something in Italian and members of the crowd pushed toward him. Plainclothesman Sam Welsford went to the man's side and hurried him away in a police cruiser. He was locked up on a vagrancy charge, pending investigation.

Police Blotter

Sneak thieves were busy over the week-end and successfully made off with a motor car rug stolen from a parked automobile owned by Gerald Barnum of Campbellford Saturday evening. City police were told by Barnum, that he had parked his motor car at the upper end of Front St. and during his absence the vehicle had been entered and the motor car rug stolen.

While riding his bicycle on Front St. a hit-and-run driver knocked Glen Whitehead, 30 Dundas St., off his bike and sped away without enquiring as to the lad's injuries. Whitehead told the police the motor car that struck his bicycle had come off the upper bridge and turned north towards Station St. Fortunately Whitehead escaped uninjured and was later in a position to give the police a good description of the hit-and-run car.

Shortly after 6.00 a.m. Sunday P. C. Taylor stopped a motor car on the Cannifton Road. Investigations revealed a gallon jug of mash what police say today was suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor. Thomas Brant, Tyendinaga, was charged with driving a motor car without holding the proper driver's licence, while three companions were booked on charges of breach of the L.C.A. The mash was turned over to the R.C.M.P. for disposal.

Seven inebriates were taken into custody over the week-end and all appeared in court today.

AT THE McCARTHY

"WAGONS WESTWARD"

An anniversary production from republic Studios. "Wagons Westward" now showing at the McCarthy Theatre, is in the top rating of Class A entertainment (not an ordinary western) but a frontier story of early motion picture entertainment.

Chester Morris, Anita Louise, Buck Jones and Ona Munson, whose marked talent was recently displayed in "Gone With The Wind", top a cast of outstanding players which also includes that great old-timer George (Gabby) Hayes.

"Wagons Westward" is one of the best films to reach the screen this year, for exciting action and thrilling drama, do not let the title mis-lead you, take our word that you will see a great motion picture, one that you will enjoy and remember. "Wagons Westward" is not presented as the one half of a two feature program, at the McCarthy but is presented alone, which is your further assurance that it is truly top-rated entertainment. "Andy Clyde Takes In Broadway" a 20 minute comedy-riot, an interesting "Screen Snapshots" of Hollywood stars at work and play, and latest MsCarthy-Fox World News events, three outstanding short subjects are shown in advance of "Wagons Westward" at each performance.

AT THE CAPITOL

Sandy is A Lady

Tired? Inhale a cigarette. Thirsty? Just Whistle. Gloomy? Just take a peek at Sandy is a Lady now, at the Capitol. It is guaranteed to cure grouchy grandpas, fussy fathers, and offensive offspring. That insatiable trouble-shooter, Baby Sandy is on the loose again, getting into bigger and better jams. Not that is surprising, because she is associating with those galloping tornadoes of "The Underpup", Butch and Buddy. They drive the rest of the players almost crazy, but that doesn't matter much when they are as looney as Mischa Auer, Eugene Pallette, Billy Gilbert, and Edgar Kennedy. And the romance is added by Tom Brown and Nan Grey. Don't forget, for a good laugh, see Sandy is a Lady.

That master sleuth, inspector Hornleigh, supplies a contrasting feature, when he solves a baffling mystery and smashes a spy ring. A Popular Science short completes the bill.

AT THE BELLE

"Lillian Russell"

The life and loves of Lillian Russell, "the most beautiful woman America," have been made into one of the greatest pictures of all time by Producer Darryl F. Zanuck, now playing at the Belle Theatre, Zanuck's production, "Lillian Russell" features Alice Faye in the title role, with Don Ameche, Henry Fonda and others.

It is a motion picture that brings out the strength of Hollywood, for "Lillian Russell." has everything. Drama, comedy, pathos, action, color—all have been deftly blended to make a superb picture that will keep you absorbed and fascinated from start to finish. "Lillian Russell" revives many of the popular songs of her day, including "After The Ball is Over, "Rosie, you are My Posie," "May Evening Star" and "The Band Played on" ("Strawberry Blond.")

Lillian Russell was the most colorful of all the personalities of the most fabulous era America ever knew. She lived a vivid life that lends itself to screen adaptation and Zanuck has spun a really great motion picture about her life and loves.

Blonde Alice Faye more than justifies the faith Zanuck placed in her when he chose her to portray the great Lillian Russell. Her acting reaches an all-time high and her charm and her singing voice heighten the triumph.

Don Ameche gives another excellent preformance in the role of Edward Solomon, Lillian Russell's composer husband. Henry Fonda proves once more his rare talents in the role of Alexander Moore, the Pittsburgh newspaper publisher, who also became Lillian Russell's husband.

Edward Arnold as Diamond Jim Brady, another of her countless admirers, Warren William as Jesse Lewisohn, the copper king, Leo Carrillo as Tony Pastor, the Ziegfield of his era and "discoverer" of Lillian Russell, all give memorable performances.

Others who stand out in the star-studded cast are Helen Westley, Dorothy Peterson, Ernest Truex, Nigel Bruce, Claude Allister, Lynn Bari, Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, Jr., Una O'Connor and Joseph Cawthorn.

Two new songs were written especially for "Lillian Russell," "Adored One," by Alfred Newman and Mack Gordon, and "Blue Love Bird," by Gus Kahn and Bronislau Kaper.

ROTARY CLUB MEMBERS TO VISIT BOYS' CAMP

Members of the local Rotary Club are journeying to Moira Lake this evening where they will partake of supper with boys in camping at the Belleville Boys' Camp. This is an annual event that is looked forward to both by the boys in camping and also the older boys who will be the guests of the campers.

Oliver Lodge in Canada

Toronto, July 8—(CP)— Oliver Lodge, English poet and playwright and son of Sir Oliver Lodge, world famed scientist, arrived in Toronto last night from Montreal with his wife and two children, Belinda, six, and Tommy, four. The family hopes to find a haven in Canada after leaving England with a party of evacuees. Lodge has been lecturing in England and, although undecided regarding his future, said he expects to do the same in Canada.

Baby Sandy and the Little Tornadoes Butch and Buddy, the lovable brats of "The Underpup" are back to make you howl with glee in "Sandy is a Lady," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Plus the famous Scotland Yard Detective, Gordon Harker, in "Inspector Hornleigh."

SHINING WINDOWS

by Kathleen Norris

girls, take a taxi. I don't like your walking those three dark blocks."

"Oh, mother," Dora said patiently. "Together?"

"I know. But I don't like your walking those dark blocks. Fanny, will you telephone and ask them to send a yellow? Now, Ben," Sarah Ballard said, crushing her son's face against her own with a hand on his jaw, as he stooped to kiss her good-bye, "if you drive anywhere drive carefully, and don't be too late. Keith told me the other day that the first term of the third year was the most important of all."

"Don't he ever take his sisters out in the evening?" William Ballard demanded when he was gone.

"Certainly he does sometimes, daddy. But a boy of his age finds life sa fascinating; he's absorbed in his own affairs!" Mrs. Ballard led the way from the table. "I believe it would be more comfortable upstairs tonight, it's quite chilly," she said.

"Don't miss Kitty Macrae and Mike Lucas, daddy!" Joyce reminded him, flying downstairs with her coat over her arm.

For more than an hour Mrs. Ballard was busy writing in the upstairs sitting-room, while her husband turned the radio low and listened to Kitty and Mike, who had bought a fish store tonight and were making side-splitting mistakes in the handling of the stock. Lissy's young man had come, and they had gone out. "We don't know where; we may go to a movie; he has his father's car," Lissy had said, upon leaving.

The big house was still, except for the rustle of William Ballard's newspaper, the scratch of his wife's pen and the little radio voices.

"I must make notes of all this while it is fresh in my mind," said Mrs. Ballard.

"Sally," said her husband after a while, "I saw Judson Patterson at the bank today." He says that they won't do anything about the note. Says they can't."

"Oh, that's good!" Mrs. Ballard said, turning herself about to look at him over the back of her chair. "Or is that bad, Will?" she asked, with a change of expression.

He looked at her heavily.

"It means losing the plant," he said simply.

"Will Ballard!" She was not alarmed; she was only admonitory and soothing.

"I mean it, Sally. I saw Edmonds after I talked to Patterson." He stretched an arm to turn off the radio. His wife sighed; she hated business talk; it was obvious that they were in for one.

"Now, darling, don't take things too seriously!" she said. "Remember the night we knew Dora was coming, and we had no money, and I was sick and you were a clerk on eighteen hundred a year, and afraid of losing your job at that! You worry too much, Will. I want you to know that I've got a very smart husband, who has only to invent something to make everything all right again!"

"Ha, that time is over!" William Ballard said with a brief rueful laugh. "I'll be darned if I know what to do about this! You see, it's a pretty heavy load. Three girls with their German lessons and their dresses . . ."

"German lessons, Will! Five dollars a week!"

"I know, but it all counts up. Ben's expenses in college, his car, three servants," William Ballard went on, with a sigh, "well, I suppose there's no cutting down anywhere, until the girls marry, at least!"

"There isn't for this reason," Mrs. Ballard said sensibly and readily. She had defended this position before. "You simply cannot get a cook to come into a house this size unless you have a second girl downstairs. Edna is invaluable upstairs, on account of the girls' mending, and the cleaner, and things like that. If I let Edna go then I'll lose Fanny. They always work together, and they took ten dollars off their regular rate to be together."

She came out of her monologue to find her husband staring at the fire.

"We could sell this house," he said, as if to himself.

"Will, that would be crazy! Just as the girls are at the age to need a home, a place to bring their friends!"

"I don't see their friends here very much. Their friends apparently only come here to take 'em off somewhere. There's not one of them that ever spends an evening at home."

Mrs. Ballard said nothing to this for a while. After a silence she said gently, "You're tired tonight, Will."

"I'm awfully tired!" he conceded, in a broken tone that suddenly demanded sympathy.

"But why do you do it, dear? Why do you let yourself get so tired? Why do men slave and struggle and throw away the best years of their lives making money, without ever stopping to enjoy it? It's a fault of American man. In Europe they have a leisure class—men who have time for walks, gardens, hobbies, reading. American men . . ."

She was not conscious of his presence for some moments, after which she saw that he was not listening; he was staring into the fire with a most unwonted frown on his face.

"I wish you never had gone to Patterson for the old loan!" she interrupted herself to say, trying to meet his thoughts.

"I had to go to some one."

"Why not borrow the money from some one else, and get through with Patterson once and for all?"

"Not so easy. Money's beginning to be terribly tight."

"What I wish," Mrs. Ballard recommended brightly, after a compassionate glance at his weariness, his bowed shoulders, and rumpled gray hair, "what I wish, and what I think we must do, is go ahead now until Lissy and Dodo, at least are married. Ben will be in with some good law firm then, and taking care of himself. Once the children are settled you and I can really take a holiday."

"You wonder sometimes why you have 'em!" William Ballard muttered, out of thought.

"Have what?"

"Children," he said with a sigh.

Mrs. Ballard laughed on a scandalized note.

"Will, dear, what blue glasses you've got on tonight! Come now, cheer up. Why not turn in early, and have a long night's rest? As for the children," Sally Ballard went on cheerfully, "never in this world was there a father crazier about his children than you. Felicity and then Dodo—why, you couldn't wait to take them out walking on Sundays so that every one could see the little Ballard girls!"

"That was a cute little house we had in Palo Alto."

"I remember," she said gayly, "your coming home with Yates — remember what a big man we thought Yates was then?—and his saying, "I think this man of yours has struck oil, Mrs. Ballard!" My dear, and that was only the soda-percentage thing, and the refiner-control thing that didn't come along for years after that. What is a refiner-control, Will? Ie it a sort of faucet?"

She had asked him this before; he had answered before as he did now:

"No, it's chemical. Maybe it was a mistake coming to the city, Sally," he added, pondering.

"Now don't begin that, Will. You've got your own plant, we own this beautiful home. All we have to do is sit tight for another few years and they'll all be married, and then I'll feel my responsibilities over."

"What do we get out of the children, Sally?" William Ballard said suddenly. "No, I mean it seriously; what do we get out of them? When they were little, yes, they paid their own way then. But now? When are they ever home? When do they ever want to do anything we do? Every week-end they're all gone, one place or another, or the girls have a girl or two here, and boys come and take them out. Don't girls cook and sew and sit around, and talk to their families any more. Don't a father . . ."

"I wish he wouldn't use 'don't' that way!" Mrs. Ballard thought anxiously. She lost the thread of what he was saying, but she knew it all—she had heard it before.

"The boy asks me for money," William Ballard was continuing when she picked up the conversation again. "Well, that's all right. Gas for the car, tires, tennis racquets; he has his camera films developed and I foot the bill. But what do I get? If your children are done with you when they reach the twenties, why don't they get out and let you live the way you want to live and pay your bills?"

"You're not talking very sensibly, dear," Sally Ballard said in a faint affectionate displeasure.

"You and I'd have been rich; we could have travelled somewhere, if we'd not had children. China—I saw a movie of China the other day. I'd like to see China before I die.

Mrs. Ballard did not answer. She was thinking.

NAZI HATRED

There are clauses in the German armistice with France that make the Treaty of Versailles look like a sermon by a pacifist preacher over here. Article XIX is a most ominous one, proving the intense hate of any opponent to the mighty power of Nazism or Fascism and the blood lust of the forces that have crushed nations by cruel and ruthless tyranny in Europe. The article in question is worded thus: "The French Government is to hand over all German subjects, indicated by the German government who are now in France or French territories overseas." There are many marked men who have fled to the asylum of France from the Nazi terror. Some of them are notable names in science, art, culture and industry, who have fled their fatherland robbed of all but their honor and brains and accepting the fate of refugees rather than the sentences of tyrant Germans. The German armistice clause settles their fate and in that death would probably be a release.—Brandon Sun.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 8 (CP). — Better prices were registered by gold and western oil stocks today. Turnover continued small at 54,000 shares.

Bell Telephone, off 5 to a new low for five years at 130, was the outstanding weak spot in the industrials. C.P.R., Ford A, British American Oil and International Petroleum were gainers. Fleet Aircraft was in demand with the price up ⅜ to 4⅜.

Home Oil touched 1.65 for a gain of 20 cents and Calgary and Edmonton, Highwood, Anglo-Canadian and Davies were all up a few cents.

Changes were narrow in the golds and a gain of 2 cents for Steep Rock was about the only change in the cheaper base metal group. East Malartic, Preston and Aunor were stronger golds.

WALL STREET

New York, July 8.—(AP)—Stock market traders continued to conserve buying ammunition today and leading issues failed to develop a definite trend.

Stocks edging forward now and then included General Motors, Chrysler U.S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, United Aircraft, Du Pont, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Great Northern and Texas Corp. Steels were listless.

Most Canadian issues were quiet. Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore gained fractions while Walkers lost 1-2. In the Bond Market Canada 4s gained a fraction.

Trading Light On Produce Market

Toronto, July 8.—Corrected figures that showed butter stocks in the nine principal cities on July 1 at 20,591,185 pounds, instead of the previous report of 19,834,185 pounds, unsettled the Toronto butter market Saturday. Eggs and cheese showed little change.

Business shrank to very small volume on the butter market as members of the trade were surprised by the revised stock figures. No. 1 Ontario creamery solids eased to 29½c per pound, with only odd small lots changing hands. No western butter was moved, although a fair amount was reported sold at 22½c per pound after the close of the market on Friday.

Light receipts were cleared without difficulty on the egg market, prices held firm in both sections of trading. Pullets and C's were shaded down in the retail division, however.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, July 8 (CP).—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

strictions would be granted Jews born in the old pre-war kingdom, veterans of the first great war, military reservists and industrial or financial specialists.

Closer Co-operation.

2. Close co-operation with Germany.

3. Betterment of relations with Russia.

Reports from Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, which Rumania ceded to Russia on demand, said additional Red army divisions were pouring into the areas. Officially it was declared "all is quiet" along the new frontier.

Signs of unrest continued to manifest themselves elsewhere in southeastern Europe.

In Belgrade a group of Soviet sympathizers, most of them students, demonstrated at a railway station during the arrival yesterday of the new Russian minister to Yugoslavia, Victor Plotnikoff. Police dispersed them.

Dispatches from Istanbul said Turkey was gravely concerned by continued attacks on that country by press and radio in German, Italy and Russia.

Some diplomatic quarters expressed belief the attacks were preliminaries to a Russian move toward the Dardanelles.

Great War Veterans Beaten by Juveniles

Toronto, July 8—(CP) —John Holland, 57-year-old crippled veteran of the first Great War, was beaten and robbed of about $5 of his imperial service pension money by four juveniles who attacked him at his rooming house here Sunday.

The boys, all aged about 14, were arrested in connection with the case and charged with housebreaking last night.

Police said the boys watched the house until everybody but Holland had left it. One stood in front as lookout while the other three went to the rear and entered the kitchen. One boy, arming himself with a shoe brush, entered the dining room and was alleged to have hit Holland over the head with the brush.

BRITAIN INFLICTS

They base their view on the possibility Hitler will decide he first must do something about the Mediterranean now that he has lost the bulk of the French fleet.

May Move in Mediterranean

Hitler, they suggest, may decide to move against Egypt and Gibraltar in an attempt to control both entrances to the Mediterranean sea which he never will be able to control by naval strength backed up by air strength as long as the British fleet holds its superiority over the Italian forces.

If he postpones his major military offensive against Britain, Hitler probably will continue air raids in an attempt to disrupt industry and spread civil disturbance.

But whether Hitler will attempt to invade this country or not, Britain is playing everything safe, pushing ahead with defensive plans and taking the offensive against Germany by sea and air.

R. A. F. Active

While the 3,000,000th man was called to the colors in Britain during the week-end in the 29-year-old class, the Royal Air Force:—

Bombed Italian warships sheltering in the Libyan hargor of Tobruk;

Dropped six bombs on the French battleship Dunkerque beached at Oran to make doubly sure the 26,-500-ton warship could not be used against Britain;

Continued the day and night raids over Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway and France, bombing naval bases, docks, air dromes, aircraft factories, oil refineries and railway junctions;

Plugged a few holes in the biggest mine field ever known, a field running the entire length of the German Baltic and North Sea coasts, extending up Norway's serrated coastline to the far north.

This field, which has been planted entirely there in the last 12 weeks, already has resulted in severe German sea losses and has sealed fjords, estuaries and harbors which might be used as jumping off places for the invasion of Britain.

HON. C. G. POWER

The official party arrived in Belleville from Camp Borden, late Saturday night aboard a private car on the Canadian National Railway. Early yesterday morning Wing Commander J. A. Sully, Officer Commanding the Trenton Air Base; Wing Commander Mawdsley, Officer Commanding the Empire Air Training Scheme at Trenton and Flying Officer Denton Massey, Adjutant, met the party at the station. The party was taken to the air base aboard the R.C.A.F. yacht "Doris III".

Very Enthusiastic

The Minister was very enthused about the boat trip from Belleville to Trenton and made numerous comments concerning the wonderful scenery during the trip. The Bay of Quinte was at its best in the morning sun with only a slight ripple stirring the almost glassy surface.

Landing at the seaplane hangar, the party visited the Administration Building, where an inspection was carried out by the Minister and his staff. Following this inspection the party was taken to the aerodrome on the north side of the highway.

Fairey battles, Hudson-Lockheeds, Fleet Trainers, Oxford Bombers and many other aircraft were drawn up in rows on the landing field and present quite a formidable array of Canada's fighting aeroplanes. The official party inspected each aircraft carefully during the morning.

The Hon Mr. Power took a great interest in all phases of the training scheme and in the ships. With the rest of the official party, he was taken to the roof of one of the aerodromes where he could obtain a view of the airbase. Squadron Leader Edwards explained all the details of the training system and the aeroplanes to the Minister, from the vantage point on the roof.

Greatly Satisfied

"It is wonderful", said the Minister of Defence for Air, as he looked over the array of planes lined up on the field. "This air station is now one of the best equipped in Canada and has a most competent staff of officers".

"I am greatly satisfied with the work now being carried on here and the officers of Trenton are deserving of the highest praise", the Minister informed the reporters.

The official party wandered about the field inspecting the various planes and on one occasion were shown a plan of the field and the aerodromes by Wing Commander Sully.

Followed this inspection, the party was taken to the airmen's mess where the Minister made a careful examination of the quarters. During the meal hour, he passed along the tables stopping to speak to the airmen and asking if there were any complaints. There were not. Even in the kitchen, the Hon. Mr. Power continued his careful inspection asking the cooks numerous questions about the food.

During the remainder of the morning, the party inspected repair shops, the supply depot and the new section of the air station now under construction at the north end of the airport.

Following the inspection of the various buildings the party were entertained at the officers' mess for lunch and were driven to Belleville, where they boarded the train for Ottawa, via Montreal.

Killed in Fall

Falling from a hay mow, Frederick McCoy, Trenton, was fatally injured, on Saturday afternoon and died in the Belleville General hospital, less than an hour after being admitted. He suffered from a fractured skull and concussion.

McCoy, age 27, was employed by James Scott, R.R. 4, Trenton, about two miles west of this town. While working in the hay mow, on Saturday afternoon, he fell headlong to the floor below some 15 feet. It is believed that he was climbing down a ladder at the time of the accident.

The injured man was rushed to Trenton where Dr. J. W. Farley rendered first aid before taking the injured man to the Belleville General hospital.

Constable E. Smith, O.P.P., Belleville investigated the accident and upon reporting to Dr. J. J. Robertson, Belleville, it was decided that an inquest would not be held.

BRITAIN

Four-Engined Plane Downed.

Royal Air Force planes, in daylight raids on Germany yesterday, shot down a Messerschmitt fighter in flames and wrecked a big four-engined airplane on the ground.

Besides destroying the big German plane in a raid on Eschwege, the Air Ministry said, the R.A.F. scored a direct hit on a runway and is believed to have caused "extensive damage" to planes on the ground.

Attacked by five Messerschmitts, it added, a British bomber raiding German-occupied northern France shot down one in a burst of gunfire and escaped to sea.

German assertions of British losses in the air battle over the British channel yesterday were scoffed at in authoritative circles as "just another case of Nazi multiplication by ten".

British Lose Only One Machine

(The Nazi high command communique claimed 10 British Spitfires shot down over the channel as part of 14 British air losses to three form Germany yesterday.)

"Against a German loss of three fighters and a bomber, British losses were, in fact, one only—the second fighter machine lost in the defence of Britain since the war began," these sources said.

The "bag" of German planes attacking the British Isles, they added, is "112 machines certain" and possibly 25 others damaged so badly they are believed never to have reached home.

To this were added the two bombers brought down today. Witnesses said one of these in the southeast was last seen dropping toward the sea belching smoke and pursued by British fighters.

Incendiary Bombs Used

About 100 incendiary and 12 explosive bombs were dropped in the early morning raid on a northeast town in which several persons were injured, three houses demolished and eight others damaged.

Latest reports from the southwest town raided said one man was killed and several wounded.

Detailing the air fighting of last night, the Air Ministry said one Spitfire pilot shot down two Messerschmitt 109 fighters in dogfights over the channel and attacked three more before returning unscathed to his base.

Another pilot of the same squadron, the announcement said, bagged another Messerschmitt 109 and damaged a Messerschmitt 110 which just had shot down a British Hurrican.

The attack followed daylong raids from southwest England to southwest Scotland yesterday in which at least five persons were killed, seven and possibly eight German planes were shot down and three British fighters lost.

One store and two houses were demolished in today's raid. Several other buildings in the main shopping street of the town were shattered.

At the same time a German plane flew over a southeast England town but turned back toward the east amid a hail of anti-aircraft fire. It apparently escaped.

Strike Back at Enemy

While Britons heard of today's raid they noted with satisfaction that night after night and day after day the Royal Air Force had struck back at the enemy, inflicting heavy damage and demoralization far over Germany, German-dominated Europe and Italian African possessions.

In yesterday's attacks Nazi bombers struck at points all along the coast. They ran into concentrated anti-aircraft fire and British fighting planes and two bombers were sent spinning into the channel.

But under the protection of Messerschmitts that engaged the British planes in spectacular dog-fights, some of them broke through the coastal defences and penetrated inland to drop incendiary and delayed-action bombs.

They appeared three times over western England which was raided four times on Saturday and once Friday.

Many Shot Out of Skies

A third bomber was brought down last night, while four of the escorting Nazi planes were shot out of the skies and a fifth was "probably destroyed," in the Air Ministry's view.

One policeman was among those killed. A postmaster and his wife were believed buried in the ruins of their postoffice in a southwest town. Houses were wrecked and an untold number of persons injured.

But on the other side of the picture, Britons hailed these factors:

The London Times quoted an Air Ministry estimate of 40 Nazi planes downed in the last two weeks, (the raiders have failed to appear only one day out of the past 20) and 2,500 destroyed by British forces since the war began.

Radio Stations Silenced

Hamburg and Bremen radio stations were reported to have gone off the air abruptly last night, an indication of the approach of British bombers.

France and Belgium, an armament depot in Germany, and to have mined Baltic and Norwegian waters;

The British submarine Snapper, the Admirality reported, torpedoed convoys near Norway, and broke up five supply ships in two separate one of the convoys.

Encouragement for Britain came meanwhile from Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, who announced June aircraft production had more than doubled that of June, 1939, and pointed to the "considerable contribution to our air fleet" of planes and engines bought in the United States.

On the political front, the question of a United Ireland defence against possible Nazi invasion was said by Lord Craigavon, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, to depend upon a pledge by Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire that his nation "will come into the war with the rest of the British Empire and clear out German and Italian representatives."

"Eire's neutrality," he said, "constitutes a source of great danger not only to Eire herself but to the United Kingdom."

Civilians Fatigued

(In Berlin Preston Grover, an Associated Press correspondent, wrote that he and other correspondents had been taken on a 1,400-mile tour of the Ruhr and Rhine valleys where they had seen that R.A.F. raiders had inflicted considerable damage.

(Grover said the Germans had not taken the correspondents to see damage to military objectives but that "in several places bombs obviously had fallen in the vicinity of substantial military objectives.")

(It was the apparent intention of the Germans to support their allegation that the R.A.F. is bombing non-military objectives.)

(Grover said the population of the areas he visited showed evidence of nervous and physical fatigue resulting from rushing to air raid shelters about 1 a.m. each day and that business was considerably disrupted as a consequence of the raids.)

Winston Churchill Likened to Pitt By New York Times

New York, July 8—(CP)— The New York Times, remarking that it has become commonplace to point to the Napoleonic aspect of Hitler's Europe, asked today if there "is not also a resemblance on the British as well as on the German side?"

"If there is a Napoleonic quality in Hitlers' military triumphs, in the fanatical drive of his armies and the frenzied acclaim of the Berliners as he returns from his conquests, is there not also some of the magic touch of William Pitt in the leadership of Hitler's enemies?" The Times asked.

"The leadership of Winston Churchill has now been tested in two months of desperate struggle. .... there is every evidence of a spurt in production all along the line in present-day England; and, what is more, there is every sign that galvanic leadership is having its reward. ....

"Winston Churchill has rallied his people to face one disaster upon another without flinching. He has kept up their courage by keeping up his own, even in the face of the collapse of France, which must have been the bitterest blow of his lifetime.......

"Whatever the outcome of the present life-and-death struggle may be, future generations of Englishmen will have equal reason to honor the example which Winston Churchill has given them."

MAIN BUSINESS BLOCK DESTROYED

Pakenham Near Ottawa Visited by Fire With Loss Estimated at $100,000

Pakenham, Ont., July 8—(CP)— The main business block of this Lanark County town west of Ottawa was destroyed by an early morning fire today with loss estimated at $100,000. Cause of the blaze which started in a grocery store owned by L. A. Maynes, was not known.

Fanned by a high wind, the blaze threatened other residences for a time but finally was brought under control nearly four hours after it started. The local fire department enlisted the aid and fire-fighting apparatus of nearby Arnprior, Carleton Place and Almonte to fight the stubborn fire.

Business buildings razed included the Maynes store, the post office, James Cox's general store, a boot and shoe store operated by Alex Lesage, the Preston Burgess Department Store and several outbuildings, a small store owned by Earl Steen, three residences and the office of the Telephone Central.

Hydro Lines Down.

Many hydro lines and all the telephone lines were down in the area affected by the fire shortly after the blaze started but a call for help to Carleton Place, Almonte and Arnprior was put through by Burgess before the flames razed the telephone exchange.

Although the entire contents of the Cox store were lost, most other merchants had time to salvage some of their merchandise before the flames reached their premises.

From Maynes Stores the flames swept down Main street and engulfed house after house until they were checked by the combined fire-fighting forces.

Pakenham is about 38 miles from Ottawa.

VIOLENT DEATHS DURING WEEKEND NUMBER NINETEEN

Traffic Accidents and Drownings Account for Most of the Deaths

4 DOUBLE FATALITIES

By The Canadian Press

Traffic accidents and drownings accounted for most of the 19 violent deaths reported in Ontario during the weekend. The death toll was the worst of the summer and was recorded as thousands sought relief from the heat in congested areas by going to the countryside and bathing resorts.

There were 10 traffic fatalities and at least six drownings. Four were double fatalities.

Sam Hepburn of Chesley and Frederick Chartier, 35, of Elmwood were killed when their truck crashed into the side of a Canadian Pacific Railway train at a crossing four miles east of Durham on Saturday. The cab of the truck burst into flames after the machine hit the side of the engine and the men were thrown near the guard fence at the crossing.

Ida Ritchie, 18, and Betty Edwards, 17, both of Gorrie, were killed early Sunday when the automobile in which they were returning from a dance at Listowel with five other persons smashed into a bridge on the highway three miles south of Gorrie. The machine skidded 150 feet before it hit the bridge head and stopped 30 feet farther on after turning over four times. A bridge rail pierced the side of the car, went through the back seat and into the gasoline tank.

Missing since Friday when they set out on an 18-mile speedboat trip from Oliphant to Southampton on Lake Huron, F. R. Ramsey of Guelph, president of the Biltmore Hat Company, and Charles V. Lloyd, Stratford merchant and sportsman, are believed to have been drowned. It is thought their boat, capable of a speed of 45 miles per hour, may have struck a submerged obstacle and capsized. Pieces of wreckage were found by searchers.

Double Drowning

There was a double drowning Sunday in the Welland River, five miles west of the city. George Robbins, 18, lost his life in a vain attempt to save a companion, Joseph Filip, 18, of Fenwick.

James McCullough, 42-year-old Caledonia resident died Sunday in hospital at Hamilton from injuries suffered earlier when struck by an automobile that did not stop. Gordon Forsythe, 37, of Brantford, was killed when struck yesterday by an automobile driven by John Vanschaik, of London.

Mrs. Philip Grise of Toronto was killed Saturday on the highway near Port McNicoll when the automobile in which she was a passenger struck another machine driven by Benjamin Long of Jersey City, N.J.

Leo Cannon, 45-year-old resident of Toronto, died in hospital several hours after the car in which he and four others were riding collided with a police cruiser. The other passengers and two constables in the police car were injured.

Joseph Aljo, 39-year-old dairy farm employee, died Sunday in a Copper Cliff hospital from injuries suffered in a collision between two cars on the Sault Ste. Marie highway near Copper Cliff.

Struck by Car

Ronald Revell, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Revell, Jr., of Brantford was injured fatally yesterday when struck by a car while walking on the highway near the home of his grandparents at North Oxford.

Elmer Johnson of Buffalo, deckhand aboard the lake freighter J. J. O'Hagan, was drowned Saturday in the Welland canal at Port Colborne when he fell into the water while the ship was being moved from one lock to another. Elsie Roy, 11-year-old daughter of Lawrence Roy of Ottawa, fell while paddling in the Ottawa river.

Leland Banks, 58-year-old Negro porter, died an hour after he was struck by a train outside the Union Station at Toronto Saturday.

Fred McCoy, 27-year-old resident of Trenton, was killed Saturday when he missed his footing at the top of a ladder and plunged to floor in a barn owned by James Scott.

Mrs. N. Stracey, 40, of Montreal, was killed Saturday when she fell off the rear platform of a moving passenger train at Hawthorne, near Ottawa.

MAY INCREASE O. P. P. FORCE

3,000 Men to be Added to Force Supposition in Toronto Circles

Toronto, July 8—(CP)—The Toronto Globe and Mail in a front page story today says that extension of the Ontario Provincial Police Force by the addition of 3,000 men is reported to be under consideration by the Ontario Government as its answer to appeals from municipalities for adequate safeguarding of life and property from sabotage.

"It is understood Attorney-General Gordon Conant already has taken preliminary steps to swell the members of the Provincial Police Force in order to strengthen Ontario's hand in dealing with subversive and sabotage elements," the report says. "At a cost of roughly $1,000,000 it is believed the Province will be able to train, equip and maintain groups of police officers at strategic points."

No Comments Forthcoming

The government made no comment about the outcome of the election, but deplored "bloody incidents" commented significantly on reports of election law violations and said they would be punished.

Complaints poured in from all over the nation that Almazan's supporters had been denied the right to vote, and fear was expressed in some quarters that the final tabulation of ballots might be accompanied by further disorders.

Government officials expressed confidence, however, there would be no further trouble.

There were no official estimates on the number of casualties and unofficial figures varied greatly. General Almazan said his reports indicated that "100 or more" lives had been lost; other estimates placed the figure in the region of 50.

Mexico City itself was the scene of the worst rioting.

Violent disorders broke out before the polls opened at 9 a.m. and by midday battles were raging in a half-dozen different sections of the city, with police and soldiers resorting to firearms in an attempt to end the fighting.

Tear Gas Used

Tear gas bombs and hand grenades also were used in some places.

Numerous voting places were wrecked or burned. There were reports that followers of the two leading candidates forcibly had seized polling booths and ballot boxes. Voters lists and ballots were said to have been destroyed.

Throughout the early afternoon the crackle of gunfire could be heard in Mexico City. In the early evening a driving rain sent the crowds scurrying for shelter and brought an end to the mass disorders.

President Lazaro Cardenas himself was unable to vote. He waited for a half hour before a closed polling place and finally departed before it could be opened on his orders.

Although his party backed Camacho, Cardenas insisted he had kept "hands off" in the campaign to name the man who succeeds him Dec. 1 for a six-year term.

Premier Pierre Laval's talks with groups of Senators and Deputies indicated these three words would be the foundation of the new constitution.

The dispatch said the National Assembly will ask Wednesday for a "brief text" giving Premier Petain and his government all powers for drafting the constitution. Passage appeared assured by a "large majority" said Le Petit Dauphinois.

Former Premier Edouard Daladier, former cabinet ministers Cesar Campinchi, Yvon Delbos and Paul Bastid and dozens of other Deputies who, the dispatch said, "sailed aboard the Massilia," will not be present at the assembly. (The steamship Massilia has been reported missing at sea).

The new constitution, according to the dispatch, will call for two houses, but their composition will be different. The Upper House will consist of representatives of "the great professional, intellectual and economic interests," while the lower will contain "representatives of corporatives and families."

ITALIAN PLANES ARE BEATEN OFF

Two Raids on Alexandria Cause No Damage—One Enemy Plane Downed

Alexandria, July 8.—(AP)—Enemy bombing planes raided Alexandria for ten minutes this morning before they were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

Italian aircraft attempted twice to raid Alexandria harbor last night but were driven off. No casualty nor damage was reported.

In the second raid late last night anti-aircraft gunners succeeded in bringing down one of the invaders.

The raiders came under cover of heavy, low-lying clouds. One bomb fell in the harbor, causing no damage while others fell in the Dekheila district of the West Harbor.

Two planes, spotted by searchlights escaped to sea.

Enemy planes also flew over the city in mid-morning yesterday, but no warning was sounded.

Official Statement

An official statement said:—

"Alexandria was raided between 8.30 and 10 p.m., July 7. A formation of enemy aircraft took part. Hostile planes were clearly seen over the city. The bombs caused no damage and no casualties".

More hostile planes appeared over Alexandria shortly after noon today, but met heavy anti-aircraft fire and veered off to sea without dropping bombs.

In last night's raid British and French warships joined the coastal defence batteries in firing on the planes. The plane crews dropped their bombs in rapid-fire order, but most of them fell in the sea.

150 Men Required At Repair Depot

With the establishment at Trenton Airport of a repair depot to be known as Central Repair Depot No. 6, a call to all local workers with a knowledge of air mechanics and its associated trades is being sent out from the Belleville Employment Bureau. The first requirements will total approximately 150 men of all trades but this number will in the future be augmented to approximately 300 or more according to Mr. Ross of the local employment agency.

All men employed at the Trenton port under the new scheme will retain their civilian status and will in no way be connected with the military end of the flying service. Most in demand will be toolmakers, armourer fitters, aero-engine fitters, air-frame fitters, sheet metal workers, fabric and parachute workers with from fifteen to twenty of each class being required, but machinists, electricians, painters and dopers, auto mechanics, etc., are also needed. Five carpenters entered the service from the local office last week, Mr. Ross stated but a few more will be required, with labourers, a tailor and cook being needed.

SIXTY TAKING LENGTHY COURSE AT COLLEGIATE

War Preparedness Program Sponsored by Gov't. in Conjunction With Local Board of Education

RUNS TILL AUGUST

Approximately sixty young men of Belleville and district are now taking advantage of the war preparedness program being sponsored by the Dominion Government in conjunction with the Board of Education, and are now attending classes in machine-shop, welding and air mechanics.

The classes are being held at the Belleville Collegiate and so great is the need for qualified mechanics that the instructional classes are being held every day and are putting in a full 44-hour week. The classes will continue until the last of August, with instructors being confident that within that time the students will have acquired sufficient working knowledge of the work to enable them to take their places in industry.

Guarantees of employment will be given to all students successfully completing their courses and it is expected that a great majority of the men will find positions waiting for them at the Trenton Airport, which has been made into Central Repair Depot, absorbing approximately 150 mechanics of all types.

Successful students of the course, although being given work at the airport, will retain their civilian status and will in no way be involved with the military end of the flying service.

To prepare the students taking the air mechanics course, instructors George Ferguson and William Davies have been provided by the Board of Education with two aeroplane engines on which the students can work, a third engine of modern design is expected to arrive next week.

About half of the sixty taking part in the classes are in the machine shop with fifteen each in the welding and air mechanics classes, with all students being required to take related work in drafting and shop mathematics. Classes started last Tuesday, with enrollment in all three classes now being complete.

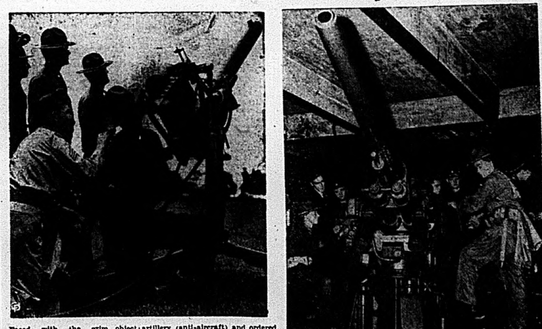
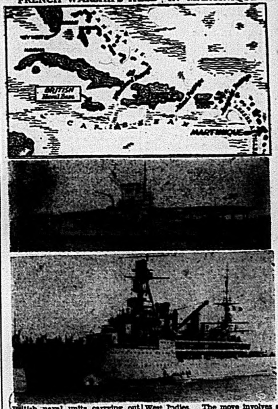
UNCLE SAM SPEEDS UP MODERNIZATION OF HIS ARMY



Faced with the grim object lessons spread before them in Europe, military experts of the United States are moving to overhaul the American army and make it a modern striking force, adequate for attack or defence, and equipped with the most modern of weapons. As part of the renovating process, the old Seventh Regiment, formed in 1860 as an artillery unit but never functioning as such, has been designated as the new 207th coast artillery (anti-aircraft) and ordered to get acquainted speedily with modern weapons. Here are some of its members carrying out the orders. ..At RIGHT guardsmen are learning to handle the new .50 calibre anti-aircraft machine-gun, and at LEFT, a sergeant is instructing them in the use of the three-inch rapid fire mobile anti-aircraft gun. Range of the latter against 'planes is about 7,500 yards and against tanks about 14,000 yards.

FRENCH WARSHIPS HELD IN MARTINIQUE



British naval units carrying out the admiralty's announced intention of preventing any French warships from reaching German or Italian hands, have reportedly bottled up the aircraft carrier "Bearn" and the cruiser "Jeanne D'Arc" in the harbor of Martinique, French-owned island in the West Indies. The move involves a touchy point since the area is well within the "safety zone" proclaimed by the United States and South American nations. The "Bearn," CENTRE, is said to be loaded with American-built airplanes and the "Jeanne D'Arc" reportedly carries many millions of dollars in gold.

"Winnie" Chats With a Couple of Diggers

On his way to the House of Commons for a session, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who is running England's war, stops for a chat with a couple of New Zealand soldiers on a sight-seeing tour of the heart of the empire. Today all corners of the great empire are represented in London by fighting men who have flocked to the defence of the Mother country to what Churchill recently called the empire's "grandest hour."

BRITAIN ACQUIRES ALEXANDRIAN FRENCH FLEET

Demilitarize Ships And Reduce Crews Part of Agreement

France Arranges Transportation to That Country for Crews of All the Warships — French Decision Removes Possibility of Naval Action Such as Occurred at Oran — British Fleet Free to Move More Power Against Italians in Mediterranean

MANY CONTINUE TO FIGHT WITH BRITISH

These Crew Members Staying Aboard Their Ships Waiting Orders — Statement Issued by Admiralty Setting Out Agreement Under Which Fleet Could Operate — British Guarantee Supplies and Pay of Men Running Maintenance and Also Return of Ships to France at End of War

ALEXANDRIA, July 9 (AP)—French naval authorities here agreed today to turn over the entire French fleet at Alexandria to the Royal Navy.

The French are arranging transportation to France of the crews of all the warships.

The French decision removed the possibility of a naval action here such as occurred at Oran, Algeria, July 3, and left the British fleet free to move more of its power against the Italians in the Mediterranean.

A French steamship was reported to have sailed with approximately 500 members of crews of French warships who had asked repatriation. The French liners Othos and The Providence are expected to take the remaining sailors who are returning home.

SOME STAY ABOARD SHIPS

An unidentified number of French officers and seamen who elected to continue the fight alongside the British are staying aboard their ships awaiting orders.

The newspaper La Reforme published a British Admiralty order permitting the repatriation of Frenchmen who prefer going home to continuing the war.

A statement on the action was issued. It follows:

"When terms of the armistice were made known, it became evident that a new situation had developed, and Admiral Godfroy was therefore asked to consider various proposals on the lines of those sent at Oran.

"Seeing that in a foreign harbor, in the presence of a greatly superior British fleet, there was no possibility of taking the French ships to sea, and that an attempt would only endanger valuable French lives, it was agreed by (French) Admiral Godfroy:

AGREEMENT REACHED

"1. To put his ships in a condition in which they could not go to sea.

"This was done by reducing the oil on board so that there was sufficient only for harbor purposes.

"2. To demilitarize the ships. This was done by landing certain portions of armament and placing them under the care of French authorities ashore.

"3. To reduce the crews, in order to leave sufficient only for care and maintenance. This is being done now and crews who are leaving are being sent to Syria, to be sent to France later as decided by the French Admiralty.

"For their part, the British government has guaranteed supplies and the pay of men running the maintenance of the ships, and also their return to France at the end of the war.

"This is how matters stand at present. It is hoped these conditions may continue.

TERRIBLE EVENTS AVOIDED

"In the eastern Mediterranean, terrible events of which we all know have been avoided, and the best hope is that our good relations here may continue as before. Our only wish throughout has been to make sure that Italians and Germans should not possess French ships in order to use them against the British who still are fighting on to defeat Germany and Italy, and to re-establish France."

Rome Communique

Rome, July 9 (AP).—Today's Italian communique:

"On the Cirenaican frontier enemy armored motor vehicles destroyed in the past few days number not less than 50.

(There was no confirmation of this claim.)

"In East Africa our aviation has bombed enemy positions in the Wajir zone of Kenya, hitting munitions dumps. In the Turcana zone, Kenya, some British troops have been captured. Following air bombing action our troops have carried out a raid on Kurmuk in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, destroying a radio station and warehouses.

(British sources have not commented on these operations.)

"Enemy planes have raided Massawa, Diredawa and Zula, causing a total of two dead and one injured. There was no material damage."

(The R.A.F. in Cairo announced that direct hits were made on railway workshops in the raid on Diredawa.)

ITALIAN DAM BURSTS

London, July 9 (CP).—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Rome said today the bursting of a dam near the important electric centre at Aosta, [illegible] miles from Turin, had caused seven casualties and considerable damage. It said the dam gave way following the overflowing of the river Dora Baltea.

Sir William Mulock is Pleased Grandson New Postmaster-General

Toronto, July 9—(CP)—Sir William Mulock, Ontario's most famous nonegenarian, is pleased with the appointment of his grandson, Col. William P Mulock, as Postmaster-General, but he does not envy him the job

Sir William, interviewed yesterday at a summer resort near Toronto, recalled his own term as Postmaster-General in the Laurier Government from 1896 to 1905.

He said he might have a job for his grandson. "I want him to look up a gift that was misplaced years ago. It was in 1901 after the conferences on the Pacific cable in which I took part. I was presented with a beautiful box fitted with sections of the cable which led into British Columbia. I prized it very much but I lost it when I left office in 1905."

Leaders of Opposition Groups Invited to Sit in on All War Cabinet Meetings

By CARL REINKE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 9 —(CP)— A reconstructed and expanded cabinet today took over direction of Canada's steadily growing war program. A provincial premier and two members of parliament have been added to the ministry in a reorganization involving shifts by four other ministers to meet wartime needs.

In addition, Prime Minister Mackenzie King has invited leaders of the three opposition groups to become "associate members" of the cabinet war committee, taking part in all its proceedings without responsibility for its actions.

Two new departments have been created for a more efficient division of government war duties: A Department of National Defence for naval affairs and a Department of National War Service.

NO CASUALTIES IN NAZI RAIDS

Isolated German Aircraft Carry Out Number of Bombing Raids in Britain

London, July 9 (CP). — Isolated German aircraft carried out a number of bombing raids in northeast and southeast England and eastern Scotland early today, the Ministry of Home Security announced.

No damage of any consequence was caused, the announcement said, although many incendiary bombs were dropped on one southeast town.

Of nine German planes which flew over southeast Scotland, one was believed to be badly damaged and unlikely to reach its base.

There were no casualties.

The statement said:

"Sporadic raids by isolated enemy aircraft were carried out in the north east and southeast of England and on the east coast of Scotland during last night and early this morning.

"A number of high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped. No damage of any consequence was caused.

"A considerable number of incendiary bombs fell on one southeast town and were quickly dealt with by A.R.P. (air raid precautions) services. A house and a stable were damaged and in a Scottish town some windows were broken and a few casualties caused."

Head in Bandages Ex-Premier Reynaud Attends Chamber

Vichy, France, July 9 (AP).—Former Premier Paul Reynaud, his head wrapped in bandages, made his first appearance in public today since an automobile accident in which he was injured June 28 near Montpelier.

Reynaud was among those attending the session of the Chamber of Deputies to approve a new constitution.

6,000 French Officers Cross Syrian Border To Join British, Report

Dispatch from Ankara Says Officers Include Staff of General Mittelhauser—Feeling Reported Growing Tense in Syria as Result of Arab Disorders

Ankara, July 9 (AP).—Persons returning from Syria reported today that about 6,000 French officers, including the staff of General Eugene Mittelhauser, had crossed the border into Palestine and joined British military forces there.

Tension was reported growing in Syria as the result of Arab disorders, a division of sentiment among the French troops and expectation British forces might move in from Palestine.

General Mittelhauser, commander in chief of France's near eastern armies, recently announced the cessation of hostilities in the near east.

The British, who have warned they would not countenance any German or Italian effort to use Syria as a base of operations, were reported massing troops along the frontier, leading to the belief action of some sort might be imminent.

Observers said that while the majority of the French soldiers under Mittelhauser seemed opposed to continuing the war against Germany, it was doubtful whether they would resist if the British attempted to move in.

British Bombers Raid Ethiopian Town, Hit R. R. Shops

Cairo, July 9 (AP). — British bombing planes have raided the Ethiopian railway town of Diredawa and scored direct hits on railway workshops, the Royal Air Force announced.

Diredawa is on the Jibuti-Addis Ababa railway, running from the African east coast to the capital of Italian Ethiopia.

Today's Royal Air Force communique said:

"Numerous reconnaissance flights were carried out in the course of the 24-hour period under review, and much valuable data was obtained.

"Bombing aircraft raided Diredawa and scored direct hits on railway workshops. Enemy fighters attempted to intercept our machines without success."

"An important enemy base at Zula was attacked by our bombers and direct hits were obtained on a jetty and on stores. Two fires started, accompanied by much black smoke. One enemy aircraft was engaged and shot down into the sea. At Massawa, direct hits were registered on camp buildings, causing considerable damage.

"Two air raids on Malta—one the evening of July 7 and the other yesterday afternoon—were entirely unsuccessful as a result of interception by our fighters. No bombs were dropped."

WILLINGNESS TO SERVE

Ottawa, July 9—(CP)—By the end of August the government hopes to have every Canadian over the age of 16 registered and catalogued as to age, physical condition, domestic responsibilities, occupation and willingness to serve.

The registry will be compiled under authority of the National Resources Mobilization Act, recently passed into law by parliament.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, who as Minister of the new Department of National War Services will be in charge of this wartime stock-taking of human resources, made known the plans for registration and organization late last night.

His two chief aides in the undertaking will be Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche and Mr. Justice T. C. Davis of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal. They are to serve as joint Deputy Ministers of the new department.

3-Fold Campaign To Defeat Britain Says Virginio Gayda

Rome, July 9 (AP).—An Italian-German agreement for a three-fold campaign against Britain was reported today by Virginio Gayda, the Fascist editor.

The axis partners, Gayda said, are to attempt:

1. To blockade the British Isles.
2. To break Britain's Empire communications,
3. To defeat her "at home, in imperial territories" and at sea.

Each axis power has assigned tasks for these goals, said Gayda, writing in Il Giornale d'Italia.

Italy's job, he declared, is to strike at the British Empire in four places on land and harass British shipping in the Atlantic, Mediterranean, Red Sea and Indian Ocean and, above all, keep a large part of Britain's seapower in the Mediterranean.

FRENCH MILITARY, NAVAL MISSIONS HELD IN LONDON

Not Interned but Authorities Afraid Useful Information Might be Given Enemy

A WISE MOVE

London, July 9 (CP).—Members of the French military and naval missions in London are being "held for repatriation," it was learned in informed quarters today.

Official sources said the missions definitely had not been interned, but observers regarded the phrase "held for repatriation" as elastic enough to cover virtual internment of the members, who worked with the British authorities up to the French capitulation to Germany.

It was explained that they are in possession of much information about military and naval forces here which Great Britain would not want to reach the axis powers.

A return to France just now might place the mission members in a position where they would be forced to give any information they have to Germany, it was said.

Defer Hearings in Bill Until Known, Stimson Nominations Dealt With

Washington, July 9—(AP)— The United States Senate Military Committee decided today to defer hearings on the Burke-Wadsworth military training bill until final Senate action on the nomination of Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox to head the War and Navy Departments.

Reliable sources said, however, that when the army's representatives did appear, they would approve the principle of compulsory military training, disagreeing only with details set out in the bill under consideration.

Leaders of various organizations which advocate civilian training were on the witness list of a House of Representatives committee considering the measure.

French Charge d'Affaires in London Refused Permission to Retire

Vichy, France, July 9—(AP)— The French Chamber of Deputies today approved a bill granting the government of Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain full powers to write a new constitution. The vote was 395 to three.

Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber, read the brief text of the bill, which had been approved last night by the cabinet with President Albert Lebrun presiding, and by the Chamber's Legislative Committee this morning.

The bill now is to be submitted to the Senate, where approval by a large majority is considered certain, and then it will go to the National Assembly, composed of both Houses sitting together, for purely formal approval.

The National Assembly is to be convened tomorrow in the Vichy Casino.

TEA IS RATIONED IN GREAT BRITAIN

Newspapers Voiced Approval of Move Stating People Are Ready to Make Any Sacrifice

London, July 9.—(CP Cable)— Newspapers bring to the Briton the news that he must drink less of his inevitable tea, today voiced unqualified approval of the extension of rationing to tea, margarine and cooking fats.

Explaining that the people are ready for any sacrifice for victory and that the tea ration is similar to that in the last war, the Morning Telegraph said "there was no grumbling then".

Tea consumption will be cut under rationing to a quarter of the normal average consumption and means individuals will be restricted to about 25 cups a week at home. Sales in restaurants are not rationed so the sight of much used teapots being carried from hole-in-the-wall cafes is a familiar feature today.

The Times said threats of a siege blockade led to the rationing, a precautionary measure for defence. The Mail advised those who feel deprived of the odd cup of tea between meals to remember they are helping to save more than 50,000 tons of shipping space a year.

DROP INCENDIARY BOMBS

London, July 9 (CP).—A German raider dropped incendiary bombs in southeast England this morning, starting a number of fires which were extinguished by air raid wardens after the roofs of some cottages were damaged. No casualties were reported.

All Explosives Must be Loaded 12 Miles Below New Orleans

New Orleans, July 9 (AP).—A new safety measure went into effect today as reports circulated in shipping circles that an additional 10,000,000 pounds of high explosives for Great Britain were enroute here.

Captain J. L. Ahern of the Coast Guard, newly named captain of the port under an emergency presidential decree, said all explosives would have to be loaded at an anchorage more than twelve miles down the Mississippi river from the city proper.

A shipment of 8,500,000 pounds of T.N.T., released from the government arsenal at Fort Wingate, New Mexico, passed through here in great secrecy more than a week ago, and was shipped to Britain. Subsequently it was learned that the 132-carload shipment was transferred from port docks.

News dispatches from Gallup, N. M., yesterday said that 10,000,000 pounds of additional T.N.T. was being loaded for shipment east, presumably New Orleans.

Captain Ahern, in his order, acted under authority granted by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau June 27 specifying that "movement, loading and discharging of explosive or inflammable material or other dangerous cargo shall be under the supervision and control of the captain of the port."

He also announced that shipping companies, transportation companies and shipping associations would be required to obtain from him a permit to load and handle high explosives on water-borne craft within the port.

London, July 9—(CP Cable)—The battleship Richelieu, 35,000-ton pride of the French navy, has been heavily damaged by air and naval attacks while lying at anchor at Dakar, West Africa, A. N. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons today.

Running the risk of blowing themselves up, British seamen took a small boat through the outer defences of the harbor to plant depth charges under the stern of the new battleship, which was the most formidable in the world, and damaged her propellors and steering apparatus.

Nazis 'Interpret' Suggestion Made By U. S. President

Berlin, July 9—(AP)—The controlled Nazi press today centred attention on reports from the United States of President Roosevelt's suggestion that Europe and Asia adopt principles of the Monroe Doctrine in solving international problems.

Nazis read into the President's proposals an impression that the United States was giving more thought to the "negative aspects" of the Monroe Doctrine—interpreting this as a sign that in return for keeping out of the western hemisphere, "European powers" might expect the United States to keep out of what the Nazis regard as European affairs.

FUEL DEALERS ASK FOR FUEL BOARD

Toronto, July 9—(CP)—Members of the Toronto Retail Fuel Dealers' Association, meeting here last night, unanimously voted in favor of asking the Ontario Industry and Labor Board to set up a Fuel Board. A petition signed by about 150 dealers will be presented to the Board today or tomorrow, a spokesman said.

He said the dealers were of the opinion that the public, the dealers and the coal company employees should be represented on such a Fuel Board.

Burma Road Affair Test for Japan, Tokyo Considers British Rejection

Japanese Program to Assume Control Over European - Owned Territories in Far East Testing Matter Say Neutrals

TOKYO PRESS CHARGES

Tokyo, July 9—(AP)—Informed quarters assert Japan is preparing to take military action against Hong Kong if Britain continues refusal to close the Burma route of war supplies to China.

These sources said Japanese plans are complete and merely await London's reply to a request for reconsideration of the refusal.

They pointed to the removal of women and children from Hong Kong as an indication of the seriousness with which Britain views the situation.

The Japanese cabinet decided today to send new representations to Britain, and Domei, Japanese news agency, said the Ministers expressed "strong opinions" in their meeting.

Discuss British Rejection

Neutral diplomatic quarters looked upon the Burma road affair as a test for Japan's entire program to assume and consolidate control over European-owned territories in Eastern Asia.

The Japanese War, Navy and Foreign Ministries called emergency conferences to discuss British rejection yesterday of Japan's demand that this link between the Chinese Nationalist forces and the outside world be cut off—as a means of ending the three-year-old Chinese-Japanese war.

Japanese Press Makes Charges

The Japanese press was unanimous in declaring that "an understanding" with the United States and Soviet Russia preceded the British reply and newspapers repeated previous charges that the United States fleet is acting as Britain's watchdog in the Pacific."

The press at some time reported Japan's roving diplomat, Naotake Sato, in conference with German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop had received indications Germany would back Japan in any action against Britain in the Far East.

Britain Loses 30,377 Gross Tons By Enemy Action Week Ending June 30

London, July 9—(CP)—Britain lost six merchant ships totalling 30,377 gross tons by enemy action in the week ended June 30, the Admiralty announced today.

In the same period three Allied vessels totalling 9,622 tons and three neutral ships totalling 11,340 tons were sunk by "enemy" action.

These losses, it was said, were slightly above the average, except in the case of neutral shipping.

It should be borne in mind, however, a naval source said, that the number of neutral countries has decreased progressively.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

MONDAY WARMEST DAY OF THE YEAR

Yesterday was the warmest day enjoyed this year, but it in no way reminded citizens of the sweltering days experienced this corresponding week in 1936. Yesterday the mercury rose to over 80 on the thermometer, while a year ago yesterday the temperature was nearly ten degrees hotter.

Four years ago yesterday saw the start of a six-day heat wave that resulted in temperatures bordering on the 100 mark for several days. It was in the early part of July, this corresponding week to be exact, that citizens sweltered in one of the hottest heat waves of the present century.

The road to the bay bridge was lined with automobiles every night for over a week, where city folk were endeavoring to obtain what little comfort from breezes off the bay possible. The city parks were a comfortable rendesvous along the cooling Bay of Quinte, but little sleep was enjoyed that particular week. Local probabilities are fair and warmer today.

DR. ANNIS, LINDSAY, INJURED IN INDIANA

Friends in the city of Dr. M. Annis, Lindsay, retired optician, and famous checker player, well known in this district, will regret to hear that he is in a critical condition following a motor accident at Michigan City, Indiana, when he was returning from California. The accident occurred on June 30th, the day upon which Wilfred A. Lick drowned in the Bay of Quinte. Dr. Annis is an uncle of Mrs. O. R. Thompson and Miss Evelyn Lick of this city.

HERB BURLEY HOOKS 8¼-POUND PICKEREL

Herb Burley, well known Belleville basketball player has turned his recreational efforts in the direction of angling and has met with more than the usual success already this year. Only last week Herb proudly displayed a fine finny beauty, but last evening he surpassed his most anxious hopes, when he landed an 8 1-4 pound pickerel, caught in West Lake, Prince Edward County. What made the catch more interesting was the fact that the angler's 86-year-old grandfather, Ben Burley of this city, accompanied Herbie on the trip and was as keenly interested in the catch as though the elderly gentleman had actually made the strike. Herb was casting with a Williams spinner when he made his strike.

ADDED ATTRACTION FOR KID KAR DERBY

An added attraction for this evening's fifth annual Belleville Kinsmen Ontario Intelligencer Soap Box Derby was guaranteed today when it was announced that Ernest Young, 1939, Canadian Soap Box champion, would drive his new kid car "Zip 2nd" over the Derby Hill course in an attempt to lower the world's Soap Box Derby record. Having won one Soap Box championship, Champion Ernest Young is not eligible to enter again, but the youthful driver is still keenly interested in Soap Box racing and has constructed his 1939 model racer in such a fashion that he approached the Kinsmen Club last evening seeking permission to give an exhibition run down Derby Hill this evening in an attempt to lower the existing world's Soap Box Derby speed record.

Aside from Champion Young's trial heat, there will be 38 heats raced tonight before the 1940 Canadian Soap Box Derby champion is heralded. Seventy-five drivers will compete in the local race this evening, including entries from Trenton, Stirling, Kingston, Prince Edward County and Belleville.

RECRUITING GOOD SAYS COL. GRIBBLE

Voluntary recruiting under the Defence of Canada regulations is progressing quite favourably in the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank), according to Lieut.-Col. A. B. Gribble today. Last evening 20 new recruits were accepted at the Armouries bringing the present strength of the local unit, drilling for home defence purposes, to nearly one hundred of all ranks. When at full strength the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) will be 729 of all ranks.

"At present we are only introducing light training, but it is expected, that our unit will go into camp for a training period some time this summer. Recruiting is carried on every week day at the Armouries and we are open until 9.00 p.m. evenings to accept voluntary recruits and I might add that all recruiting will be of a voluntary nature until the National Registration comes into effect early in August," explained Lieut.-Col Gribble in his office at the Armouries this morning.

The Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) will train for the time being as an infantry unit.

Entire Expense For Show Borne By Picture Industry

No one outside of the committee officials has any idea of the magnitude or the work involved in the Motion Picture Industry's Win the War Campaign for the sale of War Savings Stamps in co-operation with the Dominion Government through the holding of special patriotic performances in all theatres across the country Monday, July 15, at 8.30 o'clock.

No less than 650,000 complimentary tickets have been distributed among the 1,300 moving picture theatres, this number being the approximate combined seating capacity in Canada. Close to $1,000,000 worth of war savings stamps are being sent to the theatres by the War Savings Stamp Committee at Ottawa through the post offices in every city and town which has a "movie." A thousand film trailers announcing the free show on July 15 have been shipped to all parts of the country while several thousand manuals, giving campaign instructions and suggestions, are in the hands of theatre proprietors and managers. There are a dozen national committees at work on their respective duties while regional campaign committees are busy in 15 cities. As many as 35 people, loaned for the purpose by theatre companies and film exchanges, have been occupied with details at the headquarters in Toronto.

All this, and more too, is being done at the expense of the film industry so that no deduction will be made for expenses from the proceeds of the sale of war savings stamps, every cent of which will be collected by Federal Government representatives and branch bank managers to aid in Canada's war effort when the patriotic shows are held. To do this, the industry is donating theatres for the whole evening, the latest screen attractions have been made available without cost, theatre staffs and talent have donated their services while various companies have provided tickets, film trailers, accessories, stationery and other supplies without charge in order to help the national cause. All that the public is asked to do is to buy at least two 25c war savings stamps at a theatre box office for which he will receive a complimentary ticket for a special free show at 8.30 o'clock on the night of July 15th. to help Canada win the war.

FISHERMEN LAND A 15-POUND 'LUNGE

Fishing in the waters of the Bay of Quinte in Muscote Bay on Sunday, Steve Flintoff of the Bowra Electric, and Harold Harnes, were fortunate in landing a 15-pound 'lunge. The fish was hooked from a boat while trolling in the bay and gave Flintoff a real struggle before landing it. The two fishermen claimed that the 15-pounder they landed was snagged almost immediately after they had hooked a much larger 'lunge, but with the toughest of "fisherman's luck," what was easily a 20-pounder, or more, managed to escape before he was landed in the boat.

Application Forms Now Available For Entry into U. S.

Application forms for passports for entry into the United States are now available at the post office but only in limited quantities, according to a report from post office officials this morning.

A rush of inquirers depleted the initial stocks of forms which were sent to the local office when it first became necessary to obtain passports for entry into the States, but this was caused by numbers of people acquiring forms who had but the slightest intention of visiting south of the border at the present time. "In many cases, forms were asked for by persons who intended making a visit to the United States next December," stated Postmaster Trualsch this morning, "but in the future we intend to question applicants regarding their intention before giving them the forms."

With the rush of printing new tax forms, etc., the Government printing press at Ottawa had been working day and night for the past few weeks and only a limited quantity of passport forms were available to each office, making the above restrictions necessary if the forms were to be available to those actually intending to visit the United States in the near future, stated Mr. Trualsch.

CITY COUNCIL RECESSES UNTIL MONDAY, SEPT. 16

Last Session of Council Before Summer Holiday Bereft of Important Business

BY-LAWS PASSED

Committee Appointed to Interview Highway Department After Road Report Submitted

The Belleville City Council at the conclusion of their session on Monday evening, adjourned until September 16, for the summer recess and a by-law was passed permitting the Mayor, Glencoe E. Thompson and officials at the City Hall to carry on the business of the city without ratification by the members. The Mayor was authorised to sign all cheques and conduct all business that has been approved by the several department heads.

A comprehensive plan was submitted by City Engineer Charles A. Mott respecting the new roadway that is contemplated to allow the heavy transports to go around the Murney Street Hill and thus eliminate a great deal of noise that is caused by these machines in that particular area and also to cut down the accident toll at this point. A petition was submitted to the council some time ago by residents of West Bridge Street and Highland Avenue respecting the noise created by transports trying to negotiate that particular hill and requested that they be re-routed up the West Dundas Street hill. The plan shows a considerable quantity of fill would be required for the water bound macadam road that would be constructed at a width of 30 feet with a ten-foot shoulder on each side. The transports would have a straight run at the 5.6 per cent grade and plenty of room to come to a stop on the level before proceeding into Highway No. 2 at this point.

A special committee of Mayor Thompson, Aldermen Rollins, Haig, and the City Engineer was appointed to confer with the Department of Highways seeking request to reroute traffic especially the transports. This committee will proceed to Toronto at their earliest convenience and if the Department accepts the proposition the council will hold a special meeting to consider if the city can stand the expense of the project. The Isolation Unit of the Belleville General Hospital will pass into the hands of the Corporation on July 15th, according to a recommendation passed at the meeting. The treasurer was ordered to pay $30,000 to the W.C.A. and Board of Governors as their share and also pay a monthly tenancy of $200 per month from that date. Alderman McLean Haig was given permission to interview the Municipal Board with regards to negotiating with the Public Utilities with respect to the Waterworks Bonds held by that Corporation.

It was also agreed by the members that members of the Council called to military service and while a member of the council should be paid their fees if absent. Mrs. Jack Eaton was allowed to purchase the property at 45 and 45 1-2 Front Street for a sum of $275. Four lights will be placed on the roadway on the east side of the Moira River. Repairs will be made to a house owned by the city at 75 East South John Street at a cost of $34. It was decided to advertise the old Isolation hospital for sale and the special property committee given authority to close the deal if a fair price is offered.

An automatic stoker will be purchased for the City Hall heating plant but the tenderer will have to supply more definite particulars of specifications. It was decided to petition the Police Commission asking that body to prohibit the use of push carts on Bridge street and Front street on Saturday from 8.00 a.m. until 12.00 p.m. The tenders for castings from the Belleville Foundries was accepted at a price of $3.75 per cwt. Alderman Rollins and Haig were appointed a special committee to consider special grants for the Arena and Wharf Street Athletic Club and report at the next meeting. Fireman Wallace Snell will be paid for nine days of his holidays and Fire Chief Lynch was given permission to attend the Fire Chief's convention to be held at Brantford in August. Mayor Thompson was given permission to declare Monday, August 5th as a Civic Holiday.

By-laws granting a deed to D. L. Storey, and Mrs. Jack Eaton were passed as also one for the transfer of lands by the Special Property committee during the summer recess.

Report Submitted

The report given by the City Engineer on the proposed new road is herewith given.

Aldermen of the City Council,
Belleville, Ont.
Highway. Construction—West Dundas St. Hill

Gentlemen,—

As instructed by recommendation dated June 24th 1940, I beg to submit herewith a report on the estimated cost of constructing a permanent roadway across parts of Lots 2, 3 and 4 at West Dundas Street corner, better known as the "Devil's Elbow" in the City of Belleville.

Parts of Lots 2 and 3 at this location are owned by the Department of Provincial Highways of Ontario, but the small cottage listed as 103 W. Dundas Street and located on part of Lot 2 is shown on the assessment roll as belonging to the late W. N. Ponton. Part of Lot 4 at the Bay Bridge Road corner is owned by the City of Belleville. A road allowance called Marsh Street is shown on the registered plan of the city as separating Lots 3 and 4, but this street has never been opened up for traffic and likely never will be. However, it will be necessary to have this street legally closed in the proper manner and in view of the fact that part of the motor traffic is to be diverted from Highland Avenue and part of West Bridge Street by the construction of this new roadway across the West Dundas Street corner, I feel certain that the proposed undertaking will have to be advertised even though the city obtains the approval of the Department of Highways to cross its property, namely, parts of Lots 2 and 3.

The proposed new roadway would be 600' in length and 30' in width, with a 10' shoulder on each side of the finished road surface including heavy cable guard fences. A 6.5 per cent grade would provide practically a straight line for traffic along West Dundas Street, thus eliminating the 7.2 per cent grade on the existing West Dundas Street hill and the 8 per cent grade on part of West Bridge Street as shown on the small plan of the city as submitted.

The construction of the new roadway would consist of stone and gravel fill, upon which would be built a water bound macadam roadway, surface treated with liquid asphalt and chip cover. At the top of the hill a section of the new roadway would have practically a level grade for a distance of 150' to provide a stopping place for west bound traffic at the stop sign before entering upon the main highway at this location.

Improvements at the corner of West Bridge Street and Coleman Street would include the relocating of the waterworks hydrant and the increasing of the radius of the pavement curb at the south east corner of this intersection.

The large plan and photographs submitted herewith show in detail the location and type of construction of the proposed roadway. The attached sheet, page 3, outlines the estimated cost of the project.

Yours respectfully,
Charles A. Mott,
City Engineer.

The total cost of construction of the 30' roadway (not including the purchase of any lands or buildings) is estimated as follows:

15,000 cu. yards stone and gravel fill at 60c per cu. yd. $9,000.00; 600 cu. yards, 2 1-2" to 3" crushed stone at $2.00 per cu. yd. $1,200.00; 200 cu. yd. 1" crushed stone at $2.00 per cu. yd. $400.00; Grading, rolling, etc., $400.00; 1,000 gals. liquid asphalt at 13c per gallon $130.00; 30 tons 3-8" pea gravel cover at $2.00; $60.00; Drainage culvert, $95.00; 560' heavy cable guard fence $560.00; Labour on surface treatment work $80.00; Removal of trees and shrubbery $40.00; new traffic signs $20.00; Alterations to sidewalks, curbing and existing pavements $160.00; Alterations to water works hydrants $120.00; Removal and relocation of power line poles and guy wires $220.00; Total $12,485.00; engineering and supervision 2 per cent. $250.00; Total $12,735.00; Appurtenances $150.00; Total $12,885.00.

Charles A. Mott,
City Engineer.

Stamp Savings Day Plan Begins Wednesday Morning July 10th

Mr. Jack McVeigh, President of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association, announced today that the plan known as War Stamp Savings Day (Wednesday mornings) goes into effect this Wednesday morning, July 10th, and is sponsored by the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association. If any of the merchants did not receive a letter explaining this effort and are interested in learning further of the plan it is suggested that they get in touch with any member of the following committee: H. Carruthers, (Reward Shoe Store); Ed. Shapiro, (McNabb's); J. McVeigh, (Kresge's); B. Yanover, (Esquire); Ed. Logan, (McFee's); W. Doyle, (John Lewis Co.); B. Lattimer, (Lattimer's Drug Store); Bill Cook, (Cook's Tobacconist).

Police Blotter

While patrolling his beat at the rear of Front St. early last evening, P. C. Arnott apprehended a transient, who gave his name as George Taylor of the Peace River district. Today Taylor was charged with intoxication.

When taken into custody Taylor was found to be in possession of a small part of a bottle of native wine, while lying nearby was an empty "40-ouncer." After viewing the situation Constable Arnott said: "Who helped you drink all of this stuff?"

"I'se drank it alone," was Taylor's almost unbelievable reply.

Following complaints from the manager of the local United Cigar Store, Donald Roe, Constables Wright and Arnott arrested George Miller, Belleville, on a charge of intoxication. It was alleged that Miller had taken a magazine from off the news rack in front of the United Cigar Store, which ultimately led to his arrest and remand to the custody of the county jail.

A transient appeared at the police station seeking a night's shelter last evening. The man was quite evidently intoxicated as he could give no coherent answers and was promptly "booked" by Sergeant Arthur Booth. The man gave his name as Oscar Turcott and it was later revealed that he had only been released from jail yesterday morning.

Chief Kidd received a letter of complaint from Mr. H. A. Borttain, 204 King St., Toronto, who stated that a fog light had been stolen from off the front of his parked motor car here on Dominion Day, he was convinced. The light was not found missing until Mr. Borttain returned home, however, and might have been lost en route, Chief Kidd suggested after receipt of the letter of complaint.

Hon. J. S. Gardiner Tells of Steps

Mr. Gardiner, who later will relinquish the portfolio of Agriculture, told of the steps taken and proposed for national registration only a few hours after he had been named to the new department by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"We hope to complete the registration in August," he said.

The registration plans call for use of the census facilities of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and facilities of the chief electoral officer who compiles voters' lists for federal elections.

Duty is to Appear Before Registrar

Judges named by Chief Justices of all provinces will supervise the registration within their own area and in each federal constituency the registration will be under the direction of a registrar and a deputy.

These officials likely will be named before the end of the week. Registration forms are now being printed.

It will be a personal responsibility for Canadians to present themselves to the registrar, in their area, penalties being provided for failure to do so.

Budapest, July 9—(AP)— Hungary's government leaders were called to Berlin today to discuss settlement of their country's claims on Rumania with the German and Italian Foreign Ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Hungarian Premier Count Paul Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istan Csaky were expected also to confer with Hitler during their stay in the Berlin capital. Informed sources said they would leave for Berlin this afternoon.

It was learned that a Hungarian note was sent to Germany several days ago setting forth Hungary's minimum demands for return from Rumania of Transylvania.

Von Ribbentrop and Ciano, who conferred with Hitler in Berlin Sunday and are scheduled to see him again this week, were said to have been studying the note and the Hungarian Ministers were expected to discuss the whole question with them.

May Settle For Less

Hungary, it is understood here, is willing to settle peacefully with Rumania for less than the original borders of Transylvania, lost to Rumania in the last war settlement.

The Hungarian army is on a complete war footing and apparently the Hungarian attitude is that the nation must remain on this basis until her claims on Transylvania are satisfied in one war or another.

To what extent the axis powers might go to soothe Hungary in the interests of keeping peace in southeastern Europe remained a question.

Hitler and Ciano May Ask Delay

It was admitted there is a possibility Hitler and Ciano may ask Hungary to reserve her claims for the time being—as in the case of Bulgaria's claim on southern Dobruja although this directly involves Magyar prestige

To date the Bulgarian government has indicated its reliance on the reported axis assurance that Bulgarian's claims will be satisfied at a peace conference after the war.

It is believed here Hitler and Ciano already know how far Rumania can be persuaded to make further frontier adjustments.

(Rumania has ceded Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina to Russia.)

There has been no indication, however, that Rumania is ready to yield Transylvania and mobilization there is as complete as in Hungary.

Masons Secure Homes For 44 Refugees in Tweed Village

Tweed,—Members of Tweed Masonic Lodge have secured homes for forty-four evacuees from the British Isles. Other organizations interested in placing children are taking up this matter and other homes will be secured so that Tweed will be ready to accommodate its quota of children from the Motherland when they arrive.

Lieut. Rogers of Picton Nova Scotia, was the special speaker at the local Salvation Army, Citadel on Sunday. Lieut. Rogers has recently been appointed to the Riverside Corps in Calgary, Alberta, and will take up her new duties in a short time.

The many Tweed friends of Rev. W. L. Wright, formerly rector of St. James's Anglican Church, Tweed, are pleased to learn of his appointment as rector of St. Luke's Pro-Cathedral in Sault Ste. Marie and Dean-elect of that city in the Diocese of Algoma. His wife was formerly Miss Margaret Clare, a member of Tweed High School staff for some years.

C. L. Rice of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is the envy of Tweed fisherman. On Thursday while fishing in Stoco Lake with Murney Badgley of Toronto, he landed 6 1-2 lb pickerel, his second of the same size in two days.

BILL MEANS END

This probably means the end of the democratic third republic, which followed the empire of Napoleon III.

Petain's government is expected to emerge with greater power than any free government of Republican France ever held— authority to France its own laws and constitution and then create its own Assembly to ratify them.

Identity Not Disclosed

The identity of the three Deputies who cast opposition ballots was not ascertained immediately. But the Provincial Press noted that Jules Jeanneny, President and for years "grand old man" of the Senate, abstained from participation in any meetings on the constitution although he was in Vichy.

Havas News Agency distributed a communique of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, saying that Roger Cambon, French Charge d'Affaires in London who informed the British Foreign Office July 5 that he could not longer hold the diplomatic post, had been "provisionally suspended."

Cambon's request that he be placed on the retirement list was refused, Havas said.

His action came after he delivered to the British Foreign Office the French government's protest over the British naval attack on the French Mediterranean fleet.

Berne, Switzerland, July 9—(CP) —France's forgotten family—the House of Orleans—hopes for restoration of the throne in the virtual totalitarian dictatorship which Premier Petain is forming the new French state.

Reports reaching Switzerland today said the Duke of Guise, claimant of the French throne, and his young heir, the Count of Paris, have renewed their bid for recognition, working under protection of the Spanish Nationalist Government at their headquarters near Larche, Spanish Morocco.

Dispatches from Cichy, new seat of the German-vanquished French Government, have said the 84-year-old Premier Petain would become "chief of state" under a new constitution described as "corporative" —the term Italian Fascists apply to Mussolini's government.

These dispatches added that Petain would assume "only the title of executive power"—presumably as a figurehead—and that the government would be dominated by a triumvirate composed of Gen. Maxime Weygand, former Allied commander-in-chief, former Premier Pierre Laval and former Labor Minister Adrien Marquet.

Lebrun May Resign

Resignation of President Lebrun was forecast along with expectations that reshaping of the third republic into a totalitarian mold would begin immediately.

Recently it was reported a strong group of Royalists had installed themselves high in the councils of the Petain Government.

The king pin of their bloc was said to be Gen. Weygand, long regarded in army and political quarters as having Royalist sympathies.

Petain, while ambassador to Nationalist Spain, was friendly with a group of Spanish Royalist officers. Reports here said he was "tremendously impressed" by the pattern of General Francisco Franco's Spanish Government which has "left the door open" to a return of Spanish monarchy.

The Count of Paris, current hero of the French Royalists, said in one of his periodic manifestoes:

"God forbid that it take a great disaster to show France the way back to sanity, but if it does, we must be ready."

The Count applied formally to the French Government at the start of the war for permission to serve as a soldier, but he was refused. Like other men of the direct Orleans line, he is forbidden to set foot on the soil of France or French possessions or protectorates.

AT THE BELLE

"Brother Orchid"

Edward G. Robinson is back at his bullet-proof best in "Brother Orchid," the new Warner Bros. film opening next at the Belle Theatre. An hilarious satire on the denizens of the underworld, "Brother Orchid" tells the story of a gangster who goes gunning for culture, with side-splitting results.

Featured with Robinson are Ann Sothern, as a hat-check girl who takes a good tip; Humphrey Bogart, as a diabolically double crossing henchmen; Ralph Bellamy as the alfalfa grower whose bank-roll isn't hay; and Allen Jenkins as Willie the Knife, a cute little cut-up.

Lloyd Bacon, ace director of action pictures, directed from the screen play by Earl Baldwin, based on the Collier Magazine story by Richard Connell.

"Pop Always Pays"

Laughs are the order of the day in RKO Radio's newest comedy offering, "Pop Always Pays," announced as the companion feature attraction, with Leon Errol, Adele Pearce, Dennis O'Keefe and Walter Catlett heading the featured cast.

Dealing with the efforts of two men to accumulate a thousand dollars apiece for very different reasons, the story climbs swiftly to peaks of hilarity and maintains its rapid pace to the very end. When a fussy father learns that a spendthrift young man wants to marry his daughter, he forbids the wedding until the suitor can save a thousand dollars.

Certain that this task will be impossible, he benevolently offers to give the young people a thousand dollars as a wedding present—if, of course, they save up the original thousand. The young pair scheme to get the money by hook or crook, aided by the girl's mother. The father, finding he will soon be called upon to make good his promise and unable to raise the sum takes desperate measures to retrieve himself—and the complications keep the laugh pressure up to the boiling point.

Errol is brilliantly cast as the worried father with a houseful of troubles, while two rising young newcomers, Miss Pearce and O'Keefe, portray the young couple in sprightly fashion. Marjorie Gateson as Errol's wife and Walter Catlett as a nosey neighbor, have the other principal roles and handle them expertly.

The production values Bert Gilroy has given the film and the clever direction of Leslie Goodwins, combine to make "Pop Always Pays," a real high spot in the season's comedy offerings.

"Lillian Russell"

"Lillian Russell," Darryl F. Zanuck's great entertainment triumph, is now closing at the Belle Theatre with Alice Faye, Don Ameche and Harry Fonda in the featured roles.

The picture portrays the life and loves of the woman who thrilled the country for thirty years with her exotic beauty, her exquisite voice and her enthralling stage presence. It also revives the famous song hits of her day.

Alice Faye superbly fills the title role and Ameche and Fonda turn in the best performances of their careers.

AT THE McCARTHY

"You're Not So Tough"

With the five dead end kids and the little tough guys sharing honors with Nan Grey and an excellent supporting cast, Universal's new comedy-drama "You're Not So Tough" is the next screen attraction coming to the McCarthy Theatre.

The dead end boys include Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsly and Bobby Jordan, all from the New York cast of the play, "Dead End." They are seen as migrant workers following California's crops, but preferring to live by their wits rather than by the sweat of their brows. Nan Grey is a "dust-bowl" refugee with whom Halop falls in love.

Others in the cast are Rosina Galli and Henry Armetta. Miss Galli is seen as the owner of a Sacramento Valley ranch where the boys and Nan obtain work.

The picture was directed by Joe May, who has to his credit the recent hit pictures, "The House of the Seven Gables" and "The Invisible Man Returns."

The three stooges new comedy, "Three Sappy People," a technicolor cartoon and "Birth of a Queen," which is a graphic screen version of the building of England's luxury liner, the Queen Mary are added hits on the program with "You're Not so Tough."

"Wagons Westward"

The thrilling adventure drama, "Wagons Westward," starring Chester Morris, Anita Louise, Buck Jones and Ona Munson, plus latest Fox News events, "Screen Snapshots," and a laugh-loaded comedy, "Andy Clyde Takes in Broadway," is the current program presentation at the McCarthy Theatre and for a swell two-hour show of genuine entertainment, relaxation and pleasure, here is about as excellent screen-fare as anyone could possibly hope to find.

Leon Errol and Marjorie Gateson in the uproarious comedy, "Pop Always Pays," next at the Belle with Edw. G. Robinson and Ann Sothern in "Brother Orchid."

JAPANESE LEADER ASKS APOLOGY

Speedy Settlement of Shanghai Incident Demanded of Commander of U.S. Marines

Shanghai, July 9.—(AP)—Major General Saburo Miura, commander of Japanese gendarmes, demanded an apology today from the commander of United States Marines in the International Settlement for alleged maltreatment of fifteen plainclothes gendarmes while in marine custody.

He declared that "speedy settlement of the incident is necessary or the matter is likely to take a grave turn".

Miura previously had apologized for presence of the gendarmes in the American defence area of the International Settlement in violation of an agreement not to enter without American Military authorities' consent. In a letter to Col. Dewitt Peck, Marine Commander, Miura said that despite his previous agreement to consider the incident closed, "discovery of new facts revealing that the Americans insulted the entire Japanese army" made necessary further consideration of the case.

Gendarmes Not Part of Japanese Army

(The gendarmes are not part of the Japanese army.)

A Japanese spokesman said the gendarmes entered the area to safeguard Gen. Toshizo Nishio, Commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in China.

Col. Peck, who indicated informally that no apology would be forthcoming, said today he had asked the Japanese to explain additional violations of the agreement.

He declared Japanese attempted to drive two tanks into the zone Sunday but were stopped by a marine patrol and that Japanese drove 125 motor trucks into the area yesterday.

Col. Peck said he also had pointed out to Miura the "discourtesy" of the Japanese in failing to inform the Americans of Nishio's entrance into the American sector Sunday.

Yesterday the Marine Commander said the Japanese gendarmes "were given exactly the same consideration and treatment as any man we arrest, including a medical examination".

DEFER APPROVAL ENGINE CONTRACT

Directors of Packard Company Will Give Further Study to Matters of Proposed Contract

Detroit, July 9 — (AP) — The Board of Directors of the Packard Motor Car Company have deferred approval of a proposed contract to manufacture 9,000 Rolls Royce airplane motors for the United States and Great Britain.

President Max M. Gilman told newsmen in a statment following a meeting yesterday that "the matter of a possible contract" had been discussed but that no action had been taken because "there are many matters that require further study."

"The Packard Motor Car Company is anxious to be of public service and is hopeful that a satisfactory agreement can be reached," the statement added.

President and Defence Heads to Meet

Gilman indicated he would return to Washington soon for further conferences with the National Defence Commission. Of the 9,000 motors, 6,000 are for Britain and 3,000 for the United States.

He said the Ford Motor Company, which previously had refused the contract on the grounds it would manufacture the engines for the United States only, had turned its preliminary plans over to his firm.

Gilman last week announced plans for a $30,000 expansion program, contingent upon acceptance of the contract, and said production of the motors would begin 10 months from the day the contract was signed.

TRENT RIVER FISHING REPORTED SPLENDID

Reports from along the Trent River fishing grounds near and north of Healey Falls are quite encouraging these days. American tourists, who continue to swarm into Ontario seeking the solace of Canadian fishing grounds, are reporting splendid catches of maskinonge these days. Over the week end Mrs. Earl Breyley of Berea, Ohio, landed a 17-pound muskie, that measured 45 inches with a girth of 17 inches. A smaller 'lunge was caught the same day by Mr. R. Kyle of Girard Ohio. Bass fishing is also reported at its height in the same waters.

Operators Reverse Decision On Bringing Equipment to City

'Safety Lane' Equipment Will Not be Brought Here Due to War and Labor Shortage

HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

The shortage of labor in local garages, due to the fact that many employees were entering associate branches of the motor mechanics trade and to the uncertainty of future labour conditions due to a possible home defence measure, prompted a decision during the Garage Operators' Association dinner meeting at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday evening, not to bring the "Safety Lane" equipment to Belleville this summer. At a previous meeting it had been arranged to bring this equipment into the district to test automobiles as to their mechanical condition, but uncertainty as to the financial success of the venture and because of existing labour conditions, the matter was allowed to drop for this season.

Last evening's Garage Operators' meeting proved to be one of the shortest on record with the matter of staging their annual picnic being the only other business discussed. After considerable discussion, relative to business and war conditions as being unfavourable to holding the picnic, all objection was over-ruled and the picnic will be held as pre-arranged, with any profits shown after expenses were met, to be donated to some war service fund.

The names of three Trenton garages were submitted by Kenneth Vivien, who recommended their being taken into the association. Mr. Bert Boyce, as Chairman of Grievances, also talked briefly.

Several Guest Speakers

Guest speakers for the evening included members of the General Motors Sales Branch, being Charles Hill of the Sales Promotion Dept.; Grant Coates, Assistant Sales Promotion Manager: Herman Lapp District Sales Manager and Pearson Andrews, also of the Sales Promotion Dept.

Mr. Coates spoke briefly, commenting on the recent additional taxes imposed on the motor industry by the Canadian Government, assuring his listeners of the industry's ability to adjust itself to the burden. He referred to the work General Motors were doing in the manufacture of army equipment, but assured that the domestic market was to be carried on during 1941 as it had in the past.

The showing of motion pictures pertaining to the motor industry completed the evening's program. The first picture, entitled "Turnabout Man," depicting a motorist having a nightmare in which he saw himself showing the utmost in courtesy to fellow-motorists and pedestrians, while he was driving, but for some unaccountable reason, acting the very opposite when he, himself, was out of the car.

An incite into the manufacturing details concerned in the making of automobiles under modern production methods was depicted in the second reel. The importance of the automotive industry to Canadian workers was suggested, showing 13,000 workers were connected directly with the manufacture of motor cars in Canada, having an annual payroll of over $35,000,000. The final reel of the evening's program entitled "The Other Fellow," starring Edgar Kennedy, showed the proper as well as the wrong way, to drive a motor car. Placing yourself in the shoes of "the other fellow" was suggested as a means to cure most driving ills.

HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS

Home Improvement loans to May 1st 1940 in towns and cities with a population of five thousand or over have just been made public. The number of loans in these municipalities during the month was 2,924 and the volume of loans in excess of $1,175,000 bringing the total to 78,022 loans aggregating $32,635.37. The grand total of Home Improvement loans made in the Dominion to May 1st 1940 was recently reported at 107,116 for $42,894,225.

Belleville figures stand at 322 loans for $120,419.61. Trenton has 144 loans for $41,926.32. Cobourg figures are 55 loans for $18,283.17. Lindsay has 201 loans for $68,298.20.

These loans have meant the development of property and have provided new up-to-the-minute homes with every modern convenience so much desired and so necessary for the complete enjoyment of the home. They also bring in taxes to the municipalities.

ITALY IN HUN'S COMPANY

If Italy waited long before she threw discretion to the winds and plunged into the pool of slaughter that the nazis have made, she chose a time when she was bound to find herself facing at once the most crucial tests. She "got in" on the spoils in the rending of France but she has to face a very active foe, the most dread of all when it comes to dogged perseverence—Britain.

Italy has picked the time and must pay the penalty. She has gone in at a time when Italy becomes the mere foolish pawn of Germany. A mixture of fear and a great amount of fascist avarice, envy and covetousness sent her into war. What is the chief aggressor to say to little Italy if Mussolini should ask for a pittance for Italy's part in the war. Hitler will tell him to go on watching the British fleet and the British air force and the British ports in the Mediterranean and that is what Mussolini will have to do. Only it will be the British who are seeking him and his force of ships and airplanes of which he so boasted for years.

Italy has hardly got broken into the ways of war yet. Germany is in deep up to the chin or even the brow in this ruthless strike for world power.

Italy, it has been recently said, is anxious to take part in the expected nazi attempt to invade England. Britain would welcome the Italians along with the Huns.

Italy, too, stayed out so long she had to go in at last, even if she was fearful of the Balkans. She probably was afraid Germany would not think of sharing with her in whatever crumbs fell to the dictators for the moment.

Just last week Italy had to bear the grim news that a nazi submarine had sent to their death a large number of Italian as well as German internees when the internment ship was sunk off the coast of Ireland by a nazi U-boat. That would ill please the impetuous people of Italy if they were told the news but dictatorship shuts the facts from the people.

That is what the Italian has earned by keeping company with the Hun. If it had not been for Italian participation those men would not have been under arrest and would not have been on that ship. Blame the nazis, that is what Italy must do.

But the sullen Hun does not care. What are hundreds of lost internees, nazis or fascists, as compared with the sinking of a 15,000-ton British steamship as the Woodstock Sentinel-Review comments, whose words are "the cold calculating nazis will think principally of the destruction of a 15,000-ton British ship. They would willing load every British ship with men of their own nationality and then sink both ship and men if in the end it left Britain without ships so that her defeat could be accomplished."

There is no doubt of that. The slaughter of the Huns in the battle of Flanders and France proves it. That is what Italy, too, will have to suffer for aiding and abetting Germany. The company of the Hun will land both Germany and Italy behind the bars in defeat.

THE ATTACKS ON GIBRALTAR

Gibraltar has been attacked feebly by aircraft. Here is the Rock which has stood the test of time. Now the Hun and his satellite, the rather prudent and tardy Italian, may attack the fortress which is the strongest in the world and which has withstood attack and siege.

Gibraltar has had time to strengthen its defences against ships and air attack.

If the enemy who has attacked so far only in feeble plane assaults, not a bomb hitting the Rock, but all falling into the sea, should make up his mind to besiege the fortress, there are the assurances of ample food, of stout defenders and of modern equipment to hold Gibraltar. The fortress has a water supply, which is sufficient. There are guns whose purpose is to handle attacking ships and guns which can play upon an army attempting to attack from the land side.

Britain pins her faith to the Rock of Gibraltar, the Pillars of Hercules. It is the guard to the Mediterranean. If Italy wants to upset the status quo of the inland sea, she can have her try at it, but she doubtless has had enough experience to be very cautious.

Clarity at Last

New York, July 9—Things become clearer and clearer. Soon they will be so obvious that the blindest eye can see.

Saturday's newspaper published four items of gravest concern to the United States.

First: Germany declares the Monroe Doctrine untenable except as it includes Germany as well as Britain.

Second: The Petain Government severs relations with Great Britain.

Third: The Petain Government receives the "consent" of the Axis powers to use its ships against Great Britain, and Gibraltar is bombed by French planes.

Fourth: Neutral diplomats predict that Nazis will open a "peace offensive" against Great Britain. If the last is successful, a united Nazi-dominated Europe will face the United States, which will be isolated, without a single friend or ally in the whole world.

Let us look at what we have done. Before this war ever broke out we passed a Neutrality Act which tied the United States hand and foot. The Administration Bill succeeded in lifting the embargo on arms to the Allies, but it retained strangulating provisions. The assumption behind both versions of the Neutrality Act and behind the isolationist movement was that the war in Europe does not concern us. It was just one of those recurrent European quarrels, which would result in the changing of this boundary or that. It was no concern either of the United States or of the Western Hemisphere.

Such aid as we could give the Allies, in the form of goods paid for in cash, in harmony with every traditional consideration of international law, was hampered by the dilatoriness of the Allies, plus a constant fear on their part that even these shipments might be halted because the huge isolationist propaganda in the United States, by the necessity of preserving their gold resources, since credit was barred, and by the fact that nothing could be transported in American bottoms.

Defenselesss Frontier.

Meanwhile, France has been defeated; and now observe the nature of that defeat. The Government of France has changed and a new Government has taken its place. This Government does not withdraw, defeated, from the war, but, in effect, it joins the Axis powers, putting what remains of the French Fleet and Air Force at the disposal of the Axis, as well, we may presume, as its financial reserves.

Against whom will Pan-Europe, led by Germany, be directed if Britain fails?

Against the Western Hemisphere And in the Western Hemisphere this Pan-Nazi-Europe need acquire no new bases. There is Greenland, owned by Denmark, now a Nazi protectorate, as near to the Northwest Territory of Canada as Norway is to Britain. There are all the British, Dutch and French possessions in the Caribbean. There is Canada, with 3,000 miles of unfortified frontier on the United States. There is South America, with every cultural and economic tie affiliating her with Europe—with Germany, France, Italy and Great Britain—not with us. There is Japan in the Far East.

Nazi Share Privileges.

Threatened north and south and east and west, we have one navy, excellent outposts in the Pacific and none at all, if Britain goes, in the Atlantic The Panama Canal is vulnerable.

This situation may occur in the middle of a presidential campaign in which candidates are still discussing whether the New Deal is or is not a good thing. It may occur while this country, devoted to a most preposterous interpretation of the right of free speech and assembly, actually still allows the German-American Bund to encamp and train its cohorts, and the Communist Party to organize inside our schools, social organizations and trade unions.

This situation may occur while Mr. Ford, in charge of one of the largest complexes of factories in the United States, strikes against the foreign policy of the United States in refusing to manufacture planes for Great Britain.

Freedom is, among other things, the possibility of choice. The possible choices for the United States become fewer and fewer. Soon we may have only one choice: To join the Axis ourselves and accept Nazi control over our institutions, under some Government "acceptable" to the Germans. Perhaps we shall now play a role similar to that of France and Great Britain. Perhaps ours will be the role, instead, of Austria, or Czecho-Slovakia or Denmark.

Laval Faces Big Job.

The hundred and sixty-fourth anniversary of the declaration of American independence saw the end of a thirty-six-year-old entente cordiale, which was the Western guaranty for us of the Monroe Doctrine. It saw the collapse of the sixty-five-year-old Constitution of the French Republic. And the new constitution, according to M. Laval, is to be drafted "on the lines of the Constitution of the United States, of Italy, Germany, and Portugal." M. Laval has certainly handed himself a job.

If Britain fails, it is preposterous for us to think that we can defend the Western Hemisphere. We shall have our hands more than full defending North America. We ought to give up immediately all interest in the Far East. We shall need our navy and air force right here, for home defense.

The British Fleet, under the control of the present Government could still be saved for us, but not if we retain our present concept of neutrality. For what guarantee has British that her fleet will not be used against her and Canada? Now is the time either to accept Nazi domination, and know what it will mean to American independence and American institutions, or to show such clarity of vision and such generosity that it includes everything for Britain except active military support.

Otherwise, tomorrow we shall have isolation: Not splendid isolation, but awful isolation.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Heart Rate Greatly Increases in Healthy Persons During the Twenty-four hours

You may be one of those individuals who like to count your pulse rate to learn whether or not your heart is beating too rapidly. You find that most of the time it is beating 72 or 76, or 80, or 84 to the minute, but it may beat 10 to 12 beats oftener than this and you think you have a slight rise in temperature. The thermometer, however, shows that your temperature is normal and you wonder what has caused the increased pulse rate.

As a matter of fact, the pulse rate may change a number of times a day and yet your heart be normal in every way.

I have spoken before of reaching for my watch after awakening from a good night's sleep and finding the heart rate 68 or 70. After lying awake for a few minutes, during which tie I may remember that I neglected some work of the day before, or I may try to plan some work for the day, I take my pulse rate again and find it up to 72 or 76, or even higher, and yet I have not raised my head from the pillow. Just the mere thinking or planning can increase the heart rate.

Many find that eating a hearty meal will increase the heart rate considerably due either to the extra work put on the heart during digestion of food or because considerable gas has accumulated in the stomach which crowds against top of stomach which, in turn, pushes against the floor of the chest and crowds the heart so that it has to beat oftener.

Then come the trials, the difficulties, the problems of the day which require deep thought and anxiety, each or both of which can send the heart rate up 10 to 20 beats.

It may be for this reason that people living in the country live longer; their heart rate is not as likely to increase so much or so often as those living in the city.

However, there is no cause for worry about the heart if, at times, or most of the time, it is beating at or near the normal rate; that is, if the heart rate is within normal limits during most of the 24 hours of the day.

"Extensive and exact studies in the measurement of the heart rate of persons living in New York City have shown pulse rates ranging from 55 to 120 beats per minute in a "healthy" person in a normal twenty-four hour cycle.

PATRIOTISM BEHIND INDUSTRY

There is patriotism behind the motion picture industry. The theatre interests of Canada are providing a magnificent gesture and a worthy aid to the war cause in staging free shows across the country on Monday evening, July 15, at 8:30, for the purpose of encouraging every Canadian to invest in war savings stamps. The theatres are footing every expense of the 1,300 shows in this service to the Dominion Government and its war effort.

H. M. S. 'King Alfred'

A CORPORATION Swimming Bath is now "H.M.S." for the duration and instead of swallow dives the men at the baths learn navigation and gunnery and signals.

H.M.S. King Alfred, a "stone frigate" on the seaside front, is the Navy's cramming house for temporary naval officers and among the 500 future commanding officers of small craft that I saw there in training the other day were the first batch of the Navy's "militiamen" selected for commissions.

They, like the R.N.V.R.s ratings with them, had all done at least three months' work at sea. The only route now to temporary commissions for war service in the Navy is by way of the Lower Deck; the old school tie and the "Guv'nor's" influence at Whitehall have no longer any pull. This is perhaps the most drastically democratic thing that the present war has produced in this country.

So the baths bear the name of that ancient King of England whom we call the Founder of the Royal Navy, a name that has been sadly neglected among the warships that float, for the only predecessor of the new establishment was an armored cruiser built in 1901.

The King Alfred was set up in the first week of the present war, but the step was not the outcome of a sudden and panic decision. Two years or more before, the Admiralty, foreseeing the urgent need that would arise for rapid additions to the officers corps when hostilities came, had prepared a list of candidates, men of seafaring and yachting experience, and had enrolled them as members of the Royal Naval Volunteer (Supplementary) Reserve. They had nothing to do in peace time in the way of drills or instruction; they had no uniform. They were just ready to be called on when wanted.

But that meant, so far as the Admiralty was concerned, some preparation for handling and training them in an emergency and the official scheme as first drafted provided for two training establishments, one in the south of England, one in Scotland, to which these supplementaries (nearly 2,000 of them) could be drafted for a rapid intensive course of naval training as soon as they were called up. It was expected that each establishment could produce up to 500 additional junior officers a year for naval service—and if the need for more was shown, a third establishment could be quickly started on the lines of the other two.

That was the pre-war idea.

But when the time came and the supplementaries were called up, the northern establishment was cancelled and it was decided to pass all candidates through H.M.S. King Alfred.

The new establishment did not exist on September 1; indeed, no actual buildings were earmarked for it and beyond the skeleton staff (the commanding officer and one or two of his immediate helpers) the whole thing was very much in embryo. At first it was suggested that local hotels should be commandeered, but on the front by luck there was a block of fine uncompleted buildings, the new Corporation Baths.

By the middle of September the baths began to become H.M.S. King Alfred.

With a skeleton of a building and a skeleton staff, it might have been weeks before the place was ready for its first batch of trainees. Actually, they joined up a few later! A contractor had erected cookery plant to provide meals for 500 men a day; builders and joiners had transformed the showers baths, dressing rooms and drying rooms into neatly partitioned class rooms for groups of twenty; the great sunlounge had been given a quota of sofas and chairs to make a wardroom anteroom of it, and a vast section of the underground car park had been boarded in and rigged up as a dining room.

For the time being the probationary officers under training were billeted in houses, nearby, but today there are big dormitories, double-banked with beds, also in part of the same underground car park. It really makes one realize what an awful lot of room is wasted in the modern world providing standing space for idle cars! The dormitories are for the cadet-ratings as it is proposed to call the Lower Deck trainees. The men who are already probationary officers are still billeted.

Getting the establishment started, however, was only one of the problems that urgently confronted those responsible for H.M.S. King Alfred. The first batch of Supplementary R.N.V.R.s came along, some (the wise virgins) equipped with uniform, but the majority still waiting for the outfitters to cope with the rush of orders. And barely had the men been detailed off in classes before the Admiralty sent down urgently to ask if any of them were ready for service at sea? Now I am not going to guarantee the truth of what follows. It is one of the legends of the ship—and if it is not true, it ought to be.

The Captain dealt with the crisis pronto.

"Fall in all officers with uniform", he ordered.

A small batch fell in.

"All officers with two pairs of trousers one pace forward", he ordered.

A still smaller batch obeyed. "You being in all respects fitted and equipped for sea", he said to them, "will proceed in accordance with instruction herewith from the Admiralty."

He turned to the one-pair remainder.

"You will take in extra trousers as requisite within twenty-four hours and you, too, will proceed in accordance with previous orders."

TAKE 2 H.M.S. King Alfred.

And that is how it came about that H.M.S. King Alfred "crammed" its first batch of young officers for service for hostilities only. Actually, of course, all of them were seafarers. All of them were navigators with their yacht masters' certificates, and if they did not know much about naval gunnery they could keep a watch on the bridge and pick up the gunnery practically on board in their watch below.

I MENTIONED earlier that the pre-war scheme provided for a possible output of 500 officers a year from each establishment. It was a slight underestimate. In the first eight months of the war this one establishment passed through three times that number of probationary officers from the Supplementary Reserve and had only found it necessary to reject one man out of all of them for the Service. On the day I visited the establishment by the kindness of Captain J. N. Pelly, R. N., the commanding officer, there were more than 400 probationary officers and 100 cadet-ratings under training, the highest number the King Alfred had touched in its brief but hectic career.

It must be made clear, by the way, that all these promotions are confined to "hostilities only" men. Those who are making the Navy their career, who have entered either for long service or the special twelve years' short service and who are recommended for commissions go through an entirely different course of training since their commissions will not be "temporary", but permanent, and some of them may ultimately rise to flag rank, a thing that is beyond the wildest dreams of those who are passing through the King Adfred.

The training at the establishment is intensive and the work is hard, but it is tacked with a will, for every man there knows that his only chance of getting a commission is to get a "pass". To help the work along the staff give extra voluntary instruction in the dog-watches; duty-instructors in seamanship, gunnery and torpedo and signals are available every day except Saturday and Sunday, while an officer-instructor in also on duty after tea each afternoon to give help in navigation work.

The work done by the trainees is mainly general, the syllabus covering the broad range of an officer's duties from anti-gas work to field training and physical jerks and, of course, including gunnery, signals, torpedo and navigation together with "service customs", though the teaching in this last is more by daily practice and familiarity than by actual classroom work.

The only "specialized" instruction is for a small class of advanced navigators, men already well grounded in the subject who can be trained on to serve as "Pilot" in small craft where no regular navigating officer is carried.

His Excellency and Princess Alice Are Proper Titles

Throughout the Dominion there is considerable uncertainty regarding correct titular designations for the new Governor General and his consort. This is understandable because the position is unusual in Canada.

The Earl of Athlone is correctly referred to as "the Governor General", and at second reference may be styled "His Excellency". The form "His Excellency the Governor General" is rarely used, the term "Governor General" being considered more dignified.

Princess Alice, as daughter of Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, and fourth son of Queen Victoria, retains her Royal title. She should never be referred to as "Her Excellency", but invariably as "Her Royal Highness". Shortest and most usual form of address and reference is simply "Princess Alice."

The expression, "Their Excellencies" is incorrect and never used in this regime. The Governor General and Princess Alice, when mentioned together, should be referred to as "His Excellency and Her Royal Highness".

Princess Alice should never be referred to as the "Countess of Athlone", but the title "Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone", is correct, and this may be shortened to "Princess Alice". The designation "Her Royal Highness, Princess Alice", is rarely used.

When the Governor General is referred to by name he should be designated the Earl of Athlone, and it may be made slightly more formal by adding K. G. Other letters need only be added when the most formal designation is required. In this case the Governor General's full titles are: Major-General, the Right Honorable the Earl of Athlone, K.G., P.C., G.C.B., G.M.M.G., G.C.V.O., D.S.O., F.R.S., A.D.C.—Ottawa Journal.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The Royal Air Force appears to be more than holding its own in the intensifying air war over the British Isles, the continent of Europe, northern Africa and the islands of the Mediterranean.

This state of affairs makes the enemy invasion of the British Isles at once more urgent and more difficult. If the German and Italian air forces cannot achieve mastery of the air — and they appear far from doing so — the only way to protect their own territories from British air raids is an attempt to land armies on British soil.

That, however, is made more difficult by R.A.F. activity. The constant patrols now maintained by British planes make it difficult for the Germans to mass men, ships and material at a jumping off point without being observed.

Once preparations for such a move are observed British bombers will harass it in force. The effect of heavy air bombardment on an embarking army was well demonstrated at Dunkerque. There the British and French troops were able to get away with only the clothes on their backs, despite the fact the Allied fleets controlled the sea.

The German air force was largely responsible for the fact that they had to leave all their equipment behind. It does not follow that German forces could not be got aboard ships at scattered ports without the same sort of disaster but the Dunkerque evacuation taught certain lessons about the possible use of the air arm in stifling an invasion of the British Isles at its source.

FARM, FOREST WORKERS MOBILIZE

King Carol Strives to Prevent Government Falling Into Pro-German Hands

Bucharest, July 9—(AP)— The Rumanian cabinet has mobilized farm and forest workers to strengthen the nation for defence while King Carol labored to prevent the government from falling into the hands of the pro-German, anti-semitic Iron Guard.

Several million women, as well as boys and men too old for active military service, were affected by a cabinet decree conscripting all available labor to harvest the nation's crops and safeguard vital food supplies.

The cabinet also was reported to have discussed means of "solving the Jewish problem," but details were not immediately made public.

Carol Prevents Break

It appeared that King Carol had succeeded, for the time being at least, in halting a movement to break up the present government and force the resignation of a cabinet composed entirely of Iron Guardists—the Rumanian Nazi party.

Diplomats, however, looked for repercussions in a series of political manoeuvres which had the net result of removing from the cabinet Horia Sima, head of the Iron Guard, who was Minister of Culture.

The big question in diplomatic circles centred about Sima's next step.

Sima and three other Iron Guard members of Premier Ion Gigurtu's five-day-old cabinet submitted their resignations last night in an effort to force creation of a 100-percent Nazi government. They hoped to force the resignation of the Gigurtu government and to be given full powers in its successor.

Accepts One Registration

Carol accepted Sima's resignation, but refused to accept the others.

He replaced Sima with Rado Budisteanu, Iron Guard Lieutenant.

The cabinet is divided between Iron Guardists and followers of Octavian Goga, who himself once headed a pro-Nazi anti-semitic government. Sima seeks a cabinet composed entirely of Extremists like himself.

Carol sought to strengthen the hand of his own totalitarian party —the party of the nation—by a new law aimed at preventing creation of opposition groups. The law prohibits reviving any outlawed parties and forbids organization of secret societies aimed at overthrow of Carol's party.

Iron Guard Technically Outlawed

(Technically, the Iron Guard at present is outlawed along with all other political groups except Carol's party of the nation.)

Meanwhile, German circles predicted talks this week between Hitler and Foreign Minister Ciano of Italy might provide settlement not only of Hungary's claim on Transylvania but also of Bulgaria's claim on Southern Dobruja, both now part of Rumania.

A great concentration of Rumanian troops is at the Transylvania border.

Rumanian government quarters insisted that "Rumania does not recognize any justification for eventual Hungarian territoriay demands and is resolved not to accept them."

Exchange of Populations.

Official quarters here said Rumania would consdier only an exchange of populations as a means of settling Hungary's claim on Transylvania, which was a Magyar Province before the first great war.

"Such an exchange, to the exclusion of territorial cession, might have a satisfactory result for the two nations, with good economic consequences and the establishment of good neighbor relations," these quarters said.

"These would give excellent results to the two countries and to all of the countries in this part of Europe."

BRITAIN SPENDING $42,275,000 A DAY

House Votes Credit and Goes Into Secret Session for Debate on Economic Warfare

London, July 9—(CP)—Britain now is spending 9,500,000 pounds, ($42,275,000) a day of which 6,500,000 pounds is going to the army, navy and air force, Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today.

Sir Kingsley made this announcement in asking a vote of credit for 1,000,000,000 pounds. The House voted this credit and went into a secret session for debate on economic warfare.

The government has been given a blank cheque as far as appropriations go and parliament votes it money from time to time to pay the bills. The last vote of credit was 700,000,000 pounds in March.

The chancellor said 575,000,000 pounds of this already had been spent. He warned that the gap between revenue and expenditure was widening and that additional taxes must be imposed.

Italian Navy Desires to Achieve 'Glory' Comparable to That of Italian Armies in Ethiopia

London, July 9—(CP)—Informed sources asserted today that a desire of the Italian navy to achieve "glory" comparable to that gained by Italy's army and air force in Ethiopia and Spain was a factor in Italian entrance into the war.

They said the navy had shown a definitely "pro-war" attitude for some time.

These sources said they believed Italy would be unable "at present" to replace submarines at the rate British forces are sinking them, which is estimated generally to exceed the rate of destruction of German submarines.

They estimated 60 per cent of all Italian naval personnel had been conscripted.

These sources said the new 35,000-ton battleships Vittorio Veneta and Littorio "probably" had completed their trials, but suggested that Italy might "prefer" to keep them out of action in the immediate future.

The same sources estimated Italy's battleship strength at five ships, including the Vittorio Veneto, the Littorio and three 27,000-ton vessels, which have been reconstructed.

Construction Delayed

They recalled that the Italian naval under-secretary, in a statement a month ago, had said that construction of two new cruisers was being delayed "in favor" of new destroyers and submarines. This action was interpreted here as due to a shortage of material.

Italian ships are equipped with modern gunnery control and "there is no reason to suppose their firing would not be effective," it was stated.

Italian naval morale was described as "undoubtedly higher" now than a few years ago.

"Fascism," these sources said, "probably improves the discipline of the fighting service in a country like that."

While the Italian air force and army returned home from Ethiopia and Spain "covered with medals and glory," the navy has had no chance to show its worth, it was explained, and this, added to Italian dislike of British naval dominance in the Mediterranean, probably has fostered a more warlike feeling in the navy than in the other branches.

Gen. McNaughton Pays Tribute To Forces Outside Military Setup

By Constant Movement C.A.S.F. Are Trying to Leave Enemy in Doubt Says Commander

MANY MANOEUVRES

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in England, July 9 (C.P. Cable)—Watching men of the Canadian Active Service Force deploy rapidly over a section of the home [illegible], Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding the Canadian 1st. Division, told a party of Canadian newspapermen today "that by constant movement we are trying to leave the enemy in doubt that will be paid for in valuable lives."

The general told the newsmen grouped around him that he wished to pay tribute to forces outside the military set-up, declaring "they are a defensive force inside the citadel who are simplifying procedure and are facing up to facts."

The party watched the division go through various manoeuvres after which Gen. McNaughton stressed the important part to be played by the division in the new technique of warfare. He said the division was being given a particular assignment and every request for assistance was being met promptly as conditions permitted.

He said he was satisfied that the people at home were fully awake, adding that "one has a feeling that Canada is going on with a big job." Modern armies are not much good without the necessary instruments of war, he said, because "you can't put bare breasts against bayonet points."

Constantly on Alert

Tactics of improvement are going on day by day, and "we are constantly on the alert," he said, adding the warning that "there is no use basing our plans on wishful thinking."

He referred to the stepped-up mobility of a modern striking force compared with the slower moving armies of the past. He said the enemy probably could put thousands of men on a coast "quicker than we could meet them." But through superior mobility and speedier concentration "we have a better chance of repelling an invasion."

Once the democratic countries "get under way they will be much more formidable and effective in prosecuting the war than the autocracies," he said. "That is where our hope lies. We have resources far greater than the dictatorships. The only thing is that we have not reached the stage of applying them to the fullest."

POLISH FLIERS ACCEPTABLE

London, July 9—(CP)—The Air Ministry reported "very satisfactory progress" today in the training of thousands of Polish airmen as bombing crews in Britain. Some of the best trained pilots, many of whom fought in France, probably will fly fighter planes.

STORY BRANDED AS UNTRUE ONE

No Attempt Made to Scuttle French Ship in Canadian Port Say Authorities

Ottawa, July 9. — (CP) — Naval officials here today described as untrue a New York report that an attempt had been made by the crew of the 30,000-ton French liner Pasteur to scuttle the vessel at anchor in Bedford Basin at Halifax.

"The story is untrue," said a terse official navy statement.

The New York report said reliable sources stated the French crew sought to sink the vessel last Thursday night—the day following the naval engagement off Mers El-Kebur, Algeria in which British warships put out of action several units of the French fleet to prevent their surrender to the Germans.

Quick action, however, by the British authorities at Halifax thwarted the attempt to scuttle the Pasteur, the New York report said. An armed party of Britons was said to have forced their way aboard the liner just in time to close the sea cocks through which water already was pouring into the holds. There was scuffling, but no gunfire.

Eye-witnesses said that the following day the Pasteur was lying alongside a Halifax dock discharging the cargo of munitions with which she sailed from New York, June 17, the report added.

At the time she left New York the Pasteur was under orders of the British Admiralty and was flying the British flag. In her holds were a number of French .75 millimetre field guns and a quantity of crated ammunition.

The liner, third largest vessel in the French Merchant Marine was under command of Capt. François Marie Petiot. Carrying a normal complement of 272 men, she was painted a dull gray. There were two guns on her after deck.

WOMAN KILLED IN CAR COLLISION

Miss Mary Burns, Hamilton, Strikes Pole in Passing Another Car

Brantford, Ont., July 9—(CP)—Miss Mary Burns, 38, of Hamilton, was killed today in a sideswipe motoring collision 15 miles west of here. Her mother, Mrs. Jane Burns suffered painful injuries.

Police said the accident accurred when Miss Burns, driving west of Petrolia, was pasing a car driven by William John Dickie, 66, of Fairfield Plains bound in the same direction.

Both cars sped into the ditch, the Burns car ripping out a telephone pole and breaking it in half before turning over. Both cars were damaged badly.

Dickie and his son, William, escaped injury.

8 French Battleships Seized, Sunk, Damaged By British Navy

(By the Canadian Press)

Britain has now seized, sunk or heavily damaged eight French battleships in her efforts to keep the French navy from falling to Germany and Italy.

This action leaves only one French battleship which might be used by Germany or Italy in the near future, and even this one could not be used immediately. It is the 35,000-ton Jean Bart, which was launched only last March 6 and is said to be far from completion.

In addition there are two 35,000-ton battleships, the Clemenceau and the Gastogne, on the ways at French channel ports, now occupied by the Germans, but since these ships originally were not scheduled for completion until 1942 and 1943 it is doubted whether even with the war-time speed-up they can be of early use. They were not laid down until last year.

Britain has taken France's active battleships out of the war this way:

Richelieu, 35,000 tons by "successful action."

Strasbourg, 26,500, torpedoed and hit by air bombs while fleeing to France from action off Oran, Algeria, out of war for months.

Dunkerque, 26,500 damaged, beached and then bombed from air at Oran.

Bretagne, 22,189 and Provence, 22,189, one sunk and the other heavily damaged off Oran.

Courbet, Paris and Lorraine, all 22,189, two seized in British ports and third confined by British to Alexandria harbor.

Travellers to U. S. Must Carry Forms To Identify Money

Ottawa, July 9.—(CP)—Travellers to the United States must hereafter carry with them forms certifying that the money they carry with them —of whatever amount and whether in Canadian currency or not—has been released by the Foreign Exchange Control Board or its agents for the purposes of their journeys.

The Board today revised its previous regulation, which permitted travellers to cross the border with as much as $100, to provide that forms must be obtained covering any sum.

The Board also reduced from $100 to $25 the amount Canadians might export to the United States monthly without licence. Permits will be granted for export of larger sums for reason of health, emergency and certain business dealers. This applies to both United States and Canadian Exchange.

The new regulations follow on the heels of the announcement of Hon. J. L. Ralston, former Finance Minister, that no funds for purposes of pleasure travel in the United States would be issued.

Judgment Reserved By the Magistrate

Marmora, July 9—Magistrate E. J. Butler yesterday reserved judgment in the case of Bruce McInroy, Marmora, charged with violation of the Defense of Canada. The accused man is charged with making statements likely to cause disaffection to His Majesty's forces.

It was alleged that McInroy at various times expressed the hope of a German victory.

Jack Cronkwright of Madoc, now a soldier in the Kingston Battery, testified McInroy had given him a ride the day he was leaving to enlist. During the drive, McInroy stated he was foolish to join the army.

E. Wellman and J. Johnson, both of Marmora, fellow employees, testified McInroy made numerous statements as charged. The accused man was employed as a road maintainer for Highway No. 7 between Marmora and Madoc.

McInroy pleaded "not guilty" and was defended by Charles A. Payne, K.C., Belleville.

Magistrate Butler reserved judgment for one week.

Owen Sound, Ont., July 9—(CP) —Mr. and Mrs. William Watson of Toronto suffered burns and other injuries late yesterday when the summer cottage they were occupying was destroyed by fire. The fire was caused by explosion of a coal oil lamp.

The Ile de France, second largest liner in the French merchant fleet, last left New York May 1, under Capt. Herbert Fontaine.

With a gross tonnage of 43,450, she was the largest French ship afloat when built in 1926 at St. Nazaire. She was owned by the French Line. Since her maiden voyage to New York in 1927, she has been in the transatlantic service.

Shanghai, July 9—(AP)—The Japanese' navy seized the 3,000-ton British steamship Shengking today, a Japanese warship stopping it after a chase up the Whangpoo River from Woosung to Shanghai.

British circles said the Shengking was carrying rifle ammunition from the French concession at Tientsin to the French concession at Shanghai. They said the Japanese at Tientsin had given the ship clearance papers and had approved the manifest.

The happy young couple left on a short honeymoon to Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside at the groom's farm at Crookston.

AKEY—GOULAH

Tweed, (Special)— St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Sulphide, was the scene of a pretty Saturday wedding, when Mary Greta, daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Goulah, became the bride of David Gabriel Lawrence Akey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Akey.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely floor-length princess gown of mousseline de soie, with picture hat of mohair and matching accessories. Her bouquet was Briar roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Yvonne Courneyea, her cousin, while Mr. Fred Cassidy, cousin of the groom, was groomsman, Messrs. Bernard Akey and Joseph Goulah were ushers.

A wedding dinner was served to thirty guests at the home of bride's parents. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Traviss and Miss Marietta Akey, of Peterboro.

PINE—BARNHART

The wedding was quietly solemnized at Trinity rectory, Shannonville, on Saturday evening, July 6th., by the Rev. C. P. Heaven, when Miss Florence Levena Barnhart was married to Mr. Bruce Benjamin Pine. The bride's mother died some years ago and was formerly Louise Boler of British Columbia. Mr. and Mrs. Pine will make their future home at Moscow, Ontario.

List to Starboard In Fall Fashions

(By R. J. Anderson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, July 9.— (CP)— The girls will be listing slightly to starboard this fall.

For the new winter lines sport the side saddle drape—to the fashion neophyte a dress—length pleat that angles enticingly on the right.

They're worn mostly on afternoon creations, which the experts say will have an apron front with side saddle effect. A dog's head brooch at the neck goes with the saddle.

A look yesterday at the previews of winter's early fashions discloses also that the pencil silhouette is the thing this season. The war note predominates with the military effect carried through the trimming and beading to the epaulette shoulders. The dominant color is black.

But the catchy line is the sophisticated juniors—the 35-year-olds can wear them if they have the figure according to the house boosters. They feature the lowered waist line.

Particularly fetching in one penthouse offering was a stunner in Ramboula brown. A brunette showed to advantage how the skirts taped more this season getting away from the "climsy lines" of the full flare. She looked good in dogwood brown, too.

There's a certain fullness in front. A honey in a plum wine cocktail suit prompted this: "If you have a tummy you can cover it".

For evening, the new combination formal and dinner dress promises to go well. Slip off the Chinese Mandarin jacket and be ready for anything. A silvery blonde showed how it is done in sapphire blue. Perfectly.

The house man waxed enthusiastic: "Note those lines. It's smart. It's stunning. It's got everything". She had.

Of the war note, the designers this season lean to straight military effects. The backs are straighter. Epaulettes in novelty jewellery adorn the shoulders. The trimming and beading go up and down in serried rows.

Black is the color for 80 per cent of this season's styles, as the experts put it :"Whenever there's a war, the style is always black—black and glitter".

There's something new in materials. Wool will be used for evening gowns—"lots of wool", say those who know. They demonstrated with a blond a red jersey top and a wool plaid skirt. She was effective.

There was a noticeable lack of tight-fitting gowns. Perhaps apropos of nothing, the style interpreter remarked:

"The models spent the week-end at the beach and got sunburned. How they suffer!"

When a Youth Gets Reckless

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

A reader writes: "I have a grandson who is just sixteen years old. He is six feet tall and has a pleasing personality. His father, (my son) has a general store in a village. A daughter, 17 years old, graduated from high school in June and will enter college this fall.

"The boy, Charles, had to repeat a year in grammar school. He entered high school last September and just barely passed his examinations. He doesn't seem to take interest in anything but having a good time. His father had been paying him $10 per week to help him in the store, but now Charles has informed his father he will not work any more. He has been going out until late at night, but refuses to tell where or with whom he goes. Parents have lost all influence over him. He is my only grandson and I love him.

"If you could help me in any way I would be very grateful."

Curtail Spending

I answered this grandmother:

"Immediately, the father should greatly limit the spending money of this boy. He might, however, win this lad by making him a partner in the firm, or putting him on a commission which would increase in proportion to the lad's personal economy of time and money. They cannot get anywhere by prying into his experiences and friendships away from home. When they have re-established more wholesome relationships with him he will volunteer considerable of such information.

"Since the sister of Charles has won glory in the field in which he has failed, he most easily gains satisfaction in his secret social pleasures and defiance of his parents.

"With the daughter in college, however, Charles may do better in high school, if his teachers will avoid reminding him of his brilliant sister every time he makes a bad response in class. No doubt he is poor in reading—nearly all students who lag or fail in high school are—and might be helped with the aid of an expert.

Don't Harp on Sister

"If his parents can win his cooperation and companionship he might take heart and work hard at school. In order to help him they will make him feel worthy and will not hold his sister up before him as a model. Instead they will play up his best in him, help him celebrate his own successes, however small, and cause him to feel he is loved and admired as much as sister."

See Yourself As Do Others

By HELEN FOLLETT

The girl with the seeing eye avoids a lot of beauty pitfalls. She watches the feminine merry-go-round, regards this and that which have to do with dress, make-up, manners and carriage, makes notes on her mental cuffs and profits thereby. She is a true goddess of the beauty hunt; knows what she is about.

Bad examples teach as well as good ones. She asks herself "do I look like that?" Awkward women appear so terrible that she yanks up her own spinal column and walks with spirit. Shrieking women give her food for thought; what about her own voice and the way she uses it? Untidy women lead her to cultivate neatness.

Take a Lesson

This girl about whom we are preaching this day spots a young lady in the restaurant who has her legs twined around the chair legs, which picture promptly inspires our observer to place her own cute little tootsies on the floor. There is also present, perhaps, the cute dolly who is making herself a new complexion at the table, making also during the process some grotesque and unsightly mugs. Our heroine won't do that any more.

Hair! That's another subject for thought. The frowslies and scrambled locks are still with us, messy looking. The observing girl gets herself a new arrangement which is sleek and neat.

Shrieking Women are Out!

The time for the cold shower is in the morning. Freshens the complexion, reddens the lips, makes the eyes look dewy. There should be a quick reaction so the cold shower must be of short duration. Have a brisk friction with a towel that takes hold like a grater, finish with a talcum rub.

FASHION FLASHES

FORTUNE SMILES upon the designer who turns out frocks that look nice in town whether for lunching or for roof dining. Such a model is in black silk chiffon, the square neck of lace edged with chiffon ruchings. At the hem is a wide chiffon ruching.

LOOKING AHEAD we see silky black caracul as a major fur fashion. A beautiful advance model is of finely marked caracul, with molded waistline and side closing with a flare. Silver clasp at the low waistline.

READY TO STEP into Autumn are handsome suede step-in pumps with smart touches. An attractive black model has a panel of ring lizard up the back of the heel and the folded tongue is of the reptile. Elastic U-shaped side sections for snug fit.

TOP OFF A handsome dinner ensemble with a neat evening hat. A charming model is of black crim, the toque worn far back on the head, with a cluster of white camellias falling across the hair-line onto the forehead.

PLAY AWAY the hours on the beach and when it gets chilly, wear a comfy coat. A good number is a candlewick-chenille coat in white trimmed with red rope braid to match the red lining of the hood.

Why Certo Saves You Time, Work, Money—Yet Gives You BETTER Jams and Jellies.

So quick - so much less work

It's so quick and easy to make jams and jellies with Certo. For jam you need give only a one-minute to two-minute full rolling boil . . . for jellies only a half-minute to a minute. As Miss L. Miller, Prizewinner at Vermilion Fair (Alta.) says: "The Certo method is ever so much faster."

More Jam or Jelly

In this extremely short boil very little juice can boil away. So you get up to half again more jam or jelly. "You make more from the same amount of juice, as you do not need to boil it down," writes Mrs. T. O. Farnsworth, Prizewinner at Compton County Fair (Que.).

CERTO is concentrated FRUIT PECTIN . . . the natural jellifying substance extracted from fruit in which it is most abundant.

Fresher Taste and Colour

Owing to the short boil there is no loss of fresh taste or natural colour such as happens in the old-fashioned long boil. Mrs. Mabel Colwell, Prizewinner at Saskatoon Exhibition agrees: "The colour and flavour are much superior," she writes.

Results assured

With Certo you get a free book of tested Certo recipes. Only follow them exactly and you will have success. "I have never had a failure with Certo," writes Mrs. R. Clubb, Prizewinner of the Morris Fair (Man.).

Advice to the Lovelorn

How To Be Happy Though Married For Fifty Years

One couple's recipe for how to be happy though married — even for fifty years—seems to have worked, as far as appearances go. She has a sweet, unruffled brow, and her smile is not forced. He has a merry twinkle in his eye, is not bald, and has kept his figure.

We're talking about Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Waters, who observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary a week or so ago, and were pictured as they prepared to slice their anniversary cake in the presence of children and grandchildren. Their home is in old Georgetown, not far from Washington, D.C.

If the beauty parlors could only set up a course opposed to domestic arguments, it looks as if it would work as well by following Mr. and Mrs. Waters' non-argument recipe quite as well as those creams and astringents which sell for $2, $3 and $5 a bottle or jar.

The 70-year-old celebrant of fifty years of connubial bliss might easily pass for 50, and the answer is, according to him, "We have never argued. If the wife wants to do a thing, I let her do it; if I want to do something, she never stops me."

The recipe was so simple that everyone present waited for a catch. But there wasn't any, and Mr. Waters continued, "We haven't had an argument since our marriage."

They were childhood sweethearts and fell in love soon after Mr. Waters was promoted to long pants and Mrs. Waters had put up her pigtails. Today they have three children, four grandchildren, and many joyous memories of their fifty years of companionship. After the cake had been cut, Mr. Waters expanded a little and said, "All married couples should go fifty-fifty with each other, if they want fifty years of married bliss. They should live not only with each other but for each other."

After considering the ideal home life and the youthful good looks of this couple, one ponders some of the absurd charges on which couples have sued for divorce. Of different nationalities, Mr. X. sued his wife for a divorce because her cooking never varied from the dishes of her own home land. His particular antipathy was boiled dumplings. He argued, pleaded, stormed against dumplings, but there they were on the dinner table night after night.

He explained that his country had produced some of the greatest chefs in the world and they did not favor dumplings. But it made no difference. Dumplings it was. He sued for divorce.

Mrs. Y., taking her troubles to Reno on the grounds of incompatability, defined her charges not against blonde or brunette but against Mr. Y's love of reading. He seemed to prefer the classics to her conversation, which he said was "gossipy".

Often one sees pictures of old warriors of life, like the one of Mr. and Mrs. Waters, who have been happy for fifty years. Why doesn't someone collect enough of this evidence to write a recipe book on "How To Be Happy Though Married Fifty Years."

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

NOT INCLINED TO INVITE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Eighteen months ago my husband and I moved to this city. We met some people at the house of a mutual friend, and while I invited them to call, they have not done so. Now, very recently, I have been invited to the home of this lady to an afternoon party. I declined, partly because I did not care to go to the party, and partly because a member of my family was ill in a hospital.

In view of these facts am I socially obligated to invite this couple, or even the lady, to my house for a party, even though I do not feel so inclined?

Kay.

It seems to me that this woman tried to make a gesture to you that carried with it her friendly desire to know you and to have her friends know you. I don't quite understand, from your question, why you changed your mind about wishing to know her. Was it because she and her husband did not first make a welcoming call? Strictly speaking, they should perhaps have done this, but social life is so casual and informal nowadays that they probably did not think this necesasry.

Since you seemed to have enjoyed this woman when you met her at the home of a mutual friend, this would seem to me to have been a fine opportunity for you to have established yourself in this particular circle.

However, since now you do not "feel inclined" to invite this woman to your house, you have no social obligation to do so. I am sure that she would not wish to be invited if you feel no enthusiasm about inviting either her or her and her husband. In other words, you simply create a social situation that need not be created and that had better be dropped for lack of interest.

SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for a sister of the bride-to-be to give a bridal shower?
2. Is it proper for a bride to wear street clothes at the church ceremony, when her home is too small to accommodate the guests?
3. If there are any attendants at the church, how should they be dressed?

C. D.

1. It is not considered good taste for a close relative of either the bride-elect or of the groom-elect to give a bridal shower. The reason is, of course, that a shower given under these circumstances gives the definite impression of being too obviously planned. Bridal showers are usually, and best, given by a group of the bride's closest friends.
2. Yes, at a small informal church wedding the bride may properly wear street clothes, probably her going-away costume.
3. The bride at this kind of wedding usually has only one attendant, and this attendant wears clothes of the same type worn by the bride.

A NICE SHOW of advance fashions was arranged recently. The bloused back continues for late Autumn coats. A typical model was of black dull woolen, the bloused back marked by tucks that continue to below the waist. A triple border of silver fox in back balances the triple silver fox cuffs.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

BURNS

This is the time of the year when doctors are likely to have to attend an unusually large number of cases of burns among children. In many localities, despite all efforts, fireworks are still sold indiscriminately around Independence Day, with resultant painful injury to youngsters. And it's the camping season, when many boys and girls are having their first experience with open wood fires or camp stoves and in their excitement or ignorance they're throwing caution to the winds. Also, there are cases of bad sunburn to deal with. A surprising number of parents forget how tender a child's skin is, with the result that severe burns follow a visit to the beach or country.

Nothing can be more painful than a burn, and nothing moves me to more pity and anger than a bad case of burn on a child. For burns are due nearly always to sheer carelessness, and usually the blame lies with a parent or adult rather than with the child victim.

Medical men classify burns as first, second, third or fourth degree burns. For example, we consider a first degree burn as one in which the skin is reddened but not blistered. It is much the same sort of burn as a mild case of sunburn. A second degree burn is one in which there is definite blistering. The outer layers of the skin are affected, but the inner layer is undamaged. A third degree burn is very serious. In this the skin is seared and there is some damage to the underlying tissues and muscles. The worst of all is a fourth degree burn, in which the whole part is charred to the bone.

Even a small child can stand a first degree burn covering a large area, for often it is a mere reddening of the skin. But if the burn is second degree, it is apt to be serious. In fact, if a large area is affected, death may result. Always if the burn is third or fourth degree, you have a very sick child, even if the area burned is quite small.

Unless the burn is slight, a doctor should be called. Even then it's a good precaution, for he probably can prevent a bad scar that would be left by improvised home medication. In the meantime, these first aid measures are advised:

If slight, cover with cloths wet in strong solution of baking soda in cold water or strong tea. Dry gently and spread with white of egg, thick.

If deeper, with blisters, skin broken and swelling, cut away clothing, if any, gently. Break no blisters. Cover with mixture of equal parts of limewater and linseed oil or olive oil, or simply the oil, and light bandage. If patient is suffering from shock, with pulse weak and head confused, give mild stimulant in hot water, and place hot water bottles at feet. Quench thirst with pieces of ice held in mouth or swallow of cold milk. With such cases by all means get a doctor as quickly as possible.

Nowadays there are many good prepared remedies for burns. Such as the salves with tannic acid as a base. It's a good idea to have these in your home medical chest or to take them along on your camping trips.

Five Yankees on Firing Line As American Loop Opposes Nationals in All-Star Game

Red Ruffing Will Start on Mound With Bill Dickey as His Receiver

DERRINGER FOR NATS.

All-Star Game Will be Played in Detroit in 1941 With Fans Picking Team

St. Louis, July 9—(AP)—On the theory that what was good enough five times out of seven was good enough again, Manager Joe Cronin of the American League All-Stars sent five New York Yankees to the firing line today against the National loop's best in the eighth midsummer baseball show.

Cronin's choice of Yankee pitcher Red Ruffing victor in only seven of 13 starts, and four of his everyday fourth-place playmates immediately solidified the opposition and turned his own forces into such chaos that last-minute revision of his lineup is not unlikely.

Louis (Buck) Newsom, vocal pitcher for the Detroit Tigers who has won 12 game in a row, threatened to deny the 33,000 spectators a chance to watch him if Cronin stuck to his decision of five Yanks, two Boston reliables and one each from Washington and Chicago as the starting nine.

Meanwhile silent Bill McKechnie of the Nationals nominated players from six different clubs for his starters and said he hoped to use all 25 players on his roster. He couldn't make up his mind whether to start Paul Derringer or Bucky Walters, both of his league leading Reds as the starting hurler until a final peek at them in their warm-ups.

Failure to name Bagney McCosky of Detroit, Rip Radcliff of the Hometown Browns, and Dixie Walker of the Brooklyn Dodgers—all leading candidates in their respective positions this season—drew special censure.

Major League magnates last night recommended some method be devised by which the fans may indicate whom they would like to see play in the annual dream game, returning to the 1933 system of all-star selections. Detroit was awarded the 1941 contest.

The National League fathers endorsed helmets for batters but did not make the innovation compulsory. Agitation for the protection was started by the recent beaning of Joe Medwick, Brooklyn, outfielder.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 9. — (AP) — Scooparade: Postmaster-General Farley has been patrolling Wall Street for two weeks trying to raise enough millions to buy the Yanks. . . . also, the firm which does the Club's accounting has received a rush order for a complete financial statement on each of the farm clubs . . . . So there is something in the air besides the gentle zephyrs . . . The 300 shares of stock owned by President Ed Barrow are currently valued at around $400,000 . . . If Farley does take over, it is pretty certain he'll ask Barrow to remain as General Manager and Joe McCarthy as manager.

CONNIE HARRIS DOES FINE JOB OF RELIEF HURLING

Corby's Defeat Uptown Juniors 10-6 With Harris Taking Over in Fifth From Carson

CARSON REMOVED

Spice Added to Contest When Carson and Hook Tangle Over an Argument

With Con Harris stepping in to do a perfect piece of relief hurling, the Corby's A.C. downed the Uptown Juniors 10 to 6 at Coleman Flats last evening, thus taking another step forward in the league standing.

'Lum' Carson started for the Corby nine and although credited with the night's win, was replaced by Harris in the fifth after Red Townsend's kids scored four in the third and two in the fourth. The junior Uptowns collected but two safeties and were blanked by Harris, who relieved Carson in the fifth. Youthful Mike Powers hurled the entire game for the juniors and yielded up an even dozen hits, including homers by Moon and Reid. Some spice was added to the pastime when Steve Hook and Carson engaged in fisticuffs in the third base coaching box in the eighth, the latter being ejected from the game by Umpire Harold Bawden.

Corbys scored six runs in the first three frames only to have the junior nine knot the count with third and fourth inning rallies. Corbys continued to score and win, however, as Harris stopped the Uptowns in the fifth. Jim Barriage with three singles, Cy Barriage with a brace of safeties, Harris and Simpson all hit consistently for Corbys, as Moon and Reid hit for the circuit. Goyer and Cooke hit home runs for the Uptowns, as Sword, Powers and Whiting came through with timely blows. On Wednesday Shell meets Uptowns while Corbys journey to Point Anne.

The line-ups:

Junior Uptowns—Ethier 3b, Goyer cf, Sword ss, Cooke, Donovan and Hook rf, Mansfield 2b, Callaghan 1b, Whiting lf, Bradden and Townsend c and Powers p.

Corby's A.C.—J. Barriage lf, Cy Barriage 2b, Kiser rf, Reid 3b, Moon 1b, St. Louis and Philp cf, C. Barriage ss, Simpson c, Carson and Harris, p.

Score by innings:		R.	H.	E.
Uptowns ..	004 200 000—	6	10	3
Corbys	231 010 12x—	10	12	1

Umpires—Bawden, plate, Young, bases.

Ball players are a superstitious gentry, but no more so than the golf pros . . . For years Bobby Jones would play only with balls stamped in black. . . Tommy Armour held out for green markings while Dick Metz uses only red tees . . . Billy Burke always smokes the same number of cigars to a round.

Somebody asked Bob Feller to name the five most dangerous hitters in the American League . . .He listed Charlie Gehringer, Taft Wright, Rip Radcliff, Joe Dimaggio and Ted Williams . . . honorable mention: Jimmy Foxx, Bobby Doerr and Joe Gordon.

Hannibal, Missouri, which has been a bit shy of champs since it turned out Mark Twain, thinks it has another in Robert (Butch) Howell who recently played 270 holes of golf in one day. . . . He averaged 35 strokes a round, two over par, and wore out six caddies along the way.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

All is in readiness. Tonight along about 9.00 p.m. some proud boy will be shouldered and he will finally realize he has won the fifth annual Kinsmen Club-Ontario Intelligencer Soap Box Derby, the Coyle trophy, a gold medal and other accessories, but will all this excite him? We hardly believe so, but the moment the winner senses the fact he has realized his youthful aspirations and will represent Canada at the International Soap Box Derby, then is when the winner of tonight's Soap Box Derby will receive the greatest thrill of his youthful career. Yes, all decks have been cleared and everything is in readiness for the 5th annual Belleville Soap Box Derby, from which emerges the Canadian Soap Box Derby champion and who will represent Canada at the big world derby at Akron, Ohio, next month. Although other "kid kar" races have been operated in Toronto and Montreal, these races were not sponsored by a newspaper nor recognized by the world Soap Box Derby officials and the Chevrolet people, but the Belleville race qualifies under all of these regulations and is the pioneer race of its kind in the Dominion.

The scene of the race is Derby Hill, (North Front St.) Belleville, first race at 6.30 p.m. There are 75 starting cars, with three cars to a heat, which means 25 initial races from which 25 winners will emerge. Then there will be nine elimination heats leaving nine winners to be followed by three semi-final heats and the winners of these three semi-final races will then line the starter's stand to speed down Derby Hill for the 1940 Kinsmen Soap Box Derby championship, which means exactly 38 different races. Incidentally General Chairman Jim Fraser tells us that each driver will be given a white monogrammed driver's sweater and a metal crash helmet as gifts of the Chevrolet Division of the General Motors. As there is only a limited amount of frontage space lining the Derby Hill race course, the patrons are advised to hasten to Derby Hill as early as possible tonight to avoid disappointment. The time is 6.30 until 9.00 p.m. and never a dull moment. Remember the time and the place.

Yesterday we stated that Belleville was one of the pioneer centres of lawn bowling. However, we had our dates mixed somewhat. It was in 1886 that a team of Belleville lawn bowlers journeyed to Niagara-on-the-Lake and on the picturesque old Queen's Royal grounds met in common competition lawn bowling teams from Toronto and what is now Hamilton. It was following this two-day tournament that the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association was born. In Belleville lawn bowling was enjoyed many years prior to that first meeting of a provincial group, this city being the pioneer and cradle of the pastime in Eastern Ontario. Tomorrow sees district men's doubles championship here in Belleville.

Do you remember when Howie Morenz, Stratford, Ont., who later became hockey's most colorful figure, turned professional with Montreal Canadiens 17 years ago today? He was sold to Chicago Black Hawks in 1934, going to the New York Rangers in 1935-36, and back to the Flying Frenchmen in 1936. He died March 8, 1937, from complications following a hockey injury.

Softball lovers, especially those who are desirous of seeing a good girls' team in action, will have an opportunity to see the Simpson girls' team of the Toronto Sunnyside League in action against the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" in Trenton on Thursday evening. The game is being played under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Air Force and all receipts are to go to war work. Tickets are on sale at Toots Holway's and the game will be played at Bayside Park in Trenton Thursday evening. Captain Moffatt and Cpl. Laurie Gibson, the Flyers' kicker-outer of pucks who has deserted the hot corner for catching at softball dropped in to say they hoped a goodly number of Belleville fans would take in the Simpson-Flyer game Thursday in Trenton. At that these senior girls in Toronto play a high class brand of softball and will doubtless give a good account of themselves. Incidentally this game will cancel the Flyers-Oilers match that was to have been played here in aid of the 34th Battery boys' sports equipment fund. However, Captain Moffatt assured us the Flyers would come to Belleville next Tuesday night for this game.

Red Townsend's juniors battled the Corbys A.C. rather closely in the early stages at the Flats last night, but when Skipper Gerald Barriage sent Connie Harris in to replace Lum Carson on the Corby mound, the youthful juniors could do very little with Harris' deliveries, getting exactly two hits in four innings, after pouncing on Carson for six runs in two frames. There was never much doubt as to the ultimate result after Harris ascended the hilltop and it took a fistic outbreak between Steve Hook and Carson to add a little ginger to the proceedings. Carson was legally out of the game, but went to third to coach Hook, who wasn't in the game at the time, walked out and took Carson to task for appearing on the coaching line. Words opened and punches followed, but cooler heads settled the matter without much physical damage resulting. Down at Picton the Point Anne "cementmen" hammered the ball hard and often to win 20 to 7 last night, every member of Bubby Gaulin's outfit collecting at least one good solid base blow. The win solidly fortifies the cementmen in the second slot. "Ding" Luffman did not exert himself too much to win.

The lawn bowlers enjoyed some keen bowling during their weekly Monday club troubles last night. These weekly tournaments are exceedingly popular, although Games Chairman Cliff Argue has to line the players up occasionally. Last night winners at three games high were Ernie Vanner, Fred (Consistent) Harper, Ossie Hales, R. Richards, Mrs. Stan Jess, while Cliff Argue was high with two wins and R. E. Casement with one win.

Joe Cronin named five members of the Yankees to start in today's "all-star" game at St. Louis, Red Ruffing, Bill Dickey, Joe Gordon, Charlie Kellar and Joe DiMaggio. Either Paul Derringer or Busky Walters will fling for the National League outfit. Incidentally the major league moguls are going to give the selection of the annual "all-star" team back to the fans in 1941, which is a move in the right direction and actually what the "all-star" game was first originated for, namely to get the patrons more interested in the individual players. To date the American League has won five to the National League's two in seven.

SPORT SPICE—See a new score board has been erected at Coleman Flats, which should come in handy during the play-offs, despite efforts to move the series to the Fair Grounds. . . . From London, Ont., comes news that the senior intercollegiate football series may be played after all. . . . Perhaps not on as big a scale as other seasons, but sufficient to give the patrons a little relaxation. . . Because he wasn't named as the starting pitcher for today's major league "all-star" game, Detroit Tiger Buck Newsom says he won't even go to St. Louis. . . . Maybe that's as close as he'll get to seeing the national league players in action this year, so perhaps Buck'd better buckle in.

CHURCHILL AND HIS ENEMIES

The Nazi government, to show how it feels about the action taken by Britain to prevent the French fleet being used against it, describes Prime Minister Churchill as "the greatest scoundrel of all times"

It is the finest compliment Mr. Churchill has yet received.

The disappointment felt by the Nazi is but proof of the hope they had that they could use the French fleet in the attack on Britain, notwithstanding they had promised it would not be so used.

Mr. Churchill may be proud of his enemies. — Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Gabby Hartnett, another bitter-ender, has refused point blank to catch a night game . . . Joe Louis will referee the Jack Trammell-Eddie Blunt fight in Youngstown, Ohio, July 15.

BISON ROOKIE WINS SEVENTH IN ROW FROM WINGS

Hal White, 21, is Steve O'Neil's Best Bet as a Starting Hurler

ORIOLES FOURTH

Tied With Montreal Royals After Beating Bears by 15-14

(By The Associated Press)

Buffalo Bisons appear to be a permanent fixture in the Second Division of the International League this season, but once more they have come up with the circuit's Rookie sensation.

Last season they had Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau two of the principal reasons why Cleveland Indians now are in the thick of the American League pennant fight. And the recall of those two by the Indians was one good explanation of how the herd happened to finish third and get knocked out of the playoffs in the first round.

This year the Bisons hero is 21-year-old Hal White, a righthanded pitcher who wasn't even considered as a possible starter when the season began. He never was used for more than an inning or two in relief role until June 7. Then he relieved Lee in the second inning and pitched creditably to get a decision over Baltimore. That gave Manager Steve O'Neill the idea of letting the youngster start, and since then Hal hasn't been beaten or knocked out of the box in six games.

Beat Rochester on Five Hits

White's seventh straight victory was a five-hit 4-1 triumph over the League leading Rochester Red Wings last night. It was his best performance yet with the exception of a two-hit shutout against Syracuse June 25. The youngster fanned seven and didn't issue a walk until the ninth. In addition he fielded brilliantly and helped his cause along with a double.

Another neat pitching performance, but on a slightly different order, helped Syracuse Chiefs to a 4-3 12-inning victory over Jersey City Giants, the fifth straight loss for the Jerseys. Art Jones, relieving Jack Tising in the eighth, blanked the Little Giants with three hits in the last five frames and won out when Johnny Juelich bounced a single off Bob Sturgeon's shins in the 12th to score Gene Hasson from second.

Baltimore and Newark went to the other extreme with the Orioles winning out in the ninth 15-14, to tie Montreal Royals for fourth place.

Montreal had no chance to defend fourth place but got some consolation by walloping its "parent" club, Brooklyn Dodgers, 12-8 in an exhibition game.

THE SIMPLER LIFE

The country today is more of a Main Street country than it was ten years ago, in the sense that the flow of population to the cities and towns, down to places of 25,000 inhabitants, has slackened. As we have seen in a preceding paragraph the increase in such places has been perhaps only half as fast as in the country as a whole.

This is obviously speaking in population arithmetic only. Psychological forces in the last decade may conceivably have been running counter to the population figures. People living in the small towns and on the farms may be more urban-minded than they were in 1930 under the influence of another decade of radio, realistic literature, the new frankness in newspapers and periodical press. Yet that is mere conjecture. It may well be that ten years of depression have educated many people away from the old megalopolitan ideals to the simpler wants and thoughts of small places.—New York Times.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

TRANSFER HOLDINGS TO MOSCOW

Bucharest, July 9—(AP)— The possibility that British companies might transfer their Rumanian oil interests to Soviet Russia was discussed in diplomatic quarters here today. It is estimated that approximately $100,000,000 of British capital is invested in this country's oil industry . Rather than let these holdings fall under German control through possible developments the British interests are believed to be willing to transfer them to Moscow.

INSTALMENT 2.

"I must get the girls to be a little more affectionate with dad," Mrs. Ballard's thoughts ran. "I'll ask them to make a little more fuss about him. Of course they're young and they don't think. You and I'll go to China," she said aloud, "when the girls are married."

"Here's the situation," he began presently: "The plant has been in the red for seven months; we can't go on that way for three more months. I scraped together what I could and put it into Yellowgold Olio Incorporated, and that went flat. Then I got all the plant would carry from Patterson to go on with, and plastered this house. Now he says he can't renew . . ."

"Will, do look at that cat!" Sally Ballard interrupted him in a low tone of intense enjoyment. "He's been looking right at the bird for ten minutes without moving a hair. Suddenly he saw me watching him and he began to roll about and lick his paws as much to say, 'I wouldn't eat your bird if you gave it to me!' Oh, Toodles, Toodles," she went on, dragging him toward her to scratch his head, "what an ole bluffer . . ."

"I believe I'll turn in," William Ballard said. His wife did not look up from the cat's magnificently frilled face as she said absently: "Good boy. I believe I'll wait for the girls."

The engagement of Felicity Fellows Ballard, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson Ballard, to Archer Joseph Ross was announced a few weeks later. Lissy seemed less thrilled about it than Joyce was; to Joyce it was a source of deepest satisfaction.

Not that Archie was particularly interesting. But it would mean a wedding and bridesmaid's dresses, and that Lissy lived somewhere else. And then it meant that one of the three Ballard girls was settled; that would be pleasant. "My sister, Mrs. Ross." Joyce liked the sound.

At nineteen, tall, with red lights in her brown hair and brown eyes, playing a little tennis, riding sometimes, talking a great deal and secretly determined to be a great actress, Joyce had found her chief emotion one of fear that life would somehow pass her by. Eighteen had flashed by and become nineteen; twenty was close ahead, and even now she had never had the feeling of really living, of really doing the dashing and self-expressing and free things of which her whole life had been one long dream.

So that Lissy's engagement had its cheering side; things would now happen. Archie might ask some stunning young New York attorney to come out and be his best man—a Yale man; no, a Princeton; no, a Yale—and he might see Joyce for the first time in apricot organdie ruffles with a frilled saucer hat and bangs!

The original plan was for a quiet wedding, with "just the members of the immediate families and a few old and intimate friends for guests" as the newspapers glibly put it. It was Lissy's mother who stood out for white.

"Just a plain white frock, darling, that you can wear afterward, I want my first bride to be a white bride!"

"Well, if it were June, mother, it could be sports. But in March you can't wear summer things!"

"No, dear, but the plainest little satin?"

The plain little satin soon had a train and a veil. And since the sisters were to be there, anyway, and would want new frocks for the great occasion anyway, why not have them alike, as attendants?

About four weeks before the wedding Joyce's father said to her one night:

"Funny thing happened today. I don't know whether to tell your mother or not."

Joyce looked up abstractedly. Paul von Schwerin had called on her this afternoon and she was almost out of her senses with excitement. It was the first time—there was no use fooling herself, no matter how she fooled Margaret and Eileen about her admirers!—it was the first time any man had called on her. She had met him at the house of Margaret's cousin Marie Louise Towners, at a casual tea. It had been a girls' tea, no men Margaret's set had not reached the age when men friends drop in for tea. But Paul had come in, and he and Joyce, just introduced, had fallen at once into a delightful, an absorbed conversation that seemed to her more completely unreal every time she thought of it and she had thought of it almost without interruption ever since.

That had been Sunday. This was Wednesday, and he had come to call this afternoon. Big and lean and brown and infinitely attractive, he had been here by the fire for an hour, not wanting any tea; no, nor anything else, just wanting to jabber in his delightful idiotic way, and ask her if her people came up to the lake in summer, and where she had been all his life, and things like that. Oh, it was too thrilling!

Joyce's breath was taken away. This was the way things happened, was it? You met a boy at a tea, a delightful rich boy just home from college—oh, this was better than all her wildest dreams, and Paul was simply adorable! Joyce could hardly wait for dinner to be over and the evening to get itself somehow spent, so that she could be alone in her room, to dawdle over her undressing, thinking about him, and finally to jump into bed and go on thinking about him in the dark.

Because of all this she could not pay much attention to what her father was saying. It was not important anyway. It was merely that Archie's father had come to see him in the office. Joyce was conscious that her father said something else, and was still, rustling the pages of his paper; she contentedly leaped back into her own thoughts.

Later when she was undressing her mother came into her room.

"Sit down, darling," Joyce said springing into bed, jerking the covers up, settling herself for a chat "Dad go out?"

"No, he's still reading the paper," Mrs. Ballard said. "He was telling me — I don't suppose it means a thing!"

"Mother, did you see Paul von Schwerin? Isn't he cute?"

"He seems a very nice boy."

"I met him at Margaret's cousin's. I had no idea he was coming up. Mother," Joyce said earnestly, "is there any chance of our going up to Tahoe this year "

"Oh, darling, I don't think so. Not with Lissy's wedding and all. Daddy says we'll have to economize dreadfully for months and months! Archie's father called on dad in the office today," she added.

"What about?" Joyce asked.

"I don't know that I ought to tell you this," her mother said hesitatingly. "It's just that it seems — so queer. Joyce, a man couldn't break his engagement at this point, could he? I mean a man like Archie?"

Joyce stared at her mother, red-brown eyes wide in astonishment.

"Good heavens, no!"

"Well, of course he couldn't!" Mrs. Ballard said hastily.

"You don't mean he went in to break the engagement? Why, the invitations are going to be out next week!"

"No, no, it wasn't that. He didn't —well, it was funny," Mrs. Ballard said. "He wanted your father to put some money into his business. He suggested that dad invest about—I don't know how much, I think it was twenty-five thousand for Lissy.

"Ha!" Joyce ejaculated noncommittally, a little premonitory chill at her heart. "And is dad going to do it?"

"He says he can't."

"I think old Ross has a nerve!" Joyce said, after thought.

"It isn't that, exactly. It's the European idea. They're Scotch, you know."

"I never heard the Scotch did it! Wedding portion, hey?" Joyce mused. "Does Lissy know?"

"Oh goodness, no! And she must not, No-o-o," Mrs. Ballard said musingly. "It really doesn't mean a thing. But he suggested that dad invest this money for Lissy. He said that he had had no suspicion that his son was all ready to marry a rich American girl, that Archie had been expected to marry his brother's daughter in Edinburgh—something like that. Evidently there was some sort of family understanding or something. Dad said that Lissy wasn't rich—I don't know, I imagine it was all rather embarrassing and—and funny. At the end he said that he hoped there woudn't be any need for Archie to go to Scotland right away . . ."

"Oh, fun for Lissy!"

"No, he meant before they're married."

It was out. Mother and daughter faced each other; Joyce's cheeks grew red.

"He couldnt!" she said with a glance in the direction of Lissy's room. "It's February now. They're going to be married in four weeks."

"I don't see how he could. But dad said he spoke as if some business arrangement had to be made with the family at home; he said his brother had money to invest—"

"It would seem to me—" Joyce said cautiously, although she knew that Lissy and Archie were at the Palmers' dinner, and could not possibly overhear her, "that the best thing for dad to do would be to get the money somewhere, and invest it for Lissy! I mean it's nervy of him to force us into it, and it would make Lissy boil—she'd break the engagement if she ever found out!"

"Well, don't you bother your precious head about it tonight," Mrs. Ballard exclaimed suddenly. "It'll all come out right, and Lissy'll be married next month. She stood up. "Devereaux Patterson's going around the world," she said.

It was another shock. Joyce looked at her mother with bright stricken eyes and said nothing.

"He told Dodo so today."

"Dodo feel badly?"

"I imagine she does. He's to be gone a year. His uncle is giving him the trip. It's too bad," Sarah Ballard said simply.

"Yes," Joyce agreed briefly. "It's too bad."

"Of course there never was anything serious between him and Dodo," Mrs. Ballard offered half-heartedly. Joyce did not speak. She repeated vaguely: "It's too bad." She gave Joyce a troubled kiss and went away. She had barely left the room before Joyce, with her heart bounding for joy, had snapped off the light, snuggled down in the soft covers, and returned to dreams of Paul.

But that was not the end of the Ross matter. A day or two later Joyce tore herself from her own happy musings to discuss Felicity's affair with her brother.

The one son of the family had to make eight o'clock lectures at college five days a week; he spent that time in the jumble and noise of fraternity house life. On Saturdays and Sundays he was therefore allowed to sleep as late as he liked in his own comfortable room at home. Joyce intercepted Edna in the upper hallway, took the tray from her, and entered Ben's room just as the clocks were striking eleven.

VACATION SCHOOL OPENS SESSIONS

Classes Being Held in Three United Churches of the City

Under the supervision of Miss McTannis Semmens, B.A., the Belleville Vacation School, began on Monday morning in the three local United Churches with a complete staff of leaders in each department. Enthusiastic children, five to twelve years of age, entered whole heartedly into the various activities provided for them, chose their favorite interest groups, selected projects to be completed in the handicraft periods, and sang the rounds, songs and hymns with zest.

Two primary departments were in full swing at Holloway and Tabernacle Churches where Mrs. Branscombe and Mrs. Youdale were in charge. Children in these departments ranged up to eight years of age. Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Heath, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Nyeswander, Mrs. Brown, Bernice Saunders and Jean Archibald were the assistants in these departments.

The children above eight years of age met at Bridge St. Church. Mrs. G. Ferguson is the principal and has a full staff assisting her there. Mr. Anglin, with Mrs. R. Gibson as pianist is the director of music. Mrs. Mars is in charge of girls' recreation and Mr. Bowerman is directing the boys' handicrafts and games. The girls' handicrafts are in charge of Mrs. Conder, Miss Anglin, Mrs. J. Buchanan and Margaret Leslie.

For the study period the children are divided into two groups according to age and the study is led by Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Bews. Three interest groups impress the study in various ways and are under the direction of Mrs. Campbell, Mr. Archibald and Helen May, assisted by Norman Reid and Jean Sprague.

The rooms are informally and attractively arranged for the children's work and play and quiet chapel is set aside for the group worship. A spirit of enthusiastic co-operation for a pleasant and profitable fortnight pervaded these busy centres and it is to be hoped that the children of the city, who are welcomed without regard to race, class, creed or church affiliation, may avail themselves of the opportunity of "a camp at home."

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Amazing weather facts! Do you know that the energy coming to the earth from the sun is equal to the burning of one hundred million tons of soft coal every minute? This enormous energy makes possible the evaporation of and the subsequent condensation and falling of nine hundred and sixty million tons of moisture every minute; the never-ending movement of over five million tons of atmosphere from equator to poles and back again in which there may be a speed of 500 miles per hour in local twisting tornadoes or a 231-mile speed in a storm; and a temperature of 134 degrees where the sunshine is most effective.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 9 (CP).—All groups but gold registered gains on Toronto Exchange today. Trading was slow at the start but picked up later bringing turnover up to 55,000 shares.

Nickel and Hudson Bay advanced fractions. Kerr Addison and Broulan were up and Hollinger, McIntyre, Chesterville and Preston lower.

Bell Telephone featured the industrials with an advance of 6½ to 136½. Utilities and senior oils were firmer and steels and foods unchanged.

Home Oil and Calgary-Edmonton were unchanged. Davies firmed a fraction to 13¼, Homestead was stronger at 2½.

WALL STREET

New York, July 9 (AP).—Recovery symptoms were observed in the stock market today although financial doctors failed to make any definite prognosis.

Steels, motors and other leaders pushed up fractions to a point or so at the start, with dealings a bit livelier.

While optimistic busines strends continued as a prop for sentiment, brokers said, speculative forces generally inclined to proceed carefully pending more light on tax problems, the war and domestic politics.

Bonds worked up selectively and commodities were mixed. "Free" Sterling steadied, but Canadian currency dipped in terms of the United States dollar.

Better acting stocks included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, United Aircraft, and U.S. Rubber.

Most Canadian issues were fractions higher. They included Canadian Pacific, Dome, Walkers and Distillers Seagram. In the bond market Canada 4s went up 1⅜ cents.

Produce Markets Continue Quiet

Toronto, July 9—Continued slow trading depressed butter prices fractionally on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Eggs registered gains in all sections of trading, while cheese remained quiet and unchanged.

Buying in butter was scarcely sufficient to establish quotations, and the market stayed unsettled in tone. First-grade Ontario creamery solids eased to a range of 21 1-4c to 21 1-2c. There was no real pressure on the part of holders to sell, however, as receipts were not unusually heavy.

Grade A large and Grade A medium gained 1 cent in the graded section of the egg market. Selling prices to retailers advanced 1 cent on all except Grade C eggs, which were unchanged. A premium of 1-2 cent was obtained on Government inspected eggs. Receipts were still on the light side, but dealers' requirements were fairly well covered.

3 NEW MEMBERS

Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia will head the navy department. The other new ministers Colin Gibson, (Hamilton West) and W. P. Mulock (York North) are appointed Revenue Minister and Postmaster General respectively.

Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner will be responsible for organizing national war services with someone yet unnamed taking over his agricultural portfolio.

Outside the House last night Mr. Gardiner said he hoped to complete the national registration of every able bodied person over the age of 16 by the end of August. Thus the government will be able to plan where they will best fit into the war effort under compulsory mobilization of manpower.

Takes Over Transport

In addition to his present department, Works Minister Cardin will take over most of the Transport Department. Hon. C. D. Howe, who has been acting both as Minister of Transport and of Munitions and Supply, will continue in the latter post but retaining radio and civil aviation from the Transport Department.

Last but not least, Hon. J. L. Ilsley moves up from the Revenue Department to the Finance Ministry, as generally expected.

These shifts and appointments were announced by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons yesterday as the climax to a heavily detailed review of the war organization of the government as a whole.

While recording the scores of outstanding citizens appointed to the public service on war duty solely on a basis of specialized capacity, Mr. King confessed his inability to draft into the cabinet business and industrial leaders inexperienced in public life.

It was an "open secret" that he had tried to bring into the cabinet such outstanding persons, he said.

Many People Consulted

"I have found that those I approached felt that such special services as they could render could be given more effectively, either in an administrative post or in an advisory capacity or by their continuing to occupy an eminent and independent position in the community," the Prime Minister said.

There was a reluctance to undertake elections involved in accepting a cabinet position. There were also serious objections to severing business ties, whereas a person could act in an advisory capacity and still give some attention to business.

Mr. King said the government had also considered establishing an advisory committee to the cabinet, composed of persons prominent in various fields, but gave up the idea because such persons would object to political implications and also feel their responsibility was greater than their power.

In any case, the government now was continually consulting such people whether they were part of the administration or not.

Weekly Parleys Suggested

To bring all points of view to the aid of the government, Mr. King finally invited Conservative leader Hanson and his desk-mate, Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale), a former Defence Minister, to become associate member of the war committee. If they accepted he said he would also invite the leaders of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and the new democracy group.

As an alternative, he suggested weekly conferences between the war committee and the opposition when matters could be discussed confidentially.

Mr. Hanson, attacking the Prime Minister's statement as an attempt to bolster up "the shattered fortunes of his government", gave no immediate answer to the invitation. At such a time he could not lightly refuse it, nor was it one he could accept without grave reflection.

Accused of Partisanship

He blamed the Prime Minister's failure to enlist business leaders in his cabinet to an insistence on loyalty to the leader of the administration. He accused Mr. King of continuing a partisan government in the face of national crisis.

"Only a government representative of all the people should lead his nation in wartime", he contended.

Danger of industry controlling government and the war effort, instead of the government mobilizing industry, was seen by M. J. Coldwell, (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar). The consumer, working man and farmer should all have a voice on the numerous boards and committees if there was to be a truly combined war effort.

Gov't Owns Corporation

The House also heard the Prime Minister announce the setting up of a government-owned corporation. The Allied Supplies Limited, to manage British munitions and munition plants here and similar British-Canadian joint efforts. Hon. Charles Dunning, former Finance Minister, is chairman and Harold Crabtree of Montreal, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, president, of the new company.

First reading was given the naval department bill and a measure providing the death penalty for treachery.

As debate on the budget resolutions proceeded in the evening Finance Minister Ilsley announced that the government would include refugee children as income tax exemptions on the same basis as other dependents. Consideration would also be given to provide some exemption from income tax and national defence tax for men in the forces.

The Prime Minister's lengthy statement was read in the Senate last night by Government Leader Dandurand, provoking the suggestion from Conservative Leader Meighen that Senator Dandurand must make digests of the "interminable communications" which came from the Commons.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, July 9 — (Special) — Darkness and rain finally called a halt to the softball game between the Miller Bros. and Wooler last night after the game had gone nine innings with the score tied 13-all. The two teams were fighting for second place in the Trenton and District Softball League but as the game ended in a tie, both fell into third place and the Doughnuts moved up with an edge of a half a game.

Seven homers featured the struggle that kept on practically even terms from the first inning. Both teams scored in the first frame but the Woolerites took the lead in the second with five runs. Millers evened it in the third with five runs and from then on both teams kept on even basis.

Stacey on the mound for the Woolers, held a very slight edge over his opponent. He struck out three, walked four and gave up 12 hits, three being homers. Coughlin, doing the hurling duties for the Millers struck out five, walked four and gave up 13 hits, four being homers.

Anderson, fast moving shortstop for the Miller Bros., wielded the most potential bat of both teams by clipping out three homers. Davis and Long with three hits each were also strong at bat for the Millers. Both Adams and Austin collected a homer and a single for the Woolerites.

The line-up:

Miller Bros: Anderson, s.s.; Niddery, 3b.; Davis, l.f.; Long, c.; Cain, 1b.; Istead, r.f.; Drake, c.f.; Lohnes, 2b.; Coughlin, p.

SUCCESSFUL

A few minutes later aircraft of the fleet air arm flew lower over the harbor to drop torpedoes in the shiny new warship flying the French tricolor. Both attacks were successful and the big ship now lives with a heavy list to port and down by the stern, obviously, in no condition to be used by Hitler and Mussolini.

Attempted to Cripple Craft

"The British navy attempted to cripple the French craft only after the French Admiral refused the same terms offered earlier to the French Commander at Oran to permit Britain to take the ship for the duration of the war, to demilitarize her in the French West Indies or the United States, to demilitarize the ship in Dakar, or to fight it out.

The measures Britain has taken have removed a source of "grave anxiety", he said, thanking the naval staff which planned "these operations immediately following the completion of the evacuation (from France) in the face of the enemy troops and refugees totalling not less than 600,000"

Mr. Alexander disclosed that the Royal Navy had engaged in two further operations since its attack July 3 on French units at Oran to ensure that France's fleet be kept from German and Italian hands.

Seven French capital ships now have been accounted for, he declared.

Dropped From Motorboat.

The depth charges which crippled the Richelieu were dropped from a motorboat close under the stern to damage propellers and steering gear," Mr. Alexander said, while aircraft dropped torpedoes.

All the attackers escaped safely, he said.

The motorboat, the First Lord told the House, was a ship's boat under Lt.-Cmdr. R. H. Bristowe which was sent into the harbor and carried out its mission "with great daring".

These four alternatives were offered the French commander, Mr. Alexander said:

1. That the Richelieu sail with a reduced crew under escort to a British port;
2. That she sail with a reduced crew to a French port in the West Indies where she could be demilitarized;
3. That she be demilitarized in Dakar within twelve hours;
4. That she would be sunk within a time limit.

No satisfactory reply was received within the time limit, he declared.

The other naval action since the attack at Oran mentioned by Mr. Alexander was the raid by British aircraft July 6 on the battleship Dunkarque.

Fliers Score Six Hits.

It already had been disclosed that British fliers scored six hits on the damaged, grounded, 26,500-ton French capital ship July 6 and Mr. Alexander said the aerial attack would incapacitate her for a long time.

Telling of the raid on the Richelieu, the First Lord said:

"On July 7, the flag officer entrusted with these operations sent one of his captains ahead in a sloop in order to present the terms in person.

"On arrival, this ship was informed by French authorities that they would be fired on if she approached close to the port and it was only after an interval that the French consented to receive this communication by signal."

Aerial reconnaissance after the attack established that the Richelieu was listing to port, down by the stern and surrounded by a large quantity of oil, he said.

While the motorboat still was in the harbor, Mr. Alexander related, her engines broke down and she lay helpless for a time but the crew succeeded in getting one engine running just as they were discovered. The boat was pursued but managed to escape by crossing harbor defence nets which fouled the propeller of its pursuer, he said.

London, July 9—(CP)—The prized nearly-completed 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu was presumed today to have been sunk, seized or damaged by the Royal Navy in its continuing worldwide drive to prevent French warships from falling into the hands of Germany or Italy.

A "successful" action against the Richelieu early yesterday was announced and further details awaited an official statement expected this afternoon.

The Richelieu was believed to be the most formidable vessel in the French fleet. Although she is but one of a class of four new heavily armored but fast ships under construction, the Richelieu was the only one almost ready for service.

The last word on the Richelieu was that she had put out from Brest into the Atlantic last week, possibly on a trial run. It was understood her armament had not been completed.

The Richelieu class ships have these imposing specifications: Speed, more than 30 knots; guns, four 15-inch, sixteen 6-inch quick-firing, 18 anti-aircraft guns; Armor, 16 inches at waterline, deck armor 8 inches; aircraft, four, with two catapults.

Part of Campaign

Action against the Richelieu was part of the navy's systematic campaign to prevent vessels of the French navy from being useful to the Germans and Italians. The British attack on the French fleet off Oran, Algeria, last Wednesday was described by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander as only the "first steps" of this drive.

The Oran action, in which the Royal Navy sank one battleship, heavily damaged and beached another, heavily damaged a third, sank a seaplane carrier and burned two destroyers, was termed a "particularly cruel episode" by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French National Committee in London, in a broadcast last night.

Gen. de Gaulle, whose followers are continuing fighting with Britain against Germany, nevertheless told the French "it is better" that the ships were destroyed.

"Our enemies" he said, "would have used our ships either against Britain or against the French Empire."

Britain's defence regulations net enmeshed Brian Bernard Carroll, 31, treasurer of the British Union of Fascists, and Admiral Sir Barry Domville, former director of British naval intelligence, and Lady Domville.

They were arrested last night and Admiral Domville, who retired in 1936, was taken to Brixton prison and his wife to Holloway prison.

Chairman of "Link"

Admiral Domville, 62, was chairman of the pro-German organization known as "The Link," dissolution of which was announced some time ago.

He was a frequent guest of German Nazi leaders—twice of Hitler himself. He was in Germany last year only a month before war broke out.

German air raids against Britain continued last night and this morning. Raiders cross the eastern and southern coasts of England and the northeast coast of Scotland, bombing and damaging buildings near the coasts. There were "very few" casualties, the government reported.

Earlier it was announced eight German planes and one British craft were shot down in furious air battles yesterday.

One person was killed in a southeast town where four high explosive bombs fell, and two persons were injured slightly in a Scottish town where incendiary bombs caused "little damage."

Two bombs were dropped in Wales "without effect," it was announced.

German Raids Continue

Miss E. Howland, 36, who worked in a house over which a German fighter plane was pursued by British Spitfires before they brought it down in flames, was found dead last night, apparently killed by a stray machine-gun bullet.

German raids over the United Kingdom continued today.

Planes were first sighted over northwest England and then bombs were dropped on a Welsh town where six persons suffered superficial injuries.

These raids followed announcement of widespread and heavy damage through German-held areas on the continent, including docking facilities and railway yards.

At home tea was placed on the ration list, cutting the supply per person to about enough for 25 cups a week, but leaving restaurants free to serve as much as they liked. Also placed on the ration list were margarine and cooking fats.

Had Row with Hoare

Admiral Sir Barry had a row last August with Sir Samuel Hoare over the activities of "The Link," which Sir Samuel said was being used as an "instrument of the German propaganda service." He also said it was receiving money from Germany.

At the time of Sir Samuel's statement—which Sir Barry subsequently called a "damned lie"—the admiral was in Salzberg seeking to form in Germany organizations similar to "The Link."

On his return to Britain he called Sir Samuel's statement a "most scandalous attack on our organization which is doing its utmost to promote good will between England and Germany."
